Key year for labor, industry ahead

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Next year will be a hectic one for labor negotiations, with bargaining scheduled in several major industries that have been hard hit by the recession.

Contracts for 4.5 million workers are involved, and the bargaining is expected to be difficult because the business climate is poor, unemployment is high and inflation continues. Strikes in a major industry such as autombiles could blunt economic recovery.

Union leaders indicate they'll be pressing for substantial wage increases to catch up with inflation, but fears of another recession and continued high unemployment also will influence their demands.

The heaviest calendar of bargaining talks is scheduled from March to September. They center on eight key industries — automobiles, trucking, rubber, electrical equipment, construction, food, apparel and farm equipment.

At the same time, there is concern within the Ford administration that internal union pressures and competition between unions to outpace one another could ignite a new wage spiral and a return of runaway inflation.

Michael Moscow, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, says wages are an area that will have to be watched "very closely."

Inflation tapered off somewhat in 1975, but was still running far above traditional levels. Its rate in 1976 will be the biggest influence in labor negotiations.

Most of the contracts expiring in 1976 were negotiated in 1973 during a period of wage controls. Since then, workers' average gross weekly pay, measured in 1973 dollars, have dropped 5.3 per cent.

Their purchasing power — take-home pay adjusted for inflation and taxes — in October was 4 per cent below its average for 1973.

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons says inflation has cost his members 63 cents an hour because of the ceiling on the cost of living clause in his union's contract with the trucking industry.

In negotiations that began Dec. 11 against a March 31 strike deadline, the Teamsters demanded an unlimited cost-of-living escalator, an issue that will be prominent in most 1976 contract talks.

High on the list of demands along with wages and inflation protection clauses will be job security.

Unemployment may have little effect on the size of wage settlements, but it is likely to prompt unions to push for early retirements, longer vacations, job transfer rights and restrictions on overtime and managements' right to contract out work.

Management is likely to counter with demands to loosen work rules and manning procedures to increase productivity.

W. J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation Service, says with the economy rebounding from the recession, companies will be in a better financial position to meet union demands than in 1975.

The most likely battleground is in the rubber industry, where unions already are threatening a strike when their contracts run out in April.

Unlike wage settlements in the auto industry and many others, the 1973 rubber agreement made no provision for cost-of-living adjustments. Since then, rubber industry wages, formerly about on a par with those in the auto industry, have fallen behind.

In autos, workers are less troubled by inflation because they already have one of the best inflation insurance clauses. Their main worry is job security.

Auto talks generally are unpredictable, but the early prebargaining publicity indicates labor and management on a collision course.

Realtors fight sales surcharge

"We know we need the money," said Long Beach Mayor Thomas J. Clark, "but no one wants to tell us where to get it from."

Clark's comment came during the last two weeks of hearings over the proposed real property transfer tax, a levy that would charge the seller of a home $3.90 per $1,000 of market value of the house.

Faced with stiff opposition from realtors, Clark told the crowded council chambers that the city needs $700,000 this year and $1.5 million annually thereafter to balance the budget.

The dilemma spotlighted the city's growing financial plight and the council's financial straightjacket that limits the way it can raise money.

The council members Tuesday face the unwelcome task of raising $1.5 million through one tax or another.

Major alternatives considered in the running are:

—The real property transfer tax, which has already won unanimous tentative approval of the council.

—A sewer tax of approximately $15 per household per year.

—A property-tax increase of 15 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Moslem leader slain in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sheik Kassem Imad, 53-year-old Moslem governor of north Lebanon, was assassinated in a hail of machine-gun fire outside his Tripoli home Saturday, raising fears of fierce new battles in Lebanon's civil war. His wife was wounded in the attack.

"I am afraid his assassination confirms classified information I have been receiving the last two days that a wave of political assassinations will be staged to escalate the civil war," said Interior Minister Camille Chamoun.

In Beirut, rightist Christian and leftist Moslem gunmen were reported pulling out of some street positions under a five-day-old truce. Police said 12 persons were killed in scattered clashes.

Security forces reported the northern region quiet after Imad's assassination, but said streets in Tripoli, about 60 miles north of Beirut, remained unsafe because of marauding gunmen.

There was no official word on the identity of Imad's killers. The governor belonged to the Moslem Druze sect, whose political chief Kamal Junblatt is the most prominent spokesman for Lebanon's left-wing parties.

Tripoli, the country's second-largest city after Beirut, is controlled by left-wing Moslem leader Farouk Mokaddem. The national government of Premier Rashid Karami has only limited authority in the area.

Imad, as Karami's representative, had been playing a neutral role in fierce fighting between Mokaddem's militia and Christian gunmen from the nearby town of Zagharta — home base of President Suleiman Franjieh.

The fighting, raging since April, is over Moslem demands for political and economic reforms and Christian insistence they can come only after the government clamps down on the Palestinian guerrillas.

SOME CLOUDS, HIGH OF 70 IN FORECAST

Light sprinkles dampened the Southland at dusk Saturday, but soon gave way to patchy fog and chill night air.

National Weather Service forecasters said Saturday's wet weather front would leave some lingering clouds over the area today, but predicted mostly fair skies with high temperatures near 70. Overnight lows were to have plummeted to the low 40s.

Forecasters added that Southland residents may expect the usual night and morning low clouds today, while mountain visitors will probably encounter a few sprinkles this morning and afternoon.

The weathermen said the snow level was expected to descend to the 7,000- foot level today.

Ford warns Russ on Angola; Cuba shut out

By FRANCIS LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford warned Saturday that Soviet interference in Angola "doesn't help the continuation of detente" and Cuba's infiltration of some 6,000 troops "ends any efforts at all to have friendly relations" with that government.

Ford, holding an impromptu half-hour news conference at the White House, said that the Senate's action in cutting off funds for covert U.S. military aid for two anti-Soviet factions in Angola has "seriously undercut" U.S. efforts to try to get diplomatic moves under way to end foreign intervention and help settle the civil war in that African nation.

The President discussed everything from taxes to politics, declaring that he intends to run on his record as president.

Coming out of a three-hour meeting on the fiscal 1977 budget, Ford said another meeting with his advisers today will conclude "final decisions on the budget" and he intends to keep a $395-billion spending ceiling and to propose a $28-billion tax cut.

Tragedy of Vietnam haunts senators as they vote on military aid to Angola. Story on Page A-17.

Ford said he will sign the compromise tax-cut bill passed Friday when it comes to him Monday. And he proposes to add another $10-billion tax cut to the almost $18 billion that the Congress measure included.

On Cuba's sending of what he estimated was four to six thousand troops to Angola, Ford said, "The action of the Cuban government in sending combat troops to Angola has destroyed any opportunity for improvement of relations with the United States."

Ford said the issue is to make sure that the people of Angola can "decide their own fate" and establish their own government.

He declared it was "unwise and very harmful for any power such as the Soviet Union and Cuba to try to dominate any government in that country."

He charged that the Soviet Union had been spending $100 million or more in Angola and this "certainly doesn't help the continuation of detente." The intervention of the Soviets and Cubans was "a setback for the people in Angola."

Ford maintained that congressional action "has tied our hands" and called it a "serious mistake" for the United States, which he said "should have flexibility" in helping people of other nations decide their own fate.

Ford repeated what he said in an earlier statement after the Senate voted Friday to cut off funds for U.S. aid in Angola, that countries that depend on the United States would lose faith in this nation to help them under similar circumstances.

He declined to discuss what actions the United States has been taking in Angola, except to emphasize that the United States has never had any intention of sending American military personnel to Angola and that the United States has been conducting a "legitimate covert operation" there.

When asked why his administration had not previously spelled out the situation in Angola and its own activities there, Ford said, "the President just shouldn't discuss it publicly" in detail.

He also pointed out that it was

Argentine planes attack rebel base

By MORT ROSENBLUM

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Government jets bombed and strafed Moron air base Saturday. One report said rebel officers holding the base appeared ready to negotiate an end to the three-day uprising against the government of President Isabel Peron.

The official Telam news agency, quoting what it said was a Government House communique, said early today the revolt at the base had ended but a rebel spokesman denied it. A loyal air force spokesman did not confirm the report and no Government House official could be reached for comment.

The rebel spokesman neither confirmed nor denied an earlier air force statement that a solution was likely Sunday.

Hours after the jet attacks, military sources said three rebel envoys left the Moron base to meet with air force commanders.

Mrs. Peron left Government House near midnight and was driven to the suburban presidential residence. She had been at her office for almost 14 hours.

The attack on the air base lasted two hours. Reporters who witnessed the raid said two propeller-driven training planes were destroyed on the ground and a power plant was blown up. Machine guns were fired at the attacking planes, which swooped as low as 60 feet over the installations, but there was no antiaircraft fire.

No injuries were reported, and the reporters said the loyal pilots appeared to avoid firing near their fellow airmen.

"We will die in these battle positions," said Cmdr. Julio Cesar Caceres, a rebel air force officer. "We will not negotiate."

Mrs. Peron, in a radio statement broadcast from Government House in downtown Buenos Aires, said "the problem raised by a small group of insurgents ... is on the road to solution." She appealed

Oval Office had its share of cheating hearts

Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Betty Ford, after getting sacks full of angry letters for saying she likes to go to bed with her husband, told an interviewer ruefully that Americans apparently want their presidents to be eunuchs.

But many presidents, from George Washington to Gerald Ford, have enjoyed frequently active sex lives — sometimes so active some of them have sought female companionship outside the marital bedroom.

Warren G. Harding, who fathered an illegitimate child during the course of a 15-year affair, in and out of the White House, was once told by his father: "If you were a girl, Warren, you'd be in a family way all the time. You can't say no."

Mysterious Judith Campbell Exner, who surfaced last week to say she had a "close, personal" relationship with John F. Kennedy, revived memories of a vigorous, virile president who constantly sparked stories of secret trysts, White House dalliances and skinny-dipping with secretaries in the presidential swimming pool.

Because of the protective shield of loyal cronies, aides and guards that surrounds a president, stories of extramarital play can rarely be verified.

Sorting out fact from gossip in such situations is often impossible. As one reporter who covered several recent presidents said: "We thought we knew what was going on inside while we were waiting outside, but we never could really be sure."

It is also possible that some tales may be made up, or exaggerated, by enemies of the president or people out for gain.

Mrs. Exner refused to answer a point-blank question about whether she had sexual relations with Kennedy. She indicated she would tell all someday. But even then, whatever she says may be difficult to substantiate independently.

Close Kennedy friends and associates, including some who say they have no recollection of Mrs. Exner, acknowledge that the late president had a roving eye.

The most persistent stories about him involve his penchant for nude swims in the White House pool with unclad young women staffers.

A secretary in the president's office and one in Press Secretary Pierre Salinger's office — known informally as "Fiddle and Faddle" — were frequent swimming pool guests, according to White House insiders of the day.

"Fiddle" was occasionally seen after lunch walking through the White House lobby with her hair dripping wet.

Kennedy's private secretary, Evelyn Lincoln, kept moving "Fiddle's" desk further away from the president's Oval Office. He kept ordering that it be moved back again.

More ordinary lovers often have to worry about being caught by a jealous husband or wife.

Boy's best Yule gift—vision

Combined News Services

Ten-year-old Andres Hernandez, blind and starving, groped through the streets of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, begging for food. That was Christmas Past, 1974.

On the eve of Christmas Present, 1975, Andres ate good New Orleans food every day. He was clean. He was happy. And, best of all, he could see shapes and forms, even his Christmas presents.

Andres never had many Christmas presents before, but since he was 5 Andres couldn't have seen them any way. He could tell darkness from light. But that was all.

A team of six surgeons at Ochsner Medical Institutions in New Orleans gave him his biggest Christmas gift with two delicate operations, successful against heavy odds.

"We don't have Santa Claus in Honduras," he said in Spanish. "But, we have St. Nicholas, and that's the same thing."

He wriggled a little and his face split into a wide grin. "Oh, they have lots of pretty Christmas trees in Honduras," he said.

No one asked how he knew.

"He's a great boy," said Dr. William Williamson, one of the doctors who saved Andres' right eye. "He's bright and he's got guts. There he would be, his eyes bandaged, blind, being prodded and tested, not hearing a word he could understand, among a bunch of strangers, and he still grinned."

The miracle of Andres Hernandez Perez began when Paul Holsen, a Honduran businessman, saw the boy begging in Tegucigalpa. He talked by ham radio to Tony Paladino of New Orleans who contacted Ochsner. Drs. Williamson and Robert Schimek, chief of Ochsner ophthalmology, agreed to operate without charge.

A Honduran radio telethon raised $800, and the Honduran airline flew him to New Orleans free. The Help Honduras Committee, formed in New Orleans when Hurricane Fifi decimated Honduras, provided other help.

Delayed

Sargent Shriver said Saturday he delayed opening his presidential campaign because he waited for absolute assurance that Sen. Edward Kennedy would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Shriver, who announced his candidacy Nov. 13, said in Worcester, Mass., that he is at a disadvantage in the race because of his late start and was asked by a reporter: "Why did you come in so late?"

Shriver replied, "I had to be certain that my brother-in-law (Kennedy) was not going to run. When he absolutely assured me there was no way he was going to run, then I announced."

Embarrassed

A smiling President Ford noted Saturday that he is "embarrassed all the time" by the fact that his wife's polls and photographs come out better than his.

He told a Washington news conference that he understands Newsweek magazine this week is using his wife, Betty, on "a little more complimentary cover" than it used for him. The magazine's cover last week was labeled "Ford in Trouble."

"I keep telling Betty that I get embarrassed all the time with her polls and picutures. When they take a picture of her dancing it is beautiful; when they take a picture of me dancing in public, it is not very complimentary."

Restaurateur

Thomas E. Saxe Jr., chairman of the board of the White Tower Management Corp. and founder of the White Tower chain of restaurants, died Saturday in Stanford, Conn., Hospital. He was 72 years old and lived in New Canaan, Conn.

After graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1925, Saxe opened a small lunchroom in his native Milwaukee. From that start he built the White Tower restaurant system. He was elected to the National Restaurant Association's Hall of Fame in 1952.

Saxe founded the Sittin', Starin' 'n' Rockin' Club in Sarasota, Fla., in 1949 for a few close business friends. The club grew to a membership of 2,500 persons around the world.

Retiring

Rep. Phil Landrum, D-Ga., a member of Congress for 23 years, said Saturday he will retire after his term ends next year.

"I have decided that I will not be a candidate for representative in the 95th Congress," Landrum, who represents Georgia's 9th District, said at his home in Jasper, Ga. He said he wanted to concentrate more on private matters than "the responsibilities and demanding schedule of congressional service."

Landrum, 66, has sponsored numerous education bills.

Executive

Frank Bennack Jr. has been elected executive vice president of the Hearst Corp., it was announced Saturday in New York by John R. Miller, the corporation's president and chief executive officer.

Bennack, 42, is the youngest person ever to hold the position of executive vice president in the Hearst organization. In 1973, he was elected president of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association. He is a director of the Newspaper Advertising Bureau and the Advertising Council.

New life

A politically conservative Catholic priest, Daniel Lyons, has left the priesthood, married and has been named editor of the Christian Crusade journal of evangelist Billy James Hargis.

Lyons, 55, said in a telephone interview from Florida that he married a 23-year-old Irish singer, Mary Cooney, in a civil ceremony. But he added he expected permission to marry in the Roman Catholic Church within a few weeks.

Tummy ache

Susan Saxe, awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Boston policeman five years ago, was taken briefly to the emergency ward of Worcester City, Mass., Hospital on Saturday for a stomach ache.

Miss Saxe, a self-proclaimed revolutionary feminist, was arrested early this year after being on the FBI's most wanted list for 4½ years.

"She's fine now. It was just a stomach ache," said Nancy Gertner of Boston, Miss Saxe's attorney.

Heiress

Carla Barga Navaretti, kidnaped American mother-in-law of an heiress to the Fiat fortune, has written a letter pleading with her family to pay a reported $20-million ransom, Italian newspapers reported Saturday.

They said Mrs. Navaretti, whose son Alain Elkann is married to the daughter of auto magnate Gianni Agnelli, said she feared for her life unless the demand was met. She was abducted Nov. 26 near her home in Turin. The reported ransom is believed to be the highest ever demanded in the world.

Ransomed

Italy's kidnap wave, responsible for 57 known abductions this year, is reaching down to hit the less wealthy.

A 16-year-old girl kidnaped in the east coast town of Senigallia, Italy, two days ago was set free Saturday after her carpenter father raised $7,500 to buy her release — far shy of the multi-million dollar ransoms frequently paid by the families of wealthier victims.

The girl, Patrizia Stefanini, was lured into a car Thursday by three youths who claimed her fiance had been hurt in an auto accident and wanted to see her.

Wife brings Nobel awards

Sakharovs reunited in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov had a tearful reunion with his wife Saturday at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport. She brought him the Nobel Peace Prize medal and diploma that Soviet officials wouldn't let him go to Norway to collect in person.

Sakharov, members of the family and about 30 friends waited 2½ hours after the plane landed for Mrs. Sakharov to go through airport formalities.

Customs officials seized copies of Sakharov's books published in the West and four copies of a book of Osip Mandelshtam's poems that Mrs. Sakharov said was published in the Soviet Union.

Asked about the gold Nobel Peace Prize and the diploma, Mrs. Sakharov said, "The medal they didn't take and the diploma they didn't take."

Mrs. Sakharov left Moscow for Italy in August to undergo a successful eye operation. She was abroad when Sakharov was awarded the peace prize and, when Soviet officials denied him a visa to go to Oslo for the Dec. 10 ceremony, Mrs. Sakharov went in his place.

She arrived in Moscow on an Air France flight. The reunion was delayed by the formalities at the busy airport and a thorough check of Mrs. Sakharov's luggage by customs officials.

Sakharov arrived at the waiting room with a bunch of carnations wrapped in a newspaper.

"I got them on the street, they are frozen," he said. The nuclear physicist and spokesman for human rights in the Soviet Union stood on a bench to peer over the partition that separates the waiting room from the area where the passengers disembark.

"Aha, there she is," Sakharov shouted. He waved and blew her a kiss. A blue uniformed airport official called to him not to stand on the bench.

For more than two hours Sakharov paced in the waiting room. When she had finally cleared customs, Mrs. Sakharov went out another exit and Sakharov, the family and friends rushed outside and to the other exit.

Sakharov and his wife embraced and kissed. She was overcome and wept. She greeted her daughter and son by a previous marriage and her daughter's 2-year-old son.

"I didn't bring with me any bad literature," Mrs. Sakharov said. "I brought with me all publications of your book, Norwegian, Dutch, Danish — everything that was available."

She said customs officials seized the book along with the Mandelshtam volumes that were published in the Soviet Union. The Soviets have published the poet — who died in the Stalin purges — in very small editions. The copies are not on general sale in the Soviet Union, but are shipped abroad for sale or sold in Moscow at special hard-currency shops patronized by foreigners.

Although she returned with the medal and diploma from the Nobel ceremony, Mrs. Sakharov left the $143,000 prize money in the West. She had said earlier the money would be left in the West because if she attempted to bring it to Moscow Soviet officials would take a major share of it.

No fanfare awaits Ford in Vail

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — No banners, brass bands or planned welcoming rallies will greet Pesident Ford in this Rocky Mountain ski resort when he arrives Tuesday for his winter work-vacation.

"Will it snow?" "Where's the best skiing?" "How is that new bar?" or "Where is a good place to eat?" Those are the major concerns.

It appears that given a choice, folks here would rather have some fresh snow than a presidential visit, but if both arrived at the same time, that would be all right, too.

Vail, a ski resort 8,200 feet above sea level, is a place so unnoticing that even a president can find relief and escape from world problems and crowds of well-wishers.

One hundred miles west of Denver, the town of Vail plays host to movie stars and celebrities and has been Ford's vacation home since his days as a congressman from Michigan.

"Have no fear, Air Force One will bring snow," reads a handwritten blackboard note on a midmountain ski lift.

That's the closest to a welcoming banner to be found here. And even that notation is not about matters of state, but is seeking Ford's snow-making powers which dumped more than a foot of snow for his visit last Christmas.

President Ford is scheduled to arrive Tuesday for a seven-day stay with his family. Those to be here for Christmas include First Lady Betty Ford, daughter Susan, sons Steve and Mike, and Mike's wife.

Ford is described by ski instructors as a good recreational skier. Last Christmas, his first since becoming president to be spent here, Ford skied the well-groomed runs from the summit of 11,250 feet and the unpacked, deep-powder snow bowls on the south side of Vail Mountain.

Con men active in L.B.

Don't be taken in by the crooked bank examiner!

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

THE BANK VICTIM AS 'SECRET SPY'

If you get a phone call from a man who says he is a bank official checking on an error in your account, tell him no dice and hang up.

He's not a bank official. He's a con man setting you up for the "bank examiner scam," an old but highly successful bunco scheme that bilks a fortune out of trusting victims throughout the Southland and the nation every year.

Unusually active in the Long Beach area in the past year, the "bank examiners" are believed to be members of one ring that makes annual swings around the country. It is a big, well-organized operation, and it's virtually foolproof as far as the chance of any members ever landing in jail is concerned.

EVEN IF he or she is aware of the scheme when first contacted, there is no way the potential victim can trap the bunco men for the police. The operators have built-in safeguards against every such possibility.

"The only thing we can do is to try to make everyone aware of the racket and save their money," said Sgt. Deo L. Gemignani, of the Long Beach police bunco-fraud detail. "When it's no longer lucrative for the ring to operate in Long Beach, then it will skip Long Beach."

Before examining the immunity to jail enjoyed by the operators, here's how the typical bank-examiner scam goes:

The "mark," or victim, — almost always an elderly woman — gets a telephone call from a man who says he is a bank examiner calling about her account at the so-and-so bank branch. In the background can be heard the clatter of typewriters, the whir of adding machines and other such official-sounding noises.

"SINCE your last deposit, the bank shows your balance at $X1,000. Does this agree with your records, or is it in error?"

The victim excitedly asserts indeed there is an error; her records show a balance of $X4,000.

Then the caller sorrowfully says this is just what he feared. "We have reason to fear some of your funds are being siphoned off by a dishonest bank employe," he confides.

The victim, naturally, wants to know what's going to be done about it.

At this point, the "bank examiner" asks her if she will help investigators trap the thief through a highly secret operation.

(SGT. GEMIGNANI said it used to be the victim was offered a substantial reward for her cooperation, but the ring has learned the bunco operates just as well or even better without it. The victim usually is eager to help and thrilled with the intrigue of being part of a super-spy adventure.)

The "bank examiner" then tells her to wait at home for "Mr. Brady, our top investigator," to call on her and explain the part she is to play in bringing the bank thief to justice. In the meantime, she is warned not to tell anyone — not even closest friends or even relations, and above all, no one at the bank — about the matter.

"Mr. Brady" shows up soon, armed with impressive credentials and usually an official-appearing badge.

He tells the victim she is to go to her bank and draw out $X0,000 in cash — no travelers' checks or bank certificates, but cash. She is to return to her home with the money, where the serial numbers will be recorded by Mr. Brady.

AFTER the bills have been secretly marked, she is to redeposit them and the trap will be set for the bank thief.

(The con man puts a lot of lace on the flim-flam at this point, telling the mark there will be secret cameras recording both transactions and secret recordings of her voice and the bank teller's voice, which later will be used in court.)

The victim follows directions and returns home with the money. "Mr. Brady," and usually the bank examiner also, are awaiting her there.

The two men start recording the serial numbers. Then comes the telephone call (again against impressive background noises) for "Mr. Brady."

HE IS jubilant when he hangs up the phone. The trap already has sprung; the thief made a false entry regarding the withdrawal that was caught by the secret cameras. The two men are to take the recorded bills back to the bank right away to confront the suspect with the irrevocable evidence of guilt.

Mr. Brady and the bank examiner say they will either return the bills after the thief is in handcuffs or redeposit them for her, whichever she prefers.

Whichever she prefers, exit Mr. Bank Examiner and Mr. Brady, exit the money, score another hit for the bank examiner bunco. By the time the victim begins to get suspicious and calls the bank, the con men are long gone.

The scope of the entire operation is indicated by two factors. One is the quantity of information the con men have about the victim's bank status before she is contacted and the other by the fact that the operation is scrubbed the moment the victim tries to leave the house or telephone out between the first telephone contact and the arrival of "Mr. Brady" to set the hook.

"THIS indicates research teams, visual surveillance teams both at the house and at the bank and telephone surveillance teams," Gemignani said. "They take no chances. The scam has to go bang, bang, bang, without a hitch, or they drop it like a hot potato. If there is a minute's delay at the bank, or if the teller appears to be stalling, they are gone.

"If, after the first telephone contact, the victim attempts to stall and asks that 'Mr. Brady' come at a later time, or if she makes a call out, or tries to leave the house, they're gone."

Those realistic office or bank noises in the background of the bank examiner's telephone conversation, incidentally, are tape recordings surreptitiously made earlier inside actual banks by ring members.

It is impossible to estimate the gross take of the bank-examiner ring, the officer said, because many victims never report the fraud. They are ashamed of having been "taken" and sometimes fear it will convince their relatives (and heirs) they are incapable of handling their money.

WHILE arrests of the bunco-ring members are extremely rare — Gemignani knew of only one such case, happening in Los Angeles last May — convictions are even rarer. In the Los Angeles case, the alleged con man had a record of arrests three pages long for other types of bunco and fraud, but he walked out of court a free man.

"The victims make poor witnesses," Gemignani said. "They're what you might call 'defense lawyers' delights,' being old and easily confused."

The research teams gain information in various ways about their victims. Some of it is obtained by advance teams posing as "free senior citizens' Social Security advisers, sent from Washington by the government to assist senior citizens in planning their affairs."

Other sources might include credit reporting firms, or dishonest bank employes offering such information at a price, it was indicated.

ADDITIONAL help was provided the bank-examiner bunco men by the recently enacted "privacy in banking" laws, Gemignani said.

Under these laws, even if a teller feels the request for large withdrawals of cash are indications that the bank customer is being defrauded, the teller is forbidden to call police or discuss the transaction with anyone. The best a teller in this case can do is try to stall and hope the bunco men run true to form and vanish before getting their hands on the money.

A variation on the bank-examiner bunco has cropped up lately in which the victims are made unwitting accomplices and the bank is the intended victim.

In this case, the mark is given a realistic looking treasury check made out to her, along with the "bank thief" story, and asked to deposit it, taking half the face value in cash, which is turned over to the con men. The rest of the story is the same as that of the standard bank examiner bunco.

THE ISSUE of just who is the victim in the new twist is clouded. The banks claim they won't be victims; they'll treat the matter just like any instance in which a depositor deposits a bum check — which is to recover from the depositor.

This is under challenge by at least one attorney representing a woman unwittingly involved in such a fraud, however, and probably the question will be resolved by the courts.

Whatever variation is used, Gemignani said, the only defense is public awareness of the scheme.

"It's hard to cheat anyone who can see it coming," the sergeant said.

Realtors fight tax on sales

City officials admit that the list is a short one.

They explain that two taxes were increased this summer and that "we haven't got anywhere else to go."

In July, the oil production tax was jumped from 5 to 7.5 cents per barrel on producers. In August, business license fees went up 150 per cent for the first increase in 14 years.

Further hamstringing efforts to raise cash is that fact that most of the money in the $218-million city budget, about 55 per cent, is from local, state or federal sources that the council cannot control.

Only the following taxes can be set by the city council: property, gas, electric, telephone, trash, oil production, building permits, golf-course usage, ordinance violation fees, franchise fees from major utility companies and a series of minor permit and other fees.

The money is used in the general fund, or the portion of the budget that can be used for general city expenses. This is $88.4 million, with the remaining amount being committed mainly to the harbor, gas and water departments.

The greatest revenue-producers are the property tax, $24.3 million with a rate of $2.09 per $100 of assessed valuation; utility taxes, $7.5 million with a rate of 5 per cent of a total bill; and trash collection charges, $3.2 million.

Fees for using municipal golf courses raise a surprising $996,000 annually and municipal ordinance violations, such as parking tickets, raise another $1 million.

"The real estate transfer tax would be limited from ever being raised by a charter amendment, and the money would be put in a trust fund solely for public improvements—I'd don't know what else the realtors want," said one councilman.

"A sewer tax would be a sham," he continued, "why don't we just raise the property tax?"

He pointed out that the sewer or property-tax increase would hit everyone each year, while only those selling homes would pay the onetime property transfer tax.

Although the realtors were asked to come into the council meeting with a compromise, realty board President Donald Rodman indicated that their comments would remain limited to opposition of the current law.

"I don't think it's proper for us to come in and say we want a higher property tax," he said, "I'm hoping the city manager will come up with a tax we won't opposed."

Councilman Wes Carroll has challenged Rodman's group to publicly support the property-tax increase if they don't want the real estate property transfer tax passed.

Realtors met late Friday afternoon with City Manager John R. Mansell and are expected to meet with him again Monday. No announcement has been made.

"The Board of Realtors has asked for and received basic information on the city's financial situation—now it's up to them and the council," Mansell said.

Fog grounds air travelers

SEATTLE (AP) — A stubborn fog that had blanketed passenger-clogged Seattle-Tacoma International Airport lifted Saturday, but officials found themselves with another problem: virtually no planes available to take advantage of the clearing.

The fog had forced most inbound flights to be diverted much of Friday and early Saturday to Portland, Ore., and Spokane, Wash.

Thousands of travelers were delayed by the fog that also blanketed Vancouver International Airport in British Columbia.

Foreclosures said at lowest rate in 4 years

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foreclosure rate on home-mortgage loans has dropped to the lowest level in four years, despite the financial pinch of continued high unemployment, banking industry figures show.

The development is seen by analysts for lenders and organized labor as an encouraging sign that home-buyers are exerting extra effort to maintain the equity in their investment — even though many are forced to make their mortgage payments late.

The foreclosure rate drop also diminishes the likelihood that the government will provide loans to financially strapped homeowners under special legislation approved in July.

The latest survey by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America showed that the proportion of single-family and four-family homes where lenders were moving to foreclose on the mortgage was 4.2 per 1,000 mortgages outstanding in the three-month period ended in September.

That was off from 4.6 per 1,000 in the previous three-month period and was the lowest since the 4.1 rate in the third quarter of 1971.

The unemployment rate is currently at 8.3 per cent, compared with just under 6 per cent throughout most of 1971.

At the same time, the bankers found that the percentage of loans where buyers are behind on their payments is currently 4.3 per cent, compared to 4.33 per cent the previous quarter and 4.16 per cent the same quarter one year ago.

Historically, it has been the months just after a recession which is crucial for home buyers trying to hold onto their homes, because that's when foreclosure rates have risen the most in the past.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said prior to passage of the federal assistance program that he feared an avalanche of foreclosures as a result of the recent recession, the worst since World War II.

"I'm glad to see foreclosures are lower, but I'd not say the problem is over yet," said Henry B. Schnechter, housing specialist for the AFL-CIO.

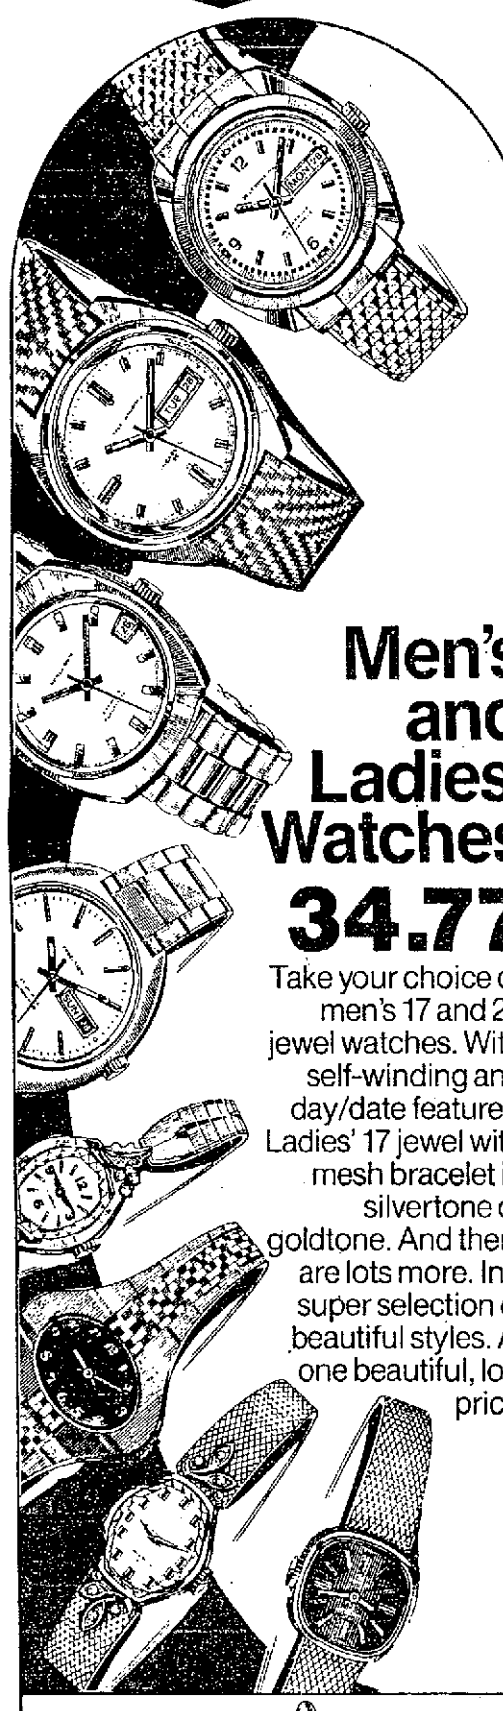

He said the gradual exhaustion of unemployment benefits for the jobless could still cause trouble.

John M. Wetmore, chief economist for the mortgage bankers, said, "The continued decline in foreclosure rates as the economy is just beginning to recover from a serious recession reflects in large part the continuing high-level inflation in housing prices.

"Owners have an added incentive to avoid foreclosure because of the equity they have acquired through inflation," Wetmore said.

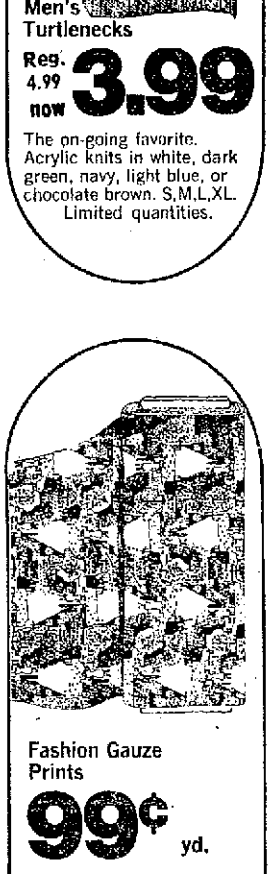

Thus, a family which bought a $35,000 home five years ago for $5,000 down and now owns a house valued at $40,000 has more than $10,000 of equity to protect.

State fund proposed for malpractice claims

Associated Press

Creation of a state fund to help pay medical malpractice lawsuit claims was proposed Saturday to nine legislators investigating the malpractice insurance crisis.

Dr. Dan Lang, representing the Concerned Physicians for Malpractice Reform, said such a fund could help avert threatened slowdowns and walkouts by doctors protesting rising costs of malpractice insurance.

Such a fund could be based on revenues from taxes on health care, hospital care or health insurance policies, he said.

Lang said patients as well as doctors would have to take a part in payment of the insurance premiums. He said insurance rates were going up Jan. 1 because malpractice claims exceeded the amount of the premiums.

The fund would be used to pay the portion of malpractice claims not covered by the doctors' 1975 insurance premium rates. At the current premium level, he said physicians would be covered for claims up to $50,000 and anything above that would be covered by the fund.

Dr. Joseph Boyle, speaker of the House of Delegates of the California Medical Association, told the legislators he favored such a fund, but said his group still is working on its official proposal for malpractice reform.

Boyle said such a fund would increase public awareness of the size of settlements.

Dr. Robert LeSage, president of the harbor area delegation of the Los Angeles County Medical Association, said, "This is no longer a doctor's problem, no longer a doctor-lawyer problem. It's a social problem."

The hearing was called by Democratic Assemblyman Vincent Thomas of San Pedro at the state office building.

Last week the state insurance commissioner approved a plan to create a physician-owned insurance company under the aegis of the Southern California Council of Physicians.

In Northern California, physician-owned companies recently have been formed and lower premiums have resulted.

But the SOCAP plan has been heavily criticized by many doctors, particularly those leading the threatened Jan. 1 walkout.

Their main complaint is that the plan would cover only malpractice claims made during the year of the policy. Claims made at a later time—and many malpractice suits are not filed for some years after the alleged incident—would have to be protected under additional coverage.

It has been proposed to have hospitals contribute toward this additional coverage; the hospitals in turn would tax patients to make up the difference.

Murder suspect is stabbed

The man charged with killing Long Beach policeman Robert Birdsall was stabbed and slashed in his county jail cell Saturday, apparently by his six cellmates, authorities said.

Fred Harvey, 26, who is awaiting trial for the Sept. 15 gunshot killing of Birdsall, 40, was injured in the right shoulder, slashed on both legs and stabbed in the right lung during a fight that erupted about 8:10 a.m.

According to jail officials, a mirror in the cell was smashed and a piece of the broken glass was used, along with a razor, to stab Harvey.

He was taken to the prison ward of County-USC Medical Center and his alleged assailants were booked on suspicion of attempted murder.

Harvey had appeared in Long Beach Superior Court two days earlier to demand dismissal of the public defender assigned to his case so that he could act as his own counsel. The judge took his request under submission, assigned a psychiarist to determine whether he is capable of assisting in or conducting his own defense and set Jan. 8 for his return to court for a pretrial hearing.

In addition to the murder charge, he also faces five other felony counts stemming from an alleged kidnaping and attempted rape of a woman in central Long Beach the day of Birdsall's death.

Fromme sent to U.S. center in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, sentenced to life imprisonment for trying to kill President Ford, was transferred to the Metropolitan Correctional Center here Saturday, U.S. marshals said.

Lt. Frank Moe said Miss Fromme arrived at the federal center at 11:45 a.m. He said he did not know how long she would stay.

In Sacramento, U.S. Marshal Arthur Van Court said Miss Fromme was "very cooperative" when officers drove her to San Diego early Saturday. He said she was transferred from Sacramento to San Diego so the center could "classify her" and decide which prison to send her to.

"We had no problem at all with her," Van Court said. "She was very cooperative. She seemed to be in a very good mood."

That was in apparent contrast to a court appearance Wednesday, when Miss Fromme called U.S. District Judge Thomas J. MacBride "a fool" when he sentenced her to imprisonment "for the remainder of your natural life." She also hit her prosecutor with an apple and was carried from the courtroom by U.S. marshals.

Miss Frome, 27, was convicted Nov. 26 of trying to kill Ford when she pointed a gun at him during his visit to Sacramento on Sept. 5.

Robbers flee with $40,000

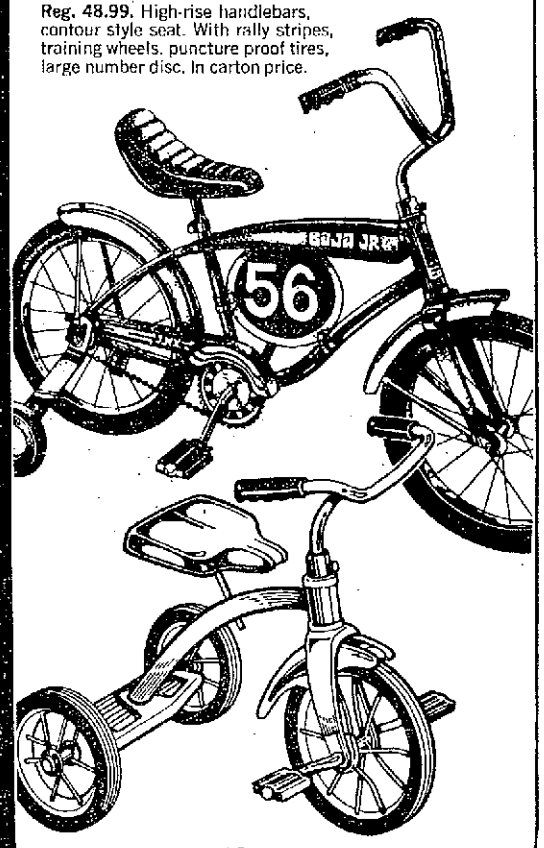

EAGLE ROCK (AP) — Two robbers made off with an estimated $40,000 from the Montgomery Ward store's vault Saturday after tying up employes, police said.

The bandits, one carrying a handgun, were described as between 30 and 35 years old. They apparently got into the store through an employes' entrance before opening time.

Probers zero in on FBI finances

By ORR KELLY
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — The House Intelligence Committee has called in Internal Revenue Service agents and General Accounting Office auditors to help in a potentially explosive investigation of the housekeeping side of the FBI.

Until the new investigation was started, both House and Senate Select Committees on Intelligence had been focusing on past misdeeds of the intelligence and investigative arms of the bureau — especially the 15-year effort to disrupt the activities of a variety of suspected domestic subversive organizations.

But now the committee is zeroing-in on the other side of the bureau's operations and asking whether there has been financial corruption within the bureau — and whether it exists today.

While the FBI's misdeeds in the area of intelligence and investigations have largely involved men who are retired or dead, the new investigation reaches into an area of the bureau's operations that has supplied all of the top officials who, working directly under FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, now run the bureau.

The House committee's interest in the business and financial side of the FBI began this fall when Martin Kaiser, who makes 480 different kinds of "electronic widgets," as he calls them, at a plant in Cockeysville, Mo., and sells them to a variety of American and foreign police and intelligence agencies, told the committee about an obscure Washington firm known as U.S. Recording Co.

Kaiser told the committee he had signed up the bureau as a customer in the late 1960s by writing to J. Edgar Hoover and describing some devices he has invented to detect telephone taps and other kinds of electronic surveillance bugs. The late FBI chief was so impressed, Kaiser said, that he invited him in for a personal meeting.

Shortly afterward, Kaiser said in an interview, he began getting orders through U.S. Recording Co. He said he dropped by the firm's warehouse-like building at 1347 south Capitol St. and met Joseph X. Tait, the president, but never did get past the front door.

Kaiser said it quickly became apparent to him that U.S. Recording was simply serving as a front for the FBI. Committee investigators have now found that U.S. Recording also has served as a similar front for CIA and White House purchases, although Kaiser said his sales to other government agencies were made directly rather than through a front.

So, Kaiser said, he began making deliveries directly to the bureau, even though the paperwork and payments went through U.S. Recording.

TECHNICALLY, the deal with U.S. Recording was illegal even though the equipment was being delivered directly to the bureau.

The law permits agencies such as the FBI to buy without competitive bids through front companies so it will be more difficult for foreign intelligence agents to find out what kind of equipment U.S. agencies are using, but that still leaves a problem with the law limiting sales of bugs.

Kaiser said he became more suspicious once when he was visiting an FBI office and saw an invoice from U.S. Recording for equipment he had delivered to the bureau showing a 30 per cent markup.

Although attorneys for the company have reportedly told the committee that the markup averaged only about 12 per cent to cover handling of the paperwork, GAO auditors have found the markup ran about 35 to 30 per cent, according to committee sources.

WHEN Kaiser first came to the committee, what he had to say seemed to involve a relatively minor problem. Even a 25 per cent markup on the $50,000 worth of business he did with the bureau would have produced only $37,500 — a relatively small amount when spread over a period of half a dozen years.

But the GAO auditors have now determined, according to committee sources, that U.S. Recording's business with the bureau ran about $750,000 a year. A 25 per cent markup on that amount would come to $187,500 a year.

Where did all that money go?

Internal Revenue agents are running "net worth" checks on Tait, the president of U.S. Recording, and some past and present bureau officials who have been involved in the administrative side of the bureau, according to committee sources.

IN A "net worth" check, the agents establish a person's net worth at one time, then determine it at a later time and then ask the person to account for the difference in the two figures.

The dominant figure in the administrative area of the bureau's operations for a decade and a half was John P. Mohr, who retired three years ago as the top administrative official in the bureau. Last week, according to committee sources, Mohr refused to give a statement to committee investigators under oath.

Last of refugees leave camp

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The government's role in resettling more than 140,000 Indochina refugees ended formally Saturday as the last 26 of them loaded belongings on a military bus and departed for new homes across America.

"Never before have so many refugees been resettled in such a short time with so little preparation," said State Department spokesman Phyllis Young.

"This was a tougher job than the Hungarian or Cuban resettlements," she said.

The program is not over and won't be until the refugees were settled with American sponsors, Miss Young said. But the refugees were no longer the wards of the U.S. government and any sponsorship breakdowns would have to be handled by the 10 volunteer agencies that organized the sponsorship program.

In all, 140,730 refugees found homes in America after the fall last April of South Vietnam.

Chaffee handled 50,809, Camp Pendleton, Calif., 50,436, Indiantown Gap, Pa., 22,034, and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., 10,085.

Officials said more than 7,000 refugees settled in the United States before the resettlement program began.

Last summer when Chaffee's refugee population swelled to more than 25,000, the streets between rows of white wood-frame barracks swarmed with people hunting for sponsors, clothes, food and friends.

On Friday, when the refugee population dropped to 68, only a few children played in the streets as parents packed possessions in make-shift luggage to load on buses leaving Chaffee.

California residents sponsored 26,850 refugees, more than any other state. Texas was second with 8,780, and Florida was third with 5,274, according to government estimates.

U.S. 'nutrition ignorance' hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is a nation that is "eating blind," wasting food and the resources needed to produce it and maintaining its "ignorance about nutrition," the chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition said Saturday.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., accused the administrations of President Ford and his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon, of "permitting and even perpetuating nutritional ignorance." McGovern was defeated by Nixon for the presidency in 1972.

The public "does have a right to proper nutrition evaluation and counseling" and needs constant "monitoring of its nutritional health," he said in releasing a 258-page committee staff study of "nutritional surveillance in the United States."

McGovern said the report "documents beyond a doubt and in detail that the Nixon-Ford administration has kept the American public in the dark about nutritional health and has frustrated the effort to apply nutritional health standards to the nation's food and economic policies."

At various points in the document, the staff refers to sometimes-total cuts in the budgets of small agencies dealing with nutritional issues, changes in governmental surveys when the results would lend support to advocates of expanded federal feeding programs and what it called the inadequacies of the surveys in producing the information desired.

McGovern, endorsing some 18 recommendations for governmental coordination, funding and surveying, said the remedies to the problems the staff analysis found "demand the rethinking of established economic patterns and assumptions."

For example, he said, "the reason for this inaction" by the White House leadership may be related to traditional concepts of and support for the "free marketplace."

But, he said, it is "an anarchic marketplace where consumers may be uninformed of other variables more important than price or taste or color."

The report said the most significant influence on the American diet has been a 43 per cent rise in retail food prices between September 1972 and September 1975.

McGovern said that "we have reached the point where nutrition, or the lack or the excess or the quality of it, may be the nation's No. 1 health problem. The threat is not beriberi, pellagra or scurvy.

"Rather," he said, "we face the more subtle, but also more deadly, reality of millions of Americans loading their stomachs with food which is likely to make them obsese, to give them high blood pressure, to induce heart disease, diabetes and cancer — in short, to kill them over the long term."

Poor no richer but the rich are

NEW YORK (NYTS)— The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer—or at least standing still, according to the forthcoming 1975 edition of the World Bank Atlas, which summarizes population growth, national output and output per capita for 130 countries for the years 1960 through 1974.

Annual output per person in the industrialized nations in 1974 averaged $4,550, compared with $116 for each of the one billion persons living in the very poorest countries, mainly in Africa and Southern Asia. In 1960, average output per capita was $2,768 in the rich countries, but for those in poor nations it was about what it was in 1974.

According to the Atlas, the United States had next to the lowest increase in average output per capita among all industrial countries between 1968 and 1974. Only South Africa, with an average annual growth rate per capita of 1.82 per cent, stood lower than the U.S. with 2.15 per cent.

The failure of many poor nations to improve living standards was more a result of rapid population growth than of economic stagnation, the Atlas said.

Fires claim lives of 37 across nation

Associated Press

A suburban Chicago mother and six children and an upstate New York father and five children were among the victims of deadly fires across the country over the weekend.

By late Saturday, the toll stood at 37.

The dead also included an Omaha, Neb., couple; a father and two young sons and a man and his daughter near Pittsburgh; two men in Memphis, Tenn.; a 44-year-old Philadelphia woman; a 9-year-old Hughson, Calif., girl and her visiting grandmother and uncle, and six persons in three Maryland fires.

Other fire deaths were a father and young son and daughter in Mohegan Lake, N.Y. In Virginia, a 60-year-old Richmond woman perished in a blaze at her home and a 66-year-old man died when a fire broke out in his house in Portsmouth.

Two trapped, 19 injured in blast at plant

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — Two men were trapped for an hour and 19 others were injured Saturday when an explosion ripped through a section of a corn-byproducts processing plant in Clinton.

The two trapped men were in the center of the plant and were rescued by oxygen-masked firemen. Six of the injured were firemen overcome by gas fumes.

Flight attendants agree to contract

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Northwest Airlines cabin attendants, who had been without a contract for two years, reached agreement with the airline Saturday on major issues. But agreement is still needed on scheduling rules.

There had been unconfirmed reports that the attendants planned a full-scale sick call walkout over Christmas week if no agreement was reached.

Means $600 million for state

N.Y. corporate taxes boosted

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey signed into law Saturday bills boosting corporation and bank taxes in New York State by $600 million.

The legislation has no direct impact on citizens in general, but it does confront thousands of businesses with unexpected end-of-the-year tax bills. Opponents said that it would force businesses from the state and drive up consumer prices.

There is also a possibility that the Legislature will decide on further tax increases that would affect taxpayers in general after the 1976 session begins Jan. 7.

LEGISLATIVE approval of the tax bill came about 4 a.m. after Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson broke a last-minute rank-and-file revolt by his Republican colleagues. Anderson got 10 of his 33 fellow Republicans to support the tax bill, which passed the Senate on a 31-24 ballot with heavy Democratic support.

The legislature's tax package, to produce $600 million over 15 months, will raise the basic income tax rate on corporations from 9 per cent to 10 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, and put a retroactive 20 per cent surcharge on the corporate franchise tax for the current calendar year.

Income taxes on banks will be raised from the current 8 per cent to 12 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, with an additional 30 per cent surcharge for this calendar year and next.

Also approved was a companion bill to raise $80 million more in the current fiscal year by switching from a quarterly to a monthly system of collecting sales tax receipts from merchants.

The Republicans pledged to resist further tax increases. But without more taxes, the legislature's compromise tax plan would require $300 million more in budget cuts above the $600 million Carey has said he is already planning.

The governor says there is a $1.6-billion budget gap over this fiscal year and next, and he has already begun firing state workers.

Approval even of the $600 million plan represented a major victory for Carey, a Democrat, whose calls for tax hikes had been resisted all year by the Republicans, who control the Senate.

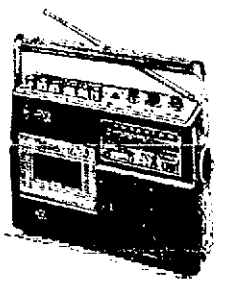

Senate Majority Leader Anderson, R-Binghamton, had said only last week that tax increases were "not a subject for negotiation." But he was forced to give in after warnings from bankers that the state's credit — already shaken by the New York City fiscal crisis — could be destroyed if the state's budget remained unbalanced.

Still potentially on the table for the coming session are Carey's proposals for tax hikes on gasoline, liquor, cigarettes, motor vehicles and such services as message parlors.

The bank and corporate tax measures will raise about $280 million in the current fiscal year, which ends March 31, and $320 million in the next, according to fiscal planners.

Drain of populace perils aid

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — New York State's mid-decade population loss would cost the state up to $200 million a year in federal funds through 1980 under legislation that passed the U.S. Senate unanimously recently and that the House is expected to approve, state officials said Saturday.

The legislation provides that the mid-decade estimate of state populations by the U.S. Census Bureau be used in dispensing federal funds when population is a consideration. New York and Rhode Island were the only states whose populations diminished.

"THE CENSUS bill came when we were very occupied with New York City," said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. "The title of the bill is misleading — A Compilation of Certain Data on Total Population."

Sen. James Buckley, R, Conservative-N.Y., said, "Tons of things go through here, and if you're not aware of them ahead of time, you can't put a hold on them."

Neither Javits nor Buckley was in the Senate chamber for last Monday's vote on the measure.

At the same time, a Treasury Department preliminary report this weekend showed that New York State had jumped from 10th to sixth place among recipients of per-capita aid to the states, in fiscal 1975. The state received a total of $5.91 billion, or $326.37 for every resident.

IF FUNDS for Medicaid and welfare were deducted, however, the state would be at the bottom of the list.

New Jersey climbed from 45th to 38th, with $1.83 billion ($222.86 per capita), while Connecticut went from 44th to 35th, with $709.44 million, or $229.22 per capita.

New York's improved showing in per capita aid owes mostly to urban mass transit aid of $214 million. If the $1.275 billion for Medicaid and $2.9 billion for aid to dependent children were deducted, the state would be below average.

"The federal aid formulas are devastating to New York" Javits said. "Those from rural areas and small cities here simply count the way they make out and vote that way."

STATE BUDGET officials conferred in Albany Saturday on the impact of the legislation, and concurred on the $200 million yearly loss figure.

The census legislation was sponsored in the Senate by Richard Stone, D-Fla., whose population increased by 23 per cent. By comparison, New York lost 0.7 per cent, and Rhode Island, 2.4 per cent.

It is being sponsored in the House by Rep. Bill Chappell Jr., D-Fla., who called it "a fair share bill."

Show and tell

I am having company from out of town over the holidays and their one wish is to see a TV show, especially one of the series on CBS such as "All in the Family," "Rhoda," "Phyllis" or "Maude." I have written to CBS and to the producers of "All in the Family" about getting tickets, but got no answer. Can you tell me how to get tickets for shows? Mrs. R.C., Long Beach.

To request tickets for CBS shows, write to KNXT-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 90036, and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for each show you want to see. Tickets are available for the four shows you mentioned, according to a KNXT spokeswoman. Phone 651-2345 to find out dates and times of the tapings of individual shows. For NBC shows, phone 845-7000 to find out when shows will be taped, then write the KNBC-TV studio at 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank 91523, or stop by there after 8 a.m. on the day of taping. You can also phone for reservations after 9 a.m. on the day of taping. For ABC shows, phone the KABC-TV ticket office at 663-3311 to find out what shows are available and the locations of the tapings. You will have to reserve tickets for shows you want a week in advance. All three TV studios issue more tickets than they have seats for, and you'll have a better chance of being admitted if you arrive early. If you have a ticket and aren't admitted, all the studios will provide you with other tickets, or forms for tickets, which will give you special status when you return so you should be able to get in on a second try. If you are planning on bringing youngsters to the shows, check with the studios for age limits.

Benefits

I am 62 years old and I haven't received my Social Security benefits since July. I have called and visited the Compton Social Security office many times and the clerks always tell me a check should be in the mail soon, but they've been saying that for months. I have drawn all the money out of my bank account to live on and I don't know what I'm going to do if I don't get a check soon. Can Action Line help? G.B., Compton.

We contacted the Compton Social Security office on your behalf and have been assured that the mix-up with your claim has been resolved. You should by now have received a retroactive payment for all back benefits due you and you should start receiving your monthly checks regularly. We weren't given any explanation of what held up the payment.

Pay cuts

Action Line recently stated that, under the Economy Act of 1932, "certain high-level government officials" were required to take a 10 per cent pay cut and, although President Hoover was exempt from this law, he voluntarily returned a portion of his salary. The law didn't decrease the salaries of just a few officials; all government employes took a cut. I was working for the U.S. Forestry Service at the time and my salary of $120 a month was decreased to $99, which is about an 18 per cent cut. When President Roosevelt took office, he got rid of the pay cut law and gave us a raise. F.S., Long Beach.

The Economy Act of 1932 did order pay cuts for most government employes, but the law did not require an 18 per cent decrease for persons at your income level, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Treasury Department. Under the law, federal employes with annual incomes of $10,000 or less took an 8⅓ per cent cut. If the person's salary was between $10,000 and $12,000, the cut was 10 per cent; between $12,000 and $15,000, 12 per cent; between $15,000 and $20,000, 15 per cent; and more than $20,000, 20 per cent. The Treasury Department spokesman said he did not know why you took an 18 per cent cut. Certain federal agencies may have demoted some of their employes to lower pay scales to trim their budgets. The Economy Act expired shortly after President Roosevelt took office.

Hostels

Can you tell me where the new American Youth Hostels headquarters is? They've moved from their old address in New York. G.A., Long Beach.

The headquarters is now located at 132 Spring St., New York, N.Y. 10012, but you can apply for membership or get information on youth hostels from the organization's branch office at 7603 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036, 933-4412. The office is open Mondays and Thursdays from 1 to 5 p.m. or you can apply for membership by mail any time. The dues are $11 a year for adults and $5 for children. A renewal membership costs $10 a year for an adult. Hostels are located in about 40 countries and by becoming a member of American Youth Hostels, you are entitled to stay in any of the facilities for about $3 a night. The hostel organization also sponsors a variety of tours to foreign countries.

to Argentines to ignore "alarmist versions."

Employes were hastily evacuated from Government House, and key aides were moved to a basement museum. Cars were driven away from the building, and police imposed traffic restrictions in the area.

The preparations recalled an attack 20 years ago by navy planes against the regime of Mrs. Peron's late husband, Juan D. Peron. Hundreds of civilians were killed by bombs that fell in the Plaza de Mayo in front of Government House.

The influential commander of the National War College, Army Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Mujica, declared himself also in revolt against the government.

Mujica commands no troops but is regarded as highly influential among nationalist officers in the army. "I cannot accept the death of a single soldier, army or navy, for defending or attacking this government," he said.

The army announced later that Mujica was relieved of his command, but no move was made to arrest him.

Mrs. Peron, who took over as president when Peron died 18 months ago, has resisted heavy pressure to give up her office in the face of escalating political terrorism and economic woes.

The rebellion was launched by a group of right-wing air force officers who mutinied Thursday and tried to get army commander Gen. Jorge Videla to take over the country. Instead, armed forces commanders decided to quell the uprising.

During the afternoon Mrs. Peron remained in her office, accompanied by top Peronist Party and labor leaders as well as several ministers.

Ford warns Russ on Angola interference

not known until recently to what extent the Cubans were operating in Angola. Ford would not confirm or discuss reports that the United States has secretly spent some $50 million in that country.

There had been indications of a softening of tensions between the United States and Cuba, and some American delegations have visited that Caribbean nation.

But in recent weeks the Angola matter has caused the situation to harden, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger vetoing a proposal for sports teams to visit Cuba.

Regarding a recent Gallup Poll that showed him trailing former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Ford said, "The final answer comes in the ballot box." Ford said he was making great progress in solving economic problems and in foreign policy, and his record in office "will be the test, not any poll."

On primaries, Ford said he has "a lot of open dates" in the months ahead and "I'll do what I can" on campaigning. But he added that he feels it is his primary responsibility to concentrate on presidential duties.

When asked his view of Reagan's proposal to cut $90 billion from the federal budget by turning over various programs to the states, Ford said he felt that idea "would not be acceptable and would not be supported by the 50 governors."

On budget and taxes, the President said "the American people need and deserve a bigger tax cut" and, now that "Congress has made a good-faith commitment" to his principle of coupling taxes with spending cuts, "we'll get a firm handle on the growth of federal spending."

On legislation, Ford said he expects to make his final decision, Monday on a comprehensive energy bill that calls for a temporary rollback in the price of gasoline and heating oil.

He has not decided yet on the action he will take on the common site picketing bill on which he said he has received "a tremendous amount of mail in opposition — over 620,000 communications."

The President said Secretary of Labor John Dunlop has given him no indication that he would resign, as reports have indicated, should Ford veto the bill. He said he has made no decision yet and therefore would not discuss it.

Volcano rips milewide gash in mountain

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A volcanic eruption tore a milewide gash in a northeast Iceland mountain Saturday and poured red-hot lava down its snow-clad flanks, increasing in intensity as the day wore on.

There were no reports of injuries or damage in the forbidding, sparsely populated area 180 miles from Reykjavik, but civil defense officials debated evacuating hundreds of persons living nearby.

Geologists said the eruption and tremors on 2,000-foot Mt. Leirhnukur, 55 miles south of the Arctic Circle, threatened to turn into a full-scale volcanic explosion that could endanger an estimated 300 persons living at Lake Myvatn six miles away.

The White House affair

Presidents, who live in a house with at least six entrances and who enjoy a retinue of Secret Service agents, are presumably insulated from such cares.

Kennedy staffers reportedly arranged a system of alarm bells that rang in the family quarters when the first lady was approaching.

Jacqueline Kennedy, according to one persistent story, almost caught her husband frolicking in the White House pool one day, but alert security agents hustled the president's companions out a side door.

Sometimes, however, the trappings of office, including an ever-present pack of reporters, can get in the way.

In the fall of 1962, Kennedy was returning from Cleveland to Washington when Salinger informed reporters on the press plane that the president had to make an unscheduled stop in New York City to confer with U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson.

Salinger said the press plane would go directly to Washington. But the reporters, whose duty it was to be with the president at all times, angrily demanded to be taken to New York. Salinger finally had to cave in.

When they landed at LaGuardia Airport, Stevenson was just arriving, looking thoroughly bewildered, to greet Kennedy. After a short conversation with the president, the two were driven into the city and Stevenson was ushered up to Kennedy's room in the elegant Pierre Hotel.

But only for a moment. Soon, Stevenson, still wondering what this was all about, was hustled out the door.

Then, while the press corps waited downstairs, Kennedy remained in the room for what they speculated was the real purpose of his sidetrip to New York.

Although the reporters seldom knew for sure what was happening, they sometimes got good clues.

One time Kennedy was staying at a lodge in Yosemite National Park. A small group of reporters was housed directly below his window.

Late that night, one of them said, a female voice rang out in the stillness: "I don't care if you are the president of the United States!"

Kennedy's successor, Lyndon Johnson, also had a reputation as a lady's man. The stories about LBJ also often revolved around various young White House secretaries, of whom he had a constantly changing array.

According to reporters who traveled with Johnson, he frequently took his current favorite along on Air Force One, even when the ever-patient Lady Bird was on board, too.

Myra MacPherson, in her recent book, "The Power Lovers," relates an anecdote told by syndicated columnist Carl Rowan, who was an ambassador in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Rowan said a secretary in the Johnson White House came to him one time and asked his help in getting transferred to another job elsewhere in government. Rowan could not imagine why she would want to leave an exciting job at the vibrant center of Washington power.

The young woman said she had been at the LBJ Ranch and woke up one night realizing someone was in her bedroom.

Just as she was about to scream out in the dark, a pencil flashlight flicked on and a familiar voice said, "Move over — this is yore President."

Presidential infidelity hardly began with Kennedy and Johnson.

George Washington as a young man fell in love with Sally Fairfax, the wife of a neighbor, according to Washington's biographer, James Flexner. The affair on the banks of the Potomac went on for years, during the Revolution and into Washington's presidency, although it was never known if the relationship was physically consummated.

It finally ended when Mrs. Fairfax returned to England. When she left, Washington bought at auction the bolster and pillows from her bedroom.

Wait, see attitude on computers

LERA BROUWERS, customer service representative for Ralphs, demonstrates how computerized equipment works.

It was a chance to meet the press, to give them a peek at the future and to send them home well-fed, better-informed (about computers, anyway) and full of good will for IBM.

The setting was San Diego's Kona Kai Club on picturesque Shelter Island.

The topic was computers — how they were developed, why they work and what they'll be doing in the future.

Included in the day-long program was a demonstration on the use of IBM's computerized checkout system which is now being introduced in supermarkets throughout the nation.

For many of those present, the mock-up of the computerized checkout stand was their first experience with what supermarket spokesmen term "the wave of the future."

"What happens if there's a slash through the code?" asked an inquiring reporter. (The reporter was then encouraged to cut through the paper label.) "Does it disturb the system?"

"What if you mark through it with a pen?" asked another.

"What if you rip it off?"

The questions were in reference to the Univesal Product Code (UPC) which is affixed to nearly 60 per cent of items now stocked on supermarket shelves. The code, 28 verticle black bars above a series of 10 numbers, was developed several years ago at the request of the grocery and grocery product manufacturing industries and is the cornerstone of the computerized checkout system.

"THE COMPUTER WON'T make a mistake because the code has been damaged or because it isn't there," said Alicia Maxwell, a systems engineer with IBM. "The worst thing that can happen is that the computer won't do anything at all and the checker will have to look up the missing code and manually keyboard it into the computer."

When the code is present — which is most of the time, Mrs. Maxwell patiently assured her skeptical audience — the system works simply and is practically error free.

"What the code tells the the computer is what the item is and who manufactures it. It doesn't give the price."

(The price is programmed in by the store or chain itself. Usually new prices or price changes are made at the main office, though changes also can be made by a store manager.)

"The scanner here," said Mrs. Maxwell, pointing to the window in the checkstand, "reads the code as the item passes over it and then transmits it to a computer which matches the information with the store price.

"Seconds later the price comes back to the checkstand where it is flashed through a light panel and printed on the shopper's receipt.

"The computer also does the computation for taxable items and notes items that can be purchased with food stamps," Mrs. Maxwell added.

"It computes specials — two for one sales, for example — and, as you can see, provides the shopper with a detailed receipt which lists both the item purchased and its price."

The computer also makes possible compilation and storage of other information which may be useful to store managers, Mrs. Maxwell said.

"Among other things, the computer can tell the manager how many customers were in the store at a given time and what the sales volume was so he can better schedule employes.

"It can also tell the manager how well special promotions are working and can keep track of inventory."

Besides the detailed receipt, which most shoppers would agree is an improvement over the tape produced by standard supermarket cash registers, the computerized checkout system benefits shoppers by being faster — up to 25 per cent faster for the average customer who unloads on to the checkstand himself, Mrs. Maxwell said.

THE SUBJECT OF INCREASED employe efficiency raised the question of manpower requirements. Would fewer checkers be required with the new system? Would inventory clerks be eliminated?

The supermarket industry is labor intensive (according to one report, labor represents 66 per cent of operating costs). What kind of labor savings could a supermarket expect by installing the computerized equipment?

"It depends," Mrs. Maxwell said. "We can tell market managers that the time required per item or the time required for tax computation can be reduced by such and such and we can point out where the areas of potential savings are.

"But the supermarket itself has to put the figures together. The system is a highly personalized one for each chain."

John Rankine, director of standards for IBM, said potential labor savings were certainly a factor in a customer's decision to purchase the computerized equipment.

"We find that customers do not buy computers for the fun of it. Usually there must be a clear payoff in terms of the application of the machine.

"But the economics vary from customer to customer and must be worked out with each customer individually."

As it turned out, the IBM representatives weren't being purposefully vague. Right now it seems that no one is sure what kind of labor savings markets can expect — and some are wondering if there will ever be any at all.

"We have more employes now than we did when we installed the equipment in September of 1974," said Ron Cottrell, systems manager for Ralphs, one of two chains in California which is experimenting with the computerized equipment.

In a newspaper story last summer, Reggie Hill, manager of the Ralphs store which is equipped with the system, said that he doubted that reduced personnel would be possible. Nothing he said recently indicated that he had changed his assessment. He noted that additional employes had been required initially to put the system into operation and while some of those were no longer with the store (none were laid off, however; the reduction was accomplished by attrition), there had been no net decrease in the number of employes.

THE SUGGESTION THAT computerization in the grocery industry may not necessarily lead to a reduction in personnel brings up another question: how do supermarkets plan to pay for the system?

That's the question Ron Cottrell of Ralphs is grappling with right now. After 15 months of testing the system at Ralphs Lakewood, the 93-store chain still doesn't have an answer — and Cottrell wasn't sure when it would.

"The system has to pay for itself," Cottrell said. "We're not going to raise the price of groceries to install the equipment.

"We believe our experience has proven that scanning is a viable means of handling our front end operation. The final question is can we cost-justify the purchase."

A report prepared by the California Grocers Association points out that electronic front ends — as the computerized equipment is known in the industry — are not intended to reduce manpower requirements. Rather, the report says, they are intended to make more efficient use of labor and reduce other operating costs, including cash register under-rings and other human errors which cost the market money.

IN-SIGHTS

Childhood joys of Christmas seem far away

dr. walt menninger

The holiday season is usually thought of as a happy time. Yet for many people it can be depressing too. It is not all joyousness and pleasantries. And recently a colleague, Dr. Tony Kowalski, and I got to thinking about why.

For children, it is a joyous time. Excused from school, free from responsibility, fascinated by festive lights and decorations, with visions of sugar plums in their heads and anticipation of Christmas gifts — it is a magical season. There are so many good things to eat and delicious smells and sights and sounds associated with the holidays.

As children, little did we appreciate just how much of the magic of the holidays was the result of hard work by our parents and others. Most parents foster the pretense that all this happens without much effort; the work is all done by Santa and Mrs. Claus and their many elves.

Even after we realize that there is no Santa Claus, we may not really appreciate all the effort that goes into maintaining the traditions of the holiday season. We recall the happy holiday experiences of childhood, and it's distressing to find these things don't continue to "just happen."

THE DEGREE to which it takes work slowly dawns on us as we form our own family. But the effort is countered by the satisfaction in seeing the wide eyes of a young child upon first encountering the brightly lighted Christmas tree, the filled stockings, the colorfully wrapped presents. And little can match the pleasure of observing the enthralled reaction of a youngster when he gets that most-wanted present.

However, in the midst of the hustle and bustle of holiday preparations, there are times when you may wonder if all the effort is worth it — struggling to get all the gifts made, wrapped and sent when necessary; getting the Christmas cards selected, addressed and mailed; getting out the decorations, sorting them and putting them up; selecting the Christmas tree and fixing it up; making the cookies and cakes and candied nuts and other goodies; planning the Christmas dinner; arranging and working out parties and other social plans, all with children underfoot.

Traditions may be great, but they can have a way of trapping you into a host of tasks that seem overwhelming. Some people react by hiring someone else to do much of the work for them. All too often, the load falls on mother to do much of the preparation for the holidays. And, as one mother told me, there is so much to do, sometimes she just doesn't think she wants to do it!

Even when the tasks are shared, they can be quite a burden on top of all the other everyday tasks. I can well recall getting behind and staying up until five in the morning on Christmas before we finished wrapping all the presents. My wife and I swore at that time that it would never happen again. Such an experience definitely dashes any residual childhood fantasies of Santa's stopping by while everyone is asleep.

Glad you asked that!

ACTOR George C. Scott — in role as Luftwaffe security officer on last flight of Zeppelin Hindenburg from film "The Hindenburg." The ill-fated airship, right, falls to earth in flames. One survivor has profession to thank for his escape.

SILENT SCREEN stars Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin — no love lost between the trio.

TV game show host Monty Hall — women perpetuate male emcees.

Q: Who receives the most mail in the United States? — K. W. and K. H., Norfolk, Va.

A: The Postmaster General's office advises us that it is not possible to give an answer based on an absolute count, since its impossible to maintain records of deliveries to more than 200 million individuals. However, it is safe to conclude the President of the United States receives the most mail on a year-in, year-out basis.

LLOYD Bridges as Joe Forrester in his TV series — trading professions?

Q: I hear that comedian Rodney Dangerfield never believed in Santa Claus. If so, how come? — Jan Holden, Miami.

A: "It was this way," Rod explains. "When I was a little lad we lived in such a tough neighborhood, when a kid sat on Santa's lap in a department store, he picked the kid's pocket, then kissed him! Some Santa Claus."

Q: Lloyd Bridges makes a believable cop in "Joe Forrester." Wasn't he a singer before "Sea Hunt"? — Sal Cucinnotta, Oklahoma City.

COMEDIAN Rodney Dangerfield — Santa Claus not trustworthy.

A: That's no fish story, but after, not before. Lloyd, in the mid-stream of his career, played the lead in a summer theater company of "Man of La Mancha" — singing up a storm and declaring, "That's what I'd like to do next!"

Q: I see where George ("Patton") Scott plays a German colonel in that new movie thriller, "The Hindenburg." I remember seeing pictures of that awesome zeppelin engulfed in flames when it tried landing at Lakehurst back in 1937. Are any survivors still alive? — Mrs. Anna McCormick, Jersey City.

A: Yes. At least one — an acrobat named Ben Dova, now living in Queens. When the giant hydrogen-filled airship became a torch an estimated 200 feet off the ground, Dova took a dive, somersaulted to earth and landed on his feet. "If I'd been a waiter or carpenter or singer," he told us years later in an interview, "I wouldn't be alive to tell the story."

Q: I understand that Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin didn't get along, and I've always wondered why. Can you tell me? — Cheryl Stringman, Birmingham, Ala.

A: It dates back to the early years of silent pictures when she, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., and D.W. Griffith formed and financed United Artists. Chaplin reportedly sold his share without giving his other partners first refusal.

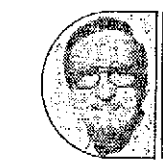

According to a biography penned by Robert Windeler, when she was told that Chaplin had mellowed, America's Sweetheart bellowed: "To me he is still a son of a bitch!"

Q: A quick two-part question: (1) Is zillionaire Howard Hughes an American citizen? (2) Does he have any children? — P.M., Philadelphia.

A: (1) Yes. And (2) No.

Q: Why are the male chauvinists in the TV industry preventing women from hosting a TV game show? — Arlene B., Minneapolis.

A: Apparently it's not the men who are responsible. "Women themselves have rejected women as the emcee of game or money shows," claims Monty Hall of "Let's Make a Deal." "The networks feel a male does the best job," is the reason Mark Goodson (of Goodson-Todman, long-time big-time game show producers) gave to a TV fan magazine. and Elaine Stewart of "Gambit" (wife of Merrill Heatter, co-producer of "Hollywood Squares") says it's startling, but women want a male rather than a female emcee. Susan Stafford, of the "Wheel of Fortune" staff, agrees: "Women just don't like watching other women!"

RECLUSE Howard Hughes — simple answers to simple questions.

Glenda Jackson longs for a modern role

LONDON — Glenda Jackson is a savage when she's working. If her star dressing room at the Pinewood Studios near London looks like an army barracks latrine, she doesn't notice.

She's too busy pacing the cold floor in her bare feet, chain-smoking from boxes of foul-smelling English cigarettes and scratching the black roots of her dyed red hair, which looks badly in need of a shampoo. Her scalp itches with perspiration from wearing too many wigs, her face has erupted with zits from the nervous strain of filmmaking and the private trauma of a rather nasty front-page divorce in her personal life, and her hands flutter desperately in the air like dying birds. It is not a good day for an interview.

She is currently completing the gargantuan job of playing the legendary Sarah Bernhardt, a role once planned for Greta Garbo, in a multimillion-dollar epic called "Sarah." The film begins in 1923, when the French actress is dying at the age of 79, flashes back to age 18 and ends when she's 35, before she became an international success. It's a role worth playing.

Bernhardt collected lovers and animals, nursed the soldiers onstage at the Comedie Francaise, which was converted into a field hospital during the Siege of Paris, slept in a coffin, attended public executions by hanging and guillotine, performed "Camille" 3,000 times to sold-out audiences from Russia to the San Quentin prison without ever learning to speak English and invented the unisex look by being the first woman to wear trousers.

"You need a great actress to play a great actress," says director Richard Fleischer, "and in my opinion Glenda is the greatest actress of our day."

She is also one of the most exhausted. "I've been in every scene and on call from 7 a.m. until long after nightfall every day for 15 weeks," she sighs. "I'm certainly not tired of Sarah Bernhardt, but I am physically exhausted from the work and ready for a vacation."

IN THE FILM she's worked with chimpanzees, French poodles, a pair of lizards, a vicious puma and a fleece of white rats. She has 40 costume changes, takes six hours to be made up and plays 13 scenes onstage in various Bernhardt roles from Joan of Arc to Phaedra.

"It seemed too good a chance to miss. It's an immense challenge, but not because she was an actress. I mean, we're not making a documentary about her. I'm not attempting to reproduce the way she acted, because I don't know how she acted. Greatness in acting is a very subjective thing.

"What I think Sarah had was a charismatic appeal for an audience, and that's a very magical, mysterious thing. I mean, Christ, even Oscar Wilde was in love with her. It's an important woman's role.

"I don't know much about her, really. She was probably the apocryphal actress. Ask anybody on any street corner in the world, and they've heard of Sarah Bernhardt even if they've never been to the theater. But the books about her are conflicting, and I don't think facts, in the sense of dates, times and places, are particularly of use when you're acting."

THE DAY AFTER Glenda won her second Oscar for "A Touch of Class," she was invited to lunch at Claridge's by Helen Strauss, a respected literary agent for 35 years and the newly appointed head of production for Reader's Digest's film division, the group responsible for such family-oriented movies as "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn" and "Mr. Quilp." Ms. Strauss asked her if she would be interested in playing Sarah Bernhardt on the screen. Without a blink, Glenda said yes.

Seven scripts and several million dollars later, they were ready to go. Glenda wanted John Schlesinger, George Cukor or Billy Wilder to direct. They were busy. So they ended up with Richard ("Dr. Doolittle") Fleischer and a film so vast in its magnitude it required 134 speaking parts and 500 extras per day.

"I won't say it's the hardest thing I've ever done because everything you do is the hardest thing you've ever done while you're doing it," she said, stabbing the air with her cigarette butt. "Acting isn't easy. But this is certainly the most lavish film I've ever done. The sets and costumes are immensely impressive. The theater sets especially. They don't feel like sets; they feel like theaters.

"One of my first scenes was an audition, and the set was so real I got as nervous as I did when I really did my first audition in a live theater. I hasten to add, I never got the job."

DESPITE HER protests that Bernhardt was "quite different emotionally," there are interesting comparisons between Glenda and the woman she's playing. Both have been called eccentric, both had an extraordinary energy that drove them like demons and both had unhappy marriages. Sarah married a Greek actor with no talent who resented her success.

Glenda married Roy Hodges, whom she met when he was a director in Bristol in her struggling days. She blazed to stardom early in the Royal Shakespeare Company's "Marat/Sade" when she was making only $50 a week. Now she has two Oscars and her first accumulated million, which her husband is suing her for.

During her recent American tour in "Hedda Gabler," she fell in love with Andy Phillips, an electrician who did the lights for the show. Bernhardt had a child by a man she refused to marry. Glenda now faces the responsibility of raising her 7-year-old son, Danny, and remaining a working mother at the same time. When she talks of Sarah's marriage, it's almost as though she's talking about her own.

"I don't think marriage is a redundant institution, but I don't think it should be a sentence to solitary confinement in which you must stay forever and ever, either. And that's what most marriages turn into.

"There is some weakness in some people that requires them to constantly fail. In that kind of relationship, I don't think you can blame one person more than the other. People are what they are. I think Sarah Bernhardt's husband would have been a failure no matter who he married. What increased his tragedy was that he married such a flamboyant person, a publicly marked success, which must have made his own failure seem even greater."

Here the resemblance ends. Glenda has never been flamboyant. The day after she won her first Oscar for "Women in Love," she was photographed in the backyard hanging out the wash. "Nobody would ever hire me for my beauty," she says, and there are no arguments. She has bad teeth that require removable caps in front of the camera, spotty skin and eyes that disapper "like tiny raisins in unbaked dough."

YET A LOVE affair with the camera occurs when she's on the screen that nobody can explain. Despite her militant refusal to be labeled a movie star, she is one.

She's come a long way from the homely country girl who daydreamed about being Esther Williams (she once almost drowned doing an impression of the MGM bathing beauty smiling underwater), but she still does not give a damn about money or glamour.

"I can truthfully say money has never been a primary objective in my work. That probably sounds patently absurd since I am obviously paid a great deal of money, but I've never done anything because the money was right and the part was wrong. All the money in the world can't make me do something I'm not interested in."

She has never made a film in Hollywood.

Her next film, "The Abbess of Crewe," a black comedy by Muriel Spark, about a group of nuns battling for the position of mother superior, will co-star Ingrid Bergman and will be filmed in Philadelphia. If she ever accepts the movie-star label, she hopes to be compared more to Bette Davis than Raquel Welch.

MOST PEOPLE think of Glenda Jackson as a contemporary Bernhardt, cementing forever distinguished performances in costume dramas about queens and tragediennes, but she would give anything to play a modern girl for a change and get out of those corsets and wigs. "I've been working steadily in films for the past six years; and the depressing thing is the scripts they send me don't get better.

"Nine out of 10 scripts I get are rubbish, and you're lucky if one out of 10 is even readable."

silken memory

This picture of Rita Hayworth was taken in 1941 and is used here, out of sequence, on the grounds that it is needed more now, 30 years later, than then.

It was carried around the globe by the citizen soldiers, sailors and airmen of World War II but any attempt now to recapture the thoughts of the men who looked at her from their bunks and hammocks would still be an intolerable invasion of privacy.

Suffice it to say that for millions of balder, heavier, middle-aged warriors she remains a symbol of a simpler time, when men were not ashamed of their war, when the world seemed to make more sense and the times were less contentious and a man could look forward to a wife who would love him, a home that would shelter him, neighbors who would not confound him, a paycheck that would be all his, and children who would honor him.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Pension reform puzzling

DEAR MR. SMITH: We are faced with a problem when filing our 1975 IRS 1040 report. In 1963 at age 59 and a self-employed person, we established an IRS approved Keogh plan and invested $200 in U.S. Retirement Plan Bonds. We added $675 the next year and more in subsequent years. This year we made our first drawing on this invested money consisting of the first two years purchases of bonds totalling $875 and received about $1,280.

Based on the 1974 Pension Reform Act, how do we report this to IRS on Form 1040? Some time ago we recall that contributions and re-invested dividends made prior to 1974 would be treated as capital gains under the 1974 act. Should the entire $1,280 be reported as a long-term capital gain?

Should a special IRS form be used to file this report? Has IRS issued a publication or other instructions that are updated to include the provisions of the 1974 officially titled "Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974" pretaining to the above matter? — F.H.

If you receive the entire balance in the fund in one taxable year (1975 in your case), you would report the amount received as long-term capital gain.

If you do not receive a complete distribution by Dec. 31, 1975, report all taxable amounts as ordinary income. Obtain free IRS pamphlet number 560.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I receive rental income from my former home in Maryland. In 1975, my wife and I went back there to supervise repairs and replacements to both the inside and outside of the residence.

How do we handle these 1975 expenses? Also, how about dead trees that were removed? We invested in a stock that is now traded at 75 cents a share. Do we have a deductible loss? — W.P.

Deduct the actual costs of the trip for both only if you can show that both of you spent most of your time inspecting, supervising or working on the property. You can deduct in full all repair and maintenance items. But expenditures that add to the over-all value of the property are capital improvements to be depreciated. Dead trees would be deductible only to the extent that they are capitalized and not fully depreciated. The expense of removal is deductible.

Since your stock is still being traded, you would have to sell your shares to establish the loss.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I have three $1,000 debenture bonds which pay twice a year, one at 9.5 per cent, one at 11.75 per cent and one as 12.55 per cent. Do I have to report this amount of interest? Also, can I claim what I play on the Michigan lottery ticket if I lose or win? — J.R.

Assuming that the bonds are not municipal or other tax-exempt bonds, report as interest income, on Federal Form 1040, the interest you receive for the year.

Gambling losses for the year are reported as an itemized deduction, but the amount of the deduction cannot be more than your winnings reported for the same year.

DEAR MR. SMITH: My only income is the alimony I receive from my former husband, and I would like to set up an Individual Retirement Account (IRA.) I have written three times to Internal Revenue, Washington, D.C., but I've had no answer. May I set up an IRA? — A.E.O.

Only an employe, or a self-employed person who meets the other requirements, may set up an IRA plan. Since you are neither an employe, nor self-employed, you are not eligible.

Need child's flu vaccine

THE EVENTUAL elimination of influenza epidemics is hindered, in great measure, by the lack of a successful flu vaccine for children, researchers say.

Successful immunity, induced safely in school-age children, could be an important factor in breaking the flu-transmission chain.

But the current flu vaccine is not recommended for children because it frequently induces negative reactions, some more serious than the flu itself.

Two researchers are currently investigating the possibility of making an influenza "subunit" vaccine suitable for protecting children.

Studies have shown that some components or subunits of the influenza virus, when properly isolated, retain the whole virus' ability to induce immunity without the side effects.

form of outpatient treatment for psoriasis, a scaly skin disease.

The treatment involves the use of a drug called 8-methoxsalen and ultraviolet light.

Researchers hope it will provide an alternative to the lengthy hospitalization now required for many psoriasis patients.

The drug is given in pill form, followed two hours later by a two- to 15-minute exposure to 55 ultraviolet lamps, each six feet long.

Researchers say that the treatment is no cure but may provide an easier, safer method to deal with the disorder.

Psoriasis is one of the most frequently encountered skin diseases. It is as common as sugar diabetes, according to a report in Dermatology Digest.

The first manifestations of psoriasis can arise at any age, but usually develop between 20 and 40.

PSYLLIUM, a substance used in the manufacture of certain laxatives, may cause adverse reactions in persons who work around it, researchers report.

Three employes of a Minneapolis, Minn., pharmaceutical firm experienced wheezing whenever bulk laxative containing psyllium was being produced.

All three showed a reaction to a skin test employing psyllium extract, according to Drs. William W. Busse and William F. Schoenwetter of Minneapolis.

Psyllium is used in many laxative preparations because it has the property of fluid retention.

The doctors, in a report in Annals of Internal Medicine, say it's conceivable that others may experience respiratory symptoms when exposed to psyllium powder.

FOR WHAT IS believed the first time, a gallstone has been found in the lung of a human.

The stone showed up there in a 67-year-old woman after Swiss radiologists monitored a mysterious triangular shadow for two years on chest X-ray studies.

Swiss doctors, reporting in the journal Radiology, say the woman's gallbladder was removed in 1966 because of frequent attacks of severe pain. The gallbladder was found to have ruptured and no gallstones were found.

Six years later, doctors operated and found that the mysterious triangular shadow was the missing gallstone from the operation performed earlier.

Radiologists theorize that long before the gallbladder operation, the stone perforated the gastrointestinal wall, then penetrated the diaphragm and eventually worked its way into the lower part of the right lung.

THE DRUG diazepam is safer and more reliable than paraldehyde for the management of severe delirium tremens.

Diazepam, a tranquilizer also known as Valium, calms patients in less than one-half the time paraldehyde does.

Bad reactions occur considerably more often with paraldehyde than with diazepam, say researchers at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

A report on use of diazepam in the treatment of DTs appears in Annals of Internal Medicine.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Parties are most jolly at yuletide

'TIS THE SEASON to be jolly and among the jolliest things are parties.

Such as the one at the Alamitos Heights home of David and Mary Lu Hauser. More than threescore dropper-inners visited the two bars and cocktail buffet.

Holiday partygoers came from far and near such as Bob and Carol Bothner from Palos Verdes and Brad and Kathleen Crow from San Marino.

Nearer were Bill and Nancy Terpstra, Nick and Vanessa Nikcevich, Don and Wini Smith, Fred and Nina Strassman, Hal and Leone Marcum, Vic and Patty McCarty and Roby and May Bessent.

Also U.S. District Judge Mal Lucas and Joan, State Sen. George Deukmejian and Gloria, Decatur and Bettye Mitchell, Hal and Lila Bayer, Ted and Shirley Bradshaw, TJ and Joan Horan, Jim and Bev Milner, Jim and Judy Edson and Sterling and Carolee Clayton.

BOB AND EVELYN Orrill hosted a yule gathering around their famous player piano. (The one they personally hauled across country in a moving van.)

Evening was full of surprises. The Orrills' daughter Patricia Kaupp and husband Charles announced the forthcoming addition of a new Kaupp next July.

Not to be outdone, Bob Teague and Marline Cameron announced their engagement.

On hand for the surprises were Ross and May Sherwood, Dr. Frank Orto, Chuck and Paula Ayers, Glenn Morgan and May Norr, Hoover and Judy Villa and JR and Susan Cruz.

Also Bill and Pat Harrison, Keith and Mary Jane Clark, Dr. Susan Smight, Ray and Judy O'Connor, Jake and Molly Bowman and Rick and Shirley Drieski.

A NOTE FROM Whitey Littlefield telling me of a party was so enjoyable I'll borrow part of it. He is referring to his lady employees at Somerset Distributors and a party they had at Kelly's Restaurant.

"The occasion is not only their annual Christmas Party, Gossip Session and Tear The Boss Apart Night, but they also purchase a Christmas gift for me. The gift to me is a donation made to a needy family in my name so that someone else may have a little nicer Christmas. I can tell you very honestly it is the nicest gift I could receive."

Nicest Gifters were Connie Casillas, Linda Greenig, Jennifer Treinen, Susan Robinson, Lauren Adams, Pam Russell, Pamela Costello, Sandra Graham, Gladys Berg, Jacqueline Freese and Olga LeBlanc.

Perhaps some of you looking for a last minute gift might borrow the idea from the girls at Somerset.

EVERYTHING but the guests did a disappearing act at the party hosted by Drew Satariano and Bob Smith at their home-on-the-beach in Seal Beach.

Bill Smith of Magic Castle fame astounded and astonished some 30 Christmas revelers.

Among them were Kathy Scotella and Kathy Cully who assisted the hosts, Roger and Carol Hull, Wayne McMiniaiment, Mike Gaskey, Donna Smith, Jill Satariano, Denny Lund and Bill and Sharon Delaney.

THE QUEENSWAY Hilton was chosen by members of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary for their annual holiday party.

Highlight of the luncheon was a program of Christmas music by the Silver Lutes of Lakewood High School.

Lucille Lueking was in charge of arrangements with an assist from Emma Charrlin, Ruth Dilworth, Norma Dunn and Alice Parker. Kay Roggeveen is auxiliary president.

ONLY THING MISSING from the gala grand opening party at Harbor Bank on Ocean Boulevard were free samples of the product. But for a small building it was a large and lavish affair.

Ice Carvings bearing the bank's distinctive logo were accented by a bubbling champagne fountain. Monster bowls of shrimp and oysters on the half shell were just two of the myriad hors d'oeuvre put together by Augie Speth, master of Pacific Terrace Concessions but better known as the wizard who put together the VIP Grand Prix parties.

Hosts for the party, which drew more than 400 localites including Mayor Dr. Tom Clark and Lois, were members of the bank's board of directors.

Jody Thomason, there with wife, Mona, is president and a member of the board. Jim Gray, with Joann, is chairman and Dorothy Matteson is vice-chairman. Dorothy says she is a vice-chairman not a vice person.

Other board member hosts were Jim Willingham, Dick Wilson and Peggy, Dr. Mac Todd with Ruth, Dr. Hamilton Moody, George and Joyce Murchison, Kermit and Rachel Jones and Jack and Rena Jacobs.

THE FORMULA

Hustle dance floor into shape

Have you made your plans for New Year's Eve? A party at home, including dancing on a well-waxed floor, would be an inexpensive and delightful way to welcome in the New Year. The needs are simple: friends, music and a good dance floor.

If you have a smooth-surfaced floor in your recreation room, basement or on your patio, it is not necessary to spend a month's entertainment money to dance at a club or hotel. Here's the formula to help you prepare your floor.

Ingredients required are one cup of STEARIC ACID, which may be purchased from a candle supply or hobby shop, and one-half pound of TALC, available from a ceramic supply house or drug store. Dry mix the two thoroughly and sprinkle the mixture on the floor. Store in closed container of plastic, glass or metal.

The cost of making your own dance floor wax is approximately six cents per ounce. To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then compare the per ounce cost. You'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little effort. Happy New Year!

Note: Material costs are based on prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic location. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any product you make at home, you should store this one safely; label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of the reach of children.

This formula will appear in a future edition of THE FORMULA BOOK.

(There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as THE FORMULA BOOK. Hundreds of easy recipes put savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. More than 200 pages of recipes, diagrams and instructions on ingredients and equipment, in a large paperback format, for only $5.95. Women are asking...

'Please give me some interesting party games and decorating ideas that don't cost an arm and a leg!'

By REBA & BONNIE CHURCHILL

Party-time is in full swing. Statistics reveal there are more get-togethers and open houses over New Year's than any other time of the year. If you're planning to spin the party ball, why not introduce friends to some fun innovations.

Balloons are an inexpensive prop. Insert a piece of paper — announcing a prediction — inside each balloon, inflate it and give to guests. When they pop them, they'll learn their fortune.

Also, present balloons and grease pencils to friends and have each draw a picture of the person at his right. The results range from Rembrandt to ridiculous. The best balloon faces receive a prize. The worst ones get a pin and become "pop" art.

If your get-together is more formal, you may want to incorporate a Bicentennial look to the party table. Designer Arthur McKee suggests using a child's toy drum as the "vase." Insert a conventional container inside the drum and fill it with red, white and blue flowers. Incidentally, if you want the centerpiece to outlast the party, he advises cutting flowers on a slant, then vertically snipping the ends (approximately ½-inch into the stem) so they will drink up the water. Patriotic streamers can be placed through the arrangement to carry out the 1776 theme.

Want to look your prettiest at party time? Check the 12-page booklet for tips on eye make-up. Included are sketches and pointers from professionals. Send 45 cents (coins only) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Reba & Bonnie Churchill, "Eyes," Independent Press-Telegram, P.O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

In duplicate is there any penalty for behavior which disrupts the normal course of the game?

Need Supervision
Elm Grove, Wis.

Answer: Yes. The director is empowered to assess penalties for behavior which adversely affects the course of the game. Typical violations are slow play, comparing scores, ungentlemanly behavior, etc.

Jerry Machlin of Silver Springs, Md., reports this true story in the Wash., D.C. Bridge Bulletin:

"Bad behavior at the table can result in all kinds of unexpected penalties. Example: A father and daughter combination were playing against the mother and the father was soundly berating the daughter for her bidding and play.

The mother tried to protect her beleagured child; "You really didn't have to take that from him. Actually, he isn't even your father."

Dear Mr. Corn:

I have been told that a new set of laws became effective recently. Is our social rubber bridge foursome out of date?

Catching Up
Arlington, Tex.

Answer: No, rubber bridge players are up with the times. A revision to the laws has been published, however, the new code pertains only to duplicate bridge and corrects some of the peculiarities caused by a similar set of laws for both games.

Dear Mr. Corn:

One of our players, when declarer, always plays his card and dummy's at the same time. I find this confusing and distracting. Is he allowed to do this?

Whose Play?
San Mateo, Calif.

Answer: If this habit distracts you, you may require declarer to play in turn in accordance with the laws. However, when a declarer does this, he may be giving the defenders an advantage.

Since dummy's card is a played card, either defender may play to the trick first and guide their play accordingly.

Dear Mr. Corn:

The trump combination was:

North
Q 10 9 8

South
A 5 4 3

How should I have played the suit if the lead was in dummy (North)?

Wrong Way
Scottsdale, Ariz.

Answer: It depends upon how many tricks you could afford to lose and whether another entry to dummy was available.

If all four tricks are needed, lead the queen hoping to pin West's singleton jack; or lead small to the ace hoping to drop a singleton king from East.

If only three tricks are needed and an entry to dummy is available, plan on two finesses against East.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Tex. 75225 with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Pros, cons weighed

The report also pointed out that a regional chain on the East Coast which is equipped with an electronic system foresees a potential savings in operating costs of between $7,000 and $10,000 per month per store. But the report noted that the word "potential" should be underscored. The savings are not yet a demonstrated fact, it said.

"There are savings in terms of reduced shrinkage and more efficient use of labor," Cottrell said. "But we're not moving ahead right now because we're still waiting to see if we can justify the cost."

SPOKESMEN FOR OTHER supermarket chains expessed similar reservations. Scanning is certainly the "coming thing," they agreed, but a price tag of $150,000 per store is nothing to sneeze at.

"There are several obvious advantages to the system...the fact that it's quicker and the shopper gets a detailed receipt are a couple of them," said Paul Campbell, director of public relations for Safeway. "The concensus is that all large markets will have scanner equipment sometime in the future.

"But we're going into it very slowly. We feel we must figure seriously the high cost of installation (the $150,000 does not include store remodeling or purchase of new checkstands, both of which are often necessary) and legislative roadblocks that might be thrown up. I read just yesterday that the requirement for item pricing has slowed down Lucky Market's plans for installing the equipment in its other stores." (Gemco in San Leandro, which is owned by Lucky's, is the other supermarket in California with computerized equipment.)

The "legislative roadblocks" right now consist of a law which will go into effect in April which requires supermarkets to price each item individually. The bill, authored by Sen. David Roberti (D-Los Angeles), was strongly supported by consumer and labor groups which feared that the introduction of scanners would lead to the elimination of item pricing in supermarkets.

"Consumer groups are being misled by the argument that item pricing is necessary," said Merle Goddard, a spokesman for the California Grocers Assocation. "The idea that you need item pricing is hogwash.

"We support the right of shoppers to have pre-purchase price information. But the shopper can do that with shelf tags.... and the shelf tags are improving."

CONSUMER AND LABOR groups don't agree. Bob McGrath, a spokesman for Local 324 of the Retail Clerks, expressed minimal alarm over the affect computerization would have on union members — "it's going to be with us," he said — but hailed the Roberti bill as an essential protection to both consumers and supermarket employes.

Consumer groups also view item pricing as an essential protection. Among other things, they say, eliminating item pricing would make it impossible for shoppers to find the best values without going through tortuous search procedures.

Ken Greene, a spokesman for IBM in Los Angeles, questioned how much affect the Roberti bill has had on a supermarket's decision to purchase or not purchase the equipment. The bill was passed for only one year, he pointed out, and in any event, "You can't assess the impact of something that hasn't gone into effect."

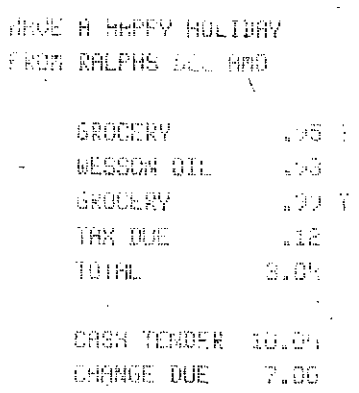

As Greene sees it, the main reason supermarkets aren't rushing out to purchase the computerized equipment is because the system is so new.

"We just announced the system's availability two years ago. It's not something that's been around that long."

Nationwide, about 40 supermarkets are testing computerized equipment, though not all of it, of course, is IBM-manufactured. The number has more than doubled in the last six months and according to Greene, several chains have two or more of their stores on the system.

AT WIT'S END

Grandma's game but children are not

My mother is funny about Christmas. She gets annoyed when she has to buy gifts that (a) she can't spell; (b) she doesn't have the foggiest notion what they're used for; (c) leak grease.

"Why can't I just buy my grandson a drum and a rubber toy for his bath?"

"Because he's 20 years old."

"It's no fun doing your Christmas shopping in an auto supply store. Tell me again what I bought him last year."

"A mag wheel."

"And the year before that?"

"An RF-60 FM stereo wireless radio chamber."

"I'll bet it's never been hemmed."

"They were headphones, Mother."

"If you ask me, kids grow up too fast. I liked it better when we could buy them toys and games. Remember that game where you sunk each other's battleships? I hate to brag but I downed 11 destroyers and 6 cruisers before they even got the hang of it."

"I remember."

"AND THE POPCORN machine. I loved the popcorn machine. That little thing made a pretty good batch of caramel corn."

"I remember."

"But the electric hockey was my favorite. I tried to tell 'em, it's coordination. Skunked every one of them. And Monopoly. I had 'em so they couldn't land anywhere on that board unless they printed their own money. So what does he want this year?"

"Take your pick. He's into photography. You want to get him the 273 auto thyristor bounce flash 9-90 with head tilt?"

"No."

How about a little stocking stuffer like a couple rolls of EX 135-30 Ektachrome AS 64-19?"

"Write it down," she said tiredly.

As I watched her go off with a note in her hand, I couldn't help but reflect sadly that somewhere in our quest to reach down to children and their quest to reach up to maturity, we pass one another in the night.

Depression not uncommon

Christmas from childhood contribute to holiday depression in another way. For as we recall the tinsel and glitter of past Christmases, we must face the reality that those times are past. And we are reminded of losses. Holiday times are traditionally spent with the family, and we are reminded of absent members of the family.

If we can't join our family, we struggle with loneliness. If they have passed on, we again grieve our loss.

For some people, the holiday gift giving is upsetting. Some do not find it easy or enjoyable to give, and they resent the tradition that forces them to do so. Some may be envious of gifts received by others, feeling anything others get that they don't is something they've lost.

Another subtle, but significant, depressing aspect of the season is the short days and long nights. The winter solstice is at hand; and though the days will soon get longer, the darkness is depressing.

Thus, whatever be the happiness and joy of the season, it is not uniformly joyous for all. It can have its moments of sadness and loneliness and depression and resentment. We can recall how magical a time it was in childhood and wish we were children again. Of course, that's literally impossible; but we can perhaps allow the child within us to re-experience the magical sights and sounds and tastes and smells and feelings of the season.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

He's schooled in gardening, too

Let's hope he doesn't raise his head in too big a hurry! The dean, who appears to be giving his all to his cooking, is today's chef of the week, Carl R. Sederholm, dean, Northrop University School of Law in Inglewood.

Starting out in Utah, Sederholm attended Brigham Young University, where he earned his B.S. degree. At the University of Utah he earned a juris doctor degree and at USC his master's degree in law.

Between college and law school however, Sederholm did a bit of snowballing. In Snowville, Utah, he served as principal of a two-room school with grades from one to eight.

He then came to Long Beach and joined the Northrup University Law School which was established in September of 1972, and will graduate its first class in May, 1976. It began as a night school, but is particularly proud of a morning section composed of all women law students. Northrop is a fully accredited private university in Inglewood with academic emphasis in engineering, law, business, and technology. The school was founded in 1942, by John K. Northrop who also founded Northrop Aircraft.

Several Long Beach attorneys also are associated with Northrop University as members of the board of trustees, or as members of the board of advisors.

SEDERHOLM is a member of the American and the California State Bar Associations; of the committee on law education of the State Bar of California, and also serves on the advisory committee on continuing education of the bar.

After graduating from the University of Utah Law School, Sederholm moved to Long Beach. In the following year he married Janice Hinckley whom he had met at the University of Utah. Janice taught school at Washington Junior High and Hughes Junior High, and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold A. Hinckley. Dr. Hinckley has practiced medicine in Long Beach since 1938.

The Sederholms are the parents of seven children. Julie, 16, is a junior at Lakewood High School;

mildred flanary

Dwight, 14, an Eagle Scout, is a ninth grader at Hoover Junior High; Val, 12, a Star Scout, working on his Eagle award, is in the seventh grade at Hoover Junior High. The two youngest girls, Sheri, 10, and Suanne, 8, attend Madison Elementary School.

The delight of the family is 4-year-old Chipper (Carl Jr.) — a chip off the 'old block', no doubt! There's also Benson, age 3.

SEDERHOLM enjoys gardening in his spare time, and is proud of his zucchini squash, lima beans, corn, and giant seed pumpkins.

Last summer he planted an exotic vegetable that no one could figure out. He had ordered it from one of his many seed catalogs that he collects from around the world. The family and friends tried it cold like a cucumber, and hot like a squash, and it grew like a bean.

CREPES FINES SUCREES
Makes 10 to 12 6-inch crepes or 18 4- to 5-inch crepes

- ¾ cup milk
- ¾ cup cold water
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 3 tablespoons orange juice or water
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 5 tablespoons melted butter

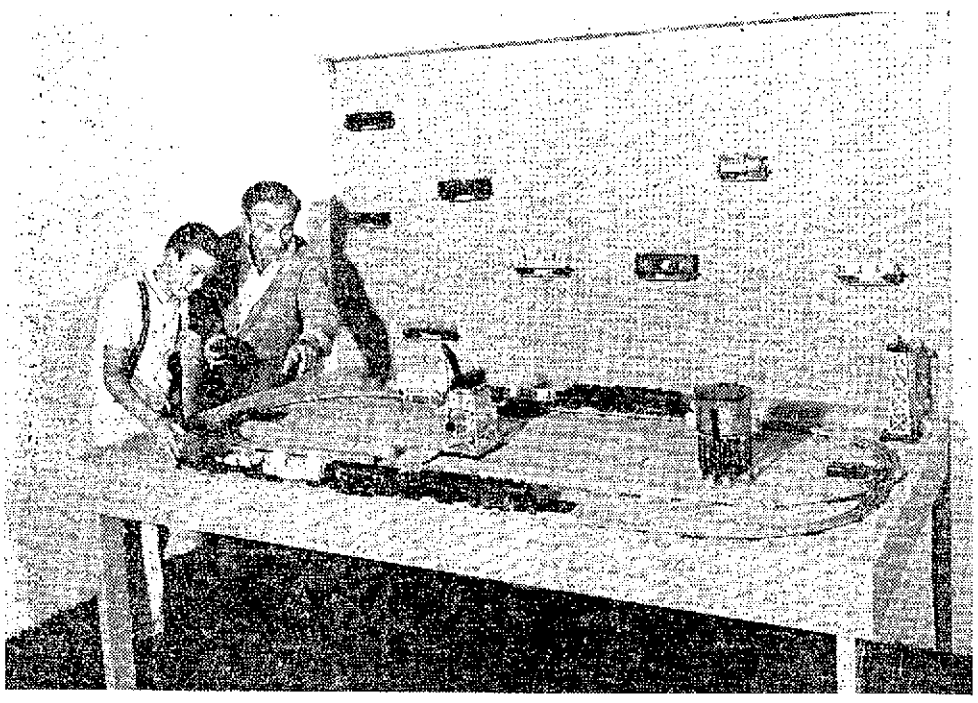

Place ingredients in blender jar in order listed. Cover, blend at top speed 1 minute, use rubber scraper, scrape down sides, blend 3 seconds or so more, cover and refrigerate two hours or overnight.

If you wish "Crepes Souffles", add 3 egg whites, pinch of salt, stiffly beaten. Fold this into batter just before making crepes.

To bake: Heat pan over medium-low heat until a drop of water sizzles. Wipe pan lightly with vegetable oil. Pour two tablespoons batter into pan, tilting quickly so batter covers bottom completely. Bake until top of crepe is dry and bottom lightly browned, turn quickly by lifting edges with a spatula then sweeping the crepe over with fingers. Bake about one minute more. Place crepes in a tea towel as they are baked.

DEAN CARL R. SEDERHOLM

The workshop

Here's a way to steal a little space along one side of a room and hide a whole railroad line in it...or a slot car race track. The fold-down table shown here is eight feet long and four feet wide. Of course, it may be made longer in the event you have more wall space available. The handy part is — once you're through playing — the shelf may be folded up against the wall where it's out of the way. It protrudes only a few inches when folded and the 18-inch pegboard face may be decorated so that it adds to the appearance of your room.

Many folks place these tables in their garage or basement. It makes a complete family entertainment center. For example, it's also handy for mother when she lays out her sewing. Then too, there are many hobbies that call for a large work table. And — daughter will like it for her doll house and furniture.

It's still another project that any amateur can undertake with success when using the easy-to-follow pattern. Complete directions, illustrations and a list of needed materials are always included.

To obtain the easy-to-follow TrainSlot Table Pattern No. 362, send $1.50 (includes first class postage and handling). Send check, cash or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, Ca.

FLEA MARKET FINDS

'His master's voice' talks

By DAN D'IMPERIO

Q: "Would anyone be interested in our old talking machine. It's been in the attic for years." — Mr. and Mrs. R.F., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: Thomas Edison's invention was the talk of the 1880s. His primitive machine evolved into a sophisticated instrument within a few short years. One hundred fifty thousand machines had been sold by 1900, along with close to 3 million records. Locating the early phonographs and records is more than enough to keep a collector spinning. Value guide: Edison, home model, with 50-cylinder records, $390; Victor E, Morning Glory Horn, table model, $320.

Q: "Can you furnish us with any information about Lenox china marks?" — Jane, St. Louis, Mo.

A: Lenox, Incorporated, was founded by Walter Scott Lenox in 1906. This still existing firm garnered an excellent reputation for their fine quality wares. Between 1906 and 1924, the firm's backstamp consisted of a circle and artist's palette enclosing an L, with the word Belleek beneath. A small wreath containing the letter L, and Lenox beneath appeared in 1924. A slightly larger wreath incorporating the Letter L with Lenox, Made in U.S.A., below was utilized from 1930 onward. American Lenox china is cherished.

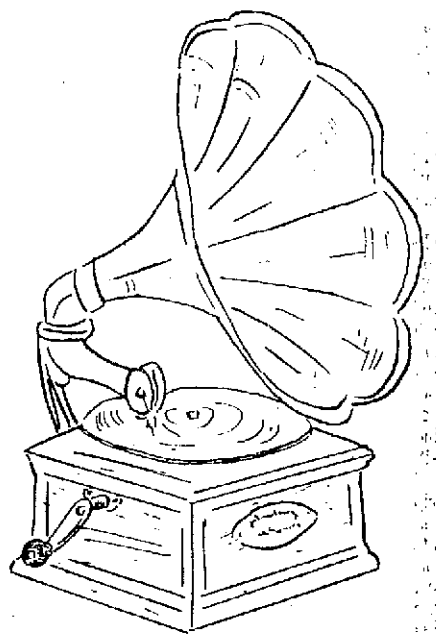

Q: "Has Amberina glass continued atracting collector interest?" — Mr. and Mrs. C.H., Spokane, Wash.

A: Ever since the New England Glass Works of Massachusetts developed this lovely two-colored glassware about 1883, it has captured the fancy of the public. Shading as it does from red to amber makes it quite unmistakable. The manner in which glass connoisseurs are hoarding tableware and ornamental articles, it's apparent that with them it will be "Forever Amberina."

Amberina value guide: Butter pat, Daisy and Button pattern, $110; cruet, Inverted Thumbprint pattern, $265; pitcher, swirled, strap handle, 8-inches tall, $275; tumbler, diamond quilted, $95.

Q: "Antique copper collectibles are tops with me. How early was it made in America?" — George, Burlington, N.C.

A: According to reports, several coppersmiths were practicing their craft in the late 17th century, but by the early 18th century they began advertising their services. Dovetailed joints, hand-riveting, tool marks and handcrafted handles are all indications of an early piece. Generally, antique specimens show signs of wear and the familiar "verdigris" greenish discoloration around the seams. A display of old copper is always a traffic stopper at any flea market. Copper value guide: Apple butter kettle, dovetailed, iron bail handle, $160.

Dan D'Imperio welcomes your questions on antiques and collectibles and will answer as many as possible in this column. However, volume of mail precludes personal reply. Write to him care of the Independent Press-Telegram.

DEAR ABBY

Nude neighbor needs professional help

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, a middle-aged woman moved into our apartment building on my floor. She lives alone with her dog. She's always dressed as though she's going to the opera — furs, capes, feathers and a different wig for every day of the week.

She talks to herself and carries a suitcase wherever she goes. I'm sure she's not all there. She's not very friendly. When I say hello to her, she answers curtly and keeps going.

Yesterday she walked down the hall stark naked to empty her trash basket! I couldn't believe my eyes. I phoned the manager immediately, and he said the woman pays her rent on time and doesn't bother anybody so he couldn't do anything about it. He said the police would have to catch her in the act, at which time they could take her down and book her.

Abby, I don't want to cause trouble for this poor woman, but she must have family somewhere who should be notified.

What should I do? My husband says it's none of my business. — CONCERNED NEIGHBOR

DEAR CONCERNED: Your husband is wrong. It IS your business. The woman is obviously disturbed and in need of treatment. Call your local Mental Health Association and report the incident to them. In the meantime, try to make friends with her. Nearly everyone responds to kindness.

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: How do we shape up our children's table manners (ages 8, 10 and 12) without causing complete disruption at mealtimes? — DAD

DEAR DAD: Consistent and gentle reminders plus adult examples should do it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter who is not yet 15 wants to date a 20-year-old divorced man. I have tried to talk her out of it, but she doesn't want to listen.

She is a good student and has never been in any kind of trouble, but I think she is too young for a man his age. Especially a divorced one.

What do you think? Also, when he calls, is it my place to ask him to please not call my daughter anymore? — WORRIED MOM

DEAR MOM: When he calls, let your daughter tell him not to call anymore. I agree he's too old for her, divorced or not.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that he is not an alcoholic because he doesn't drink any alcohol — only beer. But he drinks a six-pack every evening and on weekends he can put away a couple of cases. He gets very drunk. At least he acts drunk to me. Yet he tells me that as long as he drinks only beer, he is not an alcoholic. Is that right? — HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No! There IS alcohol in beer, and anyone who drinks as much beer as you say your husband drinks qualifies as an alcoholic in my book!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, Los Angeles, Ca. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Elegant gift enhances collection

BY ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

It's gift-giving time, and Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has received an elegant one from Leon Lidow, father of museum trustee Eric Lidow.

An addition to the museum's Chinese collection, the gift consists of two important T'ang (618-906 A.D.) funerary sculptures. They may be seen in the new acquisitions gallery on the Plaza level of the Ahmanson Gallery.

George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern Art, says that the two almost life-size T'ang officials, which are among the largest in the country, are unique for their fine modeling, strong characterization and monumental size. Attired in long robes and mitered hats, the ascetic, dignified appearing pair are richly covered with green, brown and straw-colored glazes over white pottery bodies.

From antiquity, the Chinese buried their dead with lavish tomb furnishings so that the deceased could enjoy all the pleasures of this world in afterlife. Replicas of horses, favorite dogs, companions and servants were frequent objects. The funerary art of the ceramic sculptor reached its height during the late seventh and the first half of the eighth centuries with work of dazzling polychrome glazes. After the rebellion of An Lu-shan in 756 A.D. and the effect of sumptuary laws to regulate spending, there was less creative vitality. By the mid-eighth century, the glazed tomb figurines were scarce except in remote provinces.

TWO NEW TOURS also are being offered at the Los Angeles County Museum. They are for the blind and partially sighted, and for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Both are conducted free of charge by the museum's Docent Council.

Talks for small groups of children or adults are included for the blind and partially sighted. Approximately 20 sculptures from Africa, China, Egypt, Latin America and Europe in such materials as wood, marble, bronze and baked clay are provided for tour participants to handle. In this way, they can learn about form and texture. The tours, which last about an hour, are in the museum workshop. Although special exhibitions for the blind have been held in the past, this new tour is designed to give the blind and partially sighted continuing opportunity to visit the museum.

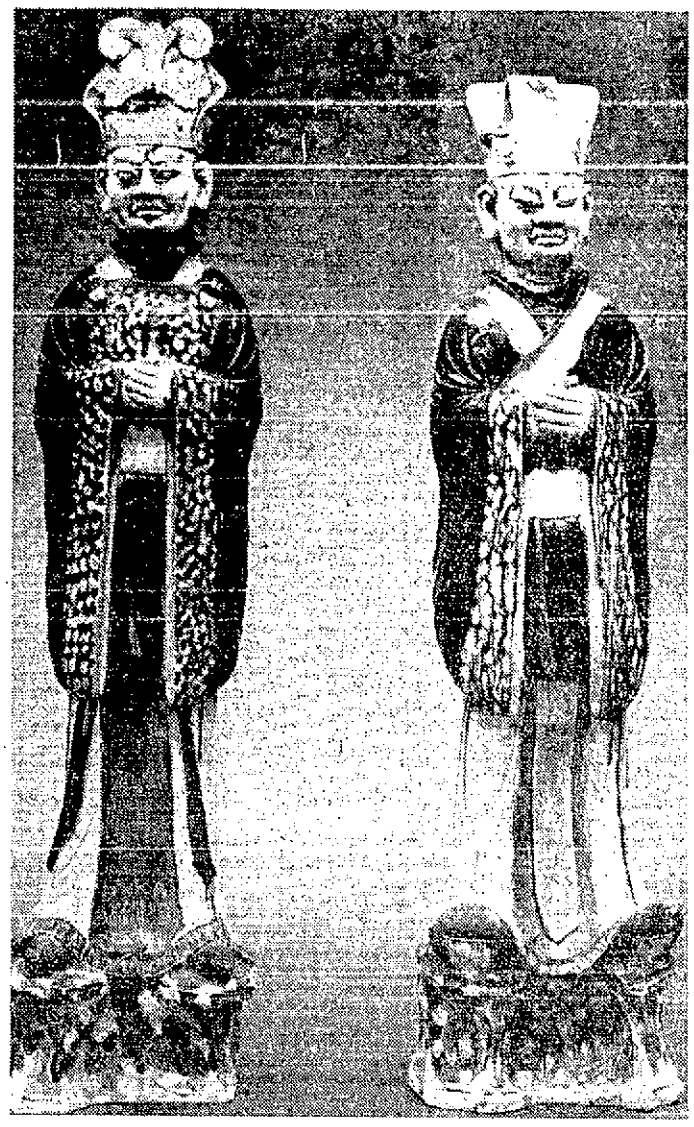

Tours for the deaf are accompanied by typed scripts of recorded gallery talks for special exhibitions. This allows the deaf to follow the same tour as that given on the tape recording. A refundable deposit of $1 is requested for the script. No reservations are required. Docent tours in sign language, featuring highlights of the Ahmanson Gallery, also may be scheduled on request. To arrange one of these special tours, contact the museum's docent office.

ANOTHER NEW program of tours is scheduled the second Sunday of each month at 2 p.m. at Bowers Museum, 2002 N. Main St., Santa Ana. Members of the Docent Guild conduct tours entirely in Spanish. Mrs. Leonor Alaniz, a teacher of bilingual studies in the Costa Mesa school district, heads the program.

On permanent display is the museum's collection of African, Oceania and pre-Columbian artifacts, plus two rooms devoted to Orange County History and the Indian ancestory of the Southwest United States. Reservations for these special tours are requested but not necessary; admission is free.

FIRST PLACE winners in the recent membership show at Traditional Artists Guild of Paramount are: Pauline Baerg, beginner; Edith Reneau, watercolor; Lenore Caldwell, intermediate; Pat Allen, portrait and animals; Flo Gipple, landscape and desert; and Julia Bleck, seascape and marine.

In professional categories: Nona Taylor, seascape and marine; Charles P. Cross, portrait and animals; Ryo Terasaki, still life and florals; and Edith Reneau, landscape and desert.

THIS PAIR of officials dates from the Chinese T'ang Dynasty (618-906 A.D.). The three-color glazed pottery figures are gift to Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Auditions may point to careers

Young singers in Southern California may apply now for the 1976 San Francisco Opera Auditions. Deadline for entries is Feb. 10.

Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon, chairman of the Los Angeles Region, said that preliminary judging will take place March 8 and 9, and finals April 29, in Royce Hall, UCLA.

The Los Angeles Region includes the counties of Santa Barbara, Ventura, Inyo, Mono, Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial and Southern Nevada. Applications are available by mail from the Opera Guild of Southern California, 2125 Mayview Drive, Los Angeles 90027.

On the regional level, the singers will compete for $2,000 in awards. In addition, winners will be eligible for the grand finals later in San Francisco where $3,750 in prizes will be given.

Finalists also will be eligible to participate in the Merola Opera Program, an intensive 10-week summer session combining study with performance in residence.

Singers in all voice ranges may compete. Sopranos must be between the ages of 20 and 30; mezzos, 20 and 32; tenors and baritones, 22 and 32; and basses, 22 and 34. Contestants may submit applications in three different audition years.

NAMED AFTER Gaetano Merola, founding general director of the San Francisco Opera, the Merola Opera Program is regarded as one of the finest opera training courses in the United States. Given under the direction of the opera's present general director Kurt Herbert Adler, members of the opera staff and other specialists conduct classes in languages and diction, stage deportment, body awareness and fencing, as well as providing coaching of operatic roles, recitative and dialogue. Participants also may audit San Francisco Opera stage, chorus and ensemble rehearsals.

Some singers receiving awards at the grand finals will be presented in concert at Stern Grove, the Paul Masson Mountain Winery in Saratoga and other special programs during the summer.

Those enrolled in the Merola program also are considered in casting for the fall international season of San Francisco Opera as well as for the Spring Opera Theater, Western Opera Theater (the touring and educational subsidary), and the Brown Bag Opera, new noontime performing troupe.

Among audition winners from the Los Angeles Region have been sopranos Karen Armstrong, Delcina Stevenson and Shigemi Matsumoto; contralto Katherine Hilgenberg; tenor Ken Remo; and bass-baritone Harold Enns.

English actress to star at Forum

That famous Jacobean tragedy of love and revenge, John Webster's "The Duchess of Malfi," will star Eileen Atkins from Jan. 22 through March 7 at the Mark Taper Forum of the Music Center. This will be the play's first major professional stage production in the United States for many years. Director is Howard Sackler, Pulitzer Prize winning author of "The Great White Hope."

Ms. Atkins, considered one of England's finest actresses, will make her Los Angeles stage debut in the title role. Co-creator of the popular television series "Upstairs, Downstairs," she recently appeared on Broadway as Elizabeth I in "Vivat! Vivat! Regina!" — a role she originated on the London stage. In New York, she appeared in Arbuzov's "The Promise" and in Frank Marcus' "The Killing of Sister George," which she also played in London where she received the Evening Standard Award for Best Actress for her performance as Childie.

Born in London, Ms. Atkins established her professional reputation in England appearing in seasons of repertory, including two years at Stratford-on-Avon. In the contemporary theater, she has been seen in "Semi Detached" with Lord Laurence Olivier, "Exit the King" with Sir Alec Guinness, and other major productions. She again teamed with Sir Alec in "The Cocktail Party" at Chichester and later in London's West End.

The actress has played The Duchess of Malfi and many other roles for English television. Webster is considered one of the greatest playwrights of 17th century tragedy, second only to Shakespeare.

EILEEN ATKINS as Duchess of Malfi stars as tragic heroine in John Webster's 17th century play. Drama will open Jan. 22 at Mark Taper Forum.

Christmas customs differ around world

Christmas began nearly two thousand years ago when Christ was born in a stable. It was a happening so inconspicuous that hardly anyone knew it had taken place.

Today, the Star of Bethlehem is a worldwide symbol of Christmas. On perhaps no other day is the family of man so close, one to another. In every corner of the earth where Christmas is celebrated, it has come to be the most universal and joyous of all Christian observances.

Many of the cherished traditions of Christmas, religious and otherwise, are buried in the pagan past. When Christmas was first officially established, in fact, the date coincided with the ancient celebration of the sun's rebirth at the winter solstice.

The church saw no reason to destroy time-honored customs, so they were adapted to fit the celebration of the birth of Christ, and each country has added its own lore to the melting pot of Christmas tradition.

Travelers around the world can now see many different symbols and customs used to celebrate travel

Christmas. The travel experts of Trans World Airlines which serves 57 major U.S. and international centers, have collected information on the many ways people in places on their routes mark this period of joy and peace.

CHRISTMAS IN FRANCE, as here in the United States, is essentially a family holiday. Gifts are given primarily to children. Custom calls for the youngsters to leave their shoes by the fireside for Pere Noel to fill. The French custom is to exchange gifts on New Year's Day.

French families traditionally have a festive supper on that day called the "Reveillon." The meal varies according to the section of France. In Paris, for example, oysters, foie gras and champagne are a special feature, but everywhere in France it is traditional to serve a cake called Buche de Noel.

That means yule log and derives from the custom of leaving a log burning on the hearth while the family attended midnight Mass. In some of the provinces this custom still exists, but in Paris and other large cities a delicious log-shaped cake is served to symbolize it.

CHRISTMAS TIME in England still has a Charles Dickens flavor. The celebration starts with carols and services on Christmas Eve and continues right through Boxing Day, Dec. 26.

The tradition of serving goose during the holidays is still observed. A traveler may well be stopped by children with the cry, "Christmas is coming, the goose is getting fat, please put a penny in the old man's hat."

On Boxing Day, the day on which the well-to-do once gave out boxes of gifts to the poor, many people work off the Christmas meal with a brisk walk at a customary Boxing Day hunt. While the riders chase after the hounds, everyone else strides long, taking short cuts and catching up with the riders all across the fields.

THE CELEBRATION in Italy, too, is primarily a religious one and centers around the crib with all its figures. In Rome pipers stroll the streets, adding a colorful and tuneful note to the festivities.

In Italy, La Befana makes her rounds on Jan. 6, feast of the Epiphany. According to legend, she is an old woman who refused to help the Wise Men find their way to Bethlehem. She quickly repented and set out after them. Failing to find them, she still wanders, bringing gifts to good children, ashes to bad ones.

Christmas is primarily a religious observance in Ireland as well. Here, too, the celebration centers around the family. And throughout that lovely land during the holiday season the sound of music is heard — from the soft strains of the harp to the lively skirls of bagpipes.

Traditional Christmas dinner in Ireland is turkey and baked ham, with a plum pudding filled with fruits, whiskey and stout for dessert.

As in England, the day after Christmas is a holiday in Ireland. That is St. Stephen's Day and children dress up in costumes, much like Halloween in America, and go from house to house, singing and dancing to the music of fiddles and concertinas.

IN MADRID where pageantry and piety combine for a unique celebration of the season, the feast of the Three Kings is observed on the night of Jan. 5. Camels, horses, bands, floats — an impressive array of lights, color and music — comprise the cavalcade which promenades through the city.

The Three Kings, not Santa Claus, symbolize Christmas in Spain. Children clean their shoes, and put them by the door so the kings can fill them with candy and little toys, in exchange for straw for their horses.

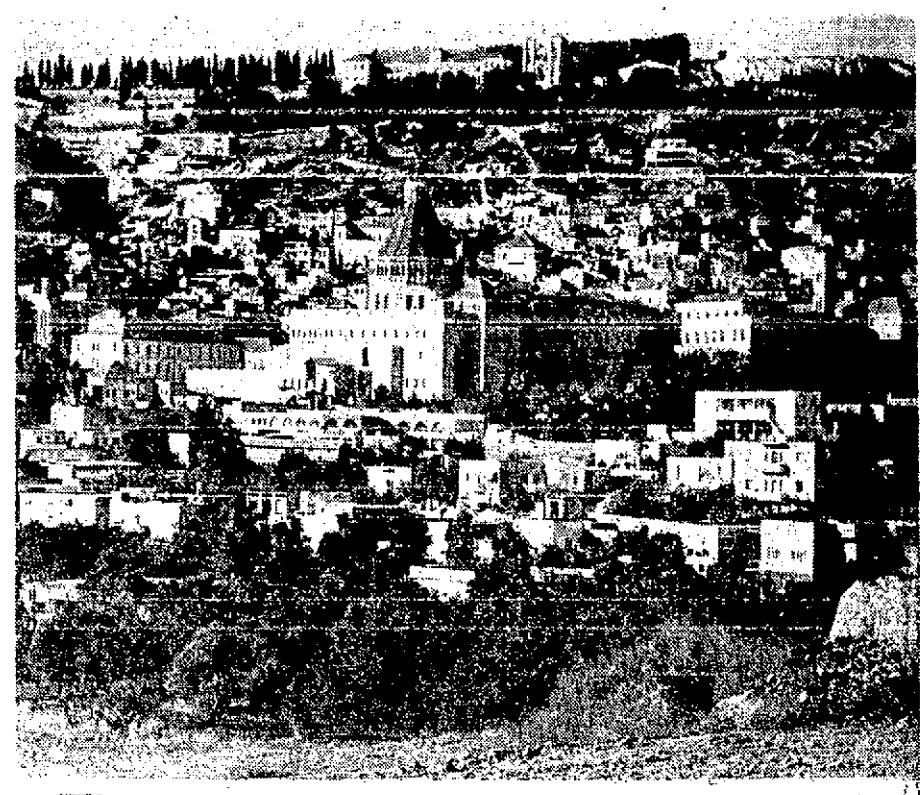

Christmas is a six-week celebration in Israel where every religious denomination has its own observance. Just outside Jerusalem, Christians gather in Shepherd's Field on Christmas Eve. There are processions also in Bethlehem's Manger Square, as well as in Jerusalem and Nazareth.

CHRISTMAS SEASON usually coincides with the Jewish celebration of Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights which lasts for eight days.

Carols, cakes and "kallikantzari" — which means goblins associated with Christmas — constitute some of the Christmas customs in Greece. Caroling is widespread, with children banging on small drums and tinkling triangles.

Homemakers bake small cakes called "coliandа," and larger ones, known as "coliandina," which are given to carolers, along with figs and nuts, when they stop at houses. The "kallikantzari" comes from an old Greek superstition that on Christmas Eve the goblins come up on earth and stay to do mischief until the twelfth night. They come down chimneys, put out fires, turn milk sour, mix up dishes and braid the tails of horses together.

The night before Epiphany — Jan. 6 — when the goblins are supposed to leave — it is traditional to make pancakes and throw them on the roof of the house for the goblins to eat.

San Francisco

"Walton's in Chelsea is the most 'in' restaurant in London. Decorated in yellow and gray which sounds awful but actually is very attractive. Lunch for two, $50. French food."

San Francisco lawyer reporting to me on the London scene. Before I could get it into print, Walton's was bombed out of business. Supposed to be the IRA.

I DID get into print with old and fashionable Scott's restaurant — "$100 for dinner for two." Scott's was bombed same week we published it. (Maybe I should sell protection to London restaurants NOT to report on them.)

Before World War II I did an interview with Sean Russell, chief of staff of the Irish Republican Army. A dedicated revolutionary. Cold and calculating. He died aboard a German submarine taking him to Ireland to work up trouble for Britain. (I don't think that's a big secret, but Irishmen changed the subject when I asked about it.)

Britain's feeling a tourist pinch. Most people don't figure a bomb should be included in the tour package.

Tourist Office. I still get letters from people who say they were charged the tax.

Tourist office says complain. Get receipts. And they'll give the offender the works.

"If we ship our bikes to Europe, what will it cost?"

It cost $100 each way two years ago says our Bike Reporter. "That's by air freight. Get a box from a bike shop. The kind bikes come in from the factory. You'll have to remove one wheel, the saddle and loosen the handlebars. Easy to put it together again."

(The International Bicycle Touring Society says you can ship up to 44 pounds free as accompanied baggage.)

"The bike should be worth it. You can buy an awfully good bike in Europe for $200."

Our Bike Reporter has wheeled across Europe for four summers. I've printed his how-to-do-it rundown. It's yours free. A self-addressed, stamped, business size envelope will put you among the blessed ones we answer first.

"You don't have to pump across Europe," he says. "You can put your bike on a train. Pedal around the areas you like." Bikes are not just for kids as you'll learn when you see grandmas in the bike traffic. Our Bike Reporter is in the mid-fifties.

"I'd heard I could get a divorce in 24 hours in Mexico . . ."

Wrong. Mexico no longer gives the overnight split. The border town operators have moved to Haiti and Santo Domingo.

Some travel agents handle this. Trip to the Caribbean. Overnight divorce. A couple of days on the beach to work up your reentry suntan.

I've got a space queen going down this week for a retread, and I should have it detailed here before the New Year. (And a happy one to you, too.)

NEW WORLD'S FIRST YULE CELEBRATED IN HAITI

Christmas in new world not merry

travel

The first Christmas in the Western Hemisphere was celebrated in Haiti almost 482 years ago, but it was less than a merry one.

As it happened, Christopher Columbus and his fellow explorers spent Dec. 25, 1492 in a desperate struggle to salvage what they could of the sinking Santa Maria.

Until then, all had gone well with the expedition. On his flagship — the Santa Maria — accompanied by the Nina (the two ships were to rendezvous later with the Pinta), Columbus was anxious to see how these strange men worshipped their gods.

BELIEVING he was nearing the riches of the Orient and that Cuacanagari was the Emperor of Japan, Columbus was quick to accept the invitation. He sailed again Dec. 24 and, as darkness fell on Christmas Eve, the ships were offshore from a rocky headland which Columbus named Punta Santa. It is now called Cap Haitien.

By 11 p.m. the wind suddenly died and the two ships barely were making headway. Without sleep for the past 48 hours, Columbus went below and the sailors on watch took advantage of his absence for a nap.

The weary steersman also relinquished his post to a young cabin boy, who was ordered to follow the lights of the Nina ahead. But the youth barely was able to see over the Santa Maria's high prow and at just about midnight, the ship slid onto a reef in Caracol Bay so gently no one awakened.

The pounding surf drove the Santa Maria higher on the rocks where the grinding timbers soon awoke the crew and brought Columbus on deck. Throughout the night the men labored to free the ship. By dawn, Columbus realized it was hopeless and gave orders to abandon ship.

So, on the first Christmas Day in the New World, the expedition had time for only a simple mass as the crew worked to salvage what they could from the Santa Maria before it broke apart.

Realizing that the Nina could not accommodate both crews, Columbus decided to leave part of his company behind. He directed that a "tower and fortress" be built from the Santa Maria's lumber and "Fort Nativity" became the first European settlement in the Western Hemisphere. The site now is the small fishing village of Limonade Bord-de-Mer.

Today, all that remains of this historical landing are two of the Santa Maria's seven anchors which are on display in Haitian museums.

Feast of the Nativity and Columbus first sighted Haiti Dec. 5.

Sailing eastward along Haiti's north coast, Columbus noted in his log the "grandeur and beauty of the island and its resemblance to Spain." In honor of his patrons, he named it La Isla Espanola, or Hispaniola. Dominican Republic occupies the eastern two thirds of Hispaniola today.

By Dec. 23, Columbus arrived at what now is called Acul Bay where he received an invitation to visit the village headquarters of Cuacanagari, chief of all the Arawak Indians in northwest Haiti. The chief had heard of the

A place for lovers and artists

Lying in the northeast corner of lush verdant Jamaica is romantic Portland Parish, a spectacular collection of hills, rivers, and sea-carved shorelines that have made it an artist's haven and a lover's delight. There is not a high rise hotel within miles and condominium communes are unknown.

There are many hotels, however, ranging from the fantistically expensive in the San San area with more modest hostelries being found in the hills above Port Antonio, port city for the Parish.

The area has long been fascinating to artists, writers, actors and actresses. The late Errol Flynn, while cruising the Caribbean in his yacht, sought sanctuary from a hurricane in the Port Antonio harbor.

He fell in love with the Parish. He purchased the old Titchfield Hotel, remodeled it, renamed it the Jamaica Reef, and, until it burned down some years after his death, it was one of the most popular spots in Port Antonio.

The famed, deMontevin Lodge which lures the young, the budgeted, and gourmets of Jamaican food, also should be visited by architectural buffs. This remarkable gingerbread house is one of the most graceful examples of West Indian architecture.

The easiest way to get there is to fly from Los Angeles via National jet to Miami for quick connecting flights to Montego Bay. It would be best to overnight in Montego Bay, then rent a car and drive the 150 curling miles up the northern rim of the island to Port Antonio.

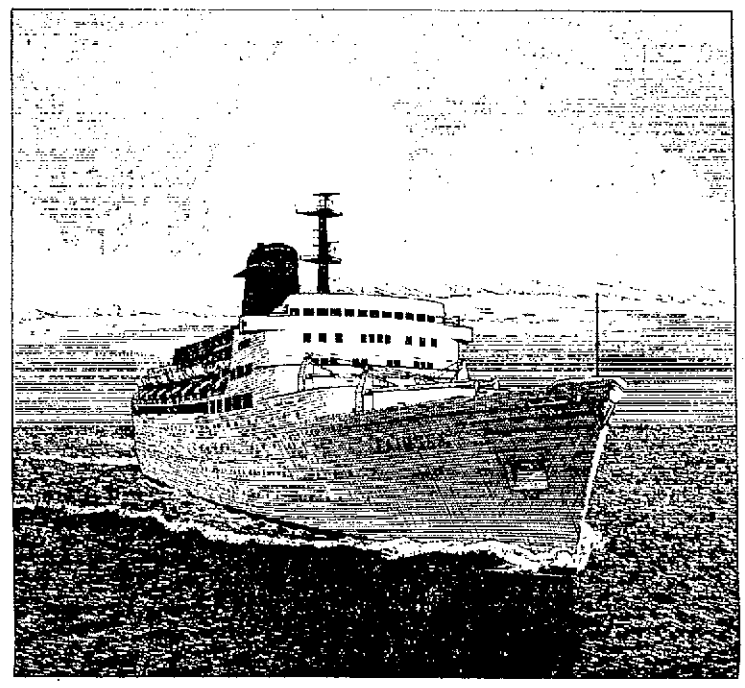

SITMAR GIVES YOU THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY TO MEXICO.

Sitmar's 10 and 11-day cruises give you the most entertainment, the most time in the best ports, and the largest, most spacious ship sailing the Mexican Riviera.

Sitmar's elegant T.S.S. Fairsea, of Liberian registry, is the largest cruise ship sailing the Mexican Riviera. Twenty-five thousand tons!

That means we can give you more crew to serve you, roomier cabins, more spacious decks, more fun facilities: Like a 330-seat movie theater, five pubs, two lounges, two nightclubs, two dining rooms and much, much more! There's even room for three swimming pools, one especially for children.

The entertainment is the finest on any cruise. There are even three cruises devoted to the Big Band sound of the '40s.

SITMAR 10 AND 11-DAY CRUISES. MORE CRUISE FOR YOUR MONEY.

Compare our 10 and 11-day cruise fares with any other. You'll find they're the biggest cruise bargains going. Another advantage of 10 and 11-day cruises—they're long enough to visit the best ports on the Mexican Riviera, short enough to fit within a two-week vacation and still give you a few extra days to get back to reality after all that unbelievable Sitmar luxury.

SITMAR. THE MOST WANTED PORTS, MOST TIME ASHORE.

And 10 and 11-day cruises allow you more time ashore to explore Mexico's most exotic and exciting ports. On the 10-day you visit Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and cruise Cabo San Lucas Bay. On the 11-day you visit delightfully old-world Manzanillo, too!

SITMAR. MORE ATTENTIVE SERVICE, MORE LAVISH CUISINE.

Sitmar's 500-man Italian crew is famous for its enthusiastic, attentive, European-style service. And our continental cuisine. Lavish! Extravagant! Incomparable! Our 54 chefs are European-born, European-trained, European-proud.

MORE TRAVEL AGENTS RATE SITMAR NO. 1.

But don't choose a cruise from an ad. See your professional travel agent, who knows which cruise line offers the best value. But don't be surprised if he recommends Sitmar. Recent independent surveys show that more travel agents rate Sitmar a better value than any other cruise line. They rate us best in:

- cuisine
- public rooms
- service
- entertainment
- luxury
- on-board activities
- spaciousness
- ports of call

And experienced cruise passengers know it. That's why travel agents say Sitmar is the most frequently asked-for cruise line on the West Coast.

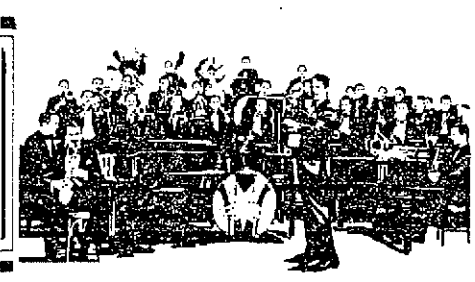

Ask your travel agent to tell you about a Sitmar 10 or 11-day Mexican Riviera cruise. Sitmar. More cruise, more memories for your money!

Gourmet guide

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia was so delighted with Gus Riker's culinary artistry that he awarded him a gold coin.

So it's easy to understand why the guests at Carr Brothers restaurant, Long Beach Boulevard near Wardlow Road, are equally delighted with their luncheon and dinner specialities. Gus is Carr Brothers' executive chef, an imaginative fellow who loves his work and is forever turning out the most scrumptious entrees, such as veal Oscar with crab for dinner or a gourmet mushroom omelette for luncheon.

Gus was born in the German village of Crailsheim and received his training in the culinary arts at a speciality restaurant in Stuttgart. From 1960 to 1971, he was executive chef aboard the Argo, a luxurious, 250-foot motor yacht owned by a U.S. construction corporation. The Argo traveled from New York to the Caribbean, Panama, Acapulco and other romantic ports, carrying many distinguished guests who were royally wined and dined. Among them on different occasions were Emperor Selassie, a prime minister of Ireland and other statesmen. The Emperor was so pleased with one of Gus' elaborate cold buffets that he gave him a gold coin for a keepsake.

Owned by Paul Carr, Carr Brothers serves dinner every night and luncheon Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Sunday nights the menu is limited to three superb entrees. Each is $3.95 and definitely a top dining value. They are a top sirloin steak, tender scallops sauteed in garlic butter or the combination of the steak and scallops. They come with baked potato and fresh coleslaw. On Sundays starting at 7 p.m. there's special entertainment by guest artists including Paul, who is a talented professional musician as well as a knowledgeable restaurateur. The cocktail lounge — with nightly entertainment — is one of the most popular in town, attracting guests who enjoy its casual fun atmosphere.

Those special luncheons at Carr Brothers are enjoyed by many people who have discovered they are almost as generous as dinners. Sensibly priced at $2.75, the specials change daily, ranging from pot roast or baked ham to corned beef with cabbage, sauteed sirloin tips or knockwurst with sauerkraut. Gus makes the freshest gourmet sauerkraut and buys custom-made, old-fashioned knockwurst from a German butcher in Los Angeles. The guests rate that knockwurst as "terrific." Each luncheon includes soup or salad, potatoes or rice and a fresh vegetable.

The dinners range from the most wonderful scampi to filet of sole with almonds, glorious prime rib au jus, broiled halibut, beautiful steaks, stuffed trout, roast duckling a l'orange with wine sauce and even Swiss steak in a tempting sauce. They are $4.50 to $8, with most less than $6. (Carr Brothers will be closed Christmas Day.)

EXECUTIVE CHEF GUS RIKER
An emperor praised his cooking

ANDY GASSAWAY JR.
His mother is remembered, too

IN MY COLUMNS ABOUT Andy's Restaurant, Pacific Avenue at Anaheim Street, I often mention its founder, the late Andy Gassaway Sr. He taught his son, Andy Jr., the present owner, a great deal about the fine points of running a successful cafeteria.

Andy Sr. was a big, robust man, much beloved because of his personality and his many great works for local charities. He was such a dominant figure that my columns in recent years have tended to overlook another person who played an important part in developing Andy's restaurant business. She was, of course, the late Gertrude Gassaway, Andy's wife and the mother of Andy Jr.

One of my recent columns about Andy Sr. and his son triggered the following response from Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brothers, 354 Obispo Ave., former neighbors of the Gassaways: "Did you know that behind every man's success is a woman's? Gertrude Gassaway was a really great inspiration to Andy's — and one of the finest kindergarten teachers our Long Beach school system ever had!"

I appreciate the reminder. Gertrude sacrificed some of her most precious personal possessions, selling valuable furniture in the 1940s to help Andy finance his first cafeteria, Andy's Hotcake House on Pine Avenue in downtown Long Beach. She kept pretty much in the background as far as the restaurants were concerned, counseling Andy at times and giving him strong moral support whenever his spirits were low. Gertrude taught in schools throughout Long Beach for 30 years and received top commendations for her teaching skills. For many years she taught kindergarten at Horace Mann School.

Closed Saturdays and Sundays, Andy's Restaurant is open the rest of the time from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., serving breakfast, luncheon and dinner. Andy Jr. and his wife Camilla, who does the baking, have an outstanding staff, turning out the best cafeteria-style foods, using the great recipes orginated by Andy Sr. The daily breakfast special, served until 10:45 a.m., is $1.30, including two wonderful buttermilk hotcakes, two slices of bacon, an egg and coffee. The luncheon specials start at less than $1.25, with different specials daily.

Some customers drive many miles to Andy's for luncheon, because it features entrees which are almost as generous as the dinners, but cost less. Among the big luncheons are superlative round of roast beef and corned beef, both $2.50, and roast pork or roast turkey, $2.70. They come with salad, a fresh hot vegetable, hot cloverleaf roll or a muffin with butter. Those rolls, baked by Camilla, are gigantic and delectable. The nightly dinners — richly satisfying — feature roast beef, $2.95; baked ham, $2.90; Swiss steak, $2.75; Salisbury steak, $2.65, and several others. (Andy's will be closed Christmas.)

Hospital guarantees work

By GEORGE ESPER

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — At the Blanchard Valley Hospital, the only one in town, the customers are always right.

Some might not get well, but the 40,000 patients treated annually are guaranteed good food, satisfactory nursing care, and a variety of other hospital amenities. If a patient goes for a blood test and "gets stuck with a square needle," as a hospital official puts it, he gets his money back.

A SPOKESMAN for the American Hospital Association, which has nearly 7,000 members, or 85 per cent of all the hospitals in the U.S., says that as far as the AHA knows, Blanchard Valley is the only hospital in the nation guaranteeing its services.

Now beginning its second year, the program has been praised by staff and patients alike. And hospitals elsewhere in the country have requested information about the program.

During the first 12 months, only 14 patients complained and only eight asked for refunds, according to William Ruse, Blanchard Valley's 40-year-old, pipe-smoking administrator. The others just wanted to call something to the attention of the hospital so it would be corrected.

Ruse instituted the guaranteed services on Nov. 1, 1974, because he was concerned, he said, about the high cost of health care. He convinced the hospital board to give him $12,000 a year for refunds.

THE BIGGEST first-year refund went to a patient who complained that a nurse did not respond quickly enough to a call and that as a result, the patient fell out of bed. The patient got back half the daily room cost (it ranges from $56 to $63 in the 230-bed hospital) and free treatment in the emergency room, services that amounted to $66.

Other complaints included delays in admission, poor food, and faulty TV sets. And then there was the 67-year-old woman admitted somehow to the pediatrics ward.

Two patients were unhappy with their doctors, but the hospital's service guarantee agreement says: "Because of the nature of human illness, we cannot guarantee the results of your medical care nor can we guarantee the services provided by your physician or dentist."

Another paragraph adds the caveat: "Crediting a patient's account under the guaranteed services program is not an admission of liability, either expressed or implied ..."

IN THE FIRST year of operation, the hospital refunded to the eight patients a total of $143.57. The remaining $11,856.43 set aside in the annual budget was distributed as bonuses to the hospital's 577 employes. The bonuses, based on the number of hours each worked, ranged from 30 cents to a newly hired employe to $32.80. The average was $20.

Ruse, who convinced the 18-man board of trustees to approve the service guarantee to patients, says he got the idea while driving to a meeting.

"I just happened to think of it," he says. "It didn't come from any particular set of circumstances."

THE PROPOSAL first was studied by two board committees, then went to the full board which voted approval by a three-to-one margin.

"The concern was not so much with the $12,000 a year as with the potential liability, which was unknown," Ruse said. "We were putting the entire budget of the hospital on the line.

"The initial reaction was one of acceptance, but not unanimously. There were some who said laughingly, 'Call in the men in white uniforms.'

"But I sold it through logical reasoning," explained Ruse, who has been hospital administrator for 11 years. "I explained that the hospital had a track record of few complaints. We have had a patient relations director for seven years and an Aspirin Line for complaints five years. We knew the types and numbers of complaints were very small; I didn't feel we were taking a risk of that magnitude."

RUSE SAYS Blanchard Valley's costs are 20 per cent below the average in northwestern Ohio and the service guarantee program should help to hold down costs because it fosters patient confidence. "Hopefully they will get well faster and shorten their length of stay — which will help hold down the cost," Ruse said.

He added: "In adopting this kind of program, you have to have a lot of faith in what you're doing. If the phone is ringing and too many patients are unhappy, you could go bankrupt. But this is the day and age of having to address yourself to the consumer. What can we do to meet that challenge? Part of the idea is to meet patients' expectations...

"WE HAVEN'T had anybody take advantage of the program. I wish the patients would take more advantage of it and we would get more complaints. We don't think 14 complaints represent the total amount of dissatisfaction with the services.

"We surveyed it, and 18 per cent didn't even know the program exists, although we place the guarantee in each room and tell the patient about it."

As to whether the program has shortened the length of patients' stays, Ruse said this would be a "very subjective judgment." He said the average stay has decreased by one-tenth of a day, to 6.8 days from 6.9, but there is no firm documentation to link the drop with the warranty on services.

IN A SURVEY made by the hospital last August, in which 71 patients responded to questionnaires, 60.6 per cent rated the care as excellent, 33.8 per cent rated it good, and 5.6 per cent called it average. No patient rated the care poor.

Ruse said that initially some people looked on the program as "just trying to check on employes all the time. But being against this program now is like being against God, mother and apple pie."

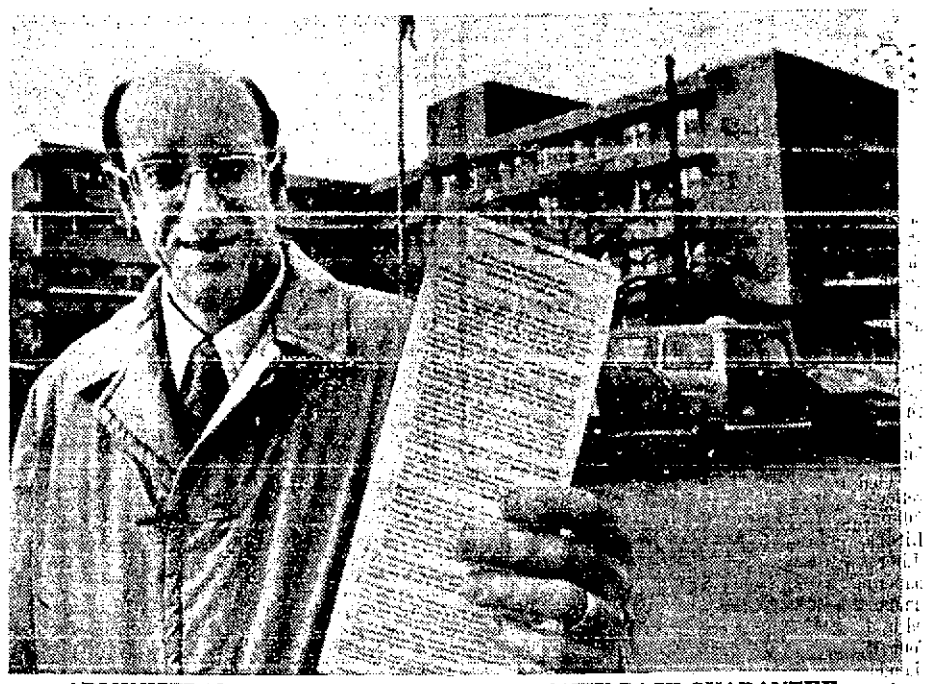

Esther Thompson, a cook in the hospital's kitchen for 10 years, says the guaranteed service stimulates employes to better work.

"It gives the patients a chance to air their views if they are not satisfied with us," she said. "It gives the employes more incentive to do better. They are going to take more pride in their work."

THE KITCHEN is meticulously clean and organized. On one day in December the dinner menu included three entrees — roast pork, lasagna and roast turkey.

Ruse said that cost liability incurred in the program is funded from the Blanchard Valley Hospital Association's investment income so that the program's cost is not charged directly to patients.

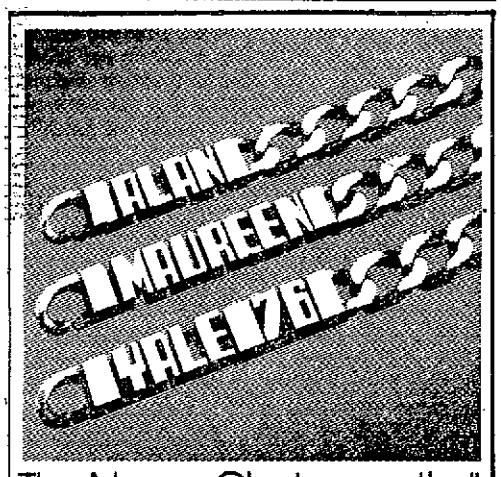

In its 1974 annual report, Blanchard showed a net income of $118,239. There was nearly $6.5 million in revenues from patient services, and $221,737 from investments, endowments and gifts.

Elitist 'gilded youths' worry Soviets

By LYNNE OLSON

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officialdom is beginning to show deep concern about the conduct of its "gilded youth" — sons and daughters of affluent scientists and engineers.

It stems from a new elitist social class that is growing as the result of the scientific and technological revolution transforming Soviet life.

The official concern was reflected recently in two full-page articles in the Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette), newspaper of the Soviet writers union. The articles reported in detail on the case of four 15-year-old girls, the daughters of scientists and engineers, who beat and kicked a classmate so severely that she had to be hospitalized.

TWENTY boys from the same advanced experimental school watched the beating for an hour without interfering, the paper said. Most did not know the victim.

One boy, in fact, encouraged the assailants, telling them how to kick and hit more effectively, the newspaper added.

The hunger of the Soviets for the most modern technology to update their industry, modernize their agriculture, improve their medical knowledge and perform other miracles can be seen in their intense desire to increase trade contacts with the West.

But until now, they have done very little public examination of the psychological costs involved in the emphasis on science and technology, sometimes resulting in persons valuing things more than other persons.

The schoolgirl beating, however, brought this problem into sharp focus. The youngsters involved were not deprived children, but the offspring of the scientific and technological elite.

THE BOYS and girls lived in a new city, as old as themselves, which was saturated with scientific research institutes and filled with all the modern comforts, Literaturnaya Gazeta said. It did not identify the city.

But it said the children were elitists, too. They were taught algebra and foreign languages in the first grade and were immersed in higher mathematics by the time they reached the eighth grade.

But all these material advantages resulted in a moral disadvantage. V.D. Osipova, the judge at the trial of the girl assailants, said that all the teen-agers involved in the incident placed more importance on material things and the technological knowledge that produced them than on their fellow humans and intangible "things of the soul."

"They know how to enjoy the wealth of their own personality, but have not learned to see these wealths in other people," the judge said. "They were taught music, elements of higher mathematics, figure skating and driving, but they were not taught how to work with their soul."

"The boys wanted to know about new equipment, and they always thought in terms of the future," added Literaturnaya Gazeta. "Their speech was full of the newest terms, and they could fluently discuss quantums and pulsars. They were united ... in their confidence that life must always show them something interesting."

JUDGE OSIPOVA rebuked Viktor Mishutin, a mathematics and physics genius and leader of the boys, for not stopping the beating before he eventually did. "But they were not breaking a washing machine in front of you," she said.

But then she realized, said Literaturnaya Gazeta, that the "girl was indeed like a washing machine for him."

D.S. Ivanenko, a scientist living in the town, further explained. "In our society, we are always trying to separate the scientific-technological revolution from the human being, the highest and most important element for which it exists."

According to the newspaper, the judge discovered that the teen-agers' emphasis on the material side of life originated from their parents.

When she asked the father of one of the girls whether he loved his daughter, he replied: "She is well dressed. She's got everything. We even bought her a piano."

"Many of our leading engineers and technical workers are so involved with their apartments, autos and fishing, they spend little time with their children," a woman attending the trial was quoted as saying: "Their attitude is simple — feed the kids, dress them and buy shoes."

Even some of the youngsters themselves seemed to agree with the analysis. In court, Judge Osipova read from a school composition of Mishutin: "The saddest thing to watch is how people who create objects of unbelievable value, like radiotelescopes, can land under the domain of things which are not so precious."

The judge realized that in the eyes of the scientist's daughter, the girl who was attacked "was a second-rate person, with her average marks and loud mouth," the newspaper said, adding that according to that kind of appraisal, she deserved to be beaten.

The girl herself said she was assaulted because she had gossiped about her schoolmates.

But the two girl ringleaders of the assault got something more — "several years" in a labor colony, Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

Powerful source of X-rays disclosed

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Observations made during the Apollo-Soyuz mission last July have revealed an object whose X-ray emissions, sweeping the sky 84 times a minute like a high-speed airport beacon, are a million times more powerful than the energy radiated at all wave lengths by the sun.

The object, in terms of intrinsic brilliance, is the strongest source of X-rays known, other than galazies composed of billions of stars. It is of special interest because the manner in which its energy is presumably generated approaches the theoretical limits of that process.

Its location is the Small Magellanic Cloud, a miniature galaxy in the southern sky and a relatively close neighbor of the Milky Way Galaxy to which the sun and its planets belong. Scientists of the Naval Research Laboratory, who analyzed the data, believe it to be a neutron star — a superdense remnant of a star that collapsed after its nuclear fuel was exhausted.

While the object, known as an X-ray pulsar, can no longer generate energy by "burning" hydrogen or other nuclear fuels in the fusion process that makes normal stars shine, its gravity is thought to be drawing in great quantities of gas from a companion star.

The gas is funneled toward the poles of the pulsar by the latter's extremely strong magnetic field, the gas being squeezed until it falls on a relatively small area at each pole.

This, according to the Navy, heats the gas to about a million degrees Celsius (almost two million degrees Fahrenheit). The X-ray emissions are a consequence of such extreme heat.

THE companion star, classed a blue supergiant, is Sanduleak 160. The two objects circle one another, forming an "eclipsing binary" in that every 3.89 days the pulsar vanishes behind its huge companion. Wave lengths of light from the latter vary, over the same period, as its circling alters its motion relative to the earth.

American astronauts on their rendezvous mission with the Russians aimed an X-ray telescope at a catalogue of objects chosen for various reasons. This was one of them, having been observed by Uhuru, a small satellite which first provided a catalogue of X-ray sources throughout most of the heavens.

The Uhuru observations, however, were not capable of detecting high-speed pulsations or of recording the full wavelength range of X-ray emissions. Discovery that the object is an X-ray pulsar of extraordinary brilliance was reported Friday by Dr. Herbert Friedman of the Naval Research Laboratory, a pioneer in such observations.

30 Cal. women try for academy

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Academy said Saturday that, of 369 women who have applied to join the first coeducational class next fall, 30 are Californians.

President Ford signed legislation on Oct. 7 that opened all U.S. service academies to women. An academy spokesman said 3,635 women have asked for information about being admitted. There are 150 openings for women in next fall's class.

Air-collision alert system working

By DAVID YOUNG
Knight News Service

CHICAGO — The Federal Aviation Administration's new mid-air collision alert system has passed its first test with flying colors, FAA officials report.

The new system, which is designed to warn controllers in the agency's Aurora Air Route Traffic Control Center that planes are on a collision course two minutes before they get dangerously close to each other, was first put into operation Thursday.

Roger Brubaker, chief of the FAA center, said the new system "worked beautifully" during its first 24 hours of operation.

The system, called "conflict alert," has already blinked warnings to several controllers, he said.

FAA technicians at the center have been working at a hurried pace for more than amonth to install the system after a rash of near-collisions of jet aircraft in the Chicago area.

The worst occurred Nov. 26 when 24 persons were injured when an American Airlines DC10 jumbo jet was forced to drop 2,000 feet to avoid a collision with another jumbo jet about 35,000 feet above Carlton, Mich.

Conflict alert is simply a modification or reprogramming of the FAA's existing computers in the Aurora (Illinois) center to alert controllers of potential collisions at altitudes above 18,000 feet.

The system is designed to give controllers a two-minute warning that the projected path of an airplane will cross within five miles or 1,000 feet altitude of the projected path of another plane. The radar blips of the two planes will begin flashing to alert controllers and a printed message identifying both planes will appear on the radar screen, FAA officials said.

The Aurora center controls all high-altitude commercial jet movements in a 100,000-square-mile area roughly bounded by Green Bay, Wis., on the north; Springfield, Ill., on the south; Fort Wayne, Ind., on the east; and Des Moines, Ia., on the west. Plane movements within 35 miles of Chicago's airports are controlled by another FAA facility at O'Hare International Airport. The new system has not been installed there.

Aurora is the eighth of the FAA's 20 air-control centers to install the system, which was developed by FAA researchers two years ago and first tested at the Kansas City center.

The recent rash of near-collisions in the Chicago area caused FAA officials to speed up by three weeks its installation here, Brubaker said.

Study sees major SST damage

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A federally-sponsored inquiry into the effects of possible climate changes caused by heavy supersonic traffic in the stratosphere has concluded that even a slight cooling could cost the world from $200 billion to 500 times that much in damage done to agriculture, public health and other effects.

Throughout the 1,200-page analysis, however, the emphasis is on the many uncertainties involved. It is also suggested that limited supersonic flights may be useful in revealing more about what might result from heavy traffic.

The general chairman and editor of the report, Dr. Ralph C. d'Arge, professor of economics at the University of Wyoming, has commented that, despite the uncertainties, the dangers are evident enough to justify international control of engine exhaust emissions in the stratosphere as well as monitoring of any changes there.

WITH reference to the current controversy regarding whether or not to permit the British-French supersonic transport, the Concorde, to land at New York and Washington airports, he said:

"If landing rights are granted the Concorde without agreement on pollutant emissions, the U.S. will have foregone one major avenue for protecting itself against future adverse climate changes."

On Thursday the House of Representatives voted a six-month ban on landings in this country by the Concorde, and on Jan. 5 hearings, on the issue by the Department of Transportation are to begin.

The newly released report is the sixth in a series of voluminous monographs prepared for the Climate Impact Assessment Program of the Transportation Department. The program was initiated after a 1970 request by Congress which, in 1971, terminated the American SST project.

FOCUS of the current debate on landing rights concerns the noisiness of the Concorde. In a recent editorial, the British scientific journal Nature said:

"It is indisputable that Concorde is, by today's standards, a noisy plane on takeoff and landing; no public relations exercise nor appeal to patriotism can allay the displeasure (at its mildest) that Concorde causes in the region of London Airport."

An "equally major cause for concern," it continued, is that information on its noise levels "could have been withheld until such a ridiculously late surge in Concorde's development."

The more lasting and universal possibility of climate change was proposed more than five years ago as a consequence of cumulative effects of SST exhaust. For example, it was suggested that the amount of solar energy reaching the earth might be reduced by sulfuric acid particles formed from sulfur dioxide emitted by the aircraft and suspended in the stratosphere.

Another climate-changing role — a possible warming effect — was proposed for water vapor from supersonic transport exhaust. More recently it was suggested that oxides of nitrogen from the engines would break down ozone molecules in the stratosphere that normally shield the earth from harmful solar ultraviolet rays. This, some scientists, believe, might help cool the climate.

The possibility of ozone depletion emerged as the primary concern and was treated in earlier monographs of the evaluation series. It was concluded that heavy traffic in the stratosphere could deplete the ozone sufficiently to increase the risk of skin cancer and have other effects unless limits were set on stratospheric pollution.

Such traffic would include not only SST's but the next generation of jumbo jets that, while not supersonic, will fly higher than the present jumbos, as well as the space shuttle now under development and projected hypersonic aircraft that would fly even higher and faster than the SST's — 20 miles aloft. Maximum ozone density is at about 14 miles.

The new study points out that, in view of the meager information available, it is unclear what climate changes, if any, can be expected from stratospheric pollution. One of the study's assessments deals, for example, with a global temperature decrease of one degree Celsius (almost two degrees Fahrenheit).

This would occur gradually over a 20-year period beginning in 1991. Another assessment assumes a change in the opposite direction -- an increase of half a degree Celsius.

The former, according to the analysis, could reduce rice production catastrophically — representing an annual loss of almost a billion dollars. In d'Arge's view, such a climate change could bring about a rice famine in China and worldwide protein shortages due to reduced fishing yields.

Fuel costs for heating would rise but, in one of the few positive effects, electric consumption for air-conditioning would be reduced. Lumber and agricultural output through much of the world would be curtailed and costs of health care would rise.

The loss, so far as the United States was concerned, would be less than one-third of 1 per cent of the country' gross national product. Nevertheless, d'Arge said in his introduction, the cost to society appears "of extremely large magnitude" compared to the price that must be paid for the use of other global resources.

The cost, he added, therefore "appears to justify, at least from this preliminary perspective, a substantive investment for deriving efficient monitoring systems for the stratosphere and fully exploring the possibilities for well-conceived international regulation on its use."

The estimated costs for emission control of aircraft, subsonic and supersonic, flying in the stratosphere would be from $300 million to $400 million, according to the study. The estimate of a global cost of $200 billion or more from a worldwide cooling of one degree referred to the total, spread over the entire period of adjustment.

For example, it is estimated, that such a climate change would be the counterpart of moving everyone from 35 to 75 miles closer to the poles. In focusing attention on noise, sonic booms and skin cancer, "we may be penny-wise but dollar poor," d'Arge said, since even a slight climate change could cost "billions."

Survey sees world upturn in economy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Economists at the University of Pennsylvania Saturday said "world trade and world production have just come through a severe depression and are expected to show significant improvement in 1976 and even more in 1977."

They predicted an increase in real gross product of 5 per cent next year, compared with less than 1 per cent in 1975, and a jump of 6.2 per cent in 1977.

Crash kills sleeper

Lakewood sheriff's deputies begin cleanup operations at a Paramount home Saturday after a speeding car crashed through two walls at the house, killing Jimmy James Rhodes, 15, at about 2:45 a.m. The car, driven by Saul Duran Serrano, 30, crashed through the living room, knocking down a Christmas tree, and into the bedroom at 16862½ Downey Ave. A friend of the youth, Anthony Lightwalk, 15, was sleeping in a nearby bed but was uninjured, deputies said. They said Serrano, described as an illegal alien, allegedly ran a stop sign at the T-shaped intersection of Downey Avenue and 69th Street and drove straight into Rhodes' home. Serrano was treated for minor injuries and booked for suspicion of felony drunken driving and manslaughter, deputies said.

FBI arrests 11th person in luxury car-theft ring

Associated Press

FBI agents arrested an eleventh person Saturday charged with operating a luxury car-theft ring between Southern California and New Mexico.

Jesse Oliver Gray, 25, was arrested at his Los Angeles home by FBI agents who said they recovered a 1975 Lincoln Continental.

The FBI said 11 persons were now in custody and a twelfth person was being sought.

The arrests began in Arizona on Dec. 10 with the apprehension of Albert Littlejohn, 32, and James Winbush, 24, both of Los Angeles, said Robert E. Gebhardt, asistant director in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office. Two cars were recovered.

Agents arrested six more persons and recovered three more cars on Dec. 11 in eastern New Mexico. Two additional arrests were made in California.

One of those arrested was Ronald MacIntyre, an employe of the Torrance office of the California Department of Motor Vehicles, the FBI said.

A federal grand jury in New Mexico returned indictments on Dec. 15 against 11 persons charging conspiracy to violate federal laws pertaining to the interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicles. Gray was not named in the indictment.

Gebhardt said Leothas Hannah was still at large.

Cleaver's wife 'older and wiser'

SAN FRANCICSCO (AP) — Kathleen Cleaver says she has lost her romanticism about revolution in this country since she left in 1969 to join her husband in exile.

She visited the San Francisco Bay area this week to negotiate with attorneys for the defense of her jailed husband, Eldridge Cleaver, and to see about raising the $300,000 it is estimated his defense will cost.

Cleaver faces trial in Alameda County on charges stemming from a gun battle between Black Panthers and Oakland police in 1968. He was out of prison on bail at the time and fled to Algeria. Several years later the Cleavers moved to Paris. He returned voluntarily.

"I'M OLDER and wiser," said Mrs. Cleaver, 30. "I've lost my romanticism about revolution in America. I don't say it's inconceivable, but I know that none of us who believed ourselves to be revolutionaries in the sixties can conceive of the form a revolution would take in America."

Both the Cleavers were officers in the Black Panther Party when it was formed. While in exile Cleaver had an ideological dispute with the party and was expelled.

Convict ruled sane when he killed child

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Arthur Meeks, who has spent most of the five years since his arrest in a mental hospital, was sane when he molested and killed a 4-year-old boy, a jury says.

Meeks, 36, spent most of his time in court drawing in a coloring book, a nurse at his side, while he awaited this week's verdict.

The same jury that convicted him Tuesday of molesting, beating and stabbing Christopher Flannigan in August 1970 ruled Friday that he was sane at the time.

Gandhi tries to suppress all criticism

By PAUL GRIMES
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Using its emergency powers, the Indian government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is trying to make fundamental changes that could suppress the publication of political criticism, according to documents and the concrete information reaching here.

The government is trying to merge India's two nationwide news agencies into one that would be heavily dependent on government support.

It also is trying to alter the management of at least two newspaper groups to shift power from critics of Mrs. Gandhi to newcomers approved by the government. This may result in the ouster of some of India's best known editors.

The government also is attempting to influence the choice for at least one editorship that will soon become vacant because of retirement.

The informants recalled that, in a statement last August, Vidya Charan Shukla, the Minister of Information and Broadcasting, said that the government "is contemplating restructuring the entire Indian press industry so as to make it accountable and answerable to the people, the society and the country."

An Indian official, who declined to be identified by name, confirmed in an interview that the two news agencies — the Press Trust of India and United News of India — probably would be merged. He also spoke of plans for the pro-government head of one newspaper group to take control of another, although he denied that the government was involved.

Both news agencies are owned by the newspapers that subscribe to their services. However, while United News of India supports itself, the Press Trust of India relies heavily on income from the sale of news to the government's All-India Radio. United News is generally considered the more enterprising of the two.

A merged agency essentially would mean the death of United News and continuation of the Press Trust. It would not add income because virtually all the subscribers of United News already are subscribers of the Press Trust as well.

According to the best available information, the government wants to restructure the press for political, not ideological, reasons. Despite any pro-Soviet leanings of Prime Minister Gandhi, the people whom her government is attempting to install in journalistic power are in many cases staunch anti-Communists.

"The main point," one informant said, "is that Mrs. Gandhi cannot stand criticism — any criticism. That's the whole thing."

Meanwhile, in New Delhi Saturday night Prime Minister Gandhi named a trusted political adviser to be her new defense minister, in her second cabinet reshuffle in three weeks.

Her government also fired 18 officers in the Information and Broadcasting Ministry, intensifying what was described as a drive "to root out corrupt and inefficient" officials.

Mrs. Gandhi gave the key defense portfolio to Bansi Lal, the former chief minister of northern Haryana State who was brought into the cabinet last month but not given an assignment initially.

The crackdown on civil servants began after Mrs. Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency June 26. Previously, government employes were rarely dismissed before reaching the age of 58, the normal retirement age.

Oil producers huddle over pricing rivalries

VIENNA (AP) — Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries reported making some progress toward ending price-cutting rivalry after a six-hour session Saturday.

The 13 OPEC ministers meet again today to try and simplify a complex pricing system that has permitted members to introduce disguised price changes by adjusting special premium charges on high quality oil.

"It is all of OPEC against Iraq," Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told newsmen after Saturday's session.

HIS STATEMENT indicated that Iraq, which had raised the issue by accusing neighboring Kuwait of unfair price-shaving last month, was in turn being charged with using the same tactics to win customers.

Iraq had claimed that Kuwait was trimming just under 1 per cent off its prices, thus failing to implement a 10 per cent increase officially decreed by OPEC Oct. 1.

Other delegates declined to single out specific countries as culprits.

At issue in the price-shaving dispute are "differentials," or premiums charged on certain oil grades, either because they have less specific gravity and are therefore purer, or have less pollutant sulfur content.

In a glutted world market, high-priced oil grades are no longer competitive and OPEC states have recently slashed these differentials.

DESPITE OPEC's official decision to hike its basic price from Oct. 1 to $11.51 per barrel of standard or benchmark oil, the differentials adjustments have in fact enabled some individual OPEC members to gain advantages by increasing their prices less than others have.

Iraq accused Kuwait last month of trying to "create disruption on the oil market and inspire competitive bidding among producers."

But Kuwait's 10-cent-per-barrel price cut was smaller than, for instance, Indonesia's — cut more than $1.

Some delegates privately said there is anger against the Iraqis for pointing the finger at Kuwait when Iraq has adjusted differentials downward to increase its exports.

OPEC's TWO-DAY regular ministerial conference opened against the background of hesitant moves to get a dialogue between industrial, oil producer and poorer nations under way.

Iran's chief delgate, Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar, told newsmen that this week's 27-nation Paris conference, which he and representatives of six other OPEC states attended, was "a great step in the right direction."

Amouzegar criticized as too low a proposal for a $7-per-barrel floor price for oil, made Friday by the International Energy Agency — IEA — the group of 18 major industrial consumer countries.

The IEA wants its members to adopt the floor price to insure research into expensive alternative energy sources against a possible future drop in oil prices.

Amouzegar said OPEC believes that to adequately protect energy research, the floor price would have to be somewhere between $12 and $16 per barrel as suggested by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

THE PRICE OF oil is one of the key issues in negotiations generated by the Paris meeting of oil states, less fortunate developing countries and the non-Communist industrial countries.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says the price is too high and is damaging the economy of the world.

The oil states contend their prices are simply a function of the West's economic mismanagement and that unless some order is achieved, prices may rise further. Non-oil countries are caught between their sympathies for the producers' abilities to extract advantages from the West and their own economic suffering from higher oil bills.

'Spain will have more freedom'

MADRID (AP) — A top official promised law-abiding Spaniards more political freedom and the country's Roman Catholic bishops pressed the new regime for further liberalization Saturday as Spain ended 30 days of official mourning for Gen. Francisco Franco.

While promising more freedom, new Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne said there will be stronger punishment for those who violate the law. He reiterated the statements of King Juan Carlos I that there will be privileges for nobody, but that nobody's cause will be forgotten.

The National Conference of Bishops urged more individual liberties, amnesty for political prisoners and the right of political exiles to return to Spain, asked independence for the Church and lamented rising unemployment and low salaries for most Spaniards.

King Juan Carlos and officials gathered at Franco's grave in the Valley of the Fallen for a funeral Mass marking the end of mourning for Spain's authoritarian ruler of the past 36 years.

Only tune in to strangers, rabbi warns

JERUSALEM (AP) May an Orthodox Jew listen to a woman singing on the radio?

Yes, but only if he doesn't know her personally, says Israel's chief rabbi.

According to some religious authorities, a woman's voice can turn one's thoughts away from the spiritual, Rabbi Ovadiah Yosef said in a radio broadcast Saturday. But if a man has never met the singer, there is little danger of his being seduced.

$10,330 for 'lost' sunshine

TOKYO (AP) — Ten residents of a Tokyo suburb have won a $10,330 settlement from the builder of a five-story apartment house they claim has deprived them of their right to sunshine.

The settlement, recommended by a district court, ended a controversy that had residents' giving protest handbills and an unfriendly welcome to tenants moving into the new building while the mayor of Musashino City, a Tokyo suburb, stopped water and sewage service to it.

Mayor Kihachiro Goto said the construction firm had violated a city guideline by failing to consult nearby residents on the building's effect on sunshine before breaking ground. The rule applies to buildings more than 33 feet high.

The "right to sunshine" issue surfaced in Tokyo a dozen years ago when the first high-rise apartment buildings began overshadowing areas of one- and two-story houses.

Some 300 municpal governments around Japan have "sunshine" guidelines similar to the one in Musashino City, but local courts have ruled both for and against the regulation.

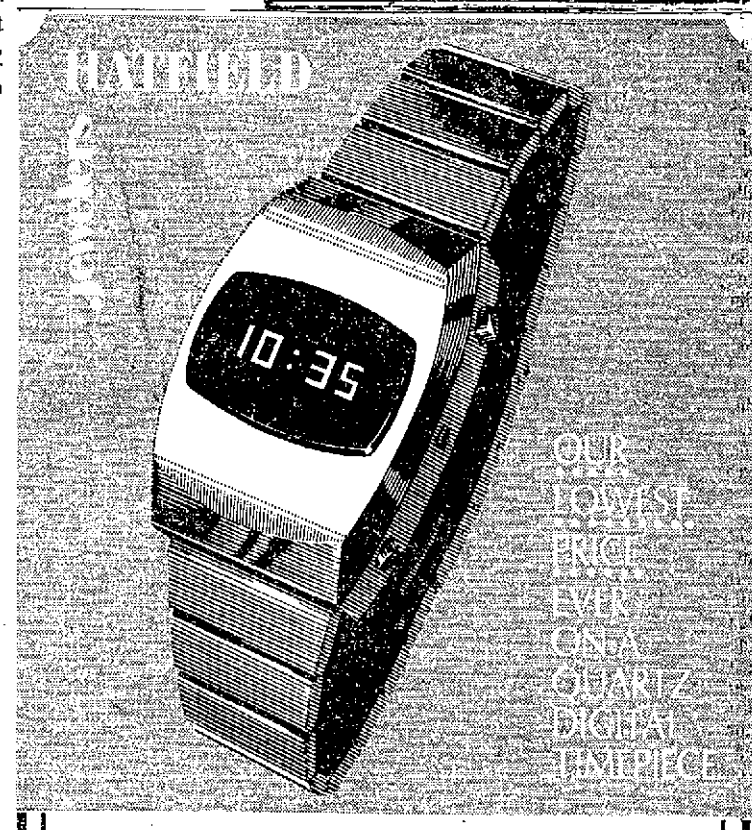

A bill to revise the national construction standards law to contain provision on the right to sunshine has been pending in parliament for nearly two years.

Tragedy of Vietnam haunts Senate in debate on Angola

By James McCartney
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — The ghost of the Vietnam war hung over Capitol Hill last week, with a new name but many tragic memories.

The new name was Angola.

But in many ways the script was the same, the fears the same as they had been in the legislative battles over U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Senate doves, appalled by revelations of secret U.S. involvement in a bloody, African civil war, wanted to cut off aid to anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

And, as in the final struggles over Vietnam, a Republican administration wanted to continue a U.S. effort aimed at "keeping the Soviets out" of a distant country.

This time, in Angola, the Senate won the first round — less than two weeks after most senators learned that the U.S. had already spent more than $25 million for arms and aid, and the administration wanted more.

The Senate resoundingly approved an amendment forbidding spending of any money in a defense appropriations bill "for any activities involving Angola other than intelligence gathering." The vote was 54 to 22.

It took Congress literally 19 years to come to a similar decision in Vietnam.

But the Senate vote was anything but a total victory for the doves. It was symbolic only, with no immediate force of law.

By the time the Senate managed to bring the matter to a vote, the House was already preparing to leave town for Christmas vacation and did not stay to vote on Angola.

This means that the administration can legally continue to spend money on Angola, if it wants to defy the expressed wishes of the Senate.

About $8 million is still estimated to be in the "pipeline," or in reserve administration funds for Angola.

But as nearly as congressional experts can compute, that's all the administration will be able to spend, openly, in the next several weeks.

That is because Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the appropriations committee, said he won't approve any more funds for the CIA in Angola without the consent of the full Senate.

The administration, however, may be able to find funds elsewhere, if it is determined to try.

"There are probably plenty of ratholes where they could dig up money," said one Senate expert. "They might be able to take military aid funds earmarked for other countries and transfer them, if they wish, and it wouldn't be a violation of any law I know about."

MIKE MANSFIELD
"Scars" of Vietnam

HUBERT HUMPHREY
Too Little Information

In both Angola and Vietnam, the fundamental issue has been who is going to control a country that has recently emerged from colonial domination.

Vietnam was a French colony, Angola Portuguese.

But while there have been similarities in the handling of the two situations, there are also many differences.

AS THE Pentagon Papers demonstrate, in the early days of U.S. involvement in Vietnam it was not Russia, but Communist China, that was feared.

And U.S. involvement in Angola has already taken a different course from Vietnam.

In Angola, the U.S. has so far only been supplying arms and other aid to local political factions. The first U.S. involvement in Vietnam also began with arms shipments — but not to indigenous forces.

BUT IT WAS the CIA, in Vietnam as in Angola, that started it all. The first major U.S. involvement in Vietnam was headed by a famous U.S. CIA agent, with a team of CIA helpers, who arrived in Saigon in 1954.

According to administration sources, the CIA has about five or six men in Angola now.

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Gulf Oil Corp. said Saturday through a spokesman that it was in a quandary over whether to continue paying sizable royalties on petroleum production to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which is receiving Soviet aid, or to bow to Ford administration suggestions that the payments be frozen.

Gulf is contractually obligated to pay $10 a barrel on its 150,000 barrel-a-day output from wells off Cabinda to the Angolan government in Luanda.

The Senate tried to make its anguish about Angola clear, but President Ford reacted in much the same way that his predecessor, Richard Nixon, often reacted when Congress tried to put reins on the Vietnam war.

Ford denounced the vote as a "deep tragedy" and an "abdication of responsibility."

In rhetoric hauntingly reminiscent of Vietnam, he asked:

"How can the United States, the greatest power in the world, take the position that the Soviet Union can operate with impunity many thousands of miles away . . . while we refuse any assistance to the majority of local people who ask only for military equipment to defend themselves?"

Said a well-posted Senate Republican in another Vietnam-like touch: "The President decided he could pin the blame on the Democrats for losing Angola, but I don't think it's going to wash. I'm not sure we've ever had Angola."

To many senators, Angola represented the threat of Vietnam all over again.

Said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., summing up the mood: "Vietnam left its scars on me, and on us, which will never, never go away but which must never, never be repeated again."

The Vietnam parallel was also mentioned by others with long memories — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., one of its major political casualties in his 1968 presidential campaign.

"We let this happen in Vietnam," said Humphrey. "I know. I was in this body (the Senate) when we had all too little information. Then I became vice president and I was surrounded by information.

"Thank God we now have the opportunity to debate this in the open . . ."

The administration's arguments for its Angola involvement struck many senators as frighteningly similar to words they had heard time and again from both Democratic and Republicanadministrations seeking to justify Vietnam.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that "the United States will try to prevent one party from achieving dominance . . ."

It was former President Lyndon Johnson's secretary of state, Dean Rusk, who time and again argued in the mid-1960s that the U.S. objective in Vietnam was to "prevent" a Communist takeover.

THE PENTAGON Papers, the semi-official history of the Vietnam war, summarized U.S. objectives in Southeast Asia by saying that "the American government, from the Truman administration onward, felt it necessary to take action to prevent Communist control of all of Vietnam."

These weren't the only parallels.

Ford's saying that the U.S. only wanted to help "local people" to defend themselves sounded a lot like earlier presidents' arguments for the so-called Vietnamization program.

Kissinger said the U.S. would support a "solution in which no outside power participates." He and Nixon often argued that they would accept any "solution" that the Vietnamese themselves could work out.

Results mixed between 94th Congress, Ford

By RICHARD MADDEN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The 94th Congress, which began last January amid clashes with President Ford over energy policy and a tax cut, ended its first session squabbling with the President over energy policy and a tax cut.

These two issues — energy and the economy — dominated much of the session, which began with pledges of bipartisan cooperation, but quickly settled into a series of confrontations between the White House and Congress that left a record of mixed results.

JOHN RHODES

CONGRESS convened after last November's elections with increased Democratic majorities in both the Senate and the House. The influx of 75 freshmen Democrats in the House led to the ousting of three veteran committee chairmen and to predictions that a Democratic Congress would assert more control over the shaping of policy, particularly to bring the economy out of its recession.

But Democratic leaders of both houses soon found they could not always muster their large majorities to override presidential vetoes, which takes a two-thirds vote.

FORD VETOED 15 bills during the session. Congress tried to override nine of those vetoes, but succeeded only three times on bills that normally are politically popular — health-care funds, education appropriations and funds for school lunches.

Ford's vetoes were sustained on other major Democratic measures, such as those preserving oil-price controls and sharply expanding public-service jobs and housing programs.

Going into a presidential election year, the end-of-session assessments that poured out of congressional leaders' offices in recent days differed sharply.

FOR EXAMPLE, Carl Albert, D-Okla., speaker of the House, said Congress had met the challenges of stimulating economic recovery, successfully implementing a new budget process to give Congress control over federal spending and devising an energy policy "despite the intransigent opposition of an unelected President and his followers in Congress."

Albert said Congress has "worked harder and met for more hours than any session since World War II."

BUT REP. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., minority leader, said Congress was "being run by underachievers" and added: "It is absolutely appalling to realize just how little has been accomplished in this session and just how wrong have been those things that have been done."

Following is a summary of some of the major developments during the session.

—The economy. As Congress convened last January, Ford asked for a $16-billion tax cut to spur the sagging economy but he reluctantly signed a $22.8-billion tax cut measure Congress sent him. The session ended with Ford vetoing a six-month extension of the tax cuts because Congress failed to set a $395-billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1. After the House failed to override that veto, Congress passed another six-month extension of the tax cuts with compromise language pledging a non-specific spending limit which Ford agreed to sign.

After Ford vetoed a $5.3-billion bill creating public-service jobs, Congress approved a scaled-down $2.9-billion version. After another veto, a compromise housing bill was enacted extending various mortgage-subsidy programs, plus mortgage-payment assistance to unemployed homeowners threatened with foreclosure.

Congress also approved, and Ford signed, a bill extending extra unemployment benefits in areas of high unemployment.

—Energy and the environment. After repeated clashes with the President over energy policy, Congress approved, just before adjournment, a major energy bill that would force an immediate reduction in the price of crude oil. After the fall of 1977, prices might be allowed to rise somewhat above their levels now. Also the bill would establish efficiency standards for automobiles, create a national petroleum reserve and take other steps to conserve fuel. Ford has not said whether he will sign the bill.

A separate measure to remove some of the price controls on natural gas was passed by the Senate, but put off by the House until next year.

The House failed to override Ford's veto of a bill establishing minimum federal standards for the regulation of the strip mining of coal. Another measure providing aid to states willing to set land-use standards was killed in a House committee.

Early next year both houses are expected to consider amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970, which could change some deadlines for meeting auto emission standards and other requirements.

—Social legislation. Ford recommended a five-year extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, but he signed legislation extending the law for seven years and broadening its coverage to language minorities.

Congress overrode a presidential veto and enacted a $7.9-billion appropriations bill for a variety of federal education programs. By wide margins both houses also overrode Ford's veto of a bill extending school-lunch and other child-nutrition programs. Both measures had been vetoed because of their cost.

In a continuing fight over the politically sensitive school busing issue, the Senate approved and the House accepted language barring the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from ordering the busing of pupils beyond the school nearest their homes. The provision, which was attached to a $36-billion appropriations bill, would not affect court-ordered busing. Ford vetoed the bill Friday and the House will try to override the veto Jan. 27.

—General legislation. After a lengthy battle that dominated the closing weeks of the session, the President proposed and Congress approved legislation permitting federal loans of up to $2.3 billion a year through mid-1978 to help New York City meet its seasonal cash needs and avert a default.

Over the objections of many Republicans, both houses in the closing days of the session approved a bill expanding the picketing rights of construction workers by permitting striking workers to picket an entire construction site, although their grievance was with only one subcontractor. Labor Secretary John Dunlop endorsed the measure, but other presidential economic and political advisers have recommended a veto.

Congress approved and Ford signed a bill repealing the so-called "fair trade" laws that for nearly 40 years had permitted price fixing on many consumer products.

A major bill long sought by consumer groups to create an agency to represent the consumer interest before federal departments and agencies was passed by both the Senate and House. However, differences still have to be reconciled by a Senate-House conference and the surprisingly slim margin by which the bill passed the House indicated that an expected veto by Ford could not be overriden.

Both houses passed bills providing federal grants and loans for the reorganization of bankrupt Northeast and Midwest railroads. That bill faces a possible veto.

Congress approved a bill encouraging the development of a nationwide system for buying and selling securities.

The House passed a measure modifying the Hatch Act to permit federal workers to take part in partisan election campaigns and run for office,

FEA to visit L.B. for crude-oil price survey

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Long Beach-West Orange County, announced Saturday that the Federal Energy Administration will conduct on-site investigations in the Long Beach area this week to determine whether the price differential for low-gravity California crude oil should be adjusted.

The FEA decided Nov. 17 not to raise the price. Hannaford, state and city officials met Dec. 4 with FEA Administrator Frank Zarb to appeal the decision.

California crude is now priced lower than comparable oil produced in other sections of the country. Hannaford said this price differential "is costing California taxpayers millions of dollars...It is also becoming economically unfeasible to continue production of this oil and a failure to rectify this inequity will result in the loss of 115,000 barrels of oil a day."

ZARB'S CHIEF DEPUTY, Mark Silverman, will have a day-long series of meetings with Hannaford Monday in the congressman's district office. At 9 a.m. Tuesday they will inspect Wilmington oil fields, Long Beach's astronaut islands and other oil fields which Hannaford said "are slated to be shut down unless FEA oil pricing policies are reversed."

Hannaford said he is convinced "that Mr. Silverman will obtain the necessary facts and figures to allow the FEA to resolve this inequity in the very near future."

Hannaford also detailed his recent legislative activities and announced the third in a series of public town hall meetings "to hear citizens' problems, concerns, ideas and opinions."

The meetings are scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the Brakensiek Library Community Room, 9945 Flower St., Bellflower, and 7 p.m. Tuesday in Furgeson Elementary School, Building B, 22215 Elaine Ave., Hawaiian Gardens.

hANNAFORD'S legislation authorizing the federal government to invest surplus government cash funds in interest-bearing accounts passed the House last week by a unanimous roll call vote. It goes to the Senate for consideration after the Christmas recess.

The congressman said the bill would boost federal revenues about $200 million a year. Federal financial institutions holding these funds are not now required to pay interest to the federal government.

He said the average daily balance in these interest-free accounts has varied from $937 million to $11.2 billion in the past decade and "an average daily balance of $4 billion invested at the nominal interest rate of five per cent would result in earnings of $200 million a year for taxpayers."

CONGRESS, FORD

but the Senate version has not been completed.

The House upheld Ford's proposal to limit pay increases for federal employes to 5 per cent after both houses approved a bill making members of Congress and other top-level government officials eligible for the pay increase.

A bill raising price supports and income protection for farmers was approved by both houses but Ford's veto was sustained by the House. Both Houses approved bills extending federal highway programs and giving large metropolitan centers, such as New York, more flexibility in using federal highway funds to improve mass transit. The bills will now go to a Senate-House conference.

—Foreign relations. Congress approved nearly $90.5 billion for the Department of Defense, a $7.4 billion cut from administration requests.

With the collapse of the Saigon government in April, Congress voted $455 million to resettle Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

Congress also approved the stationing of civilian technicians in the Sinai to monitor the Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire, and, in a victory for the Ford administration, the House reversed itself and voted to partially lift the embargo on the shipment of U.S. arms to Turkey.

For the first time Congress separated foreign economic and military aid and approved a two-year, $3.1 billion foreign economic aid bill. Action is to be completed next year on the bill authorizing foreign military aid.

As the session ended, Congress began moving toward limiting U.S. involvement in Angola.

Schmitz labels Tunney 'traitor'

Associated Press

Former Congressman John Schmitz, who is seeking John Tunney's U.S. Senate seat, Saturday labeled Tunney "little better than (a) traitor" for leading the Senate fight against U.S. aid to Angola.

"A decision has apparently been made that the United States is simply not going to be allowed to offer effective resistance to Soviet aggression," Schmitz said in a statement issued in Anaheim.

"This is little different from outright treason."

Tunney, D-Calif., sponsored the resolution approved by the Senate Friday that would cut off U.S. funding of covert military activity in the Angolan civil war.

Schmitz, a member of the John Birch Society, said California's other Democratic Senator, Alan Cranston, "is behind this left-wing move, and Tunney is his stooge."

He said Tunney and Cranston are "little better than traitors."

U.S. aid in the Angola fighting is needed to prevent the Soviet Union from "building a ring around Africa" to cut off Mideast oil shipments, Schmitz said.

Schmitz served one term in Congress before losing in the 1972 Republican primary in his Orange County district. Later that year he was nominated for President by the American Independent Party.

Now head of the political science department at Santa Ana College, Schmitz entered the race for the Republican Senate nomination last month.

Other announced Republican candidates are Congressman Alphonzo Bell and former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch.

Why no lease objections?

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Despite 10 years of covering the Long Beach-Los Angeles waterfront, this writer will never understand some things. The latest incident causing bewilderment is the lack of response from the maritime community and environmentalists to recent action by the federal government granting oil leases smack-dab in the center of ship approach lanes to the two-port complex.

Where are the ship owners? The Maritime and Harbor Affairs Committee of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce? The Propeller Club? The harbor commissions of Los Angeles and Long Beach? The Masters, Mates, and Pilots Union and the other maritime unions? And where is the Sierra Club?

The Coast Guard has asked the Corps of Engineers to prohibit as hazards to navigation the construction of permanent obstructions such as oil islands or drilling platforms in the ocean approaches to the busiest harbors on the Pacific Coast. The Coast Guard wants to establish "Safety Fairways" to be used by vessels approaching and departing the two ports, similar to approach patterns to busy airports. The proposed fairways would be a mile wide at the three-mile limit and widen to 1½ miles at a point near the east end of Catalina Island.

LAST WEEK the Interior Department sold leasing rights to several oil companies to explore and possibly drill for oil in a number of tracts off the Southern California coast. Standard in combination with Union, Scully Oil Co. and Getty Oil Co. entered a high bid of $105.1 million for a 9-square-mile tract in the offshore area near San Pedro.

Some Coast Guard officers regard this as making as much sense as granting authority to drill a well in lanes of the Long Beach Freeway.

The offshore oil lease parcels are in the center of the ship traffic patterns proposed by the Coast Guard, whose objection to erecting permanent structures such as islands, platforms, or even floating drill ships in those ship traffic lanes is obvious. Such structures could put the Southern California coastal community (also parts of Baja California) in double jeopardy.

FIRST there is the risk of a ship plowing into one of the structures with the resulting possibility of an environmentally disastrous oil spill. Second, an oil tanker could hit one of the structures. During the first 11 months of 1975, of the 4168 ships that called here, 1,206 or about 30 per cent were tankers.

Capt. T. C. Duncan, chief of the guard's marine safety division, noted there has been considerable opposition from the oil producers to the establishment of the safety fairways. The Corps of Engineers in Los Angeles has asked for the views of interested agencies, individuals and companies. Comments to the Corps should be made prior to Jan. 12, according to Lt. Col. Robert H. Reinen, deputy district engineer.

THE WATERFRONT

The board endorsed plans to deepen the main channel from 35 to 45 feet, deepen the outer harbor down to 82 feet and dredge waterways leading to the proposed Liquified Natural Gas (LNG) facility on Terminal Island down to 45 feet.

If the port is to remain competitive with other West Coast ports and continue in its vital role in the economic well-being of the entire Los Angeles area, the port must deepen its waterways," Robert R. Dockson, chamber president, has stated.

Dredging Support

Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors has voted approval of several dredging projects planned in the harbor.

Nuclear test shakes desert

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear device was tested at noon Saturday at the Energy Research and Development Administration site at Yucca Flat.

The test, set for last Tuesday but delayed by technical and weather problems, had a yield between 20 and 200 kilotons. One kiloton is the effect of 1,000 tons of TNT.

Slight tremors from the blast were felt at the top of high-rise buildings in Las Vegas, some 90 miles away.

Christmas in the Yemen desert

Priest in search of lost language

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON — Somewhere in the hot sandy wastes of Yemen this Christmas, a Roman Catholic priest will celebrate Mass alone. Dinner will be something cold from a can. Last time it was tuna fish.

And when his celebration is over, he will go back to work, ferreting out inscriptions of a language and people long dead, of a largely unknown civilization that flourished 15 centuries before Christ was born.

And perhaps he will ponder the will of God, and the sadness of all lost things.

Only a few weeks ago — before this, his seventh trip to the southern Arabian peninsula — Father Albert Jamme sat in a borrowed Catholic University office, his voice rising and falling in frustration, his torn T-shirt smudged with char, his fingers gray with ash, the air still tainted with smoke.

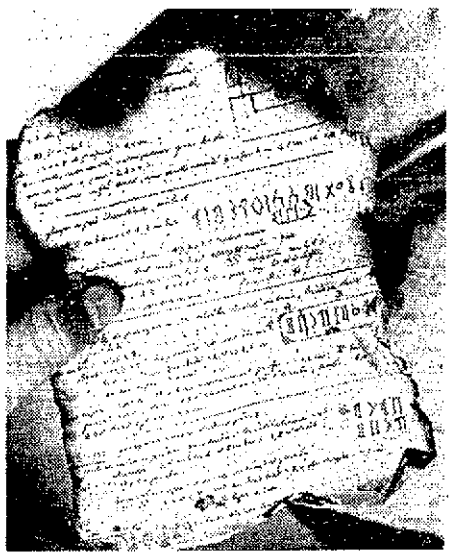

Around him was all that remained of 35 years of work, lifetime of seven-day weeks, charred and in disarray.

Fire struck his small, cluttered office on Oct. 26, and this 59-year-old servant of God wonders why, in the manner of Job. He said in his French-Belgian accent:

"I know there is a great lesson in this. But I don't know what it is. What He wanted me to learn, I do not know. For many years I work all day long here, every day. That He had a good reason, there is no doubt. It is not even up to me to ask why."

Pere Jamme, as they call him on campus, is a balding, excitable man. He speaks with his hands and many clicks of his tongue when words fail.

He is one of only four scholars in the world who have reached back centuries before Christ to recover Semitic languages and history, collected from desert ruins, of an ancient people who preceded the Phoenicians, Greeks, Romans, Hebrews and Arabs with a civilization of their own. His library, stored in his office, was to yield a still unwritten dictionary of those languages.

GLYPHS OF ANCIENT SEMITE TONGUE
Still Legible on Charred Scrap of Paper

THEY lived in a verdant realm that is now desert. They built a huge reservoir, holding millions and millions of gallons of water, irrigating the countryside and altering the climate. The dam itself, in ruins at Marib, fascinates Pere Jamme:

"That is a beauty of universe, to see that. Goodness sake. It's just fantastic."

Greeks and Romans called it "the happy Arabia where it was so delightful to live." Even the early Hebrews traded with this lost kingdom.

The people whom Pere Jamme records mastered language. But they could not master themselves.

"YOU SEE, all those countries of south Arabia, how do you say, were completely dried out by constant wars between themselves. You cannot keep on making battles for centuries without weakening your population so you cannot get up again. Men die, and there's less manpower to keep up the dam."

And so, their wealth and manhood spent, the tribes eventually moved north, probably whence they came, back to the cradle of the Semites, to be absorbed by time.

Until after World War II, little was known of these people and the four languages they fashioned. But for the efforts of a few like Pere Jamme, they would still be unknown.

He happened on this subject matter by chance during World War II as a student searching for a Ph.D. thesis in the library at the University of Louvain. There he stumbled across a book, written in German, of some beginning research into these then traceless people.

SINCE TO this day there are no courses taught about them, even by Pere Jamme, these collected researches of his were, until the fire, one of the few reservoirs of their history.

Which is why he is even more haunted by the fire, and why he returns now, his life's work in shambles, to try to replace what went up in smoke.

Oct. 26 was a chilly Sunday in Washington, and as was his habit every day, he said Mass at the home he shares with other Catholic brothers and was in his office by 7:15 a.m.

It was a simple office, some of the shelves made from old doors, scavenged from around campus, loaded with boxes of index cards, the key to his dictionary. There were larger boxes, too, containing latex impressions of stone inscriptions, albums of photographs of inscriptions and piles of squeezes of inscriptions.

THE LATTER were made by pounding soaked blotting paper into the words cut in stone to mold the letter forms.

Pere Jamme makes no salary. His only money comes from birthday, Christmas and Easter gifts, and that goes into his work, save for a few self-indulgences like cigarettes and coffee.

He brings the dinner leftovers from his church-supported house and usually eats them cold at lunchtime. But this pales, and on this chilly day he heated up some stew, then cleaned off the hot plate.

(The fire department later said the hot plate caused the fire. Pere Jamme insists it was unplugged and cold, else how could he have cleaned it.)

His task this day was to bind the notes of his last trip to Yemen in 1973-74 in hopes a grant would come through allowing him to make another trip this year.

ALONE IN the building, the elevators not running and other offices locked up, he left briefly to borrow the use of a machine to punch holes in the thick wad of notes.

When he walked back up to his office, he found the fourth floor full of smoke. He opened his office door and saw flames 3 feet high. The fluorescent ceiling lights lay twisted on the floor.

"I had exactly the same shock as during the war when I was arrested by the Germans and I was looking into the barrel of a revolver pointed at my head," he recalled. "I froze."

Forgetting two fire extinguishers in his panic, he tried carrying water from a rest room. He did turn in a fire alarm and the firemen were there in 15 minutes. It took an hour to put out the blaze, and then they began throwing his smoldering papers out the window.

STUDENTS and faculty flocked to the rescue, picking up the scattered index cards, the blotting paper squeezes like so much wet and rumpled laundry. They were packed in boxes and spread on the library basement floors to dry.

Pere Jamme was driven home, still in a daze, his eyeglasses still up on his burned-out desk.

The volunteer crew worked until four in the morning, picking up anything with writing on it.

The next day he returned to find the entire Semitic language department, students, faculty and friends hard at work salvaging what they could. For 10 days they set aside classes and their own work to work for Pere Jamme.

HE MARVELED at their kindness, these many people, most of whom he didn't even know.

When his real consciousness returned, so did his resolve. Pere Jamme was born in southern Belgium where the Walloon farmers are known for stubbornness. The totem of his hometown was the wild boar, and the farmers used to say the only way to stop a wild boar was to kill it. "And so," he says, "since I was not killed ...

"Besides, I have no right from a Christian point of view to give up anyhow."

More help came. A police sergeant built new plywood filing boxes for what was left of his thousands and thousands of index cards. One man offered to help with expenses. The university sought funds to help replace rare and out-of-print dictionaries with photographic copies from other institutions. The salvage crew saved 50 albums of pictures.

How would he replace records from places as far away as Istanbul, Bombay, London, East Germany, Saudi Arabia? He guesses it might cost up to $40,000 and eight to nine years of work just to reorganize what is left and replace some of it. Much is irreplaceable.

FATHER ALBERT JAMME AFTER DISASTROUS FIRE
Dazedly he walks among research papers strewn on ground

Can someone help him? How can anyone help? he asks, showing the glyphs carefully inscribed on his index cards. "No, I must do it myself." He holds his charred notebooks in his hand and says, "Oh my babies."

He ponders what the Lord wants him to do, and faces it with faith:

"When I was ordained," he says, "He gave me the most beautiful grace of the priesthood. And therefore I am his servant, and the servant is not above the master. And the Master ends up on a cross. What do you expect me to do? End up in a limousine?"

He wanders through the simple channels of faith: "It breaks your heart, my dear," and his eyes show it. "But if you are loving and sincere in your faith, you have to practice it to the end."

"If you don't," and his voice gets angry. "Then you are a liar — to yourself and your neighbor."

"It is not easy," his voice rises. "But the way to Calvary was not easy for the Good Lord either."

What will his work mean? He doesn't know. No one studies it. No one teaches it. But he won't have it stored away in some basement room, unavailable to anyone.

"It has been my philosophy that the Good Lord doesn't ask me for success. He only asks me to work. Work he is going to get. The rest is His business."

Four weeks after the fire, the Ford Foundation grant came through for the trip to Yemen. He was high-spirited again. He chuckled, the old Walloon farmer, certain of his place, his special place.

Someone will find him a simple room in Yemen because he will not spend money on hotels. That way he will be able to stay longer. Where will he be on Christmas?

"I'll be roving around — all the countryside, you know," he chuckles. "Climbing mountains, going where nobody wants to go — except a crazy old man looking for inscriptions."

Hope rekindled for war-dead return

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press

BANGKOK, Thailand — Hopes for recovering the bodies of 1,300 Americans killed in Indochina and resolving the fate of another 850 listed as missing have risen in recent weeks. But there are strong indications the United States would have to pay a high price to North Vietnam.

After lying dormant for seven months after the Communist victories in Indochina, the issue of the "missing in action" (MIAs) has surfaced almost simultaneously in several corners of the globe.

In Peking, Chinese leaders told President Ford this month that they had the remains of two Americans and could supply information on several others killed during or before the Vietnam war. In Paris, North Vietnamese diplomats met with a U.S. congressional delegation and offered to return the bodies of three American pilots killed in the Vietnam conflict.

Recovery linked by Reds to aid

A member of the same U.S. delegation visited Vientiane, Laos.

In Saigon, a lone American — Mike Mielke of an MIA group called "Viva" — reportedly continues his efforts to get Communist officials to search for American MIAs.

Despite the gesture in Paris, most knowledgeable sources say they believe it is unlikely that North Vietnam will simply hand over information and remains without extracting some political or economic price.

Although denying it was bargaining, Hanoi in the past three years has linked MIA recovery to the fulfillment of a clause in the 1973 Paris peace accords on Vietnam that calls for American aid in rebuilding war-battered North Vietnam. The Vietnamese argument says that U.S. help in reconstruction — and more recently, in not blocking North Vietnam's entry into the United Nations — would lead to normalized relations that would then lead to the resolution of the MIA issue.

The United States in turn argues that Hanoi violated a clause of the accords under which the United States should be allowed to recover its dead and missing. But despite the apparent deadlock, Western experts here say better relations and the recent thaw in the MIA problem may be a sign of a move toward bargaining.

After his return from China and the Far East, Ford said, "Our policies towards the new regimes of the (Indochinese) peninsula will be determined by their conduct toward us. We are prepared to reciprocate goodwill — particularly the return of the remains of Americans killed or missing in action, or information about them."

At Camp Samae San in Thailand, the Joint Casualty Resolution Center (JCRC) — the U.S. military group charged with the MIA search — is prepared to move into Vietnam with search teams.

"The thrust of our effort is to be ready if the circumstances permit us to continue recovery," Col. John Vollmer, the commanding officer of the JCRC said in a recent interview.

Informed sources say enough data is now available to find more than 10 per cent of the remains of American dead in Indochina if American search parties are allowed into the Vietnams, Cambodia and Laos. In the Paris meeting, however, the North Vietnamese ambassador, Vo Van Sung, told members of the U.S. House Committee on Missing Persons that his government had no knowledge of the whereabouts of the 850 MIAs, almost two-thirds of whom are reported missing in North or South Vietnam.

Vollmer, a West Pointer and combat veteran of Korea and Vietnam, said that, besides the political considerations involved, the MIA search was also a battle against the forces of nature. It has been 14 years since the first American was declared missing in action in Vietnam, and the tropical heat, the rains and other elements daily reduce the chances of recovering and identifying the dead.

For the JCRC, the task is, according to Vollmer, mostly "drudgery-type running down of information," interspersed with occasional exercises simulating recovery operations on land and sea at or near Samae San, about 80 miles southeast of Bangkok. An eight-man negotiations section is being formed in case the Americans and Vietnamese progress to a conference on the MIA issue.

U.S. civilians among missing

In the almost three years of its existence, the JCRC has amassed hundreds of thousands of documents, with some files on individual MIAs as much as 6 inches thick. Analysts and computers try to piece together what may have happened on a particular day years ago when an American pilot radioed a distress call.

The JCRC has had a spotty record, chiefly due to circumstances beyond its control. Established after the signing of the Paris peace accords, it was from the start prevented from going into Communist-controlled zones of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. Last December, one of its search teams was ambushed by the Viet Cong near Saigon and a U.S. Army officer was killed. From then on, it confined most of its efforts to analyzing data and urging Vietnamese villagers to provide clues on MIAs.

A plaque at the JCRC headquarters says that the bodies of 44 U.S. servicemen have been "returned to their homeland through recovery and identification efforts" by its teams and the 20-man Central Identification Laboratory. The lab, also situated at Samae San, has the mission of identifying the remains. Currently, Vollmer says, the laboratory is working on about 20 remains, trying to make identifications through dental and health records and other data.

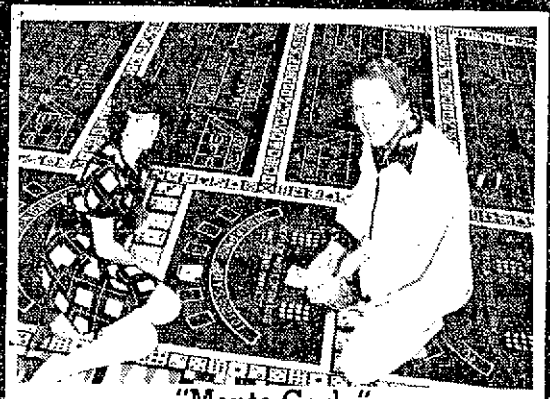

In round figures, U.S. military sources currently list 250 MIAs and 300 BNRs in Laos; 280 and 550 in South Vietnam; 250 and 330 in North Vietnam; 250 and 40 in Cambodia and 25 and 165 at sea off Indochina. A number of American civilians are also missing in Indochina, including four newsmen.

Wayne Newton plays on

LAS VEGAS — Wayne Newton has a dressing suite — not just a dressing room — here at Howard Hughes' Hotel Frontier. On a recent midnight, some of his boosters, sitting at a small bar in the suite, said that Elvis Presley is a big draw here, but that if Wayne Newton had Elvis' seating capacity, Wayne would outdraw the man that's supposed to be the biggest draw of all.

Newton, a boy millionaire, an enormous star at 32, smiled his chubby open-faced smile and half-nodded. He has a couple of ranches, an important collection of Arabian horses — and a love for work.

HOWARD HUGHES' Summa Corp. authorized a festival week for Wayne marking his 600th week playing in Nevada — 12,500 performances before six million people. Hughes' aides signed Newton to five more years, carrying him through the Frontier and the Hotel Sands up to 1981.

"Newton drives the casino managers up the wall playing so long, he won't work less than 1 hour and 45 minutes," one executive said. "He's too valuable to argue with."

Newton thrusts out his chin. "The audiences don't hate the hotel if you don't give them enough show, they hate you," he says.

HE ENJOYS his show and himself and the 30 to 40 musicians. He laughs as one of the female singers seems to be laying an egg, as a couple of musicians put on a make-believe quarrel, as the trumpeter puts on a King Kong mask. He winced once as he sat at the piano. "First time I sat down in this new belt buckle," he says. He asks for a drink. "Firewater for the Indian," he says.

"I'm really a half-breed Indian, part Cherokee and part Powhatan, from Norfolk and Fredericksburg, Va.," he told me. He wears Indian feathers and his troupe kids him about it.

His professional boosters proclaim him America's No. 1 entertainer. Gone (but not forgotten) is his clever brother, Jerry, who used to be his straight man, always groaning, "Oh, God, yes," in reply to his baby brother's wide-eyed remarks. They separated. Jerry retired to Tennessee.

"JERRY NEVER really liked show business," Wayne says. "He didn't have ambition."

Wayne decided to be No. 1, got rid of his baby fat, went on a one-meal-a-day regime, determined he'd never be a lounge act again and took changes on making good through "word of mouth" acceptance. Those 1-hour-45-minute shows and standing ovations put him over.

He has a playful feud with Robert Goulet, whom he calls "Robert Gullet."

Newton once brought on to Goulet's stage "the most pregnant-looking girl he could find" and coached her to scream at Goulet, "Why don't you ever return my phone calls?"

GOULET returned the favor by secretly asking a Newton audience not to applaud his third number. Newton was appalled at the silence — until he got the message.

Newton's wife, Elaine, is around; they've been married 7½ years. "I've still only had one wife," he says.

WAYNE NEWTON
600 Weeks in Nevada

Newton's been entertaining since he was 5. He started on the Las Vegas circuit when he was 16 and has seen just about everything, including his employer Howard Hughes.

"In 1969, at the Los Angeles airport, I was introduced to a man said to be Howard Hughes, and I believe it was."

The billing in front of the Frontier now lists Howard Hughes' name before Wayne Newton's.

"I concede that to him," said Newton. "I can tell you that my last contract here was personally OKd by Howard Hughes. The figures had to be approved by him, nobody else would OK figures that high. I hope he lives forever!"

Magicians break Geller's spell

By BOYCE RENSBERGER
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Magicians, long irked by Uri Geller's reputed ability to bend spoons, repair watches and read minds through paranormal powers, have taken off their white gloves and branded the Israeli "psychic" an outright fraud who uses conventional magician's tricks to mislead the public.

Several professional magicians, in a recent spate of books and public remarks, say they have duplicated virtually all of Geller's feats by using ordinary conjuring methods. They have also discovered major flaws in the procedures used by various scientists to test Geller.

Only a year ago, the science journal, Nature, published a favorable report of tests on Geller conducted by the Stanford Research Institute in California. That article, widely reported by the press, lent strong support to the belief that the performer truly possessed psychic powers.

BUT NOW that suspicions of trickery have been raised by the magicians, as well as by two researchers from New Zealand, several of the scientists who once professed belief in Geller's authenticity have changed their minds.

The magicians believe that Geller is demeaning their craft by saying that his abilities are beamed to him from a space ship sent by a superior civilization in outer space.

"Geller is a clever charlatan," said Milbourne Christopher, chairman of the Occult Investigations Committee of the Society of American Magicians. "A careful study of his career and observations of his act by magicians have turned up numerous instances of cheating."

Christopher in his new book, "Mediums, Mystics & the Occult," says:

"GELLER is at his ingenious best in laboratories where he is being observed by scientists who believe he has extraordinary ESP ability and think — without justification — that they have ruled out every possibility of fraud. Unless an expert in deception is present... these experiments are as valid as a four-dollar bill."

A more detailed examination of the purported psychic's career is in another new book, "The Magic of Uri Geller," by James Randi, the magician who has probably campaigned hardest against Geller.

The book describes numerous instances in which magicians watched Geller perform at close range and spotted the moment when they thought he diverted attention while, for example, bending a spoon by muscle power. Observers have also spotted occasions on which an accomplice planted in the audience helped Geller by signaling words written on a blackboard out of his view, according to Randi's book.

Among the "tests" of Geller that have impressed scientists are his making a Geiger counter click wildly, as it would if a radioactive object were near, and deflecting a compass needle.

Randi did the same, using nothing more than a magnet taped to his leg and a similarly concealed radiation source.

Two New Zealand psychologists who studied Geller's "watch-repairing" feats found that jewelers were not much impressed. They said that many supposedly broken watches had merely been stopped by gummy oil, and that simply holding them in the hand would warm the oil enough to soften it and allow the watches to resume ticking.

The researchers, Dr. David Marks and Dr. David Kammann of the University of Otago, tested the method and found that anyone holding a "broken" watch in his hand for a few minutes and then shaking it could start it about half the time. This is a slightly better rate than Geller achieves.

EARL'S PEARLS

TODAY'S WORST PUN: Dick Ratazzi noticed the jail in a small town had a big sign, "Amoeba." "We call it that," the jailer explained, "because it has only one cell."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Peter Donald suspects a friend of his has a shady background: "Before he gives you his business card he shuffles them."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The secret of writing is to learn the big words and then learn not to use them." — H.G. Hutcheson.

EARL'S PEARLS: Everybody says elephants never forget. Big deal — how many elephants sent you birthday cards this year?

Comic Jackie Clark says he's a great believer in reincarnation: "In fact, in my life insurance policy I name myself the beneficiary." That's earl, brother.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: The Sun moves from Sagittarius to Capricorn at 6:47 a.m. EST. Those born today under either sign face a challenging, upbeat year of good personal progress and deepening commitment in relationships. Choices almost make themselves; your share in them is not readily visible. Today's natives include leaders in the arts and social movements. The Sagittarians seek leadership, and the Capricornians strive to be useful at important levels.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Creative enterprises thrive and expand into new sidelines, with a special career opportunity. Shopping lists are a useful curb on impulse buying.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A solution to family and team problems is promised. Small outlays yield exceptionally effective improvements. Present your achievements quietly but clearly.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Renew contact with well-disposed, influential friends and ask further introductions. Revisions of schedules and budgets are in order within reasonably defined limits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A search for material assistance, additional resources takes you into unusual places and scenes. Seek formal acknowledgement this evening.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Personal plans move forward rapidly; don't get careless or take anyone for granted. Collect information from every side and work up an approach that requires the top opinions of all concerned.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you know what you want, you're a step ahead of the game. If you can accept an adjustment between, you're even more fortunate. Avoid being overcritical.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can sell ideas now as well as tangible objects and merchandise. Take technical advice into account. Communication arrives from all sides; be willing to listen!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pursue business as usual. Long-term agreements can be reached if the bargaining isn't dragged out. Make sure important items aren't forgotten.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Arrange your work for a convincing display. Take some time out this busy day to seek professional counseling. Deal with those who have credentials.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have lots to accomplish, including last-minute details. Call people with whom you've lost touch. Invite others or join in their festivities tonight.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Schedule your job so you get the essentials done first. Expect a flurry of social invitations ranging from brief contacts to serious offers of enduring relations.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your efficiency is greater today. You've got plenty of work and play, plus a chance to discuss plans with people who are in a position to help make significant changes.

Bob Hope matches up golfing presidents

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all the golfing presidents, none could match Gerald Ford's distance off the tee, but John F. Kennedy hit the ball the best and Dwight D. Eisenhower was the fiercest competitor, says Bob Hope.

"Richard Nixon is like Ike in his enthusiasm for the game," said the comedian. "He never had the natural athletic instincts of, say, Kennedy or Ford, but he got his game down to a 14 handicap through sheer work and determination. He is very keen.

"I played with Lyndon Johnson only once. That was in Acupulco. I remember Darrell Royal, the Texas football coach, also played with us. LBJ didn't have much of a love or feel for the game."

Hope, whose annual Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs is one of the most popular stops on the PGA tour, carries the unofficial title of America's roving ambassador.

In his travels, he has played golf with presidents and kings, potentates and maharajahs, but none was closer to him than the late Eisenhower, for whom golf was a tonic.

"I THINK golf saved Ike's life for years," Hope said on a weekend visit to New York during which he reminisced about some of his golfing experiences with world leaders.

"I fear Ike would have gone much earlier — knowing his heart condition — if it hadn't been for his interest in the game."

Eisenhower was a golfer after every weekend hacker's heart, Hope recalled. He played with a fighter's gusto. He fumed when he missed shots. He became exuberant when he nailed a good one. And, like any average player, he hated to lose.

"I remember once I was playing with the President against Stuart Symington and Gen. Omar Bradley at Burning Tree outside Washington. I played pretty lousy. We lost our shirts.

"The next day I teamed with Arthur Vandenburg, the Republican senator, against Bradley and the President. I shot about a 75 and we won. I will never forget how sour Ike was when he reached in his pocket and pulled out $3 to pay off.

"HE looked at me and said, 'Why didn't you play like that yesterday?'"

After the match, the President told Hope to let his chauffeur go and to ride back to the White House with him.

"I remember we talked about the Nixon-Kennedy debates," Hope said. "Ike was against them. He said the 'ins' never give the 'outs' a chance. When we got to the White House, he said, 'Look, the light is on in Mamie's room. Come on in.' I did. We sat around and told stories for two hours."

Hope said Kennedy had a natural athletic bent and could have been an excellent golfer if he had chosen to devote more time to the sport.

"He was very strong, but he suffered from a bad back," the comedian said. "He didn't play too often. When he did, he seemed restless and detached, as if he wanted to get back to the office. Often he never played the full 18 holes."

HOPE recalled a time when JFK played at Seminole in Florida with Chris Dunphy, an old New England friend who was the club's chairman.

"Early in the match, Kennedy hit a shot to within about 3 feet of the hole and looked over at Dunphy for a concession," Hope related. "Dunphy turned his head the other way."

"'This is a gimme, you don't expect me to putt this, do you?'" Kennedy asked a bit irritatedly.

"'Putt it,'" said Dunphy. "'I want to see your stroke. Also it's a putt like this that builds character.'"

"'OK,'" said the President. "'But I am amazed you don't give it to me. Anyhow, I had better hurry. I have a date with Mortimer Caplan, the director of Internal Revenue.'

"'The putt's good,'" Dunphy said hastily.

Hope has played often with Ford as he has with Ford's predecessor, Nixon, and admits he is impressed with Ford's power off the tee.

"HE really busts the ball," Bob said. "He hits it 250 and 260 yards regularly and is quite accurate. Recently when I played with him he had birdie putts on three straight holes.

"I said, 'Hey, Mr. President, you're going to win the National Open.' He grinned. But I could tell there was something else he wanted to win."

Strikes silence symphonies

NEW YORK (NYTS) — The strike threatened by the Metropolitan Opera Company's orchestra for Jan. 1 is only the latest in a series of labor disputes that have silenced orchestras across the nation.

In the 1974-75 and 1975-76 seasons, increasingly militant classical musicians have stopped work in Dallas, Denver, Detroit, New Jersey, Omaha, Pittsburgh and Kansas City. All the stoppages have been settled except the one in Kansas City.

Since 1970, there have been strikes by musicians of 16 major American symphony orchestras, many of them the first in the long histories of the organizations. Musicians are demanding more money and a greater say in music-related policy matters.

At the Metropolitan Opera the main issue is money. The musicians, whose contract expired Aug. 24, want a one-year contract guaranteeing 52 paid weeks and a 12 per cent cost-of-living increase.

The Metropolitan Opera Association, which runs the opera company, has asked the musicians to sign a two-year contract that reduces guaranteed paid weeks from 51 to 44 with no pay increase the first year, and in the second year provides 46 paid weeks and a 5 per cent increase.

Currently, the opera orchestra's 100 musicians earn a minimum of $19,635 a year, or $385 a week for a 51-week year.

Anthony A. Bliss, the Metopolitan Opera's executive director, said, "We have a very warm sympathy for our employes. I completely agree that people in the arts are entitled to look for their full-year support from their own profession."

But Bliss said there were "hard realities." All of the contract settlements between symphony orchestras and their management over the country "may be maneuvering the classical music industry into a situation we may not be able to cope with," he warned

Stores alert for 'annual shoplifting explosion'

By AL MURRELL
Staff Writer

Security officers, store employes and police in Long Beach and across the country are preparing for "the annual shoplifting explosion."

Officials responsible for shoplifting prevention and detection in Long Beach agree that while the time between Thanksgiving and the first week of January is bad, the last two weeks of December are a nightmare.

Despite mammoth increases in security, officials at some major department stores expect shoplifting losses and arrests to double the annual average in the next two weeks.

The stores are so crowded that security officers have a difficult time "even keeping the honest customers honest." A shoplifter who was caught recently at the downtown Buffum's department store said he got tired of waiting for a sales person to take his money and walked out with the merchandise.

Long Beach Police Det. Bruce Klemme said 96 persons have been arrested on suspicion of shoplifting in the first three weeks of December.

Klemme, who has been investigating all shoplifting cases reported to police since September, said the December arrest total already has surpassed this year's monthly average of 89, and "it gets worse the closer we get to Christmas."

Klemme said the merchandise stolen during the time he has handled shoplifting has been as different as the thieves who have taken it.

One man spent a weekend in jail recently, Klemme said, because he had eaten 16 cents worth of candy while standing around in a Long Beach store.

Klemme said he still is investigating the biggest shoplifting case in recent years.

Police are looking for a woman suspected of stealing five diamond rings valued at $4,180 from Craft's Jewelers & Loan, Inc., at 325 Pine Ave.

A store employe told police the woman asked him to show her a piece of jewelry and, when he turned his back, she picked up the rings and ran out.

Klemme said most of the things taken by shoplifters are those that are easily hidden or not too heavy to carry off. Television sets are about the biggest items stolen—"thieves just grab them and run."

Police arrested one woman who was running her own meat delivery service, using steaks she had stolen from area markets, Klemme said. The woman just stuffed the steaks into her purse and walked out of the store, then called her regular customers to make the sales.

Shoplifting is a big problem at markets, Klemme said, because "it's easier for poor people to steal food than to take something they have to hock or fence to buy food."

The detective said the huge increase in shoplifting during the holidays is especially discouraging because the stores are doing everything they can to prevent it.

"Every store has bolstered its security force. Some have doubled, and even tripled, their crews for the holidays."

A spokesman for the J.C. Penney Co. store at 500 Pine Ave., who asked not to be identified, said the worst period of the year began Saturday with the schools' Christmas holidays. He said security officers may catch as many as six or seven youths shoplifting in one day.

One reason for the expected increase in apprehensions is that the store has more than doubled its security staff, but the primary cause is the huge increase in customers.

"Juveniles are our biggest problem," he said, "because for them, it's a game.

"Part of the problem is that a lot of stores don't send juveniles down to the police department. We don't let anyone go."

He said another big reason for juvenile shoplifting is that, in most cases, there are no penalties. The children are scolded by juvenile officers and sent home with their parents.

He said the biggest attempted theft at the Long Beach Penney's this year occurred about three weeks ago, when a woman took two of the store's suitcases.

Not satisfied with only the luggage, the woman then walked around the store, filling the suitcases up until security officers stopped her.

The woman had several items in her purse, including a sign which read "This Store Is Protected Against Shoplifting," that she had taken earlier in the day from other downtown stores.

Richard Jeans, chief of security for all 12 Buffums' stores, blames California's "lack of prosecution" and "failing morality" for the increase in shoplifting.

Shoplifting has a lower prosecution priority in California than in any other state, Jeans said.

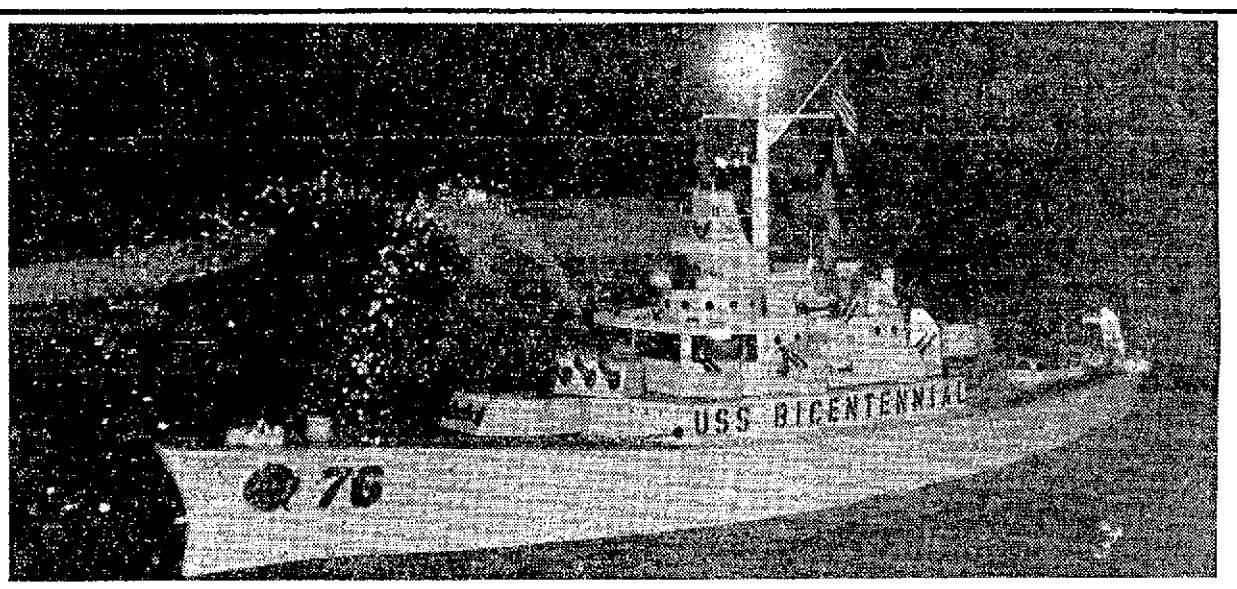

"It's not a crime here," he complained. "It's like a traffic ticket. Nine of 10 shoplifters are cited and released."

He added that "the failing morality in California is worse than ever before. It (shoplifting) doesn't bother them because they know they won't have to go to jail."

Stealing is the only thing shoplifters have in common, Jeans said. "There is no typical shoplifter." His staff recently caught a 9-year-old girl shoplifting at one of the stores and an 86-year-old woman at another.

Patriotic Yule

Senior-citizen unit faulted by auditors

A city audit of the Long Beach Department of Senior Citizens Affairs has disclosed $15,201 of "questionable expenditures" in a $67,000 contract, according to City Auditor Murray Courson.

However, the problems that lead to the negative audit findings have already been corrected, according to Arthur Chapman, executive assistant to the city manager and director of human resources.

"The determination as to whether such costs will be allowable or unallowable will be made by the county, state or the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare," said Courson.

The audit was performed on the department's contract with the county to provide certain local services for senior citizens.

Although "the recorded expenditures appear reasonable," Courson said, the department failed to keep proper pay records for part-time help. He questioned $5,682 in payroll expenses that were not properly documented.

Chapman said the department has begun keeping correct records. Department director Herbert Nalibow deferred all comment to Chapman.

Another large expense that was mentioned was $4,354 for printing that has not yet been received, according to Courson.

The period covered included the year ending in November 1975. The remaining questioned expenditures included smaller amounts for insurance coverage, office space rental, supplies and communications and utilities.

Telephone bills and copying charges came under fire, and Courson said "it is recommended that the department establish appropriate controls to ensure that all reimbursable costs are billed and that necessary accounting entries are made..."

Sick-leave time has been entered improperly or not at all on nine occasions, the report said.

Happy Yule uncertain for family

No one can say that Mrs. W. hasn't tried to provide a good home for herself and her five children.

What is less certain is whether Mrs. W. can give the youngsters a happy Christmas this year.

Social workers say the family lives on a meager welfare allowance, which means there is little money during the year for clothing and toys. Yet the children (whose father deserted them) are looking forward to something special this Christmas.

Whether their hopes come true or not, though, will depend on the generosity of those who give to Operation Christmas.

Officials of the drive urge contributors to mail their checks to I,P-T Operation Christmas, Box 700, Long Beach, California 90801. Canned food or new toys may be taken to the Christmas clearinghouse at 455 E. Spring St.

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

EASY ROBERTS is a whining rabbit of a man who lives with his crumpled, beaten-down-by-life mother in a small one-family house in the most heavily industrialized section of Wilmington. His mother knits while Easy (not his real name) weaves tales of self-pity for his parole agent, 26-year-old Brian Parry.

"Yeah, Mr. Parry, I was drinking, but I'm not now. I know it isn't good for my diabetes. I feel bad, and I can't work. But one of these days I'm going to open a little sandwich shop. Then everything will be better."

The words Easy speaks slink out from the side of his mouth, pushing through fumes of alcohol. His mother looks up from her yarn, shakes her head and spiffs distastefully. Brian Parry, summoned to the house by a letter from Easy's mother, is unconvinced; he knows Easy is a loser, a failed salvage job, a sad piece of flotsam soon to be floating back to San Quentin, Folsom, Soledad on the current of a failed parole.

Life on the outside is no rose garden for a man who has done heavy time for child molesting. And it's no better in prison, where child molesters are held in contempt by other inmates. But maybe prison is the only place where Easy Roberts can hold at bay the demons that torment him and ride nightmare through the cobwebs of his mind.

Brian Parry is concerned about Easy's alcoholism, the thirst that could cause a replay of the sex crime that sent Easy to prison in 1962. Brian is resolved to keep a careful eye on Easy, to check up on him as often as his 63-case load permits.

WHAT level of risk can society take with a parolee? This is the question Brian and agents assigned to the Long Beach office of the Division of Parole and Community Services, State Department of Corrections, are faced with every working day. The agents' reports, investigations and observations tip the scale either to continued freedom or a return to lockup.

It's a hard job, a gruelling job. Days can stretch into 12 to 15 hours, riding around, ringing doorbells, checking, interviewing, putting your judgment on the line and sifting through con promises to find the truth.

The parole agent is a mix of police officer and social worker. An agent has to be tough, fair and realistic. Compassion and understanding and patience are part of the job, but sentiment can't color judgments. Trust and skepticism coexist in a parole agent's work.

Easy probably will go back inside. So will Clay Jordan (fictitious name), a 31-year-old armed robber, burglar, thief and assaulter. Clay has failed parole four times in other jurisdictions, racking up on his apparently cureless weakness for booze, pills and trouble-making women. Clay is the juvenile delinquent who never grew up, who seemingly can't handle the free world on an adult level and has a subconscious desire to return to the womb of prison life, to tuck a sentence and ordered existence around him like a security blanket.

RIP CHILDERS (fictitious name) is making it. Brian Parry is banking on him. Rip's enrolled in an auto mechanics course and soon to graduate. His head's on straight, his family is straight arrow and supportive. Soledad won't see him again; it won't reclaim the black man whose spirit and resolve run through the pages of beautiful, sensitive poetry he wrote as an inmate. His big dream is a job, a typewriter, a chance to prove himself to society.

Johnny Martin (fictitious name) is 22, fresh out of Soledad and curtailed sentence for attempted jail break in Los Angeles County. He's groping, this kid who was salvaged by prison authorities before the homosexual wolves could descend on him and shatter his mind and body. He's got a chance, a chance buttressed by Brian Parry's efforts in behalf of employment and social agency help.

Brian Parry is a good man to have on your side—if you deal from the top of the deck. The criminal judging of his parolees has been done by courts; Brian is the key part of the reclamation project, the steady monitor of men and women who still owe time to the State of California. He works hard in the criminal justice system, with accent on justice—for the parolee and for society.

Brian came to the Long Beach office Oct. 15 from the jungle of East Los Angeles. He's a four-year professional out of the University of Dayton, battle wise, con wise. An outsider may think of his work in caseloads, but he sees each case as a human being. In the world of the parole agent, that counts more than we know.

U.S. privacy law could hamper crime fight

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Inquiry into the background of convicted New Jersey labor racketeer Salvatore Briguglio is certain to bring questioners face to face with some disturbing aspects of the new Right of Privacy Act which could frustrate efforts against organized crime.

Briguglio, often-convicted pal of New Jersey Teamster boss Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, is a prime suspect in the abduction of James R. Hoffa and has taken the Fifth Amendment before a federal grand jury on questions relating to Hoffa.

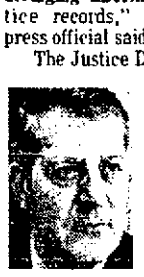

Although Detroit strike force boss Robert Ozer could say in open court that two witnesses had identified Briguglio and two associates as having taken part in the abduction of Hoffa, the Justice Department reported that the Right of Privacy Act forbids it from stating whether Briguglio or his associates have criminal records.

The federal Right of Privacy Act forbids officials from disclosing the criminal record of anyone, unless a question deals with a specific charge and court at a specific time.

Justice Department press officials feel that the law "is absurd," but violations carry a $5,000 fine.

"If there are going to be any errors, those errors will be on the side of not divulging information from criminal justice records," one usually cooperative press official said.

The Justice Department is barred from

any comment or confirmation of Briguglio's conviction on grand larceny and conspiracy in New York in 1963 or his incarceration in the state penitentiary in Attica, N.Y., in July 1966 for a two- to four-year sentence.

"If it is a state charge, we can't tell you anything about it," a Justice Department spokesman said. "You will have to go to the state court for any records of convictions."

Even on federal charges, the Justice Department is barred from making available what is public record in federal courts, "unless it is a pending case."

Thus, the Justice Department is barred from revealing that Briguglio, while working for Teamster Local 560, was arrested on a charge of conspiracy to buy and sell counterfeit money, counterfeit food stamps and counterfeit postage stamps.

While federal court records show that Briguglio served a 14-month federal prison term at Lewisburg and paid a $10,000 fine, the Justice Department cannot confirm it until provided with a specific crime, court jurisdiction and date.

Private citizen crime commissions, which keep track of organized crime and their hit men, burglars and muscle men, are frantically protesting the complicated procedures for obtaining or verifying records of arrests, convictions or other dispositions of cases.

One crime commission director explained that the major problem in keeping on top of organized crime's activities has been tracing those in underworld fraternities who move quickly, change their names often and are often identifiable only through fingerprints and other processes of government identification laboratories.

Mary Lawton, deputy assistant attorney general, Office of Legal Counsel, says the Privacy Act presents "enormous difficulties" in all government agencies, where there is "a sense of panic" created by the $5,000 fine and "the extreme difficulty" of being certain that release of information does not violate the law.

Lawton speaks of the act's "onerous requirements" and "the shoddy and confusing draftsmanship" which make it difficult to achieve the basic objectives of the act.

There are few quarrels with the basic purpose of the act, which is to assure that the government maintains no secret information systems on American citizens; that any systems that are maintained should contain only information that is relevant and necessary to the functioning of that agency; and that such information be complete, timely and accurate.

While Lawton speaks of those objectives as "laudable" and stresses the need to achieve them, she concedes that the confusions and conflicts make it difficult to get interpretations that are in a spirit of good faith and common sense.

Some Justice Department officials agree that the literal interpretations of some aspects of the law "are absurd" and "do not make sense," and a few will not insist upon a specific federal charge on a specific date (some will give an answer if the questioner has the date correct to within a month).

For an administration that was trying to cover up its ties with crime, the Right of Privacy Act could be used to threaten or punish public officials who confirmed the criminal background of administration allies. A number of local crime commission directors comment that state and local political figures could use provisions of the privacy act to keep a lid on a crime-government alliance.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is currently involved in hearings to see how it can accommodate the complaints of the press, local crime commissions and various security agencies under the Right of Privacy Act.

Many feel that unless the act is amended to remove some of the most glaring prohibitions, it will be the biggest boon to organized crime since the Mafia alliance with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The customhouse move

When the U.S. Customs Service first planned to transfer employes from the customhouse on Terminal Island to the federal building in downtown Los Angeles, the move was estimated to cost $650,000.

That estimate, prepared by Regional Commissioner Albert G. Bergesen, was admittedly maximal, since it included $261,000 to pay for "relocation costs, including real estate" for 55 employes, not all of whom in all likelihood would wish to move.

WHEN CONGRESSMEN and newspaper reporters began making inquiries, customs officials in Washington began paring cost estimates.

Rep. Glenn Anderson was told in a letter from H. R. Dickerson, deputy commissioner of customs, that "there is absolutely no possibility that the costs involved . . . will even approach $500,000."

Estimates continued to decline. And decline. They dropped as low as $160,000.

But now the head of the logistics management division of the Customs Service has been advised by the division's chief for the southwest region that changes in rents charged by the federal General Services Administration will result in "a budgetary crisis" and place the region "in a devastating situation" unless more funds are provided.

"Considering the amount of money which has already been spent on this project on alterations and relocations," regional chief D. John Luers wrote, "I feel that Customs would be placed in a terribly embarrassing situation. Additionally, if that information was ever publicly known, I envision congressional inquiries and detrimental publicity in the press, the like of which we have never seen."

WE HOPE members of Congress insist on getting the information.

Even without it, and even without detrimental publicity, the like of which the Customs Service has never seen, we should think Customs would wish to reconsider the move.

The move, now scheduled to cover 36 employes — was planned to enable the regional commissioner to have more of his subordinates in the same building with him.

The question is whether the employes should be handy to the boss or whether they should be handy to the people they serve.

THE MINUTES of an April meeting of the Customs "regional management team" reported on a discussion of that question. Those minutes said:

"Both the regional director (investigations) and regional director (internal affairs) were dubious about the practicality of the regional commissioner's proposal to move the entire sector communications office from the customhouse in San Pedro to the federal building downtown since all of the users of the network are located at the customhouse in San Pedro, e.g., the Los Angeles District Patrol office, the Office of Internal Affairs, and the Office of Investigations. . . . There appeared to be no justification for the move except that the regional commissioner felt that it was a good management practice to have all of the operational entities under his control physically located at the federal building in downtown Los Angeles.

"Both regional directors pointed out that there would not be any users of the sector communications located in the downtown area, and they both felt that nothing would be accomplished by the move except further expending of the taxpayers' money."

That says it all.

AND THE CURRENT financial difficulties compounding the problems of the move underline the message.

There is no shame in backing away from a bad project. A manager who doesn't make a bad decision occasionally is a manager who doesn't make decisions at all. The real embarrassment for the Customs Service would not be in reversing a bad decision but in insisting on carrying it out.

What the Customs Service should worry most about in this case is not congressional inquiries or adverse publicity. What it should worry most about is facts.

The facts argue strongly for leaving the full customs operation at Terminal Island.

The goals of the proxy war

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Strategists of many nations are now engaged in analyzing today's power struggle in Southern Africa, focusing on Angola.

The interest of African lands is obvious, especially among Angola's neighbors. Zaire (which backs the FLNA-Unita coalition) is almost landlocked, except for a narrow strip to the Atlantic, and fears being caught between pro-Soviet Brazzaville and a hostile, Angolan government. Zambia is wholly isolated from the sea; and, if Angola gets a pro-Communist regime, will be in a sandwich between that country, Mozambique and an increasingly leftwing Tanzania. It would be hard put to export its copper without prior political concessions.

C. L. Sulzberger

New York Times News Service

The states with white-dominated regimes are passionately obsessed: Rhodesia, South West Africa and South Africa, whose 4.5 million whites exceed the total on the rest of the continent (excluding northern Arabs). All have watched with fascination as Moscow installed (temporarily) a pro-Soviet regime in Lisbon which then acted as broker between Russia and the MPLA organization in Angola. MPLA cadres trained in the U.S.S.R., Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria have been equipped, advised and even staffed by Moscow.

No black government would openly oppose moves directed against the white regimes of southern Africa. This presents so huge an embarrassment to the anti-MPLA cause that it could in the end prove a mortal Achilles heel. Moscow constantly stresses this point. A pro-Soviet Angola would be developed into a case for armed subversions against white-governed areas.

But this is not the entire story, as Chinese policy has implied. Peking has been cultivating black Africa for years and invested much in economic projects. It has aided guerrilla movements from Mozambique across to Angola. Apart from rivalry for influence, there has been Sino-Soviet ideological competition.

All the great powers acknowledge that, whatever their prejudices on South Africa and Rhodesia (which are somewhat similar), Southern Africa has a vast importance in the world power balance. Angola alone, a very rich land, half of whose petroleum goes to the United States, is a keystone in any strategic pattern.

For a considerable time the Russians, aided by their Cuban allies, have been operating throughout Africa, with emphasis on west Africa. Advisers, technicians and military missions from Moscow and Havana have been prominent. Soviet diplomacy has regained much if not all of the influence weaned away at one time by Chinese cleverness.

And Soviet authority increases with victories by its guerrilla clients — as in Mozambique and soon, perhaps, in Angola. Moreover, any decisive triumph in the latter country will strongly heighten Russian prestige in uncertain lands like Zambia and Zaire. There is an even greater problem involved: strategic geography. The ever-growing Soviet fleet is steadily gaining naval ascendency in the Indian Ocean and the eastern approaches to the vital Cape shipping route via the Mozambique Channel.

Now if Moscow gains control of Angola, the western seaway will be subject to blockade. Air and naval installations available to Russia could affect the South Atlantic balance as far down as Antarctica.

This is a matter of geopolitical interest that no nation can permit to be obscured because of emotional prejudice against South Africa's unjust racial policies. Even China has managed to remember its own national interests when regarding southern Africa and has done its limited best to offset a Soviet advance.

In Angola's proxy war, it is embarrassing for the United States that South Africa is involved. But South Africa is in no remote sense a threat to the West. Russia is.

New challenge

EDITOR:

Two seconds remained as Poly High School's hopes for an undefeated football season and CIF championship were ticking away.

Poly and North Torrance were tied, but Torrance would win, as they were ahead in first downs. Time had been called, and Poly lined up for a last play. Chick Hastings snapped the ball to Buddy Holliwell, and as the line with Todd Jagerson and Mike Giers held out the defensive surge, razzle dazzle took place in the backfied. Willie Brown emerged with the ball on a sweep around end. Suddenly he stopped and lofted a 55-yard pass to the end zone. There, waiting for the ball with outstretched arms, was little Bobby Banks. Touchdown, and on to the 1959 CIF championship. 1960 was a repeat performance. Undefeated. The play had been masterminded by Bill Mulligan and Davy Levy.

Two seconds in the lives of two fine athletes and gentlemen, Dave Levy and Willie Brown, might have changed defeat into despair; and who knows what the 1960 team might have done without that spark into victory?

We who have known and admired them know that they will also be successful in their new ventures: Willie Brown as an assistant at Tampa Bay, and Dave Levy as assistant athletic director at S.C. We hope the politics at Southern Cal won't turn its football program sour.

Weary of taxes

EDITOR:

I work in a business where I have the opportunity to meet and talk to many fine people every day. The overwhelming majority are fed up with the way our tax dollars are being spent with whatever whim the Lakewood City Council so desires.

They feel redevelopment and larger issues should be put to a vote by the people. What does it matter to the council members what the citizens want? Jo Bennitt is the only member who has stood up and fought for what the taxpayers want. She should be commended. The remaining council members should take heed in what she has to say and the way she votes, as she is for the average Mr. and Mrs. America and the average Mr. and Mrs. America are getting tired of over-taxation.

Fine idea

EDITOR:

Hooray for C. T. Gilbreath's proposal (letter, Nov. 7) to restrict voting. At last, an intelligent approach to our great nation's problems!

As an under-30 citizen, I'm sure C. T. wouldn't expect me to pay income, sales or property taxes (no taxation without representation).

With voter turnouts already at an all-time high, I'm sure his proposed $25 poll tax would not only bail out financially insolvent cities but would soon make short work of the national debt.

I agree with Citizen Gilbreath that our Founding Fathers would smile in their graves at his proposal. In fact, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if they were laughing.

Rising taxes

EDITOR:

It was nice reading that a Long Beach City Council committee is very concerned about the city's property upkeep and upgrading — to the point of empowering the city to move in and do the work at the owner's expense if he fails to do so.

I wish the comittee had also discussed if there was some way the city could cover the problem of assessors who cause the rise of tax on improved properties.

Cross words

EDITOR:

Perhaps you will say this is of little consequence, but I am amazed at the number of definitive mistakes in your daily crossword puzzles.

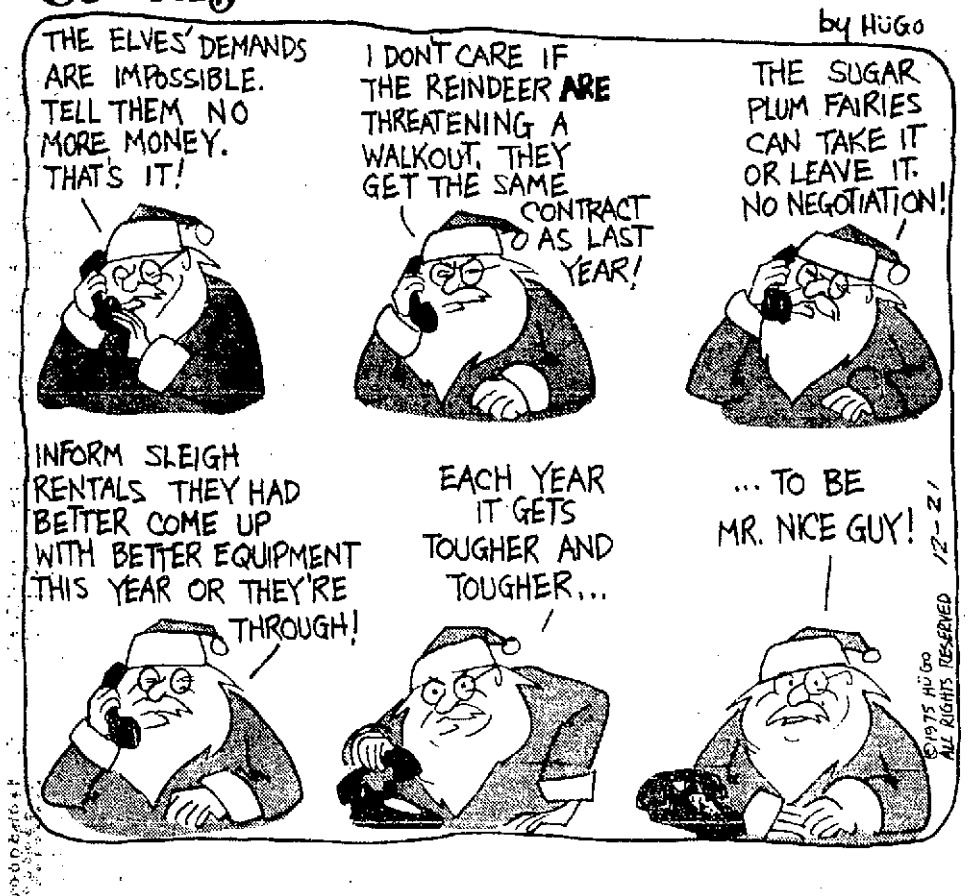

In the Dec. 17 I, P-T, a synonym asked for is in answer to the question, "The summer months in Peru." Literally, the Spanish words would be "los verano meses," or "los meses de verano." The specific months would be Junio, Julio and Agosto. The puzzle came out Enero, which means January, and pluralized becomes Eneros.

Afterthought. Forgive me for my ignorance. We here in the United States are in the northern hemisphere. Peru is in the southern hemisphere, and their weather cycle would be different from ours. So I stand corrected.

But I am not amiss in the original premise.

The gladdest of tithings

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — It was that merry season when frost reddens the nose, shop windows twinkle with holly berry and tinsel, and the spicy odors of flaming pudding and balsam gum sweeten the dusk whose early arrival betokens the imminence of year's end. On such an evening, huddled bone-chilled in an inadequate gray topcoat, his feet shod in scuffed loafers, his cheek pallid and his mouth eager for the warm fantasy of gin and vermouth, Santa Claus shambled through the streets of the metropolis.

He passed without so much as a single joyous glance at the gigantic human file cabinets towering over Sixth Avenue, from every window of which sparkled brilliant shards of light telling of triumphs of commerce and real-estate speculation within. Not for him the happy cry of delight which issues from the brimming heart when coin tinkles and freshly added paper rustles in the cash register.

WHAT A miserable lot is mine, he reflected, in a shameful surrender to self-pity, and suiting word to the thought, he uttered aloud the words, "What a rotten thing it is to be Santa Claus."

No sooner had this cry escaped his lips than he succumbed to an overwhelming flood of shame, for he knew too well that many a breast would harbor hopes crushed in disappointment were he to fail in his appointed rounds. The mere thought of so many broken hopes and dreams sufficed to draw from his tired eye a solitary tear, which fell across his wan cheek and made sweet haste to fall to the street, there to join the jetsam of trampled grapefruit husks and canine evacuations so integral to the rich profusion of the great cosmopolis.

Instantly, by way of atonement, he produced a coin and flipped it into a kettle presided over by a miserable wretch costumed in knickers of brilliant red and an ill-fitting white beard. As he did so, a group of large urchins appeared, emerging from a parked limousine, in which it was their custom to wait, with the interior heating device running, until Santa Claus approached.

SANTA CLAUS was no more capable of resisting the joyful flutter of hope which brightens a large urchin's eye at Yuletide than an octogenarian of resisting four highwaymen armed with carving knives.

"Ho, ho, ho!" laughed Santa, and called each of the urchins by name. "Ho, Abe!" he cried, "Ho, ho, Hugh!" he cried, "Ho, ho, ho, Jerry!" he cried. To which each of the urchins replied, "Heh, heh, heh."

"What can old Santa do for you fellows!" he inquired.

Well did he know that the question was idle, for, being politicians as well as urchins, Mayor Abe, Governor Hugh and President Jerry, as he was wont to call them while rolling about under the Yule tree with all three merrily flogging him penniless, were loath to give utterance to their true desires in intelligible phrases.

AND SO, hastily seating himself on a pile of garbage, Santa took little Abe upon his lap. "You, Abe — I know what you would like." Abe gurgled with delight. "You would like me to go to a massage parlor so that you may tax my sex life with your brand-new massage tax." Abe nodded with joy, which was severely mitigated when Santa said, "But Santa cannot do that, for, you see, dear Abe, Santa is much too ticklish to submit to the touch of mercantile fingers."

In what profusion did Abe's tears then flow. Surely he would have dissolved in anguish had Santa not quickly stanched their coursing by promising to get a haircut at once so that Abe could tax his excess hair. And when Santa promised to work much harder and earn much more money so that Abe's new income tax could severely curtail his manner of living, the little fellow clapped his hands in delight and leaped about in the garbage with a joy to warm the cockles of the coldest heart.

Then Santa picked up Hugh and kissed his rosy cheek, declaring that Hugh, would also be remembered, not only in Santa's increase of labor, from which Hugh's own income tax would reap its merry share, but also from Santa's purchases of gasoline, gin and vermouth on which Hugh's revenue would wax and fatten in the days to come.

JERRY, HOWEVER, did not assent to take his place on Santa's lap — oh, good reader, not because Jerry was shy! Not at all! Jerry, to tell the truth of it, did not like Santa Claus and, in fact, planned to get elected by running against Santa Claus. He did not wish to risk having his photograph taken while seated on Santa Claus's lap.

"Jerry, Jerry," said Santa. "Do you suppose that Santa would forget you? Do you know that federal income tax you take out of my salary each week?" Jerry nodded in delight. "Well," said Santa, "after you have taken my money down to Washington, I am going to let you lend it back to me and charge me interest for it. Santa will be paying you interest for using his own money. Thus you will be able to tax me twice instead of just once, and what's more you will be able to tell everybody you are a splendid fellow who plays Santa Claus to Santa Claus."

JERRY WAS SO happy that he kicked his heels in the air and bumped his head on his toe. All three urchins raced back to the limousine and sped away crying, "Merry Christmas, Santa! God bless taxes, everyone!"

With warmed heart, Santa trudged into a department store to make a government happy with an 8 per cent sales-tax payment.

America's narcotics war

WASHINGTON — In the grubby rooms and grimy alleys of our big cities, the United States is still fighting the Vietnam War. It's a losing war against narcotics, a war escalated frightfully during Vietnam.

Tens of thousands of GIs brought their drug habits home with them from Vietnam. Hundreds of thousands, who never went to Vietnam but became alienated over the war, began taking drugs.

THEIR PRIVATE war is still going on. Some are fighting to kick the habit; far more are fighting for the costly fix that will keep them going for a few more hours.

It's a largely invisible war, which is seldom seen on our television screens. But from confidential files, here are a few of the stark episodes:

• An estimated 90 per cent of the heroin sold on our streets comes out of Mexico. Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda-Paullada, therefore, has ordered a massive crackdown. He has assigned 5,000 soldiers and 350 federal police to eradicate the poppy fields. They are supported by a fleet of 39 planes and helicopters, which have been spraying the poppy fields with herbicides. Nevertheless, the opium eradication effort, despite a lot of ballyhoo, has been a bust.

• U.S. narcotics agents have smashed at least one multimillion-dollar dope ring that has been smuggling heroin into this country from the Far East. Yet Asian heroin continues to trickle into our ports.

• Heroin has been smuggled into the United States, appropriately, in the clothing and coffins of corpses. Sometimes the heroin was hidden in secret panels of the coffins, sometimes in the clothing of the corpses. Cooperating undertakers in the United States removed the deadly powder, buried the corpses and passed on the heroin to traffickers.

• Heroin has also been stashed in marked parcels which have been shipped out of the Far East on Air Force cargo planes. In the United States, corrupt Air Force workers would unload the packages with the hidden heroin and substitute innocent parcels in their place.

• A favorite hiding place for heroin has been the household effects of servicemen returning to the United States. U.S. authorities and Thai police recently discovered 50 pounds of heroin secreted in six pieces of furniture waiting shipment to the United States.

THE MOST discouraging news from the drug front has been the failure of the Mexican crackdown on poppy growing. According to official estimates, 15,000 fields are "likely to be cultivated during the period November 1975-March 1976" in Mexico.

The fleet of crop-dusting planes and helicopters attacked the fields

from the air. Stick-wielding soldiers advanced on the fields on the ground. Yet confidential State Department figures indicated that during the first two weeks of the offensive, only 60 fields have been wiped out. This is less than one-fourth of one per cent of the poppy crop.

The Mexicans have had trouble with their crop-dusting equipment. And the soldiers, who depend on the opium farmers for food and shelter, are reluctant to retaliate by destroying their hosts' crops. For that matter, the Mexican government has almost no control over some of the mountainous poppy-growing regions.

THE NEWS from the Far East has been somewhat better. In confidential reports from Thailand, the Drug Enforcement Agency describes the break-up of a dope ring that had shipped "over 1,000 pounds of heroin from Thailand to the United States since 1967.

"The organization has been seriously disrupted," the classified documents report, and the ringleaders have been caught. They were "responsible for supplying several East Coast locations in the United States, including North Carolina, Washington, D.C., Pittsburgh and . . . New York City."

An official, three-page summary describes how an underworld alliance of U.S. servicemen, ex-servicemen and Asian nationals "used the APO mail system, military aircraft, official military post, home baggage and couriers" to smuggle heroin into the United States.

The first break came with the arrest of a former serviceman named William Henry Jackson who ran the Five Star Bar in Bangkok. His protector, according to the confidential reports, was a high Thai legislative figure.

But the ring continued to operate after Jackson was shut up in the slammer. Earlier this year, ex-DEA chief John Bartels set up a special task force in Thailand. One of its agents managed to infiltrate the smuggling ring.

"An initial purchase of 1,000 grams (about two pounds) of heroin by the agent last March in Bangkok established his bonafides," states the memo. This led to a "Sino-Thai resident of Bangkok named Luchai Ruviwat."

THE UNDERCOVER agent, at the risk of his life, cultivated Luchai by purchasing heroin from him. Government funds were used to buy more than six pounds of almost pure heroin.

Once in Luchai's confidence, the agent learned that the dope dealer was planning a delivery of more than 100 pounds of heroin to the United States. This amount, after it was cut for street sales, would be worth a staggering $30 million.

The agent, holding out the bait of an extra $75,000 profit for Luchai, persuaded him "to visit the U.S. and suggested he bring some more heroin with him."

End of incident: "On Sept. 2, Luchai and a Thai courier associate were arrested in San Francisco with (a pound) of heroin and charged with importation with intent to sell narcotics."

Callaway's stubborn boss

WASHINGTON — High-ranking officials in the Ford administration, riled up by campaign chairman Howard H. "Bo" Callaway's attacks on Ronald Reagan, calmed down quickly enough when they learned their source: Gerald R. Ford.

In lashing out at Reagan, Callaway seemed to be disregarding the counsel of practically everybody else in the Ford political operation. But Callaway, a West Point graduate, was operating under orders from the Commander-in-Chief. That suggests President Ford is more stubborn in overruling advisers and more abrasive in his political style than is generally realized.

WHEN CALLAWAY outlined his plans for sniping at Reagan's record as governor of California at a recent Cabinet meeting, protests were heard from Treasury Secretary William Simon and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. "They thought they had Bo turned off and were amazed at what happened at Houston," says one administration insider.

Some high officials complained to the President about Callaway's anti-Reagan barrage at the Southern Republican Conference in Houston Dec. 12-13. Mr. Ford replied that Callaway was acting under presidential orders. Whatever everybody else thought, he went on, he felt Reagan's record ought to be explored and criticized.

The fact that Bo Callaway, not Jerry Ford, was in Houston also attests to a stubborn position taken by the President against overwhelming advice. When one particularly astute adviser urged Mr. Ford to attend, the President insisted he had to cut down on political travels. Could he begin cutting down on Dec. 14? No exceptions, replied Mr. Ford.

Robert Novak

Inside Report

LIKEWISE, Mr. Ford's decision to take his annual Christmas skiing vacation in Vail, Colo., reflects not only his family's wishes but his reaction to the mass of advice against going.

That advice came to him not as carefully thought out collective opinion from his Cabinet and staff together, but from individuals, each acting on his own without any coordination. It got under the presidential skin so deeply that he even changed an earlier plan to spend only four days on the slopes and will now stay one week.

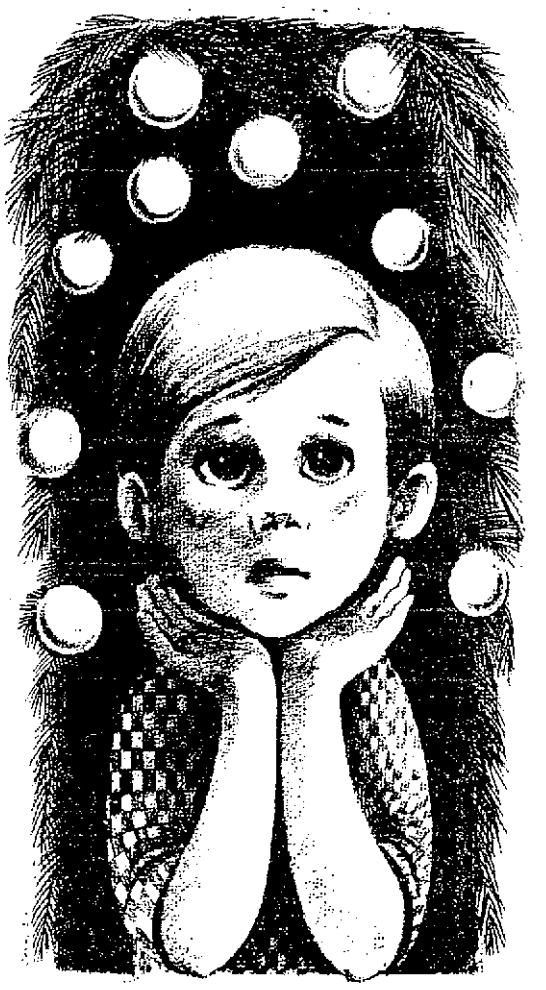

"I never realized how stubborn this man can be," one adviser confided.

REFUSAL OF the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to ease its hard line on Israel will trigger a series of anti-Arab vetoes by the United States during next month's Mideast peace talks in the United Nations Security Council.

This veto policy will damage the U.S. case in the Arab world, and perhaps in Western Europe, too. But top policy makers here think the rest of the world will be understanding during the 1976 presidential campaign year. Nobody expects U.S. diplomacy in the Mideast requiring public pressure on Israel until after the election.

Although President Ford forbade a veto of the U.N. resolution inviting the PLO to attend the Security Council talks, the United States insists on an end to basic Palestinian refusal to recognize Israel as an independent soverign state. The PLO rules out any such policy change between now and the U.N. talks in mid-January.

U.S. officials are privately pressuring Israel in many ways, including slow arms deliveries, to sit down with the PLO. But Secretary of State Henry Kissinger agrees with ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan that the United States must publicly side with Israel.

A VIP PAYS A VISIT Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravely Jr., the first black to reach that rank in the United States Navy, paid a visit to the Southern California Military Academy in Long Beach Friday and reviewed a dress parade of the Corps of Cadets. His wife, the former Alma Bernice Clark, was also a guest for the day. George V. Hurte, academy superintendent, was the host. Stores tighten security to combat shoplifting

Unlike stores such as Penney's, Sears Roebuck and Co. and Sav-On Drugs, where most of the shoplifting is done by youngsters, 70 per cent of the shoplifters caught at Buffums' are adults and nearly all of them are women.

In addition, Jeans said, all of the shoplifters his staff has caught in the downtown store during the past two months have had either money or credit cards they could have used to pay for the merchandise.

A spokesman for the Sears store in the Westminster Mall said 90 per cent of the adult shoplifters caught at his store have Sears credit cards. At least 50 per cent of all shoplifters caught at the store have enough cash with them to have paid for what they took.

Another problem security officers face is gangs of youthful shoplifters who "do it just for kicks."

Jeans said two gangs of teen-aged girls who had stolen thousands of dollars worth of merchandise from Long Beach-area stores have been broken up recently.

The girls in one of the gangs had to steal at least $1,000 worth of merchandise as part of their initiation and there were seven or eight in the gang, Jeans said.

Both gangs were broken up after members who had been caught shoplifting told officials about the others.

Keith Brown, manager of Sav-On Drugs, 400 Pine Ave., blamed the high prices caused by inflation for most of the increase in shoplifting at his store.

Brown said, "They steal because they can't afford to buy. They go after things they can sell, like small appliances, cosmetics and jewelry."

Although the shoplifters, themselves, are as different as the merchandise they steal and the reasons they give when caught, the one thing officials agree on is that shoplifting is a crime of opportunity.

Many shoplifters don't think about stealing something before they enter a store, one security officer said. "They just take it because it's there and they don't think they'll get caught."

Sam Rue, manager of Buffums' downtown store, said, "Shoplifting is everybody's responsibility. When something is stolen, everybody pays."

More than $3 billion worth of merchandise was shoplifted throughout the U.S. in 1974 and officials expect the total to rise by as much as 30 per cent this year.

And it's ultimately the consumers, not the stores, who will pay the bill.

Holidays alter traffic court night session

Long Beach Municipal Court's night sessions for traffic cases, regularly held on Wednesdays, will be held on Tuesday evenings for the next two weeks because of the holidays.

Presiding Judge Eugene Long stressed that the special sessions will be held on Dec. 23 and Dec. 30 only.

From 5 to 9 on those evenings, he said, Traffic Division offices will accept payments of fines.

Persons seeking a hearing on their traffic citations should report to the courthouse, 415 W. Ocean Blvd., no later than 6:30 p.m., he added.

POLICE BEAT

Slain girl discovered

The partially nude body of an unidentified girl in her mid-to-late teens was found sprawled on the patio behind a Carson industrial firm early Saturday.

Sheriff's deputies said employes reporting for work at the Intercraft Corp., 771 E. Watson Center Road, discovered the body in the industrial area just south of the San Diego Freeway at about 7:20 a.m.

They said an autopsy would be performed this morning to pinpoint the cause of death and asked for public assistance in determining the victim's identity.

Investigators described the victim as white, 16 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 90 to 100 pounds, with shoulder-length, reddish-brown hair and blue eyes.

They said the victim, nude from the waist up, was clad in denim Levis, light-colored, floral-print bikini underwear and blue deck shoes. She was wearing a copper, Indian-design bracelet on her right wrist.

Blaze guts Whittier home

A spectacular fire, punctuated by exploding automobile gasoline tanks, caused an estimated $65,000 damage to a Whittier home and garage early Saturday.

A county fire department spokesman said the blaze erupted in the house at 8205 Lindante Drive, at about 2:30 a.m. He said fire fighters from seven engine companies responded to the alarm and knocked down the blaze in about 20 minutes.

All occupants of the house were safely evacuated and no injuries were reported in the fire, which spread to the structure's roof and garage.

The spokesman said two cars and the garage were destroyed when the flames apparently touched off explosions in the vehicles' gasoline tanks.

Cause of the fire was under investigation.

Couple foils robbery try

A Lomita man and his wife foiled a robbery attempt by a female bandit Saturday afternoon at their stationery store, but not before the man got a minor gunshot wound during a struggle.

Lomita Sheriffs said the incident occurred at Woodman's Stationers, 2107 Pacific Coast Highway and left owner Harry Karlson with a slightly injured right hand.

Karlson's wife, Dorothy, told deputies she was alone in the store when a small, brown-haired woman entered, pointed a gun at her and demanded money. When she refused, the intruder threatened to get two friends she said were waiting for her in a car, according to reports.

However, Mrs. Karlson screamed for her husband who was in the upstairs office, and he rushed to her aid. During an ensuing struggle the gun discharged, grazing Karlson's hand, and the woman escaped.

Students 'taught to learn'

Learning is sometimes a problem for college and university students because they don't know how to learn, Denis J. Fenton, director of the Learning Assistance Resource Center at California State Universtity at Fullerton, said recently.

The center was set up two years ago and helps more than 3,000 students every month.

Much of the learning center's work is directed at freshmen and students from other cultures, Fenton said. But the attendance is increasing among veterans, women and older persons who have been away from the educational routine.

Many of them experience difficulty in adjusting to university life, Fenton said, and often find it difficult to follow the teaching style of some professors.

"Studies prove that many students, who might otherwise succeed, fail at the university because they lack basic 'learning how to learn' skills," Fenton said.

Tutorial assistance is provided for most of those appealing for help in their studies. Sometimes it is provided on a one-to-one basis.

But many students seem unable to cope with the university and its many agencies. They get help in this field of orientation, too, it was explained.

Dead man in oil field

The unidentified body of a middle-aged white male — who appeared to have been beaten — was found in the Terminal Island Oil Field about 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Long Beach police reported.

The discovery was made by an oil field worker.

There was no identification in the dead man's clothing, police said, adding that an autopsy is scheduled to determine the cause of death.

Tapes ruling awaited in trial of suspect in women's deaths

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The trial of Gerald Shill Jr. of San Pedro, charged with two murders for which prosecutors are seeking the death penalty, has opened in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Technically, it began more than a week ago when prosecutor Peter Bregman made his opening statement to Judge Jack Goertzen.

Defense attorneys, however, immediately challenged the validity of the prosecution's first evidence—a series of tape-recorded statements the 28-year-old Shill gave to investigators in October 1974.

THUS, the trial has been suspended while the judge conducts a special hearing to decide if the tapes will be considered as evidence.

During the evidence hearing, witnesses—including police officers and, on Friday, the defendant himself—have testified. And the court has listened to the tapes.

Prosecutors Bregman and John Bax contend they're legally binding confessions to some of the crimes Shill is charged with committing.

BESIDES the two murder counts, Shill faces charges that include two sex crimes, attempted murder and assault. They stem from a series of attacks on Southland women in the summer and fall of 1974.

Defense attorneys Edward George and Anthony Murray contend the tapes hold illegally acquired statements, the involuntary remarks of an unwitting prisoner to investigators.

Shill originally was arrested in connection with a hatchet assault on a young woman in Signal Hill. But the case mushroomed when interviews with Shill and a continuing investigation linked him with other crimes, police said.

In his testimony Friday —strictly limited to the question of whether he talked with police voluntarily—Shill gave his account of his arrest the night of Oct. 11, 1974, and his first days as a prisoner in the Signal Hill jail.

SHILL testified simply and conversationally that Signal Hill investigators Jon Ohman and Frank McCoy advised him of his rights at the time of his arrest, but that they insisted on interviewing him before he was allowed to see an attorney.

Those officers have testified that Shill acknowledged he understood his rights—including the right to see an attorney before talking—and waived them, allowing them to go ahead with the interviews.

On the first tape played in court, Shill acknowledges the hatchet assault on a Long Beach college coed—the climax to a night of heavy drinking, a desultory, fruitless search for a prostitute and a minor traffic accident with the coed's car.

Striking the young woman with the hatchet's blade was an accident, he tells investigators—he struck the blow in a moment of apparent panic, but only intended to stun her with the hatchet's blunt butt.

"IT HAS been eating me alive ever since it happened," he states on the tape.

The young woman survived that incident.

On a subsequent tape of an interview with investigators from Irvine, Shill is asked about a Long Beach woman, identified as a prostitute, named Bonnie Faye Davis.

In September 1974 her body was found in Irvine.

On the tape, Shill initially denies knowing about the woman's death.

DET. STEPHEN Nash at that point showed the defendant a photo of the woman, he has testified. And at that moment on the tape, he asks a point-blank question: "Is that the woman you shot in the head?"

Shill answers: "I don't know."

Nash seizes on that: "OK, did you shoot a woman in the head? A prostitute?"

"I believe I did," Shill responds.

Like the other prosecution tapes, the validity of the one recording that exchange remains to be decided by Goertzen.

Attorneys in the case said Friday his rulings on the issue could come this week before court recesses for the Christmas holiday.

Dog owners warned on mailmen attacks

Owners of dogs who pose threats to mailmen may find themselves—and their entire street—without mail delivery service, Norwalk Postmaster Harry H. McGannon warns.

He issued the warning as Homer Norris, Norwalk letter carrier, was convalescing at his home from serious arm and head wounds suffered when he was attacked by a large Doberman-type dog Nov. 24.

The 6-foot, 185-pound mailman spent seven days in the hospital after doctors found the dog had gnawed Norris' left arm nearly to the bone and caused other injuries to his head and right arm. Norris said Saturday he had no idea when he would be able to return to work.

However, he said, "I'm glad it was me the dog mauled instead of a small child, because a child would have been killed by the attack." He added, "I first saw the animal springing through the air and I can't remember how I fought the dog off. Finally, a neighbor came to my aid."

McGannon said the Postal Service has strict regulations concerning interference by animals.

He pointed out that both city and state laws explicitly hold owners liable for personal injury and or property damages.

Drawing contest to mark Freedom Train's L.B. visit

A drawing and painting contest for Long Beach youngsters to welcome the Bicentennial Freedom Train to Long Beach on Jan. 7 has been announced by the Recreation Department.

To celebrate the arrival of the touring 25-car historical train, children from 6 through 12 are being asked to paint or draw a picture on the theme "What freedom means to me."

The paintings should be at least 8½ by 11 inches or larger and must be submitted to the department office at 155 Queens Way Landing by Dec. 31, according to contest rules.

The judge will be Dolores Barrows, an assistant for education at the Long Beach Museum of Art.

The seven winners will breakfast with Mayor Thomas J. Clark and be taken on a special tour of the train.

The train began its cross-country tour in April and will visit 80 cities. It will stop on Pier J while in Long Beach.

All entries will be displayed in the department's office.

Secret Witness

Selected cases, rewards

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 57 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $38,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the selected and varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 59-year-old David E. Smith of Downey, shot to death during a holdup at Lucy's Restaurant, 5096 Long Beach Blvd., shortly before 2 a.m. on Nov. 24, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the torch slayer of Alice Olay, 52, of Downey, whose charred body was found in a blazing auto in a lot at Pioneer Boulevard and Rosecrans Avenue in Norwalk early on the morning of Sept. 19, 1975.

—A $1,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and manslaughter conviction of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Myrtle Taylor, 88, of Gardena, as she was crossing Vermont Avenue at 149th Street in Gardena at 7:15 p.m. on Oct. 24, 1975. The driver was described by witnesses as a tall, thin black man about 30 years old, driving a 1969 Chevrolet Impala or Caprice, blue with a matching vinyl top.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Robert L. Boone, 28, of Long Beach, who was found shot to death in a Signal Hill field at 23rd Street and Junipero Avenue on the morning of Aug. 18, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the holdup slayer of Benjamin Wallace, 48-year-old San Pedro taxi driver who was found shot to death and slumped over the wheel of his cab parked at Seaside Avenue and Terminal Way on Terminal Island at 3 a.m. on Sunday, Aug. 3, 1975.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and arson conviction of the person who started a fire and turned on gas jets in an attempt to blow up or burn Le Premiere restaurant, 430 E. Ocean Blvd., in the early-morning hours of Aug. 25, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of James Hamilton Macgenn, 50-year-old employe of King's Imperial Restaurant in Lynwood at 1004 Atlantic Ave., stabbed to death in the restaurant parking lot as he was leaving work at 3:30 a.m. on June 1, 1975.

—Rewards totaling $3,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $1,500 pledged by store owner Christopher Saunders — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Duane Fettig, 29-year-old clerk shot to death during a holdup at the Melody Liquor Store, 20716 S. Normandie Ave. in the Torrance area, on the morning of Feb. 5, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Wayne W. Chiodo, 45-year-old liquor store owner shot to death during a holdup at the Willowma Liquors, 425 W. Willow St., by two armed robbers on Dec. 29, 1974.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of Douglas Lee Thompson, 23-year-old fugitive from a murder warrant in connection with the holdup slaying of David W. Arouette in his television repair shop at 6465 Long Beach Blvd. on Dec. 30, 1973, with an additional reward of $1,500 to be paid when and if Thompson is convicted of the murder.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself . . . any name, as long as it's not your own . . . and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

Burglars who pried a door to enter the Mexico City Restaurant, 1147 South St., ransacked the office and took a revolver valued at $134 and $6 in cash, Long Beach police reported Saturday.

THERE ARE SUCH THINGS...

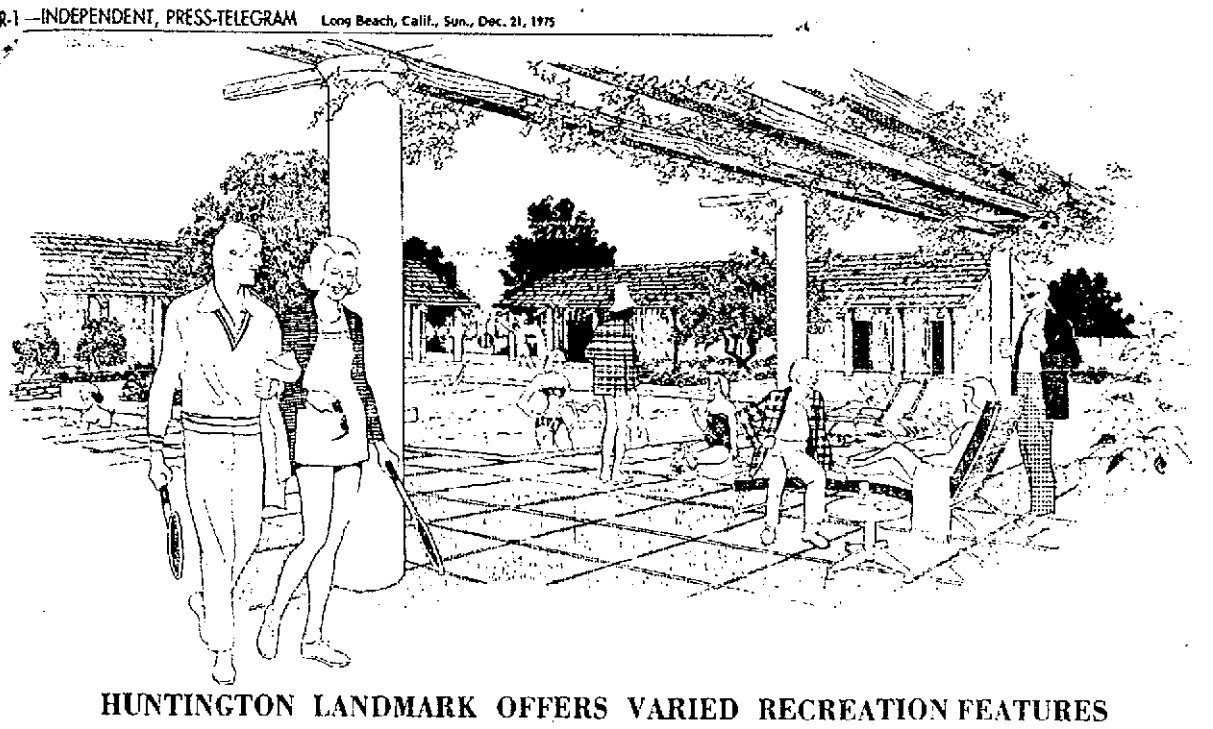

. . . and many of them never lose their value nor their appeal

For example, the trumpet your youngster never really enjoyed playing will gladden the heart of a more musically inclined child. And the camera you've since replaced with a more sophisticated model could be the start of some other family's treasured photo album. There are dozens of such items . . . many of which you may now be storing in your home . . . that other families would love to own. Make it happen! Advertise those items for sale with a low-cost Classified Ad. You'll enjoy the extra cash resulting from the sale and your buyer will enjoy being able to purchase these things at less than today's high prices for a brand new item. Owner insurance plan worked out

By BOB HEISLER
Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA — If you can afford it, there's a way to pay once for homeowners insurance that lasts as long as you own your home. Or your children own it. Or their children.

It's called perpetual insurance. The people who offer the policy — The Green Tree — are careful to say buying the insurance is an investment and should not send you into debt.

Green Tree — also known as Philadelphia's Mutual Assurance Co. for insuring houses from loss by fire — will start selling the policies next month, but they've had some practice in perpetual insurance.

ALL THEIR fire insurance business is on a perpetual basis. Green Tree has been doing it for 191 years. Some policies are more than 100 years old.

Green Tree President David Wilmerding Jr., says regular liability and contents coverage is included in the new homeowner's plan.

It's works:

Say you own a $20,000 home. You can insure it the old way by paying annual premiums on a "term policy." This premium can be raised when the insurance is renewed. If you cancel, you have invested only those yearly payments of, let's say $100 a year.

Perpetual insurance, on the other hand, is based on paying the equivalent of about 20 years of the annual premiums all at once. If you would pay $100 a year for insurance, you would need about $2,000 for a perpetual policy.

BUT FOR this investment, you would have insurance on your home for as long as you own it. If you ever sell the property, all the $2,000 is returned.

If your home is destroyed, you collect on the policy and get back your $2,000.

Meanwhile, the company invests your larger chunk of money and hopes to earn enough to pay for all the claims against it.

Wilmerding said his fire insurance division had made so much money from investing those deposits that the policy is paid back to a holder in 15 years in dividends. Further dividends, then, are pure profit.

Homeowner's insurance will not pay dividends — yet.

It will take a few years of lucky investments to create the same record for the new plan, he said.

Tax credit, 1974 prices at Landmark

The 5 per cent ($2,000) tax credit, plus the low 1974 prices are still in effect at Huntington Landmark reports sales director, Bill Markas.

According to Markas, a very noticeable increase in sales activity is being attributed to the (5 per cent) $2,000 tax credit program offered at the beach-close condominium homesite.

MARKAS reminded those interested in the tax credit savings that it is in effect only until Dec. 31. Eleven homes still remain in this second phase, and still at low, original prices, he continued.

Recreational amenities at Huntington Landmark include a swimming pool, hot water swirlpool bath, gymnasium, putting green, two tennis courts, and a paddle tennis court.

The condominium concept of carefree living is provided for residents with exterior maintenance, landscaping and care of the landscaped greenbelts and recreational facilities provided by a professional firm retained by the homeowner's association for a monthly fee. The completely walled community has a 24-hour security guarded entrance.

The all-adult nature of the community is preserved by the requirement that all residents be at least 40 years of age, except that one spouse of a married couple may be under 40 if the other is over 40.

PRICES within the community range from $32,990 to $37,990. Conventional financing is offered.

Prices include wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallway, and efficient forced air heating. Other features are walk-in closets in most models, deluxe-equipped all-electric kitchens, and utility rooms within each unit that include a washer-dryer.

"One of the reasons for the popularity enjoyed by this active adult group is the fabulous million dollar recreational center," Markas added.

A variety of recreational amenities are available in and around the complex he continued, whether the individual is seeking group or private activities.

Facilities for numerous activities are provided in a large clubhouse that features dining and card rooms, a billiard room, art studio, photo lab, pottery, wood shops and all purpose rooms.

Models are located at 8641 Atlanta Ave. The sales center is open daily from 10 a.m. and information may be obtained by calling (714) 536-8847.

Huntington Landmark is a project of Signal Landmark Properties Inc., one of the Signal Companies.

THE COMPLEX may be reached from the San Diego Freeway by taking either Magnolia Street or Beach Boulevard, south to Atlanta. From the Pacific Coast Highway, take Beach Boulevard, north to Atlanta.

Bolsa Chica showing five remaining units

While just five units remain visitors are advised to view the Landmark home community as soon as possible according to sales manager Bill Walker.

According to Walker, the Landmark Homes, Bolsa Chica homesite is the areas most complete new home package, and 1975 prices are still in effect on the units.

FEATURES included in the purchase price are shag carpeting in the living room, master bedroom suite, hall and stairway; forced air gas heating units; rear and side yard fencing with gate; concrete driveways; shake roofs; and deluxe-equipped kitchens with continuous cleaning double ovens.

Also included is a new porcelain lined deluxe dishwasher, and luminous kitchen ceilings. All plans feature roomy pantries.

All fireplaces are natural wood burning with gas outlets. The bathrooms are equipped with showers over all tubs, while some have separate shower stalls with full height ceramic tile walls.

They also feature marbelene pullmans, custom hardware and tubs of long lasting pressed steel.

THE HOMES are located in Huntington Beach on the southwest corner of Talbert and Edwards Street, between Warner Avenue and Garfield Street.

They are priced at $64,900 with conventional financing. The choice of exteriors gives the project a near custom home appearance and avoids the monotony which afflicts some new home developments.

House-of-the-Week specials are available.

"The overall attraction of the community is greatly enhanced by its choice location, less than 1 mile from the beach," Walker said.

"Off shore breezes make Huntington Beach one of the few comparatively smog free locations left in this area," he pointed out.

"And the city is now one of the fastest growing communities in the entire country."

For information phone (714) 842-7497.

Lake Summit extols price

According to Walker & Lee, prices at Lake Summit represent the lowest prices for single family, individual patio homes available anywhere in Anaheim Hills. The prices, according to the sales counselors, range from $50,900.

Terry O'Neill, Walker & Lee sales manager explained that Lake Summit are individual, single family patio homes on their own lots, with NO COMMON WALLS shared by a neighboring unit. They are NOT condominiums, townhomes townhouses or apartment homes.

Offered are three and four bedroom to 2½ bath single-family, spectacular view patio homes in a master planned community. Lake Summit is the newest collection of single family homes to open in such a hill-top, view oriented location. A choice of four one and two story floor plan arrangements with 12 exterior stylings are available.

LAKE SUMMIT homes introduce the exciting "zero side yard" concept to this exclusive, energy-saving location.

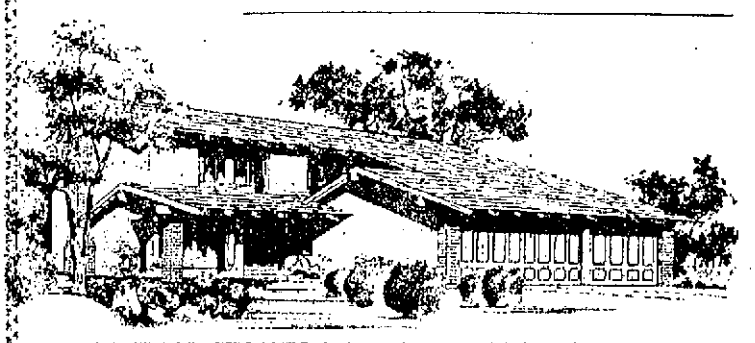

Walker & Lee also advised visitors to compare for themselves the quality evident in each Lake Summit home with any other fine area home. Lake Summit is the latest housing development of S.I.R. Developers Inc., developers who have built and sold homes of quality to Southern California families since 1955.

Features included in all homes are continuous cleaning gas range and ovens, trash compactors, dishwashers and disposals, luminous ceilings, custom oak cabinets with "rarely found" custom rollers and door guides, pass-thru patio windows, roomy built-in pantries, carpeting through-out, wood burning fireplaces, automatic garage door openers, wood shake roofs, concrete drives and walks and complete fencing.

Community facilities include swimming pool and cabana, swirlpool jacuzzi bath, regulation tennis court, and full professional landscaping and maintenance.

At Serrano turn left to Lake Summit Drive and Lake Summit homes. Models are open daily from 10 a.m. For advance information phone (714) 998-7450.

What's Your Problem?

Selling home on contract is no riskier than renting

What's involved in that curious business known as a "sale"? Well, it can be as simple as walking into the drug store and slapping down a dollar for a girlie magazine — or as complex as wading through a 150-page legal document in the presence of a dozen lawyers to buy control of a huge apartment complex.

It boils down to the same thing: The transfer of ownership of and title to property from one party to another, for a price.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I've owned, and rented out, a nice three-bedroom house for the past few years. The present tenants are a nice young couple who would like very much to buy it. He's the son of an old friend, and I'd like to oblige them — since the house hasn't been all that good as an investment, anyway — but the trouble is that, like most young couples today, they don't have a cent toward a downpayment.

The boy's father has suggested that I sell the house to them on contract. As I understand this, the title would remain in my name until the equivalent of a good downpayment has been made in monthly installments, like rent, and that I could evict this couple if they don't make good on it.

I was about to agree to this when another friend told me that getting a contract buyer out of the property if he defaults can be a long, time-consuming business and that he can "squat" there without making any payments for many, many months.

I trust this young couple, but I really don't know much about them. Is my friend's warning justified? Mr. W. F. P., Long Beach.

ANSWER: Your friend's warning has an element of validity in it since the person buying the home on contract has a bit more of a stake in the property than a mere renter does. But, how much of a stake will depend largely on how much equity he has in it.

Normally, that is, if he has 20 per cent (or less) equity in the home, he can be evicted for defaulting on his obligations in about 30 days — which, in most places, is just about as long as it takes to get a delinquent renter out, too.

At the 20 per cent mark, his sincerity in owning the property is pretty well established and, rightfully I think, he has a much greater stake in it.

Between 20 and 39 per cent equity it will take about 60 days to get him out and, with an equity in the 39 to 49 per cent range, the eviction for default normally takes 120 days. If he has 50 per cent or more equity in the property, then it can take up to nine months.

As you can see, the risk isn't really too great. Until your young friend and his wife have pretty well proved their ability to handle this kind of responsibility, it wouldn't be any harder to get them out of your house than it would be right now while they're still renting. They sound like a pretty fair bet to me.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We bought a house on a corner lot this past spring, and I never knew before how near-impossible it is to maintain a nice lawn on a corner lot — every kid in the neighborhood and a lot of adults, too, take a short-cut right across my poor lawn.

We are thinking of putting up a picket fence but, since our lawn extends all the way out to the street (no sidewalk), how close to the street can we put it? Is there some sort of precise distance that we have to pay attention to? Mrs. V. B. A., San Diego.

ANSWER: An alligator-filled moat doesn't sound like a bad idea, either.

Actually, how far back from the street a fence must be set will vary widely from city to city, and there's no way of knowing what your own local regulation is without calling your street department.

An implied easement — three feet is common — is practically universal and there are normally other considerations, too, such as those having to do with access to fire hydrants, storm sewers and so on.

In the average city, there usually isn't much quibbling over this sort of thing unless the homeowner tries to include the street-guttering in his little domain.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My broker recently sold a piece of real estate for me and, as is usual, the buyer gave me "earnest" money, $1,000, in the form of a personal check. Shortly after this I had to turn down two additional offers on the property — one of them for more than my original agreement. Finally, my buyer backed out of the deal.

I took it for granted, and so did my broker, that the $1,000 was mine and that the buyer forfeited it by dropping out of the deal. When I tried to deposit the check, though, I found out that my "buyer" had stopped payment on it.

My broker says that he doesn't think there's anything I can do about it, but it's made me pretty mad since I did turn down two later offers for it. Mr. G. G. K., Levittown, Pa.

ANSWER: And mad you should be. Call your lawyer and have him contact your would-be buyer about a few facts of real estate life.

SANTA'S GIFT LIST

Something special for TV stars? It's in the bag

By BOB MARTIN

SANDY HILL

HENRY WINKLER

DEAR SANTA: Be a pal and deliver the following gifts to celebrities I've had the pleasure of chatting with in 1975 . . .

Don Adams — Barbara Feldon. And his very own screen test.

Denise Alexander — some prime time for a soap opera star in her prime.

Barbara Bain — a network landing for her spaceship.

Richard Castellano — a villain role offer he can't refuse. And a godfather for his two TV sons, now that they're leaving the tube.

William Christopher — a role as a bad guy, or least as a Protestant.

Jimmy Connors — singing and acting lessons.

Gretchen Corbett — more to do on "The Rockford Files."

Clifton Davis — a home away from Mama.

KEVIN DOBSON — a Crocker bank. Or a hot tip on Telly's racehorse.

Susan Dey — a partridge in a pear tree.

Cliff DeYoung — sunshine. And a hit with his TV role as Charles Lindbergh.

Bruce Fairbairn — a special package from Michael Ontkean.

Mike Farrell — a special package from Wayne Rogers and McLean Stevenson.

Melinda Fee — fi, fo, fum. And a man with some substance to him.

Pat Finley — a Hartley family reunion on Bob Newhart's show.

Rosemary Forsyth — a role as David Janssen's girlfriend on "Harry O."

BOB FULLER — a brush salesman's job, so he'll face fewer emergencies.

Julie Harris — a TV series worthy of her talent.

Ray Heatherton — daughter Joey to sing to at Christmas. And his old job at the bank.

Florence Henderson — a holiday reunion with the Brady bunch.

Sandy Hill — Ken and Barbie dolls with pins stuck in them, to send to her detractors.

Mitzi Hoag — a series to help her get by, now that "We'll Get By" didn't get by.

Oscar Homolka — eyebrow clippers.

BOB HOPE — a toy Texaco truck, fewer commercials and more specials for a very special guy.

Susan Howard — a feast of goodies from Texas, including barbecued ribs, fried okra, black-eyed peas, pecan pie and fruit cake.

Barnard Hughes — lower malpractice insurance rates.

Jim Hutton — a guest role on Peter Falk's show in which he, as Ellery Queen, solves a whodunit that stumps Columbo.

Dennis James — an autographed picture of Monty Hall.

Perry King — a TV drama with Henry Winkler, his contemporary at Yale, in which both portray sophisticated and gentlemanly college graduates.

MARTIN LANDAU — a trip to the moon. . .with Barbara, of course.

Manhattan Transfer (Alan Paul, Laurel Masse, Janis Siegel, Tim Hauser) — a summer TV special with Gladys Knight & the Pips, Ben Vereen, Jim Stafford, Dick Cavett and Joey & Dad.

Joe Morton — some better "Grady" scripts. Or a return to Broadway.

Helen O'Connell — a "Tangerine."

LaWanda Page — a new purse, to swing at Sanford.

Mackenzie Phillips — a TV singing appearance with her dad, John Phillips, formerly of the Mamas and the Papas.

WAYNE ROGERS — a month's vacation in Korea, with McLean Stevenson.

George Demosthenes Savalas — his brother's weekly paycheck.

John Schuck — a date with McMillan's wife.

Joan Tetzel — a framed copy of the Life magazine cover on which her picture once appeared.

Liz Torres — a double date with Phyllis.

Marcia Wallace — a coffee maker.

Dennis Weaver and Sandy Duncan — another Opryland U.S.A. special (if I can go along).

Mark Wilson — autographed photos of Uri Geller and Doug Henning that won't bend or disappear.

Henry Winkler — a motorcycle, a leather jacket, a dozen bottles of greasy kid stuff . . . and Fonzie's luck with the dames.

Carmen Zapata — word that her "Viva Valdez" comedy series will reach the air.

Henning bringing magic to the tube

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Doug Henning, the star magician-actor in a Broadway hit called "The Magic Show," has a trick we've seen him do from less than 10 feet away and still can't figure out.

He and an aide gently put a lady horizontally on the tips of five or so tall, sharp swords. They remove all the swords, save one at the base of her neck. But she doesn't fall down or even cry "Ouch!"

So we asked Henning how he'd react if someone seriously offered him $1 million in cash to explain how he accomplishes the sword trick.

"I WOULDN'T do it," said Henning, who will do an NBC special called "The World of Magic" Friday night from Los Angeles. He proceeded to explain why he wouldn't reveal the secret of the sword and other tricks.

"For one thing, money isn't that important to me," said Henning, a short, lean, long-haired lad of 28 who appears to be one of the last cheerful survivors of the Age of Aquarius.

"If I have enough money to perform and to live and be happy, that's all that counts. For another thing, the secrets are really important. Some of my friends think I'm a bit of a fanatic about it.

"But it's not because I want to keep it from them, or that it's an 'I-know-something-they-don't' thing. It's because when you (meaning nonmagicians) know the secret the wonder is gone.

"And my purpose as a magician is to create wonder. You can't get that from anything else, really."

HENNING, born in Winnipeg, Canada, and raised in Toronto, has been creating wonder since he was 9, the first feat being a penny magically transferred from a handkerchief to a small box.

He has starred in "The Magic Show" on Broadway since it opened in May 1974 with the help of friends, financial backers and the reputation of his first theater show. That show had a similar theme — acting, magic and music — and played in Toronto under the title "Spellbound."

Henning may be the first magician to hold a degree in physiological psychology. He said he earned it while working his way through McMaster University in Toronto.

THAT particular course of study, he added, concerns human perception — sight, sound and the like — "which is all related to magic." Which is why he studied it.

Henning, who was 6 when he saw his first magic act — a levitated girl trick on the old "Ed Sullivan Show" on TV — said he feels that TV doesn't present magic properly. But he hopes to correct that.

"I've created five illusions specifically for television," he said. They'll be seen in his NBC show, in which a handheld camera will be used extensively to give viewers a close look at his hocus-pocus.

"IT'LL BE better than watching it on a stage," he said.

Alas, none of the illusions in "The Magic Show" will be used in the NBC special, not even the lady-on-a-sword trick he won't explain to anyone even if they offer him a cool million in cash.

"What about explaining it for free?" we asked.

Doug Henning, master magician, just sat there and grinned.

MAGICIAN DOUG HENNING, star of Broadway's "The Magic Show," brings his skills to television Friday night, from 8 to 9 on Ch. 4, on the "World of Magic" special. Sharing the stage with him will be Orson Welles (in the cape), Bill Cosby (part of him in the box), Julie Newmar, Lori Lieberman, Japanese magician Shimada and assorted animals. Henning will attempt to duplicate Harry Houdini's famous water-torture escape feat.

The BIBLE Says

J.T Smith

IS CHRISTMAS CHRIST'S BIRTHDAY?

"Christmas time" is almost here. A great deal of advertising is being done about "Christmas," mostly by those who have merchandise for sale; but nevertheless the "signs" are everywhere. There are two questions I want us to consider regarding "Christmas." (1) Where did Christmas originate? and (2) Who authorized it?

The Bible does not give the date of Christ's birth. In fact, it is the unanimous consensus of historians that December 25th is not the birthdate of Jesus. Albert Barnes, a noted Presbyterian commentator says in his comments on this subject basically what every historian says. With reference to shepherds keeping their sheep in the field: "The climate was mild, and to keep their flocks from straying, they spent the night with them. It is also a fact that the Jews sent out their flocks into the mountainous and desert regions during the summer months, and took them up in the latter part of October or the first part of November, when the cold weather commenced. It is probable from this that our Saviour was born before the 25th of December, or before what we call Christmas. At that time it was cold, and especially in the high and mountainous regions about Bethlehem. But the exact time of His birth is unknown; there is no way to ascertain it."

Where did this practice of "Christmas" begin? Liberius, Bishop of Rome in 354 A.D. ordered that December 25th be adopted. The name is derived from the medieval Christes Masse, the Mass of Christ. The Catholics had a special "mass" (their corruption of the Lord's Supper) for Christ and so they called it "Christ-Mass." Later it was shortened to "Christmas." Thus the reason for true Christians not celebrating "Christmas" as a religious holy day. The Bible didn't authorize it — the Roman Catholic Church did.

Ustinov in talk at LBCC

PETER USTINOV . . . as he addressed theater group at Long Beach City College.

"The best acting training is the voyage of discovering yourself. Training is learning about yourself and your potential," said stage-screen-TV actor Peter Ustinov to a Long Beach City College audience.

Ustinov's recent appearance was sponsored by the LBCC theater arts and film programs which, according to film program director Shashin Desai, attempt to bridge the gap between professionals and students by sharing experiences.

In his 90-minute talk to students, instructors and members of the community, Ustinov related anecdotes about his own training and acting background, which resulted in two Academy Awards for the 54-year-old British actor, director, playwright and novelist.

Ustinov began his career in England during the late 1930s. "I started when the war was on," he said, "I was 18 and preparing to be an actor. I wrote plays and produced them while I was in the British Army. My reputation was as a writer, not a private, since I was unsuited for the role.

"DURING THE war I met Carol Reed, Eric Ambler, and David Niven. I was Col. Niven's orderly, and, when a general was around, I'd pretend to be polishing Niven's belt.

"I was sent to Scotland to film a movie on commando techniques. The techniques changed so fast that the film was always out of date and it took the army a year to notice."

Ustinov's military career included testing underwear after the army deemed him unfit to write films. "Thank goodness it was the army and not the filmmakers who were of that opinion," Ustinov said.

He described his first acting role at school as "a nymph trying to lure Ulysses onto the rocks. I didn't even succeed."

His first professional role was as an elderly man in an early version of "Uncle Vanya." Said the actor: "I had one line out of every 40. Can't say I really enjoyed it. I was terribly nervous waiting for my part, sort of like the man playing the triangle in the symphony orchestra."

In response to a question about where theater arts students should train, Ustinov said, "Drama schools are useful because they fill a period in one's life. In point of fact, when you eventually feel sure of yourself, acting is rather simple, but it's difficult to practice.

"You can't sit in a room and practice acting. You are better off sitting in the street and watching people. It's possible to train your intelligence to respond to instinct."

LIFE SAVER

PYR-A-LARM

SMOKE AND FIRE DETECTOR

It's the GUARDION from Pyr-A-Larm, the electronic fire detector that can sound the alarm at the first sign of a fire in your home. And it can save your life. Using an advanced ion-detection principle, the GUARDION can sound the alert even before there is visible smoke or flame. When products of combustion enter its ion chamber, they trigger an alarm that can be heard through closed doors. Here is reliable, low-cost fire protection for your family. And it's so easy to install that it can be protecting your loved ones before they go to bed tonight. Come in and see it today.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan—are both of these politicians millionaires?—Sue Roberts, Alexandria, Va.

A. Reagan is a millionaire. Ford is not.

Q. Isn't playwright Tennessee Williams capitalizing on his homosexuality now that it's become so fashionable to be gay?—Elaine Rich, New Orleans.

A. Tennessee Williams, whose "Memoirs" was recently published, explains, "I never considered my homosexuality as anything to be disguised. Neither did I consider it a matter to be overemphasized. I consider it an accident of nature."

Q. Now that some of the smoke has cleared, what is the real reason President Ford fired James Schlesinger, his ex-Secretary of Defense?—Steven Deutsch, Los Angeles.

A. One truth is that Ford never liked Schlesinger. Schlesinger gets along beautifully with birds, but as regards humans, he declines frequently to descend from his high perch. Reportedly Ford found Schlesinger professorial, arrogant, pompous, argumentative, pedantic, and pejorative. Schlesinger is by background an intellectual, Ford a politican. In firing Schlesinger, Ford fired one of the two best minds in his Cabinet and Kissinger's leading Cabinet antagonist. Ford finds Kissinger's personality agreeable. Ford is attracted to agreeable personalities, which is why he named George Bush to replace William Colby as Director of Intelligence.

Q. The story that Princess Caroline of Monaco, Grace Kelly's 18-year-old, has been admitted to Princeton's freshman class next year—is that one true?—Ken Fisher, Oak Park, Ill.

A. Not true.

PRINCESS CAROLINE OF MONACO

HUMPHREY

Q. How good are the chances of a Hubert Humphrey-Jimmy Carter Democratic ticket for 1976?—F. Sande, Eugene, Oreg.

A. At this writing, Humphrey and Carter seem to be the front-runners, but it is still far too early to tell.

CARTER

Q. How old is former heavyweight champ Jack Dempsey, surely 85? Isn't he cancer-stricken?—Helen Koenig, Newark, N.J.

A. Jack Dempsey is 80. Recently he underwent a series of diagnostic tests at New York University Hospital. His family asked that the diagnosis not be made public. In the U.S. every fourth person dies of cancer.

Q. Justice William Douglas, who retired from the U.S. Supreme Court—didn't he for years engage in a violent feud with the late Justice Felix Frankfurter? Some background, please.—David Wetherley, Syracuse, N.Y.

A. Douglas and Frankfurter feuded, but there was nothing violent about it. They simply stopped talking to each other. Frankfurter believed deeply in the supremacy of the state, Douglas in the supremacy of the individual. To Douglas nothing ideologically has been more important than the American heritage of individual freedom. "The First Amendment," he wrote in one of his opinions, "is couched in absolute terms—freedom of speech shall not be abridged."

Q. For years, officials and lobbyists of the Gulf Oil Corp. made illegal campaign gifts or delivered money to such federal politicians as Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Hugh Scott, Hubert Humphrey, William Brock, Howard Cannon and others. My question: Is the Justice Department going to try to send such officials to jail?—H. T., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. On the basis of past performance, the answer is probably not.

Q. Who is the man who originated Dracula?—Clarence Hunt, Roxbury, Mass.

A. English author Bram Stoker, who died in 1912, penned "Dracula" in 1897. Stoker was a theater manager in London at the turn of the century. He wrote 18 books but is most remembered for "Dracula." He was a friend of Theodore Roosevelt, Alfred Lord Tennyson, Ellen Terry, and many of the celebrities of his day. His nephew, Daniel Farson, who has written a book about Stoker, "The Man Who Wrote Dracula," believes his uncle was a schizophrenic.

EDMONDE CHARLES-ROUX AND HUSBAND GASTON DEFFERRE

Q. When I was in Paris recently I was told that the great French love affair of the hour was between Charles Roux and Gaston Defferre. I know Defferre is the mayor of Marseilles, but I never heard of the other fellow. Can you help?—D. L., Stonington, Conn.

A. "The other fellow" is an attractive, elegant, sophisticated woman of 55 whose full name is Edmonde Charles-Roux, and she has been Defferre's wife since 1973. She is a former editor of the French edition of "Vogue" and winner of France's leading literary award, the "Prix Goncourt," for her novel, "To Forget Palermo." She also wrote the biography of Coco Chanel, the dress designer. Gaston Defferre, 65, a Resistance hero in World War II, is head of the Socialist bloc in the French National Assembly. He fell in love with Edmonde Charles-Roux in 1966 when he held a reception in her honor. She, too, is from Marseilles. Defferre was married at the time. It took him six years to arrange a divorce from his wife, a Dutch woman, Paly Swaters, he had married in 1946. The divorce did not affect his political career. He is still the Protestant mayor of Marseilles. Edmonde Charles-Roux is Catholic.

ROCK AND ROLL POLITICS The "rock concert" is becoming a major source of campaign revenue for 1976 political races.

Ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, a Democratic Presidential contender, has landed Phil Walden of Capricorn Records and Bill Graham, the San Francisco rock promoter, in his camp. The Carter campaign to date has been the beneficiary of concerts by the Allman Brothers and the Marshall Tucker Band.

Under the new Federal Election Commission requirements, the name and address of every rock concert ticketholder must be recorded, but politicians don't mind so long as the concerts produce money.

One of the first politicians to employ the rock concert gimmick this year is Tom Hayden, husband of actress Jane Fonda. Hayden seeks to replace John Tunney as U.S. Senator from California. In September a benefit concert for Hayden in San Jose by Linda Ronstadt and Jackson Browne grossed almost $35,000.

NEW LOW Last year there were only seven reported cases of infantile paralysis in the U.S., the lowest figure on record.

This year, if no new cases are reported by the end of December, the number of poliomyelitis cases will be five.

There has not been a serious polio outbreak since 1970. By 1969, thanks to the Sabin oral vaccine, the number of paralytic cases of polio in this country dropped to 19. In 1970 the figure jumped to 32. Since then the figure has declined to the present level.

Should immunization programs be ignored, however, the disease could again strike.

It was Jonas Salk who developed the first vaccine in 1955 after John Enders, Frederick Robbins and Thomas Weller isolated the polio virus and reproduced it in tissue cultures.

LUGGAGE SECRETS Airlines now insist that passengers identify their luggage with tags or labels bearing name and address. The new regulation presents a problem. It makes it relatively simple for thieves to obtain names and addresses at the local airport.

Possible solution: use an office address on your luggage tag.

EMERGENCY CARE Emergency medicine is the newest addition to the medical profession's smorgasbord of specialties. During the past five years, 35 residency programs have sprung up in hospitals across the country to train physicians for full-time work in the emergency room. Nearly 100 doctors have been graduated from these three-year postgraduate programs and 240 currently are enrolled in them.

Traditionally, physicians have performed emergency room duty on a rotational basis. In recent years, however, there has been a trend toward physicians working exclusively in the emergency arena.

Most of the 15,000 doctors who man the nation's emergency rooms have been trained as specialists in fields ranging from cardiology to surgery. But the new breed of emergency physician is receiving a multidiscipline education which emphasizes the emergency aspects of such fields as surgery, psychiatry, pediatrics, gynecology and internal medicine.

"These men and women need to know how to handle acute care problems until the specialist comes," says Dr. John H. Stone, director of the new emergency medicine residency program at Emory University School of Medicine and Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta.

Changes in emergency care have spurred the move to specialization. The need for speedy treatment has gone beyond the walls of the hospital. "Over half the patients who have heart attacks die before they make it to the hospital," says Stone. "And 50,000 people die of trauma [injuries] every year." As he sees it, the emergency physician must help organize community-wide emergency systems, where teams of roving paramedics can provide on-the-spot care for accident and heart attack victims.

The emergency room physician has become the family doctor for many poor and middle-class families who turn to the hospital for help because they have nowhere else to go. The doctor in the emergency room is often a patient's first contact with the medical system.

PREDICTING EARTHQUAKES Is it possible to predict earthquakes? The Chinese think so.

Earlier this year they predicted a major earthquake in Liaoning Province, saved thousands of lives.

On Feb. 4th, at 2p.m.,to be exact, Chinese officials ordered the evacuation of two cities, Yingkow and Haicheng. Less than six hours later an earthquake struck both cities.

The Chinese based their forecast on a combination of seismological scientific observations and the reports of farmers who told about "strange animal behavior" and changes in the water level of wells.

BUSING FACT According to estimates of the National Institute of Education, 50.2% of America's 41.4 million public school children were bused to school last year. Of those 21 million bused children, only 7% were transported for desegregation purposes. Repeated studies show that school busing is more than three times safer than walking to school and is the nation's safest mode of transportation.

NASAL CONTRACEPTIVE A contraceptive nasal spray has been developed by scientists at the Medical Research Institute in New Delhi, India.

According to researchers, the hormones contained in the spray go directly to the area of the brain which regulates ovulation. The researchers have found that five inhalations per month prevent rhesus monkeys from becoming pregnant. No experiments have yet been conducted on human beings.

VEEP POSSIBILITIES According to veteran political observers, one of the five following men will be chosen by Gerald Ford as his running mate: Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense; Elliot Richardson, Secretary of Commerce; George Bush, Ford's nominee as Director of Intelligence; Sens. Howard Baker and William Brock of Tennessee. Unless, of course, Ronald Reagan changes his mind and is willing to play ball at second base.

INSOMNIA CURE Sex and tenderness are the best sleep-inducing aids, declares Dr. Raphael Lenne of Munich, Germany. In an interview published in "Medicine Today," Dr. Lenne denies that sex can replace sleeping pills.

"But," he explains, "the simple experience of being together can remove anxiety and have the calming effect of a narcotic."

Lenne says that instead of watching TV night after night, couples should agree to watch TV only three nights a week and spend the other nights "sharing body warmth, skin contact and caresses."

ORIENTAL BUNNIES Playboy Enterprises, in a bad way financially, is trying to make a dollar wherever it can. Hugh Hefner, in partnership with a Japanese company, plans to open a series of Playboy Clubs in Japan and possibly other Far Eastern countries. First Asian Playboy Club is scheduled to open in Tokyo next fall. There are thousands of bar girls in Japan, and competition won't be easy.

SADAT One of the most fascinating and lucky figures in the Middle East is Anwar El-Sadat, leader of Egypt, a slim, darkly handsome man of medium height who learned English and German in prison and lived for years in the shadow of the late Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Sadat was born in a village in the Nile Delta on Christmas Day, 1918. His father was a lowly civilian clerk in a military hospital. His mother was Sudanese, which is why Sadat is of coffee complexion.

The family was poor and devoutly Moslem. Sadat attended school in Cairo, and in 1936, when the Abbassis Military Academy was opened to the lower classes, he enrolled. One of his classmates was Gamal Abdel Nasser, 11 months his senior.

In 1938, following their graduation from the military academy, Sadat, Nasser and 10 other officers formed what Sadat describes in his autobiography, "Revolt on the Nile," as "a secret revolutionary society dedicated to the task of liberation."

During World War II, Sadat collaborated with Nazi spies in Cairo. He was arrested; court-martialed, dismissed from the Egyptian army and imprisoned for two years. In that period Sadat's family was supported by a $200-per-month contribution from Nasser and Sadat's fellow conspirators.

ANWAR SADAT AND WIFE GEHAN

Sadat escaped from detention camp in 1944, went into hiding, got a job in Cairo as a cab driver. On one occasion he planned to blow up the British Embassy, but Nasser dissuaded him. In 1946, however, when the war was over, Sadat engineered a series of terrorist attacks against pro-British officials. He was caught and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Freed in 1949, he went to work as a reporter for "Al Mussawar," Egypt's version of "Life" magazine.

He had friends in high places and subsequently got himself reinstated in the Egyptian army. There he conspired with Nasser and other officers to overthrow King Farouk.

On July 22, 1952, when Nasser staged a coup d'état, Sadat got the signals crossed and took his children to a Cairo cinema instead. Furious that he had missed this great, bloodless event, he raced to military headquarters where Nasser assigned him the job of announcing over the radio that the Free Officers Committee had taken control of Egypt. Sadat was also assigned the task of overseeing the departure of Farouk from Alexandria.

In 1969, when Nasser knew that he was dying, he named Sadat to the Vice Presidency, mainly because Sadat was the only army officer he felt he could trust. Nine months later Nasser suffered a fatal heart attack, and Sadat took over as President of the United Arab Republic.

He has remained in office since, because he is clever, because he engineered the Yom Kippur War of Oct. 6, 1973, restoring some self-respect to the impoverished Egyptians.

Sadat has been married twice. By his first wife, of whom no one speaks, he has three married daughters and a flock of grandchildren. By his current and second wife, Gehan, who is half English and heftily attractive, he has another three daughters and a son named Gamal.

In addition to his autobiography, Sadat is the author of a novel, "The Prince of the Island." It remains unpublished. By nature Sadat is a gambler. He is gambling that his friendship with the U.S. will keep him in office indefinitely. If the U.S. lets him down, he is out.

Betty Ford decorates a White House tree with homemade ornaments, in accord with family custom. At right, Christmas at Vail, Colo., with Gerald Ford and the children all set to ski.

The First Family and Christmas Memories

by Charles Peterson

COVER BY PETER SOUTHWICK

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The four children of Gerald and Betty Ford have always looked forward to Christmas as the one time in the year when they could be sure of seeing their peripatetic politician of a father.

During the quarter of a century Ford served as a Congressman from Michigan's 5th District he became so addicted to the chicken-and-mashed-potato circuit that he spent more than half his nights out of town. Thus, when he managed to make it home for Christmas, his sons used to joke following the Christmas dessert: "It's been nice seeing you, Dad. Hope you'll drop by again next year."

For countless years Gerald Ford's role of Father Christmas was played by his mother, Dorothy.

Christmas was her favorite holiday. She delighted in having her four sons, their wives, and her 14 grandchildren visit her in Grand Rapids, Mich. She was an expert knitter, and her Christmas gifts to the family invariably consisted of sweaters or doll clothes for the young girl grandchildren.

"My grandmother," recalls the President's son Jack, "also knitted Christmas stockings for everyone in the family. They were ornately decorated with sequins and bells and our names stitched on. One year she even knitted a stocking for my sister Susan's Tiny Tears doll.

"For my Dad she made an incredibly beautiful cloth which circles the base of our tree. It's decorated with old Ford and Ike buttons and other mementos which trace my Dad's political career."

Of her mother-in-law, who died in 1967, Betty Ford says, "She was so fond of Christmas that on the first of January she began planning for the next Christmas. If she had one present for us, she had 10—all individually wrapped and marked and ready by Thanksgiving."

Although the Fords bought a condominium in Vail, Colo., in 1968 where they have since spent their Christmases, the Ford family has continued many of the traditions begun by Dorothy Ford.

Before he was moved into the White House, Gerald Ford was responsible for selecting the family Christmas tree.

Touch the ceiling

"The Boss," which is what the three Ford boys call their father, always made certain that the tree was "tall enough to touch the ceiling." Ford and his sons were responsible for stringing the Christmas lights on the tree branches and around their house in Alexandria, Va. Betty Ford and daughter Susan unpacked the boxes of ornaments, including the star that sits atop the tree. "I bought that during World War II," Mrs. Ford recalls, "when ornaments were scarce."

In the old pre-Presidential days, Susan used to bake cookies and give them as gifts to the Ford neighbors in Alexandria. The boys used to decorate the windows of their house with spray snow and hang homemade paper wreaths, no matter how poorly done, on the front door. And as children they would always leave a glass of milk and cookies in front of the fireplace for Santa Claus. "When we'd get up in the morning," Jack Ford remembers, "the milk and cookies would have been eaten by our dog."

Some other Christmas memories of the Fords: "One year I got a doll," Susan recalls, "that had real blond hair. My brother Steve talked me into cutting it all off. The doll was bald. I was terribly upset. I tried to glue the hair back on. It wouldn't take. The boys howled."

Jack recalls a Christmas mishap of his own "I was given this terrific Roman gladiator's outfit. I liked it so much that I took it out to Grand Rapids to show it off to my relatives. When time came to return to Washington we were having so much fun at Grandma's house that we were late in leaving for the airport.

"We had to catch that plane because it was the last of only two flights a day out of nearby Traverse City for Washington.

"My father was racing to catch the plane and didn't have time to stop the car for my brother Mike, who'd gotten carsick. To keep Mike from throwing up all over the car, my mother made me give him my gladiator's helmet. He filled it up, and I could never wear that helmet again."

$1 gift limit

When the Ford children were growing up, Jerry Ford insisted that they buy Christmas gifts for one dollar or less. The young Fords observed the rule by making gifts for their parents. They didn't feel, however, that their parents should reciprocate in kind.

"As I look back," says Jack, "I don't think any of us was ever disappointed in Christmas. We used to look through toy catalogs and select 50 different possible gifts. That way, if we received just a few, we considered ourselves way ahead. Of course, Mom used to put school supplies in our stockings and this used to drive us crazy."

This year, like last, the Fords have to prepare two homes for Christmas — their borrowed Vail condominium and the White House. Last year the Ford Christmas tree in Colorado was chosen and decorated by a civic group called the Vail Association. The Fords had no time to do the job themselves. The tree was installed in the home of Dallas oilman Dick Bass, because the Ford's $60,000 condominium on the third floor was too small for the family and the Secret Service both.

Ski after breakfast

Despite their ages, the Ford children —Mike, 25; Jack, 23; Steve, 19; and Susan, 18—are still enthusiastic about Christmas, especially in Colorado, because they all enjoy skiing so much.

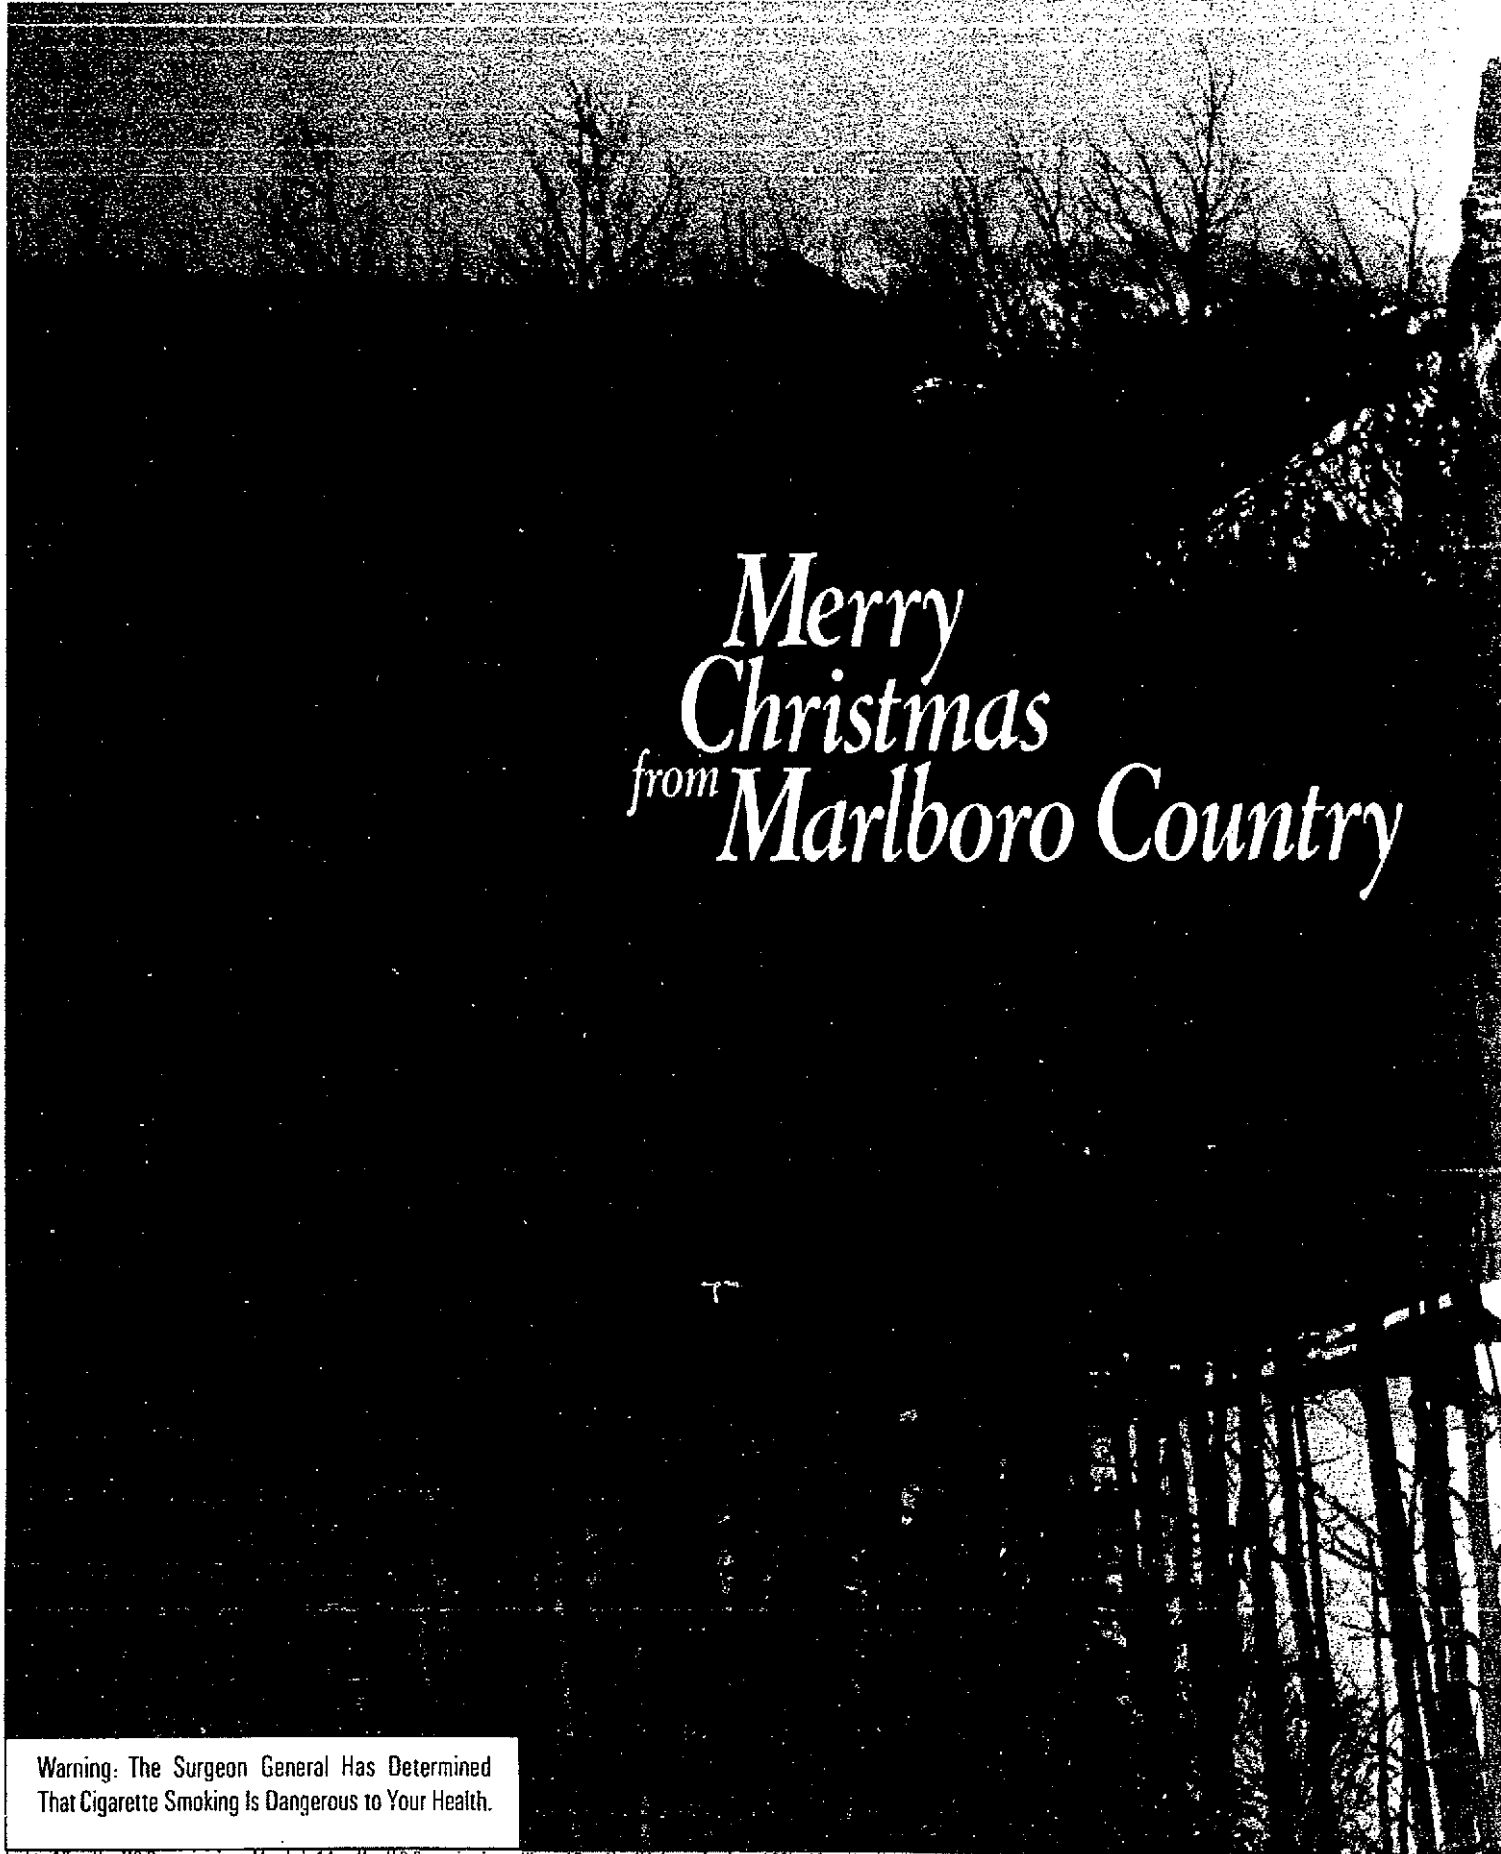

"After opening their gifts on Christmas morning," Mrs. Ford explains, "and gulping down their breakfast, the kids are off to the slopes, the President, being the oldest boy of all, leading the way."

The Fords basically observe a simple, folksy Christmas and always have. Their taste is reflected in the handmade, homemade Christmas ornaments which Betty Ford has chosen to decorate this year's White House tree.

All the trimmings were handcrafted and made of available inexpensive products such as acorns, peanuts, dried fruits, straw, pinecones, ribbons, and gaily colored scraps of fabric.

A view of Bethlehem from the top of the Church of the Nativity, which is all prepared to celebrate Christmas Mass. The Church is said to be built over Christ's Manger.

The sage Hana Burbara in the backyard of his house where townsfolk come to have him settle their disputes. He looks forward to his 77th Christmas in Bethlehem.

The Wise Old Man of Bethlehem

by George Michaelson

BETHLEHEM.

Hana Burbara is a "wise man" from Bethlehem, and this year he will celebrate his 77th Christmas here.

"From the time of the Turks right up until the present, I have spent every Christmas in this holy city," said the lively, devout septuagenarian as we sat beneath a pomegranate tree just outside the 400-year-old stone house. "There have been a lot of changes in our Christmas celebration over the years; some good, some bad. And if you want, I'll tell you a little about them. But one thing has stayed pretty much the same—me. Though I hobble a bit now, I still go to Christmas Mass as usual, and it's still a very special time for me."

Thus, this Wednesday, as midnight approaches, "wise man" Hana will again prepare to celebrate Christmas. (He got his reputation as a wise man—or "a modern-day Solomon," as one local official put it—because neighbors and people in surrounding villages come to him whenever there is a dispute to settle, and Hana, Solomon-like, settles it.)

As usual, Hana will don his long, flowing robe, take his olive-wood cane, and walk the half-mile up the winding lane from his home to the Church of the Nativity, which is said to be built over Christ's Manger. There, along with some 4000 others—pilgrims from abroad, local Christians, even blue-bereted U.N. troops stationed in the area—he will come to the Christmas Midnight Mass.

If he is lucky, he will get a seat inside the 1000-capacity Church itself. If not, he will watch the ceremony on the large television screen put up on the wall of the police station in the adjacent Manger Square; which, he says, "I really don't mind, because outside you've got a lot of other nice things—the vendors selling Christmas candies to the kids, the huge cyprus tree which we use as our Christmas tree, and a lot of lively singing.

Misses the old days

"But," he added quickly, "sometimes I do get to where I miss how we celebrated in the old days, so simple and plain—like in the time of the Bible. . . ." Hana paused briefly and, with his cane, pointed to the hills that lie just outside his house and lead down to the Dead Sea. "Back in those days, around 1910 or 1920, practically the only folks who would come to celebrate lived in the villages in these hills; and a few who would travel two or three days by horse from Nazareth and other Christian towns up in the Galilee—some 75 miles away. We hardly ever had any pilgrims from abroad, though when they did come, we treated them as honored guests.

"Christmas was something you looked forward to for weeks," recalled Hana. "The women would go to the market and get special holiday goods: flour and nuts to make the sweet pastries, and a small lamb which we would slaughter for the Christmas Day feast. If you happened to have a good year, you would contribute something to those who had nothing—maybe a few silver or gold coins, not paper money, because in those days there simply wasn't such a thing. But in any case, you tried to make sure that everyone had at least a little bit of a feast for Christmas.

The way it was

"The Christmas Mass was celebrated, of course, up in the same Church of the Nativity—the place where God chose to have His Son born. The main clergy who conducted the mass, however, came from the holy city of Jerusalem, eight miles away, and it would take them half a day to get here by horse-drawn carriage. Those of us men who happened to own a horse or donkey would go out to meet them, wearing our best robes and sandals; we had no shoes back then in the time of the Turks. We'd have our swords strapped on one side, our pistols on the other, and when we saw the holy carriage approaching, we'd start firing shots into the air as a kind of salute. Then we'd escort the carriage to the Church."

Hana stood up briefly, plucked a couple of pomegranates from the tree, and cut them into sections for his guest. Then, with a smile that made the sunshine-lines at the corners of his eyes light up, he continued: "Once in a while, we were even lucky enough to get some snow. It was like a godsend—you see, it only snows in Bethlehem maybe once or twice a year—and then we'd shovel a path from the Jerusalem road up to the Church, so that the holy carriage could pass. All the young boys would be running around throwing snowballs at each other, jumping in and out of the snow; it was a wonderful thing to see.

'Something of a party'

"As for the religious mass itself, it was pretty much the same back then, though we didn't have the TV screen, or the piped-in music, or all the choirs from abroad. And, oh yes, we didn't have women going about in—how should I put it?—well, the latest 'revealing' fashions. Still, it was a merry occasion, and after the religious ceremony there was something of a party."

Immersed in sweet recollection, he continued. "First, everyone would have a snack outside the Church. There was a huge pot, big enough for four people to stand in, and it was filled with tea; we would have a large glass or two just to warm up. Then the women would go home with the children, and the men would get together with the clergy and all the monks, and we'd go and 'toast' the Christmas. . . ." Hana patted his stomach. "Yes, we'd 'toast' for several hours, telling stories about this Turkish governor, or that British general, enjoying ourselves on through the night.

'The nicest part'

"Eventually, we'd make our way home, sleep a little, and then feast with our families—which, in many ways, was the nicest part of all. My wife, son, and I would join the rest of our relatives. We didn't give a lot of presents back then, nor did we have Christmas trees in the house either; those are more modern customs. But we did give a few small things, like candies and cakes, to the children. And at the end of the feast, everyone would turn to me, because I'm something of a storyteller, and I would tell the story of Christ's birth, and everyone would listen."

Hana stopped and closed his eyes for several minutes, rubbing them with his long, knotted fingers. "Yes, those were wonderful times," he went on, "but I tell you, if a man has Christmas in his heart, these are still wonderful times. I'll tell you a wonderful thing that is going to happen for me this Christmas. Just the other day I got a letter from my only son, who lives in Abu Dhabi, on the Persian Gulf. And what do you know? For the first time in many years he is coming to Bethlehem to spend Christmas with old Hana. That's right, this Wednesday night, my son and I will go up to the Church and the Midnight Mass, just like we used to, and then we'll come back to the house and feast. . . ."

Then, chuckling softly, as if he had just told himself a small joke, Hana added: "Yes, my friend, this year I feel very lucky. Can you imagine, like God Himself I have had only one son, and this year he is coming to Bethlehem for Christmas!"

Lib Courses

What effect do women's studies courses have upon the women who take them?

A significant effect, especially among girls who started out with the most traditional attitudes, according to Diane Ruble and colleagues at UCLA.

Ms. Ruble and associates recently reported in the "Journal of Applied Social Psychology" that girls taking women's studies courses were much more likely to believe women were discriminated against and to develop more hostile attitudes towards women's traditional roles in society.

Washington Internships

Students, college graduates, professionals and citizens interested in Washington internships might want to purchase two worthwhile publications.

"Directory of Public Service Internships" lists opportunities available for graduates, postgraduates and mid-career professionals.

"Directory of Washington Internships" has a similar format, listing a broad spectrum of public service activities in the Metro-Washington area.

The cost of each directory is $6. Write the National Center for Public Service Internship Programs, 1735 Eye Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Kids' Rent

How much room and board should a parent charge a working child who has graduated from school and is living at home?

According to the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, "about 20% of the youngster's net monthly income." The arrangement should be flexible, the bank suggests, but in the long run it's best for all workers to contribute something.

STRENGTH-TESTING AT THE EAST GERMAN SPORTS UNIVERSITY

School for Sports

How can a small country like East Germany with only 17 million people rank third in the world in competitive sports?

The answer is the German College for Physical Culture located in Leipzig. That college not only makes the winning of competitions a prime priority for both students and teachers, it is also the first sports university to develop athletic trainers.

The young college men and women have such facilities as a sports library with 75,000 volumes, 11 gymnasiums, a champion-size swimming pool, and a stadium which holds 100,000 spectators.

A vital part of the university is the research institute where scientists develop new training methods for athletes and new criteria for discovering athletes of potential.

There are 400 instructors and 2300 students each of whom is paid a monthly stipend of $50. These athletes are graduated from the university not only with expertise in sports but with a thorough knowledge of Communist doctrine.

Here's a man-to-man offer from Gerald Defosses, Mr. Canada

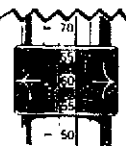

Yes, there is a proven effective way to build power-packed muscles in just 5 minutes a day. A FREE BOOKLET with action photos in full color shows the fast, easy and super-effective Bullworker method. Whether you are 15 or 65, underweight or have inches to lose... even if you have not exercised for years, you owe it to yourself to read this booklet. Mail coupon today— It's free and there is no obligation to buy anything.

Our statistics show that 4 out of every 5 men who try the Bullworker are so delighted with the results they get in the first couple of weeks that they go on with the training to achieve really impressive gains in strength and fitness. That's because Bullworker training is FAST: each exercise takes only 7 seconds and the complete program can be done in about 5 minutes. It's EASY: most men between 15 and 65 in good general health can run through the full program without getting tired. And YOU SEE YOUR IMPROVEMENT, right from the very first day, on the built-in Powermeter. After about two or three weeks of regular training, most men can measure an extra inch or two of muscle on the shoulders, the chest, the biceps— and an inch or two less flab around the waistline. And that's just the beginning: there are specialized exercises for building-up or trimming down any part of your body you want to: arms, back, shoulders, chest, waist and legs. What's more, since Bullworker training is progressive, you perform better each time. Yet the training always seems easy since with every workout your strength increases by about 1%—that's an increase of up to 50% in just three months, and I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength. In my opinion, Bullworker is the most advanced home trainer on the market today.

I'm so convinced that Bullworker training will give you the same kind of fantastic results it already has for more than two million enthusiastic users the world around that I make this man-to-man offer: if after just two weeks of Bullworker training you aren't already in better shape than you've been in years, if you can't actually see your improvement in a mirror and measure your results with a tape measure, you won't owe me a cent. Could anything be fairer than that? Mail coupon today to receive FREE BOOKLET with complete details. No obligation; no salesman will visit.

Something for menthol smokers to think about.

There are menthol cigarettes and there are menthol cigarettes. And if you're a menthol smoker you certainly know by now which one you really enjoy smoking.

So what makes us think we'll ever get a crack at switching you?

Well, we're going to try.

Because if you're like a lot of cigarette smokers these days, you're probably concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine stories you've been hearing.

Frankly, if a cigarette is going to bring you flavor, it's also going to bring you smoke. And where there's smoke, there has to be 'tar.' In fact, in most cigarettes, the more flavor, the more 'tar.' Except for Vantage.

You must know that Vantage cigarettes have a special filter which reduces 'tar' and nicotine without destroying flavor.

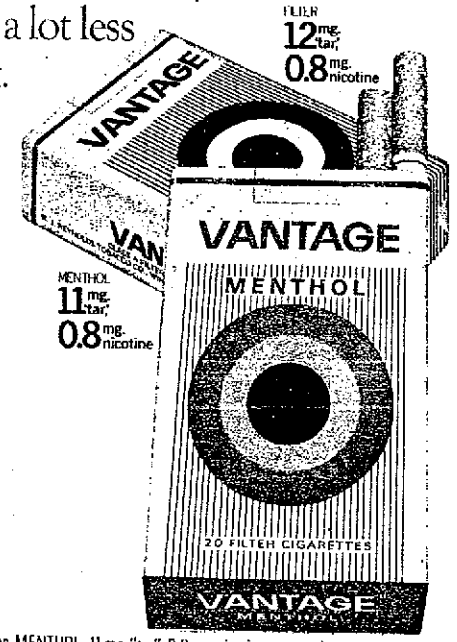

What you may not know is that Vantage is also available in menthol.

Not surprisingly, what separates Vantage Menthol from ordinary menthols is that Vantage Menthol gives you all the flavor you want, with a lot less of the 'tar' and the nicotine that you probably don't want.

Now Vantage Menthol is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol you'll find. It may well be the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

Since you're the best judge of what you like about menthol cigarettes, don't just take our word for it.

Try a pack of Vantage Menthol and then you'll know for sure.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER: 12 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report MAR. '75.

MY FAVORITE jokes

by CHARLES LINDNER

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Senior Fun Shows for the Young at Heart," says his card—and, indeed, Charles Lindner loves to tell jokes and stories that are of special interest to senior citizens. He performs in hospitals, senior citizen residences and for church and synagogue Golden Age clubs. Often members of his audience will engage him in a spry response to his own humor. "After one of my shows at a home for the aged," he recounts, "an 89-year-old woman said to me: 'Bob Hope, may I have your autograph?' I said: 'I'm not Bob Hope.' She replied: 'What's the difference, it's for my 2-year-old great-grandchild; he can't read anyway.'"

Here are some of Charles Lindner's favorite jokes:

Show me a man with two feet on the ground, and I'll show you a man who can't get his pants off.

Most of us have two chances to get rich: slim and fat.

Sign in a nudist camp: "Always open. We never clothe."

Not all senior citizens have financial problems. One lady walked into a bank with a shopping bag full of money and asked to see the president. She told him she wished to open a savings account with the $5000 in the bag. She emptied the contents on the president's desk, and it added up to $6000. She said: "May I use your phone?" She called her husband and said: "Max, you dope, you gave me the wrong shopping bag!"

A father asks his 6-year-old son what he is drawing. "I'm drawing a picture of God."

The father says, "But nobody knows what God looks like."

"Now they will."

First joke ever told: Eve says to Adam, "Do you still love me?" Adam replies, "Who else?"

Best and cheapest diet in the world: Only eat when there is good news.

Money doesn't always bring happiness. A man with $10 million is no happier than a man with $9 million.

She: "Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

He: "Now that you mention it, you do look familiar."

When I was a kid I bought my father a BB gun for Father's Day, so he bought me a T-shirt with a bull's-eye on it.

I have 50,000 shares of Xerox. I really only have one share —I Xeroxed the rest.

Returning to his stadium seat, a rather obese football fan leaned over and asked a woman seated on the aisle: "Did I step on your foot when I went out?"

"Well," smiled the woman, ready to accept his apology, "as a matter of fact you did."

"Good," he said, squeezing past her, "then it's the right row."

4697 Sunset Drive
Lockport, New York

Dear Sir,
I am wondering if I could possibly have one of the descendants of Washington's Tree. I am very much interested in Horticulture. I am 13 years old and could plant it like George Washington did at a young age. I could watch it and care for it, until I die. We have quite a few acres of land. I would care for it every day and love it to make it happy. There is not much more I can write except that I hope and pray I might be able to have one of these wonderful, historic trees.

Your good friend,
John A. Cornelius

This letter asking for seeds from a tree George Washington planted at his Mount Vernon, Va., home is among the many touching letters received from Americans of all ages in response to PARADE's depiction of the tree as a natural Bicentennial symbol.

NOW AVAILABLE

Seeds From George Washington's Tree

by Fred Blumenthal

MOUNT VERNON, VA.

A tree planted by George Washington has become the living symbol of the Bicentennial to thousands of Americans. They have written to PARADE in unprecedented numbers in approval of its suggestion that the spirit of the Revolution is best symbolized not by souvenir T-shirts and ashtrays, but by the 200-year-old native tulip poplar which Washington transplanted as a young sapling to the west side of his home in Mount Vernon, where it still casts its friendly shade.

Many readers have written requesting seeds from the tree—which now are available—to plant in their own gardens.

The tree, probably germinated or "born" in 1776, was identified by Mount Vernon's chief horticulturist, Robert B. Fisher, from Washington's diaries as one of a group of "very fine poplars," nine or 10 years old, which he transplanted from nearby woodlands during 1785. The tree today overlooks the carriage drive to Mount Vernon and has become a tourist attraction since PARADE's article about it appeared last July 6.

Letters have poured in from every state but Alaska requesting seeds from the "Independence Tree."

Mrs. Veronica Morris of Somerville, Mass., writing on behalf of a blind woman for whom she works, says: "I would like her to 'feel' the new seedling growing. She is a beautiful American lady, and I'm sure she would write herself if she could see to do so."

Paula A. Greene, president of the American Women's Club in Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, wants a seed for the new American Embassy there so that "we could share a little of home." And Col. W. E. Y. Paxton, commander of the Headquarters 15th Air Base Wing in Hawaii, asks for three seedlings to be planted as part of the Bicentennial observance at Hickam Air Force Base, Wheeler Air Force Base and Bellows Air Force Station.

All who want seeds from the Independence Tree may eventually receive them, for in the golden sunshine of Virginia's October the old poplar put out its annual clusters of winged seeds. These have been gathered by volunteers from the Davey Tree Co., dried, and are now ready.

Certificate included

Seeds, five or six to a package, will now be sent on request (enclose 50 cents to cover packaging and mailing). Horticulturist Fisher predicts that one or two seeds will germinate successfully. Planting instructions will be mailed with the seeds together with a certificate of authenticity.

For those whose letters arrive when the present supply of seeds is exhausted, seedlings grown in Mount Vernon's nursery to a height of five or six inches will be available next year—their price yet to be determined. There also will be another crop of seeds next year.

Requests should be addressed, with the 50-cent handling charge enclosed, to the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, Mount Vernon, Va. 22121.

Key year for labor, industry ahead

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — Next year will be a hectic one for labor negotiations, with bargaining scheduled in several major industries that have been hard hit by the recession.

Contracts for 4.5 million workers are involved, and the bargaining is expected to be difficult because the business climate is poor, unemployment is high and inflation continues. Strikes in a major industry such as autombiles could blunt economic recovery.

Union leaders indicate they'll be pressing for substantial wage increases to catch up with inflation, but fears of another recession and continued high unemployment also will influence their demands.

The heaviest calendar of bargaining talks is scheduled from March to September. They center on eight key industries — automobiles, trucking, rubber, electrical equipment, construction, food, apparel and farm equipment.

At the same time, there is concern within the Ford administration that internal union pressures and competition between unions to outpace one another could ignite a new wage spiral and a return of runaway inflation.

Michael Moscow, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, says wages are an area that will have to be watched "very closely."

Inflation tapered off somewhat in 1975, but was still running far above traditional levels. Its rate in 1976 will be the biggest influence in labor negotiations.

Most of the contracts expiring in 1976 were negotiated in 1973 during a period of wage controls. Since then, workers' average gross weekly pay, measured in 1973 dollars, have dropped 5.3 per cent.

Their purchasing power — take-home pay adjusted for inflation and taxes — in October was 4 per cent below its average for 1973.

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons says inflation has cost his members 63 cents an hour because of the ceiling on the cost of living clause in his union's contract with the trucking industry.

In negotiations that began Dec. 11 against a March 31 strike deadline, the Teamsters demanded an unlimited cost-of-living escalator, an issue that will be prominent in most 1976 contract talks.

High on the list of demands along with wages and inflation protection clauses will be job security.

Unemployment may have little effect on the size of wage settlements, but it is likely to prompt unions to push for early retirements, longer vacations, job transfer rights and restrictions on overtime and managements' right to contract out work.

Management is likely to counter with demands to loosen work rules and manning procedures to increase productivity.

W. J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation Service, says with the economy rebounding from the recession, companies will be in a better financial position to meet union demands than in 1975.

The most likely battleground is in the rubber industry, where unions already are threatening a strike when their contracts run out in April.

Unlike wage settlements in the auto industry and many others, the 1973 rubber agreement made no provision for cost-of-living adjustments. Since then, rubber industry wages, formerly about on a par with those in the auto industry, have fallen behind.

In autos, workers are less troubled by inflation because they already have one of the best inflation insurance clauses. Their main worry is job security.

Auto talks generally are unpredictable, but the early prebargaining publicity indicates labor and management on a collision course.

Realtors fight sales surcharge

BY ROBERT GORE

"We know we need the money," said Long Beach Mayor Thomas J. Clark, "but no one wants to tell us where to get it from."

Clark's comment came during the last two weeks of hearings over the proposed real property transfer tax, a levy that would charge the seller of a home $3.90 per $1,000 of market value of the house.

Faced with stiff opposition from realtors, Clark told the crowded council chambers that the city needs $700,000 this year and $1.5 million annually thereafter to balance the budget.

The dilemma spotlighted the city's growing financial plight and the council's financial straightjacket that limits the way it can raise money.

The council members Tuesday face the unwelcome task of raising $1.5 million through one tax or another.

Major alternatives considered in the running are:

—The real property transfer tax, which has already won unanimous tentative approval of the council.

—A sewer tax of approximately $15 per household per year.

—A property-tax increase of 15 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Moslem leader slain in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sheik Kassem Imad, 53-year-old Moslem governor of north Lebanon, was assassinated in a hail of machine-gun fire outside his Tripoli home Saturday, raising fears of fierce new battles in Lebanon's civil war. His wife was wounded in the attack.

"I am afraid his assassination confirms classified information I have been receiving the last two days that a wave of political assassinations will be staged to escalate the civil war," said Interior Minister Camille Chamoun.

In Beirut, rightist Christian and leftist Moslem gunmen were reported pulling out of some street positions under a five-day-old truce. Police said 12 persons were killed in scattered clashes.

Security forces reported the northern region quiet after Imad's assassination, but said streets in Tripoli, about 60 miles north of Beirut, remained unsafe because of marauding gunmen.

There was no official word on the identity of Imad's killers. The governor belonged to the Moslem Druze sect, whose political chief Kamal Junblatt is the most prominent spokesman for Lebanon's left-wing parties.

Tripoli, the country's second-largest city after Beirut, is controlled by left-wing Moslem leader Farouk Mokaddem. The national government of Premier Rashid Karami has only limited authority in the area.

Imad, as Karami's representative, had been playing a neutral role in fierce fighting between Mokaddem's militia and Christian gunmen from the nearby town of Zagharta — home base of President Suleiman Franjieh.

The fighting, raging since April, is over Moslem demands for political and economic reforms and Christian insistence they can come only after the government clamps down on the Palestinian guerrillas.

SOME CLOUDS, HIGH OF 70 IN FORECAST

Light sprinkles dampened the Southland at dusk Saturday, but soon gave way to patchy fog and chill night air.

National Weather Service forecasters said Saturday's wet weather front would leave some lingering clouds over the area today, but predicted mostly fair skies with high temperatures near 70. Overnight lows were to have plummeted to the low 40s.

Forecasters added that Southland residents may expect the usual night and morning low clouds today, while mountain visitors will probably encounter a few sprinkles this morning and afternoon.

The weathermen said the snow level was expected to descend to the 7,000- foot level today.

Ford warns Russ on Angola; Cuba shut out

By FRANCIS LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford warned Saturday that Soviet interference in Angola "doesn't help the continuation of detente" and Cuba's infiltration of some 6,000 troops "ends any efforts at all to have friendly relations" with that government.

Ford, holding an impromptu half-hour news conference at the White House, said that the Senate's action in cutting off funds for covert U.S. military aid for two anti-Soviet factions in Angola has "seriously undercut" U.S. efforts to try to get diplomatic moves under way to end foreign intervention and help settle the civil war in that African nation.

The President discussed everything from taxes to politics, declaring that he intends to run on his record as president.

Coming out of a three-hour meeting on the fiscal 1977 budget, Ford said another meeting with his advisers today will conclude "final decisions on the budget" and he intends to keep a $395-billion spending ceiling and to propose a $28-billion tax cut.

Tragedy of Vietnam haunts senators as they vote on military aid to Angola. Story on Page A-17.

Ford said he will sign the compromise tax-cut bill passed Friday when it comes to him Monday. And he proposes to add another $10-billion tax cut to the almost $18 billion that the Congress measure included.

On Cuba's sending of what he estimated was four to six thousand troops to Angola, Ford said, "The action of the Cuban government in sending combat troops to Angola has destroyed any opportunity for improvement of relations with the United States."

Ford said the issue is to make sure that the people of Angola can "decide their own fate" and establish their own government.

He declared it was "unwise and very harmful for any power such as the Soviet Union and Cuba to try to dominate any government in that country."

He charged that the Soviet Union had been spending $100 million or more in Angola and this "certainly doesn't help the continuation of detente." The intervention of the Soviets and Cubans was "a setback for the people in Angola."

Ford maintained that congressional action "has tied our hands" and called it a "serious mistake" for the United States, which he said "should have flexibility" in helping people of other nations decide their own fate.

Ford repeated what he said in an earlier statement after the Senate voted Friday to cut off funds for U.S. aid in Angola, that countries that depend on the United States would lose faith in this nation to help them under similar circumstances.

He declined to discuss what actions the United States has been taking in Angola, except to emphasize that the United States has never had any intention of sending American military personnel to Angola and that the United States has been conducting a "legitimate covert operation" there.

When asked why his administration had not previously spelled out the situation in Angola and its own activities there, Ford said, "the President just shouldn't discuss it publicly" in detail.

He also pointed out that it was

Argentine planes attack rebel base

By MORT ROSENBLUM

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Government jets bombed and strafed Moron air base Saturday. One report said rebel officers holding the base appeared ready to negotiate an end to the three-day uprising against the government of President Isabel Peron.

The official Telam news agency, quoting what it said was a Government House communique, said early today the revolt at the base had ended but a rebel spokesman denied it. A loyal air force spokesman did not confirm the report and no Government House official could be reached for comment.

The rebel spokesman neither confirmed nor denied an earlier air force statement that a solution was likely Sunday.

Hours after the jet attacks, military sources said three rebel envoys left the Moron base to meet with air force commanders.

Mrs. Peron left Government House near midnight and was driven to the suburban presidential residence. She had been at her office for almost 14 hours.

The attack on the air base lasted two hours. Reporters who witnessed the raid said two propeller-driven training planes were destroyed on the ground and a power plant was blown up. Machine guns were fired at the attacking planes, which swooped as low as 60 feet over the installations, but there was no antiaircraft fire.

No injuries were reported, and the reporters said the loyal pilots appeared to avoid firing near their fellow airmen.

"We will die in these battle positions," said Cmdr. Julio Cesar Caceres, a rebel air force officer. "We will not negotiate."

Mrs. Peron, in a radio statement broadcast from Government House in downtown Buenos Aires, said "the problem raised by a small group of insurgents ... is on the road to solution." She appealed

Oval Office had its share of cheating hearts

Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Betty Ford, after getting sacks full of angry letters for saying she likes to go to bed with her husband, told an interviewer ruefully that Americans apparently want their presidents to be eunuchs.

But many presidents, from George Washington to Gerald Ford, have enjoyed frequently active sex lives — sometimes so active some of them have sought female companionship outside the marital bedroom.

Warren G. Harding, who fathered an illegitimate child during the course of a 15-year affair, in and out of the White House, was once told by his father: "If you were a girl, Warren, you'd be in a family way all the time. You can't say no."

Mysterious Judith Campbell Exner, who surfaced last week to say she had a "close, personal" relationship with John F. Kennedy, revived memories of a vigorous, virile president who constantly sparked stories of secret trysts, White House dalliances and skinny-dipping with secretaries in the presidential swimming pool.

Because of the protective shield of loyal cronies, aides and guards that surrounds a president, stories of extramarital play can rarely be verified.

Sorting out fact from gossip in such situations is often impossible. As one reporter who covered several recent presidents said: "We thought we knew what was going on inside while we were waiting outside, but we never could really be sure."

It is also possible that some tales may be made up, or exaggerated, by enemies of the president or people out for gain.

Mrs. Exner refused to answer a point-blank question about whether she had sexual relations with Kennedy. She indicated she would tell all someday. But even then, whatever she says may be difficult to substantiate independently.

Close Kennedy friends and associates, including some who say they have no recollection of Mrs. Exner, acknowledge that the late president had a roving eye.

The most persistent stories about him involve his penchant for nude swims in the White House pool with unclad young women staffers.

A secretary in the president's office and one in Press Secretary Pierre Salinger's office — known informally as "Fiddle and Faddle" — were frequent swimming pool guests, according to White House insiders of the day.

"Fiddle" was occasionally seen after lunch walking through the White House lobby with her hair dripping wet.

Kennedy's private secretary, Evelyn Lincoln, kept moving "Fiddle's" desk further away from the president's Oval Office. He kept ordering that it be moved back again.

More ordinary lovers often have to worry about being caught by a jealous husband or wife.

Boy's best Yule gift—vision

Combined News Services

Ten-year-old Andres Hernandez, blind and starving, groped through the streets of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, begging for food. That was Christmas Past, 1974.

On the eve of Christmas Present, 1975, Andres ate good New Orleans food every day. He was clean. He was happy. And, best of all, he could see shapes and forms, even his Christmas presents.

Andres never had many Christmas presents before, but since he was 5 Andres couldn't have seen them any way. He could tell darkness from light. But that was all.

A team of six surgeons at Ochsner Medical Institutions in New Orleans gave him his biggest Christmas gift with two delicate operations, successful against heavy odds.

"We don't have Santa Claus in Honduras," he said in Spanish. "But, we have St. Nicholas, and that's the same thing."

He wriggled a little and his face split into a wide grin. "Oh, they have lots of pretty Christmas trees in Honduras," he said.

No one asked how he knew.

"He's a great boy," said Dr. William Williamson, one of the doctors who saved Andres' right eye. "He's bright and he's got guts. There he would be, his eyes bandaged, blind, being prodded and tested, not hearing a word he could understand, among a bunch of strangers, and he still grinned."

The miracle of Andres Hernandez Perez began when Paul Holsen, a Honduran businessman, saw the boy begging in Tegucigalpa. He talked by ham radio to Tony Paladino of New Orleans who contacted Ochsner. Drs. Williamson and Robert Schimek, chief of Ochsner ophthalmology, agreed to operate without charge.

A Honduran radio telethon raised $800, and the Honduran airline flew him to New Orleans free. The Help Honduras Committee, formed in New Orleans when Hurricane Fifi decimated Honduras, provided other help.

Delayed

Sargent Shriver said Saturday he delayed opening his presidential campaign because he waited for absolute assurance that Sen. Edward Kennedy would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Shriver, who announced his candidacy Nov. 13, said in Worcester, Mass., that he is at a disadvantage in the race because of his late start and was asked by a reporter: "Why did you come in so late?"

Shriver replied, "I had to be certain that my brother-in-law (Kennedy) was not going to run. When he absolutely assured me there was no way he was going to run, then I announced."

Embarrassed

A smiling President Ford noted Saturday that he is "embarrassed all the time" by the fact that his wife's polls and photographs come out better than his.

He told a Washington news conference that he understands Newsweek magazine this week is using his wife, Betty, on "a little more complimentary cover" than it used for him. The magazine's cover last week was labeled "Ford in Trouble."

"I keep telling Betty that I get embarrassed all the time with her polls and picutures. When they take a picture of her dancing it is beautiful; when they take a picture of me dancing in public, it is not very complimentary."

Restaurateur

Thomas E. Saxe Jr., chairman of the board of the White Tower Management Corp. and founder of the White Tower chain of restaurants, died Saturday in Stanford, Conn., Hospital. He was 72 years old and lived in New Canaan, Conn.

After graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1925, Saxe opened a small lunchroom in his native Milwaukee. From that start he built the White Tower restaurant system. He was elected to the National Restaurant Association's Hall of Fame in 1952.

Saxe founded the Sittin', Starin' 'n' Rockin' Club in Sarasota, Fla., in 1949 for a few close business friends. The club grew to a membership of 2,500 persons around the world.

Retiring

Rep. Phil Landrum, D-Ga., a member of Congress for 23 years, said Saturday he will retire after his term ends next year.

"I have decided that I will not be a candidate for representative in the 95th Congress," Landrum, who represents Georgia's 9th District, said at his home in Jasper, Ga. He said he wanted to concentrate more on private matters than "the responsibilities and demanding schedule of congressional service."

Landrum, 66, has sponsored numerous education bills.

Executive

Frank Bennack Jr. has been elected executive vice president of the Hearst Corp., it was announced Saturday in New York by John R. Miller, the corporation's president and chief executive officer.

Bennack, 42, is the youngest person ever to hold the position of executive vice president in the Hearst organization. In 1973, he was elected president of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association. He is a director of the Newspaper Advertising Bureau and the Advertising Council.

New life

A politically conservative Catholic priest, Daniel Lyons, has left the priesthood, married and has been named editor of the Christian Crusade journal of evangelist Billy James Hargis.

Lyons, 55, said in a telephone interview from Florida that he married a 23-year-old Irish singer, Mary Cooney, in a civil ceremony. But he added he expected permission to marry in the Roman Catholic Church within a few weeks.

Tummy ache

Susan Saxe, awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Boston policeman five years ago, was taken briefly to the emergency ward of Worcester City, Mass., Hospital on Saturday for a stomach ache.

Miss Saxe, a self-proclaimed revolutionary feminist, was arrested early this year after being on the FBI's most wanted list for 4½ years.

"She's fine now. It was just a stomach ache," said Nancy Gertner of Boston, Miss Saxe's attorney.

Heiress

Carla Barga Navaretti, kidnaped American mother-in-law of an heiress to the Fiat fortune, has written a letter pleading with her family to pay a reported $20-million ransom, Italian newspapers reported Saturday.

They said Mrs. Navaretti, whose son Alain Elkann is married to the daughter of auto magnate Gianni Agnelli, said she feared for her life unless the demand was met. She was abducted Nov. 26 near her home in Turin. The reported ransom is believed to be the highest ever demanded in the world.

Ransomed

Italy's kidnap wave, responsible for 57 known abductions this year, is reaching down to hit the less wealthy.

A 16-year-old girl kidnaped in the east coast town of Senigallia, Italy, two days ago was set free Saturday after her carpenter father raised $7,500 to buy her release — far shy of the multimillion dollar ransoms frequently paid by the families of wealthier victims.

The girl, Patrizia Stefanini, was lured into a car Thursday by three youths who claimed her fiance had been hurt in an auto accident and wanted to see her.

Wife brings Nobel awards

Sakharovs reunited in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov had a tearful reunion with his wife Saturday at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport. She brought him the Nobel Peace Prize medal and diploma that Soviet officials wouldn't let him go to Norway to collect in person.

Sakharov, members of the family and about 30 friends waited 2½ hours after the plane landed for Mrs. Sakharov to go through airport formalities.

Customs officials seized copies of Sakharov's books published in the West and four copies of a book of Osip Mandelshtam's poems that Mrs. Sakharov said was published in the Soviet Union.

Asked about the gold Nobel Peace Prize and the diploma, Mrs. Sakharov said, "The medal they didn't take and the diploma they didn't take."

Mrs. Sakharov left Moscow for Italy in August to undergo a successful eye operation. She was abroad when Sakharov was awarded the peace prize and, when Soviet officials denied him a visa to go to Oslo for the Dec. 10 ceremony, Mrs. Sakharov went in his place.

She arrived in Moscow on an Air France flight. The reunion was delayed by the formalities at the busy airport and a thorough check of Mrs. Sakharov's luggage by customs officials.

Sakharov arrived at the waiting room with a bunch of carnations wrapped in a newspaper.

"I got them on the street, they are frozen," he said. The nuclear physicist and spokesman for human rights in the Soviet Union stood on a bench to peer over the partition that separates the waiting room from the area where the passengers disembark.

"Aha, there she is," Sakharov shouted. He waved and blew her a kiss. A blue uniformed airport official called to him not to stand on the bench.

For more than two hours Sakharov paced in the waiting room. When she had finally cleared customs, Mrs. Sakharov went out another exit and Sakharov, the family and friends rushed outside and to the other exit.

Sakharov and his wife embraced and kissed. She was overcome and wept. She greeted her daughter and son by a previous marriage and her daughter's 2-year-old son.

"I didn't bring with me any bad literature," Mrs. Sakharov said. "I brought with me all publications of your book, Norwegian, Dutch, Danish — everything that was available."

She said customs officials seized the book along with the Mandelshtam volumes that were published in the Soviet Union. The Soviets have published the poet — who died in the Stalin purges — in very small editions. The copies are not on general sale in the Soviet Union, but are shipped abroad for sale or sold in Moscow at special hard-currency shops patronized by foreigners.

Although she returned with the medal and diploma from the Nobel ceremony, Mrs. Sakharov left the $143,000 prize money in the West. She had said earlier the money would be left in the West because if she attempted to bring it to Moscow Soviet officials would take a major share of it.

No fanfare awaits Ford in Vail

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — No banners, brass bands or planned welcoming rallies will greet Pesident Ford in this Rocky Mountain ski resort when he arrives Tuesday for his winter work-vacation.

"Will it snow?" "Where's the best skiing?" "How is that new bar?" or "Where is a good place to eat?" Those are the major concerns.

It appears that given a choice, folks here would rather have some fresh snow than a presidential visit, but if both arrived at the same time, that would be all right, too.

Vail, a ski resort 8,200 feet above sea level, is a place so unnoticing that even a president can find relief and escape from world problems and crowds of well-wishers.

One hundred miles west of Denver, the town of Vail plays host to movie stars and celebrities and has been Ford's vacation home since his days as a congressman from Michigan.

"Have no fear, Air Force One will bring snow," reads a handwritten blackboard note on a midmountain ski lift.

That's the closest to a welcoming banner to be found here. And even that notation is not about matters of state, but is seeking Ford's snow-making powers which dumped more than a foot of snow for his visit last Christmas.

President Ford is scheduled to arrive Tuesday for a seven-day stay with his family. Those to be here for Christmas include First Lady Betty Ford, daughter Susan, sons Steve and Mike, and Mike's wife.

Ford is described by ski instructors as a good recreational skier. Last Christmas, his first since becoming president to be spent here, Ford skied the well-groomed runs from the summit of 11,250 feet and the unpacked, deep-powder snow bowls on the south side of Vail Mountain.

Con men active in L.B.

Don't be taken in by the crooked bank examiner!

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

If you get a phone call from a man who says he is a bank official checking on an error in your account, tell him no dice and hang up.

He's not a bank official. He's a con man setting you up for the "bank examiner scam," an old but highly successful bunco scheme that bilks a fortune out of trusting victims throughout the Southland and the nation every year.

Unusually active in the Long Beach area in the past year, the "bank examiners" are believed to be members of one ring that makes annual swings around the country. It is a big, well-organized operation, and it's virtually foolproof as far as the chance of any members ever landing in jail is concerned.

THE BANK VICTIM AS 'SECRET SPY'

EVEN IF he or she is aware of the scheme when first contacted, there is no way the potential victim can trap the bunco men for the police. The operators have built-in safeguards against every such possibility.

"The only thing we can do is to try to make everyone aware of the racket and save their money," said Sgt. Deo L. Gemignani, of the Long Beach police bunco-fraud detail. "When it's no longer lucrative for the ring to operate in Long Beach, then it will skip Long Beach."

Before examining the immunity to jail enjoyed by the operators, here's how the typical bank-examiner scam goes:

The "mark," or victim, — almost always an elderly woman — gets a telephone call from a man who says he is a bank examiner calling about her account at the so-and-so bank branch. In the background can be heard the clatter of typewriters, the whir of adding machines and other such official-sounding noises.

"SINCE your last deposit, the bank shows your balance at $X1,000. Does this agree with your records, or is it in error?"

The victim excitedly asserts indeed there is an error; her records show a balance of $X4,000.

Then the caller sorrowfully says this is just what he feared. "We have reason to fear some of your funds are being siphoned off by a dishonest bank employe," he confides.

The victim, naturally, wants to know what's going to be done about it.

At this point, the "bank examiner" asks her if she will help investigators trap the thief through a highly secret operation.

(SGT. GEMIGNANI said it used to be the victim was offered a substantial reward for her cooperation, but the ring has learned the bunco operates just as well or even better without it. The victim usually is eager to help and thrilled with the intrigue of being part of a super-spy adventure.)

The "bank examiner" then tells her to wait at home for "Mr. Brady, our top investigator," to call on her and explain the part she is to play in bringing the bank thief to justice. In the meantime, she is warned not to tell anyone — not even closest friends or even relations, and above all, no one at the bank — about the matter.

"Mr. Brady" shows up soon, armed with impressive credentials and usually an official-appearing badge.

He tells the victim she is to go to her bank and draw out $X0,000 in cash — no travelers' checks or bank certificates, but cash. She is to return to her home with the money, where the serial numbers will be recorded by Mr. Brady.

AFTER the bills have been secretly marked, she is to redeposit them and the trap will be set for the bank thief.

(The con man puts a lot of lace on the flim-flam at this point, telling the mark there will be secret cameras recording both transactions and secret recordings of her voice and the bank teller's voice, which later will be used in court.)

The victim follows directions and returns home with the money. "Mr. Brady," and usually the bank examiner also, are awaiting her there.

The two men start recording the serial numbers. Then comes the telephone call (again against impressive background noises) for "Mr. Brady."

HE IS jubilant when he hangs up the phone. The trap already has sprung; the thief made a false entry regarding the withdrawal that was caught by the secret cameras. The two men are to take the recorded bills back to the bank right away to confront the suspect with the irrevocable evidence of guilt.

Mr. Brady and the bank examiner say they will either return the bills after the thief is in handcuffs or redeposit them for her, whichever she prefers.

Whichever she prefers, exit Mr. Bank Examiner and Mr. Brady, exit the money, score another hit for the bank examiner bunco. By the time the victim begins to get suspicious and calls the bank, the con men are long gone.

The scope of the entire operation is indicated by two factors. One is the quantity of information the con men have about the victim's bank status before she is contacted and the other by the fact that the operation is scrubbed the moment the victim tries to leave the house or telephone out between the first telephone contact and the arrival of "Mr. Brady" to set the hook.

"THIS indicates research teams, visual surveillance teams both at the house and at the bank and telephone surveillance teams," Gemignani said. "They take no chances. The scam has to go bang, bang, bang, without a hitch, or they drop it like a hot potato. If there is a minute's delay at the bank, or if the teller appears to be stalling, they are gone.

"If, after the first telephone contact, the victim attempts to stall and asks that 'Mr. Brady' come at a later time, or if she makes a call out, or tries to leave the house, they're gone."

Those realistic office or bank noises in the background of the bank examiner's telephone conversation, incidentally, are tape recordings surreptitiously made earlier inside actual banks by ring members.

It is impossible to estimate the gross take of the bank-examiner ring, the officer said, because many victims never report the fraud. They are ashamed of having been "taken" and sometimes fear it will convince their relatives (and heirs) they are incapable of handling their money.

WHILE arrests of the buncoring members are extremely rare — Gemignani knew of only one such case, happening in Los Angeles last May — convictions are even rarer. In the Los Angeles case, the alleged con man had a record of arrests three pages long for other types of bunco and fraud, but he walked out of court a free man.

"The victims make poor witnesses," Gemignani said. "They're what you might call 'defense lawyers' delights,' being old and easily confused."

The research teams gain information in various ways about their victims. Some of it is obtained by advance teams posing as "free senior citizens' Social Security advisers, sent from Washington by the government to assist senior citizens in planning their affairs."

Other sources might include credit reporting firms, or dishonest bank employes offering such information at a price, it was indicated.

ADDITIONAL help was provided the bank-examiner bunco men by the recently enacted "privacy in banking" laws, Gemignani said.

Under these laws, even if a teller feels the request for large withdrawals of cash are indications that the bank customer is being defrauded, the teller is forbidden to call police or discuss the transaction with anyone. The best a teller in this case can do is try to stall and hope the bunco men run true to form and vanish before getting their hands on the money.

A variation on the bank-examiner bunco has cropped up lately in which the victims are made unwitting accomplices and the bank is the intended victim.

In this case, the mark is given a realistic looking treasury check made out to her, along with the "bank thief" story, and asked to deposit it, taking half the face value in cash, which is turned over to the con men. The rest of the story is the same as that of the standard bank examiner bunco.

THE ISSUE of just who is the victim in the new twist is clouded. The banks claim they won't be victims; they'll treat the matter just like any instance in which a depositor deposits a bum check — which is to recover from the depositor.

This is under challenge by at least one attorney representing a woman unwittingly involved in such a fraud, however, and probably the question will be resolved by the courts.

Whatever variation is used, Gemignani said, the only defense is public awareness of the scheme.

"It's hard to cheat anyone who can see it coming," the sergeant said.

Realtors fight tax on sales

City officials admit that the list is a short one.

They explain that two taxes were increased this summer and that "we haven't got anywhere else to go."

In July, the oil production tax was jumped from 5 to 7.5 cents per barrel on producers. In August, business license fees went up 150 per cent for the first increase in 14 years.

Further hamstringing efforts to raise cash is that fact that most of the money in the $218-million city budget, about 55 per cent, is from local, state or federal sources that the council cannot control.

Only the following taxes can be set by the city council: property, gas, electric, telephone, trash, oil production, building permits, golf-course usage, ordinance violation fees, franchise fees from major utility companies and a series of minor permit and other fees.

The money is used in the general fund, or the portion of the budget that can be used for general city expenses. This is $88.4 million, with the remaining amount being committed mainly to the harbor, gas and water departments.

The greatest revenue-producers are the property tax, $24.3 million with a rate of $2.09 per $100 of assessed valuation; utility taxes, $7.5 million with a rate of 5 per cent of a total bill; and trash collection charges, $3.2 million.

Fees for using municipal golf courses raise a surprising $996,000 annually and municipal ordinance violations, such as parking tickets, raise another $1 million.

"The real estate transfer tax would be limited from ever being raised by a charter amendment, and the money would be put in a trust fund solely for public improvements—I'd don't know what else the realtors want," said one councilman.

"A sewer tax would be a sham," he continued, "why don't we just raise the property tax?"

He pointed out that the sewer or property-tax increase would hit everyone each year, while only those selling homes would pay the onetime property transfer tax.

Although the realtors were asked to come into the council meeting with a compromise, realty board President Donald Rodman indicated that their comments would remain limited to opposition of the current law.

"I don't think it's proper for us to come in and say we want a higher property tax," he said, "I'm hoping the city manager will come up with a tax we won't opposed."

Councilman Wes Carroll has challenged Rodman's group to publicly support the property-tax increase if they don't want the real estate property transfer tax passed.

Realtors met late Friday afternoon with City Manager John R. Mansell and are expected to meet with him again Monday. No announcement has been made.

"The Board of Realtors has asked for and received basic information on the city's financial situation—now it's up to them and the council," Mansell said.

Foreclosures said at lowest rate in 4 years

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foreclosure rate on home-mortgage loans has dropped to the lowest level in four years, despite the financial pinch of continued high unemployment, banking industry figures show.

The development is seen by analysts for lenders and organized labor as an encouraging sign that home-buyers are exerting extra effort to maintain the equity in their investment — even though many are forced to make their mortgage payments late.

The foreclosure rate drop also diminishes the likelihood that the government will provide loans to financially strapped homeowners under special legislation approved in July.

The latest survey by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America showed that the proportion of single-family and four-family homes where lenders were moving to foreclose on the mortgage was 4.2 per 1,000 mortgages outstanding in the three-month period ended in September.

That was off from 4.6 per 1,000 in the previous three-month period and was the lowest since the 4.1 rate in the third quarter of 1971.

The unemployment rate is currently at 8.3 per cent, compared with just under 6 per cent throughout most of 1971.

At the same time, the bankers found that the percentage of loans where buyers are behind on their payments is currently 4.3 per cent, compared to 4.33 per cent the previous quarter and 4.16 per cent the same quarter one year ago.

Historically, it has been the months just after a recession which is crucial for home buyers trying to hold onto their homes, because that's when foreclosure rates have risen the most in the past.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said prior to passage of the federal assistance program that he feared an avalanche of foreclosures as a result of the recent recession, the worst since World War II.

"I'm glad to see foreclosures are lower, but I'd not say the problem is over yet," said Henry B. Schnechter, housing specialist for the AFL-CIO.

He said the gradual exhaustion of unemployment benefits for the jobless could still cause trouble.

John M. Wetmore, chief economist for the mortgage bankers, said, "The continued decline in foreclosure rates as the economy is just beginning to recover from a serious recession reflects in large part the continuing high-level inflation in housing prices.

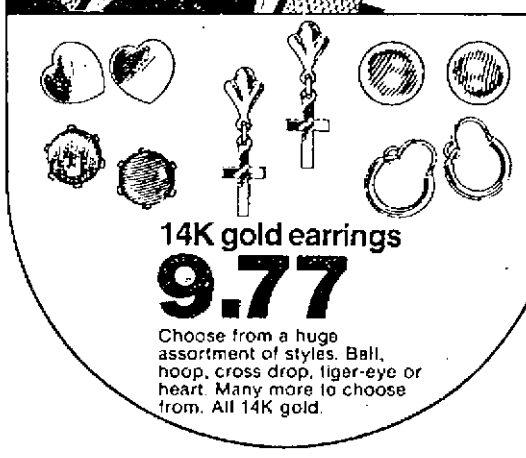

"Owners have an added incentive to avoid foreclosure because of the equity they have acquired through inflation," Wetmore said.

Thus, a family which bought a $35,000 home five years ago for $5,000 down and now owns a house valued at $40,000 has more than $10,000 of equity to protect.

Fog grounds air travelers

SEATTLE (AP) — A stubborn fog that had blanketed passenger-clogged Seattle-Tacoma International Airport lifted Saturday, but officials found themselves with another problem: virtually no planes available to take advantage of the clearing.

The fog had forced most inbound flights to be diverted much of Friday and early Saturday to Portland, Ore., and Spokane, Wash.

Thousands of travelers were delayed by the fog that also blanketed Vancouver International Airport in British Columbia.

State fund proposed for malpractice claims

Associated Press

Creation of a state fund to help pay medical malpractice lawsuit claims was proposed Saturday to nine legislators investigating the malpractice insurance crisis.

Dr. Dan Lang, representing the Concerned Physicians for Malpractice Reform, said such a fund could help avert threatened slowdowns and walkouts by doctors protesting rising costs of malpractice insurance.

Such a fund could be based on revenues from taxes on health care, hospital care or health insurance policies, he said.

Lang said patients as well as doctors would have to take a part in payment of the insurance premiums. He said insurance rates were going up Jan. 1 because malpractice claims exceeded the amount of the premiums.

The fund would be used to pay the portion of malpractice claims not covered by the doctors' 1975 insurance premium rates. At the current premium level, he said physicians would be covered for claims up to $50,000 and anything above that would be covered by the fund.

Dr. Joseph Boyle, speaker of the House of Delegates of the California Medical Association, told the legislators he favored such a fund, but said his group still is working on its official proposal for malpractice reform.

Boyle said such a fund would increase public awareness of the size of settlements.

Dr. Robert LeSage, president of the harbor area delegation of the Los Angeles County Medical Association, said, "This is no longer a doctor's problem, no longer a doctor-lawyer problem. It's a social problem."

The hearing was called by Democratic Assemblyman Vincent Thomas of San Pedro at the state office building.

Last week the state insurance commissioner approved a plan to create a physician-owned insurance company under the aegis of the Southern California Council of Physicians.

In Northern California, physician-owned companies recently have been formed and lower premiums have resulted.

But the SOCAP plan has been heavily criticized by many doctors, particularly those leading the threatened Jan. 1 walkout.

Their main complaint is that the plan would cover only malpractice claims made during the year of the policy. Claims made at a later time—and many malpractice suits are not filed for some years after the alleged incident—would have to be protected under additional coverage.

It has been proposed to have hospitals contribute toward this additional coverage; the hospitals in turn would tax patients to make up the difference.

Murder suspect is stabbed

The man charged with killing Long Beach policeman Robert Birdsall was stabbed and slashed in his county jail cell Saturday, apparently by his six cellmates, authorities said.

Fred Harvey, 26, who is awaiting trial for the Sept. 15 gunshot killing of Birdsall, 40, was injured in the right shoulder, slashed on both legs and stabbed in the right lung during a fight that erupted about 8:10 a.m.

According to jail officials, a mirror in the cell was smashed and a piece of the broken glass was used, along with a razor, to stab Harvey.

He was taken to the prison ward of County-USC Medical Center and his alleged assailants were booked on suspicion of attempted murder.

Harvey had appeared in Long Beach Superior Court two days earlier to demand dismissal of the public defender assigned to his case so that he could act as his own counsel. The judge took his request under submission, assigned a psychiatrist to determine whether he is capable of assisting in or conducting his own defense and set Jan. 8 for his return to court for a pretrial hearing.

In addition to the murder charge, he also faces five other felony counts stemming from an alleged kidnaping and attempted rape of a woman in central Long Beach the day of Birdsall's death.

Fromme sent to U.S. center in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, sentenced to life imprisonment for trying to kill President Ford, was transferred to the Metropolitan Correctional Center here Saturday, U.S. marshals said.

Lt. Frank Moe said Miss Fromme arrived at the federal center at 11:45 a.m. He said he did not know how long she would stay.

In Sacramento, U.S. Marshal Arthur Van Court said Miss Fromme was "very cooperative" when officers drove her to San Diego early Saturday. He said she was transferred from Sacramento to San Diego so the center could "classify her" and decide which prison to send her to.

"We had no problem at all with her," Van Court said. "She was very cooperative. She seemed to be in a very good mood."

That was in apparent contrast to a court appearance Wednesday, when Miss Fromme called U.S. District Judge Thomas J. MacBride "a fool" when he sentenced her to imprisonment "for the remainder of your natural life." She also hit her prosecutor with an apple and was carried from the courtroom by U.S. marshals.

Miss Frome, 27, was convicted Nov. 26 of trying to kill Ford when she pointed a gun at him during his visit to Sacramento on Sept. 5.

Robbers flee with $40,000

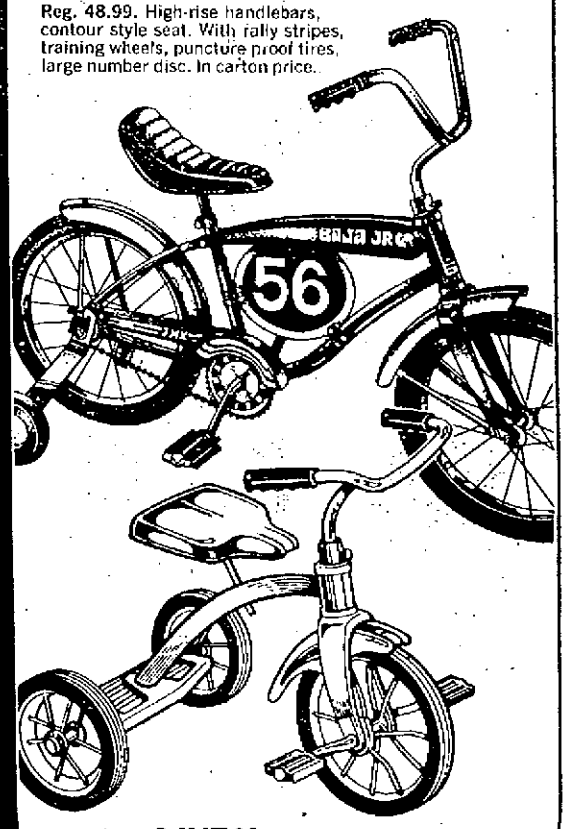

EAGLE ROCK (AP) — Two robbers made off with an estimated $40,000 from the Montgomery Ward store's vault Saturday after tying up employes, police said.

The bandits, one carrying a handgun, were described as between 30 and 35 years old. They apparently got into the store through an employes' entrance before opening time.

Probers zero in on FBI finances

By ORR KELLY
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — The House Intelligence Committee has called in Internal Revenue Service agents and General Accounting Office auditors to help in a potentially explosive investigation of the housekeeping side of the FBI.

Until the new investigation was started, both House and Senate Select Committees on Intelligence had been focusing on past misdeeds of the intelligence and investigative arms of the bureau — especially the 15-year effort to disrupt the activities of a variety of suspected domestic subversive organizations.

But now the committee is zeroing-in on the other side of the bureau's operations and asking whether there has been financial corruption within the bureau — and whether it exists today.

While the FBI's misdeeds in the area of intelligence and investigations have largely involved men who are retired or dead, the new investigation reaches into an area of the bureau's operations that has supplied all of the top officials who, working directly under FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, now run the bureau.

The House committee's interest in the business and financial side of the FBI began this fall when Martin Kaiser, who makes 480 different kinds of "electronic widgets," as he calls them, at a plant in Cockeysville, Mo., and sells them to a variety of American and foreign police and intelligence agencies, told the committee about an obscure Washington firm known as U.S. Recording Co.

Kaiser told the committee he had signed up the bureau as a customer in the late 1960s by writing to J. Edgar Hoover and describing some devices he has invented to detect telephone taps and other kinds of electronic surveillance bugs. The late FBI chief was so impressed, Kaiser said, that he invited him in for a personal meeting.

Shortly afterward, Kaiser said in an interview, he began getting orders through U.S. Recording Co. He said he dropped by the firm's warehouse-like building at 1347 south Capitol St. and met Joseph X. Tait, the president, but never did get past the front door.

Kaiser said it quickly became apparent to him that U.S. Recording was simply serving as a front for the FBI. Committee investigators have now found that U.S. Recording also has served as a similar front for CIA and White House purchases, although Kaiser said his sales to other government agencies were made directly rather than through a front.

So, Kaiser said, he began making deliveries directly to the bureau, even though the paperwork and payments went through U.S. Recording.

TECHNICALLY, the deal with U.S. Recording was illegal even though the equipment was being delivered directly to the bureau.

The law permits agencies such as the FBI to buy without competitive bids through front companies so it will be more difficult for foreign intelligence agents to find out what kind of equipment U.S. agencies are using, but that still leaves a problem with the law limiting sales of bugs.

Kaiser said he became more suspicious once when he was visiting an FBI office and saw an invoice from U.S. Recording for equipment he had delivered to the bureau showing a 30 per cent markup.

Although attorneys for the company have reportedly told the committee that the markup averaged only about 12 per cent to cover handling of the paperwork, GAO auditors have found the markup ran about 35 to 30 per cent, according to committee sources.

WHEN Kaiser first came to the committee, what he had to say seemed to involve a relatively minor problem. Even a 25 per cent markup on the $50,000 worth of business he did with the bureau would have produced only $37,500 — a relatively small amount when spread over a period of half a dozen years.

But the GAO auditors have now determined, according to committee sources, that U.S. Recording's business with the bureau ran about $750,000 a year. A 25 per cent markup on that amount would come to $187,500 a year.

Where did all that money go?

Internal Revenue agents are running "net worth" checks on Tait, the president of U.S. Recording, and some past and present bureau officials who have been involved in the administrative side of the bureau, according to committee sources.

IN A "net worth" check, the agents establish a person's net worth at one time, then determine it at a later time and then ask the person to account for the difference in the two figures.

The dominant figure in the administrative area of the bureau's operations for a decade and a half was John P. Mohr, who retired three years ago as the top administrative official in the bureau. Last week, according to committee sources, Mohr refused to give a statement to committee investigators under oath.

Last of refugees leave camp

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The government's role in resettling more than 140,000 Indochina refugees ended formally Saturday as the last 26 of them loaded belongings on a military bus and departed for new homes across America.

"Never before have so many refugees been resettled in such a short time with so little preparation," said State Department spokesman Phyllis Young.

"This was a tougher job than the Hungarian or Cuban resettlements," she said.

The program is not over and won't be until the refugees were settled with American sponsors, Miss Young said. But the refugees were no longer the wards of the U.S. government and any sponsorship breakdowns would have to be handled by the 10 volunteer agencies that organized the sponsorship program.

In all, 140,730 refugees found homes in America after the fall last April of South Vietnam.

Chaffee handled 50,809, Camp Pendleton, Calif., 50,436, Indiantown Gap, Pa., 22,034, and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., 10,085.

Officials said more than 7,000 refugees settled in the United States before the resettlement program began.

Last summer when Chaffee's refugee population swelled to more than 25,000, the streets between rows of white wood-frame barracks swarmed with people hunting for sponsors, clothes, food and friends.

On Friday, when the refugee population dropped to 68, only a few children played in the streets as parents packed possessions in make-shift luggage to load on buses leaving Chaffee.

California residents sponsored 26,850 refugees, more than any other state. Texas was second with 8,780, and Florida was third with 5,274, according to government estimates.

U.S. 'nutrition ignorance' hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is a nation that is "eating blind," wasting food and the resources needed to produce it and maintaining its "ignorance about nutrition," the chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition said Saturday.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., accused the administrations of President Ford and his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon, of "permitting and even perpetuating nutritional ignorance." McGovern was defeated by Nixon for the presidency in 1972.

The public "does have a right to proper nutrition evaluation and counseling" and needs constant "monitoring of its nutritional health," he said in releasing a 258-page committee staff study of "nutritional surveillance in the United States."

McGovern said the report "documents beyond a doubt and in detail that the Nixon-Ford administration has kept the American public in the dark about nutritional health and has frustrated the effort to apply nutritional health standards to the nation's food and economic policies."

At various points in the document, the staff refers to sometimes-total cuts in the budgets of small agencies dealing with nutritional issues, changes in governmental surveys when the results would lend support to advocates of expanded federal feeding programs and what it called the inadequacies of the surveys in producing the information desired.

McGovern, endorsing some 18 recommendations for governmental coordination, funding and surveying, said the remedies to the problems the staff analysis found "demand the rethinking of established economic patterns and assumptions."

For example, he said, "the reason for this inaction" by the White House leadership may be related to traditional concepts of and support for the "free marketplace."

But, he said, it is "an anarchic marketplace where consumers may be uninformed of other variables more important than price or taste or color."

The report said the most significant influence on the American diet has been a 43 per cent rise in retail food prices between September 1972 and September 1975.

McGovern said that "we have reached the point where nutrition, or the lack or the excess or the quality of it, may be the nation's No. 1 health problem. The threat is not beriberi, pellagra or scurvy.

"Rather," he said, "we face the more subtle, but also more deadly, reality of millions of Americans loading their stomachs with food which is likely to make them obsese, to give them high blood pressure, to induce heart disease, diabetes and cancer — in short, to kill them over the long term."

Poor no richer but the rich are

NEW YORK (NYTS)— The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer—or at least standing still, according to the forthcoming 1975 edition of the World Bank Atlas, which summarizes population growth, national output and output per capita for 130 countries for the years 1960 through 1974.

Annual output per person in the industrialized nations in 1974 averaged $4,550, compared with $116 for each of the one billion persons living in the very poorest countries, mainly in Africa and Southern Asia. In 1960, average output per capita was $2,768 in the rich countries, but for those in poor nations it was about what it was in 1974.

According to the Atlas, the United States had next to the lowest increase in average output per capita among all industrial countries between 1968 and 1974. Only South Africa, with an average annual growth rate per capita of 1.82 per cent, stood lower than the U.S. with 2.15 per cent.

The failure of many poor nations to improve living standards was more a result of rapid population growth than of economic stagnation, the Atlas said.

Fires claim lives of 37 across nation

Associated Press

A suburban Chicago mother and six children and an upstate New York father and five children were among the victims of deadly fires across the country over the weekend.

By late Saturday, the toll stood at 37.

The dead also included an Omaha, Neb., couple; a father and two young sons and a man and his daughter near Pittsburgh; two men in Memphis, Tenn.; a 44-year-old Philadelphia woman; a 9-year-old Hughson, Calif., girl and her visiting grandmother and uncle, and six persons in three Maryland fires.

Other fire deaths were a father and young son and daughter in Mohegan Lake, N.Y. In Virginia, a 60-year-old Richmond woman perished in a blaze at her home and a 66-year-old man died when a fire broke out in his house in Portsmouth.

Two trapped, 19 injured in blast at plant

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — Two men were trapped for an hour and 19 others were injured Saturday when an explosion ripped through a section of a corn-byproducts processing plant in Clinton.

The two trapped men were in the center of the plant and were rescued by oxygen-masked firemen. Six of the injured were firemen overcome by gas fumes.

Flight attendants agree to contract

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Northwest Airlines cabin attendants, who had been without a contract for two years, reached agreement with the airline Saturday on major issues. But agreement is still needed on scheduling rules.

There had been unconfirmed reports that the attendants planned a full-scale sick call walkout over Christmas week if no agreement was reached.

Means $600 million for state

N.Y. corporate taxes boosted

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey signed into law Saturday bills boosting corporation and bank taxes in New York State by $606 million.

The legislation has no direct impact on citizens in general, but it does confront thousands of businesses with unexpected end-of-the-year tax bills. Opponents said that it would force businesses from the state and drive up consumer prices.

There is also a possibility that the Legislature will decide on further tax increases that would affect taxpayers in general after the 1976 session begins Jan. 7.

LEGISLATIVE approval of the tax bill came about 4 a.m. after Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson broke a last-minute rank-and-file revolt by his Republican colleagues. Anderson got 10 of his 33 fellow Republicans to support the tax bill, which passed the Senate on a 31-24 ballot with heavy Democratic support.

The legislature's tax package, to produce $600 million over 15 months, will raise the basic income tax rate on corporations from 9 per cent to 10 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, and put a retroactive 20 per cent surcharge on the corporate franchise tax for the current calendar year.

Income taxes on banks will be raised from the current 8 per cent to 12 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, with an additional 30 per cent surcharge for this calendar year and next.

Also approved was a companion bill to raise $80 million more in the current fiscal year by switching from a quarterly to a monthly system of collecting sales tax receipts from merchants.

The Republicans pledged to resist further tax increases. But without more taxes, the legislature's compromise tax plan would require $300 million more in budget cuts above the $600 million Carey has said he is already planning.

The governor says there is a $1.6-billion budget gap over this fiscal year and next, and he has already begun firing state workers.

Approval even of the $600 million plan represented a major victory for Carey, a Democrat, whose calls for tax hikes had been resisted all year by the Republicans, who control the Senate.

Senate Majority Leader Anderson, R-Binghamton, had said only last week that tax increases were "not a subject for negotiation." But he was forced to give in after warnings from bankers that the state's credit — already shaken by the New York City fiscal crisis — could be destroyed if the state's budget remained unbalanced.

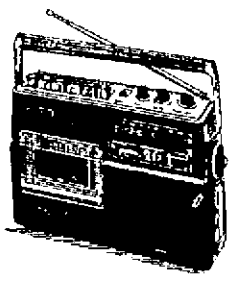

Still potentially on the table for the coming session are Carey's proposals for tax hikes on gasoline, liquor, cigarettes, motor vehicles and such services as message parlors.

The bank and corporate tax measures will raise about $280 million in the current fiscal year, which ends March 31, and $320 million in the next, according to fiscal planners.

Drain of populace perils aid

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — New York State's mid-decade population loss would cost the state up to $200 million a year in federal funds through 1980 under legislation that passed the U.S. Senate unanimously recently and that the House is expected to approve, state officials said Saturday.

The legislation provides that the mid-decade estimate of state populations by the U.S. Census Bureau be used in dispensing federal funds when population is a consideration. New York and Rhode Island were the only states whose populations diminished.

"THE CENSUS bill came when we were very occupied with New York City," said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. "The title of the bill is misleading — A Compilation of Certain Data on Total Population."

Sen. James Buckley, R, Conservative-N.Y., said, "Tons of things go through here, and if you're not aware of them ahead of time, you can't put a hold on them."

Neither Javits nor Buckley was in the Senate chamber for last Monday's vote on the measure.

At the same time, a Treasury Department preliminary report this weekend showed that New York State had jumped from 10th to sixth place among recipients of per-capita aid to the states, in fiscal 1975. The state received a total of $5.91 billion, or $326.37 for every resident.

IF FUNDS for Medicaid and welfare were deducted, however, the state would be at the bottom of the list.

New Jersey climbed from 45th to 38th, with $1.63 billion, ($222.86 per capita), while Connecticut went from 44th to 35th, with $709.44 million, or $229.22 per capita.

New York's improved showing in per capita aid owes mostly to urban mass transit aid of $214 million. If the $1.275 billion for Medicaid and $2.9 billion for aid to dependent children were deducted, the state would be below average.

"The federal aid formulas are devastating to New York" Javits said. "Those from rural areas and small cities here simply count the way they make out and vote that way."

STATE BUDGET officials conferred in Albany Saturday on the impact of the legislation, and concurred on the $200 million yearly loss figure.

The census legislation was sponsored in the Senate by Richard Stone, D-Fla., whose population increased by 23 per cent. By comparison, New York lost 0.7 per cent, and Rhode Island, 2.4 per cent.

It is being sponsored in the House by Rep. Bill Chappell Jr., D-Fla., who called it "a fair share bill."

Show and tell

I am having company from out of town over the holidays and their one wish is to see a TV show, especially one of the series on CBS such as "All in the Family," "Rhoda," "Phyllis" or "Maude." I have written to CBS and to the producers of "All in the Family" about getting tickets, but got no answer. Can you tell me how to get tickets for shows? Mrs. R.C., Long Beach.

To request tickets for CBS shows, write to KNXT-TV, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 90036, and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for each show you want to see. Tickets are available for the four shows you mentioned, according to a KNXT spokeswoman. Phone 651-2345 to find out dates and times of the tapings of individual shows. For NBC shows, phone 845-7000 to find out when shows will be taped, then write the KNBC-TV studio at 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank 91523, or stop by there after 8 a.m. on the day of taping. You can also phone for reservations after 9 a.m. on the day of taping. For ABC shows, phone the KABC-TV ticket office at 663-3311 to find out what shows are available and the locations of the tapings. You will have to reserve tickets for shows you want a week in advance. All three TV studios issue more tickets than they have seats for, and you'll have a better chance of being admitted if you arrive early. If you have a ticket and aren't admitted, all the studios will provide you with other tickets, or forms for tickets, which will give you special status when you return so you should be able to get in on a second try. If you are planning on bringing youngsters to the shows, check with the studios for age limits.

Benefits

I am 62 years old and I haven't received my Social Security benefits since July. I have called and visited the Compton Social Security office many times and the clerks always tell me a check should be in the mail soon, but they've been saying that for months. I have drawn all the money out of my bank account to live on and I don't know what I'm going to do if I don't get a check soon. Can Action Line help? G.B., Compton.

We contacted the Compton Social Security office on your behalf and have been assured that the mix-up with your claim has been resolved. You should by now have received a retroactive payment for all back benefits due you and you should start receiving your monthly checks regularly. We weren't given any explanation of what held up the payment.

Pay cuts

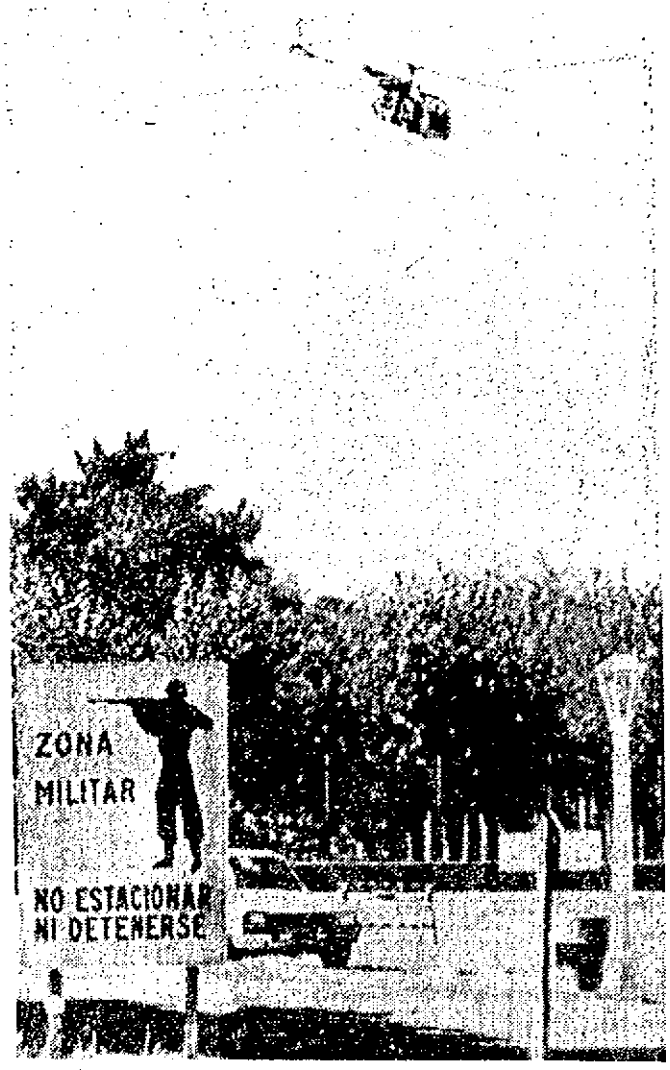

Action Line recently stated that, under the Economy Act of 1932, "certain high-level government officials" were required to take a 10 per cent pay cut and, although President Hoover was exempt from this law, he voluntarily returned a portion of his salary. The law didn't decrease the salaries of just a few officials; all government employes took a cut. I was working for the U.S. Forestry Service at the time and my salary of $120 a month was decreased to $99, which is about an 18 per cent cut. When President Roosevelt took office, he got rid of the pay cut law and gave us a raise. F.S., Long Beach.

The Economy Act of 1932 did order pay cuts for most government employes, but the law did not require an 18 per cent decrease for persons at your income level, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Treasury Department. Under the law, federal employes with annual incomes of $10,000 or less took an 8½ per cent cut. If the person's salary was between $10,000 and $12,000, the cut was 10 per cent; between $12,000 and $15,000, 12 per cent; between $15,000 and $20,000, 15 per cent; and more than $20,000, 20 per cent. The Treasury Department spokesman said he did not know why you took an 18 per cent cut. Certain federal agencies may have demoted some of their employes to lower pay scales to trim their budgets. The Economy Act expired shortly after President Roosevelt took office.

Hostels

Can you tell me where the new American Youth Hostels headquarters is? They've moved from their old address in New York. G.A., Long Beach.

The headquarters is now located at 132 Spring St., New York, N.Y. 10012, but you can apply for membership or get information on youth hostels from the organization's branch office at 7603 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036, 933-4412. The office is open Mondays and Thursdays from 1 to 5 p.m. or you can apply for membership by mail any time. The dues are $11 a year for adults and $5 for children. A renewal membership costs $10 a year for an adult. Hostels are located in about 40 countries and by becoming a member of American Youth Hostels, you are entitled to stay in any of the facilities for about $3 a night. The hostel organization also sponsors a variety of tours to foreign countries.

to Argentines to ignore "alarmist versions."

Employes were hastily evacuated from Government House, and key aides were moved to a basement museum. Cars were driven away from the building, and police imposed traffic restrictions in the area.

The preparations recalled an attack 20 years ago by navy planes against the regime of Mrs. Peron's late husband, Juan D. Peron. Hundreds of civilians were killed by bombs that fell in the Plaza de Mayo in front of Government House.

The influential commander of the National War College, Army Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Mujica, declared himself also in revolt against the government.

Mujica commands no troops but is regarded as highly influential among nationalist officers in the army. "I cannot accept the death of a single soldier, army or navy, for defending or attacking this government," he said.

The army announced later that Mujica was relieved of his command, but no move was made to arrest him.

Mrs. Peron, who took over as president when Peron died 18 months ago, has resisted heavy pressure to give up her office in the face of escalating political terrorism and economic woes.

The rebellion was launched by a group of right-wing air force officers who mutinied Thursday and tried to get army commander Gen. Jorge Videla to take over the country. Instead, armed forces commanders decided to quell the uprising.

During the afternoon Mrs. Peron remained in her office, accompanied by top Peronist Party and labor leaders as well as several ministers.

not known until recently to what extent the Cubans were operating in Angola. Ford would not confirm or discuss reports that the United States has secretly spent some $50 million in that country.

There had been indications of a softening of tensions between the United States and Cuba, and some American delegations have visited that Caribbean nation.

But in recent weeks the Angola matter has caused the situation to harden, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger vetoing a proposal for sports teams to visit Cuba.

Regarding a recent Gallup Poll that showed him trailing former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Ford said, "The final answer comes in the ballot box." Ford said he was making great progress in solving economic problems and in foreign policy, and his record in office "will be the test, not any poll."

On primaries, Ford said he has "a lot of open dates" in the months ahead and "I'll do what I can" on campaigning! But he added that he feels it is his primary responsibility to concentrate on presidential duties.

When asked his view of Reagan's proposal to cut $90 billion from the federal budget by turning over various programs to the states, Ford said he felt that idea "would not be acceptable and would not be supported by the 50 governors."

On budget and taxes, the President said "the American people need and deserve a bigger tax cut" and, now that "Congress has made a good-faith commitment" to his principle of coupling taxes with spending cuts, "we'll get a firm handle on the growth of federal spending."

On legislation, Ford said he expects to make his final decision Monday on a comprehensive energy bill that calls for a temporary rollback in the price of gasoline and heating oil.

He has not decided yet on the action he will take on the common site picketing bill on which he said he has received "a tremendous amount of mail in opposition — over 620,000 communications."

The President said Secretary of Labor John Dunlop has given him no indication that he would resign, as reports have indicated, should Ford veto the bill. He said he has made no decision yet and therefore would not discuss it.

Volcano rips milewide gash in mountain

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A volcanic eruption tore a milewide gash in a northeast Iceland mountain Saturday and poured red-hot lava down its snow-clad flanks, increasing in intensity as the day wore on.

There were no reports of injuries or damage in the forbidding, sparsely populated area 180 miles from Reykjavik, but civil defense officials debated evacuating hundreds of persons living nearby.

Geologists said the eruption and tremors on 2,000-foot Mt. Leirhnukur, 55 miles south of the Arctic Circle, threatened to turn into a full-scale volcanic explosion that could endanger an estimated 300 persons living at Lake Myvatn six miles away.

The White House affair

Presidents, who live in a house with at least six entrances and who enjoy a retinue of Secret Service agents, are presumably insulated from such cares.

Kennedy staffers reportedly arranged a system of alarm bells that rang in the family quarters when the first lady was approaching.

Jacqueline Kennedy, according to one persistent story, almost caught her husband frolicking in the White House pool one day, but alert security agents hustled the president's companions out a side door.

Sometimes, however, the trappings of office, including an ever-present pack of reporters, can get in the way.

In the fall of 1962, Kennedy was returning from Cleveland to Washington when Salinger informed reporters on the press plane that the president had to make an unscheduled stop in New York City to confer with U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson.

Salinger said the press plane would go directly to Washington. But the reporters, whose duty it was to be with the president at all times, angrily demanded to be taken to New York. Salinger finally had to cave in.

When they landed at LaGuardia Airport, Stevenson was just arriving, looking thoroughly bewildered, to greet Kennedy. After a short conversation with the president, the two were driven into the city and Stevenson was ushered up to Kennedy's room in the elegant Pierre Hotel.

But only for a moment. Soon, Stevenson, still wondering what this was all about, was hustled out the door.

Then, while the press corps waited downstairs, Kennedy remained in the room for what they speculated was the real purpose of his sidetrip to New York.

Although the reporters seldom knew for sure what was happening, they sometimes got good clues.

One time Kennedy was staying at a lodge in Yosemite National Park. A small group of reporters was housed directly below his window.

Late that night, one of them said, a female voice rang out in the stillness: "I don't care if you are the president of the United States!"

Kennedy's successor, Lyndon Johnson, also had a reputation as a lady's man. The stories about LBJ also often revolved around various young White House secretaries, of whom he had a constantly changing array.

According to reporters who traveled with Johnson, he frequently took his current favorite along on Air Force One, even when the ever-patient Lady Bird was on board, too.

Myra MacPherson, in her recent book, "The Power Lovers," relates an anecdote told by syndicated columnist Carl Rowan, who was an ambassador in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Rowan said a secretary in the Johnson White House came to him one time and asked his help in getting transferred to another job elsewhere in government. Rowan could not imagine why she would want to leave an exciting job at the vibrant center of Washington power.

The young woman said she had been at the LBJ Ranch and woke up one night realizing someone was in her bedroom.

Just as she was about to scream out in the dark, a pencil flashlight flicked on and a familiar voice said, "Move over — this is yore President."

Presidential infidelity hardly began with Kennedy and Johnson.

George Washington as a young man fell in love with Sally Fairfax, the wife of a neighbor, according to Washington's biographer, James Flexner. The affair on the banks of the Potomac went on for years, during the Revolution and into Washington's presidency, although it was never known if the relationship was physically consummated.

It finally ended when Mrs. Fairfax returned to England. When she left, Washington bought at auction the bolster and pillows from her bedroom.

Money back if not satisfied

Hospital guarantees work

By GEORGE ESPER

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — At the Blanchard Valley Hospital, the only one in town, the customers are always right.

Some might not get well, but the 40,000 patients treated annually are guaranteed good food, satisfactory nursing care, and a variety of other hospital amenities. If a patient goes for a blood test and "gets stuck with a square needle," as a hospital official puts it, he gets his money back.

A SPOKESMAN for the American Hospital Association, which has nearly 7,000 members, or 85 per cent of all the hospitals in the U.S., says that as far as the AHA knows, Blanchard Valley is the only hospital in the nation guaranteeing its services.

Now beginning its second year, the program has been praised by staff and patients alike. And hospitals elsewhere in the country have requested information about the program.

During the first 12 months, only 14 patients complained and only eight asked for refunds, according to William Ruse, Blanchard Valley's 40-year-old, pipe-smoking administrator. The others just wanted to call something to the attention of the hospital so it would be corrected.

Ruse instituted the guaranteed services on Nov. 1, 1974, because he was concerned, he said, about the high cost of health care. He convinced the hospital board to give him $12,000 a year for refunds.

THE BIGGEST first-year refund went to a patient who complained that a nurse did not respond quickly enough to a call and that as a result, the patient fell out of bed. The patient got back half the daily room cost (it ranges from $56 to $63 in the 230-bed hospital) and free treatment in the emergency room, services that amounted to $66.

Other complaints included delays in admission, poor food, and faulty TV sets. And then there was the 67-year-old woman admitted somehow to the pediatrics ward.

Two patients were unhappy with their doctors, but the hospital's service guarantee agreement says: "Because of the nature of human illness, we cannot guarantee the results of your medical care nor can we guarantee the services provided by your physician or dentist."

Another paragraph adds the caveat: "Crediting a patient's account under the guaranteed services program is not an admission of liability, either expressed or implied ..."

IN THE FIRST year of operation, the hospital refunded to the eight patients a total of $143.57. The remaining $11,856.43 set aside in the annual budget was distributed as bonuses to the hospital's 577 employes. The bonuses, based on the number of hours each worked, ranged from 30 cents to a newly hired employe to $32.80. The average was $20.

Ruse, who convinced the 18-man board of trustees to approve the service guarantee to patients, says he got the idea while driving to a meeting.

"I just happened to think of it," he says. "It didn't come from any particular set of circumstances."

THE PROPOSAL first was studied by two board committees, then went to the full board which voted approval by a three-to-one margin.

"The concern was not so much with the $12,000 a year as with the potential liability, which was unknown," Ruse said. "We were putting the entire budget of the hospital on the line.

"The initial reaction was one of acceptance, but not unanimously. There were some who said laughingly, 'Call in the men in white uniforms.'

"But I sold it through logical reasoning," explained Ruse, who has been hospital administrator for 11 years. "I explained that the hospital had a track record of few complaints. We have had a patient relations director for seven years and an Aspirin Line for complaints five years. We knew the types and numbers of complaints were very small; I didn't feel we were taking a risk of that magnitude."

RUSE SAYS Blanchard Valley's costs are 20 per cent below the average in northwestern Ohio and the service guarantee program should help to hold down costs because it fosters patient confidence. "Hopefully they will get well faster and shorten their length of stay — which will help hold down the cost," Ruse said.

He added: "In adopting this kind of program, you have to have a lot of faith in what you're doing. If the phone is ringing and too many patients are unhappy, you could go bankrupt. But this is the day and age of having to address yourself to the consumer. What can we do to meet that challenge? Part of the idea is to meet patients' expectations...

"WE HAVEN'T had anybody take advantage of the program. I wish the patients would take more advantage of it and we would get more complaints. We don't think 14 complaints represent the total amount of dissatisfaction with the services.

"We surveyed it, and 18 per cent didn't even know the program exists, although we place the guarantee in each room and tell the patient about it."

As to whether the program has shortened the length of patients' stays, Ruse said this would be a "very subjective judgment." He said the average stay has decreased by one-tenth of a day, to 6.8 days from 6.9, but there is no firm documentation to link the drop with the warranty on services.

IN A SURVEY made by the hospital last August, in which 71 patients responded to questionnaires, 60.6 per cent rated the care as excellent, 33.8 per cent rated it good, and 5.6 per cent called it average. No patient rated the care poor.

Ruse said that initially some people looked on the program as "just trying to check on employes all the time. But being against this program now is like being against God, mother and apple pie."

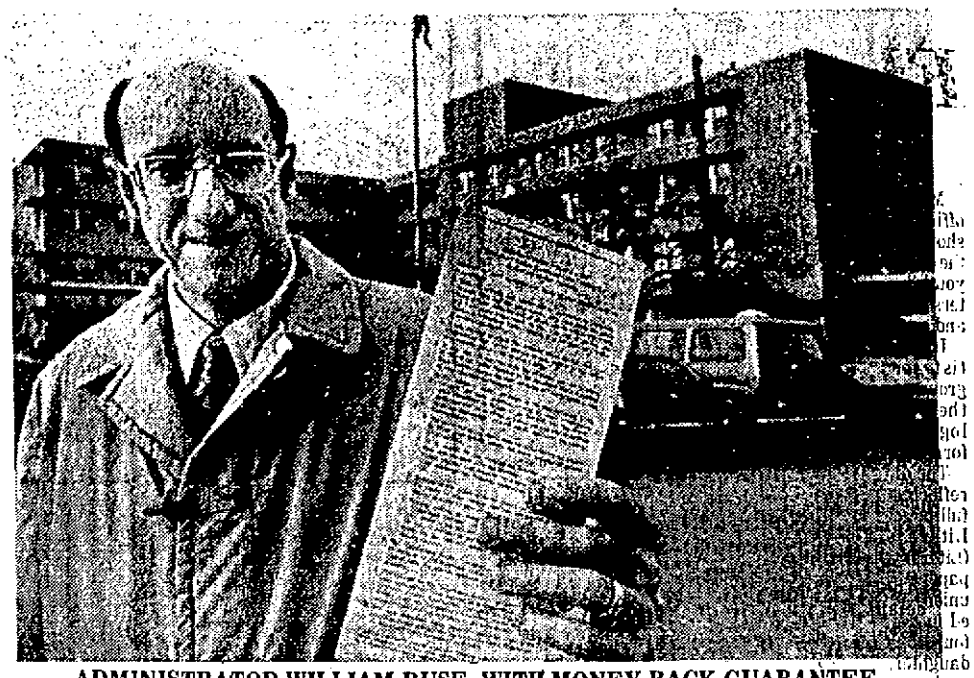

Esther Thompson, a cook in the hospital's kitchen for 10 years, says the guaranteed service stimulates employes to better work.

"It gives the patients a chance to air their views if they are not satisfied with us," she said. "It gives the employes more incentive to do better. They are going to take more pride in their work."

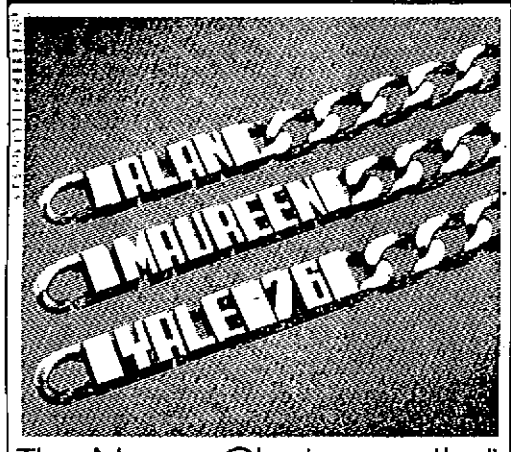

THE KITCHEN is meticulously clean and organized. On one day in December the dinner menu included three entrees — roast pork, lasagna and roast turkey.

Ruse said that cost liability incurred in the program is funded from the Blanchard Valley Hospital Association's investment income so that the program's cost is not charged directly to patients.

In its 1974 annual report, Blanchard showed a net income of $118,239. There was nearly $6.5 million in revenues from patient services, and $221,737 from investments, endowments and gifts.

Elitist 'gilded youths' worry Soviets

BY LYNNE OLSON

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officialdom is beginning to show deep concern about the conduct of its "gilded youth" — sons and daughters of affluent scientists and engineers.

It stems from a new elitist social class that is growing as the result of the scientific and technological revolution transforming Soviet life.

The official concern was reflected recently in two full-page articles in the Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette), newspaper of the Soviet writers union. The articles reported in detail on the case of four 16-year-old girls, the daughters of scientists and engineers, who beat and kicked a classmate so severely that she had to be hospitalized.

TWENTY boys from the same advanced experimental school watched the beating for an hour without interfering, the paper said. Most did not know the victim.

One boy, in fact, encouraged the assailants, telling them how to kick and hit more effectively, the newspaper added.

The hunger of the Soviets for the most modern technology to update their industry, modernize their agriculture, improve their medical knowledge and perform other miracles can be seen in their intense desire to increase trade contacts with the West.

But until now, they have done very little public examination of the psychological costs involved in the emphasis on science and technology, sometimes resulting in persons valuing things more than other persons.

The schoolgirl beating, however, brought this problem into sharp focus. The youngsters involved were not deprived children, but the offspring of the scientific and technological elite.

THE BOYS and girls lived in a new city, as old as themselves, which was saturated with scientific research institutes and filled with all the modern comforts, Literaturnaya Gazeta said. It did not identify the city.

But it said the children were elitists, too. They were taught algebra and foreign languages in the first grade and were immersed in higher mathematics by the time they reached the eighth grade.

But all these material advantages resulted in a moral disadvantage. V.D. Osipova, the judge at the trial of the girl assailants, said that all the teen-agers involved in the incident placed more importance on material things and the technological knowledge that produced them than on their fellow humans and intangible "things of the soul."

"They know how to enjoy the wealth of their own personality, but have not learned to see these wealths in other people," the judge said. "They were taught music, elements of higher mathematics, figure skating and driving, but they were not taught how to work with their soul."

"The boys wanted to know about new equipment, and they always thought in terms of the future," added Literaturnaya Gazeta. "Their speech was full of the newest terms, and they could fluently discuss quantums and pulsars. They were united ... in their confidence that life must always show them something interesting."

JUDGE OSIPOVA rebuked Viktor Mishutin, a mathematics and physics genius and leader of the boys, for not stopping the beating before he eventually did. "But they were not breaking a washing machine in front of you," she said.

But then she realized, said Literaturnaya Gazeta, that the "girl was indeed like a washing machine for him."

D.S. Ivanenko, a scientist living in the town, further explained, "In our society, we are always trying to separate the scientific-technological revolution from the human being, the highest and most important element for which it exists."

According to the newspaper, the judge discovered that the teen-agers' emphasis on the material side of life originated from their parents.

When she asked the father of one of the girls whether he loved his daughter, he replied: "She is well dressed. She's got everything. We even bought her a piano."

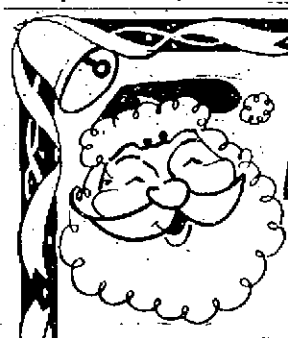

"Many of our leading engineers and technical workers are so involved with their apartments, autos and fishing, they spend little time with their children," a woman attending the trial was quoted as saying: "Their attitude is simple — feed the kids, dress them and buy shoes."

Even some of the youngsters themselves seemed to agree with the analysis. In court, Judge Osipova read from a school composition of Mishutin: "The saddest thing to watch is how people who create objects of unbelievable value, like radiotelescopes, can land under the domain of things which are not so precious."

The judge realized that in the eyes of the scientist's daughter, the girl who was attacked "was a second-rate person, with her average marks and loud mouth," the newspaper said, adding that according to that kind of appraisal, she deserved to be beaten.

The girl herself said she was assaulted because she had gossiped about her schoolmates.

But the two girl ringleaders of the assault got something more — "several years" in a labor colony, Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

Powerful source of X-rays disclosed

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Observations made during the Apollo-Soyuz mission last July have revealed an object whose X-ray emissions, sweeping the sky 84 times a minute like a high-speed airport beacon, are a million times more powerful than the energy radiated at all wave lengths by the sun.

The object, in terms of intrinsic brilliance, is the strongest source of X-rays known, other than galazies composed of billions of stars. It is of special interest because the manner in which its energy is presumably generated approaches the theoretical limits of that process.

Its location is the Small Magellanic Cloud, a miniature galaxy in the southern sky and a relatively close neighbor of the Milky Way Galaxy to which the sun and its planets belong. Scientists of the Naval Research Laboratory, who analyzed the data, believe it to be a neutron star — a super-dense remnant of a star that collapsed after its nuclear fuel was exhausted.

While the object, known as an X-ray pulsar, can no longer generate energy by "burning" hydrogen or other nuclear fuels in the fusion process that makes normal stars shine, its gravity is thought to be drawing in great quantities of gas from a companion star.

The gas is funneled toward the poles of the pulsar by the latter's extremely strong magnetic field, the gas being squeezed until it falls on a relatively small area at each pole.

This, according to the Navy, heats the gas to about a million degrees Celsius (almost two million degrees Fahrenheit). The X-ray emissions are a consequence of such extreme heat.

THE companion star, classed a blue supergiant, is Sanduleak 160. The two objects circle one another, forming an "eclipsing binary" in that every 3.89 days the pulsar vanishes behind its huge companion. Wave lengths of light from the latter vary, over the same period, as its circling alters its motion relative to the earth.

American astronauts on their rendezvous mission with the Russians aimed an X-ray telescope at a catalogue of objects chosen for various reasons. This was one of them, having been observed by Uhuru, a small satellite which first provided a catalogue of X-ray sources throughout most of the heavens.

The Uhuru observations, however, were not capable of detecting high-speed pulsations or of recording the full wavelength range of X-ray emissions. Discovery that the object is an X-ray pulsar of extraordinary brilliance was reported Friday by Dr. Herbert Friedman of the Naval Research Laboratory, a pioneer in such observations.

Air-collision alert system working

By DAVID YOUNG
Knight News Service

CHICAGO — The Federal Aviation Administration's new mid-air collision alert system has passed its first test with flying colors, FAA officials report.

The new system, which is designed to warn controllers in the agency's Aurora Air Route Traffic Control Center that planes are on a collision course two minutes before they get dangerously close to each other, was first put into operation Thursday.

Roger Brubaker, chief of the FAA center, said the new system "worked beautifully" during its first 24 hours of operation.

The system, called "conflict alert," has already blinked warnings to several controllers, he said.

FAA technicians at the center have been working at a hurried pace for more than amonth to install the system after a rash of near-collisions of jet aircraft in the Chicago area.

The worst occurred Nov. 26 when 24 persons were injured when an American Airlines DC10 jumbo jet was forced to drop 2,000 feet to avoid a collision with another jumbo jet about 35,000 feet above Carlton, Mich.

Conflict alert is simply a modification or reprogramming of the FAA's existing computers in the Aurora (Illinois) center to alert controllers of potential collisions at altitudes above 18,000 feet.

The system is designed to give controllers a two-minute warning that the projected path of an airplane will cross within five miles or 1,000 feet altitude of the projected path of another plane. The radar blips of the two planes will begin flashing to alert controllers and a printed message identifying both planes will appear on the radar screen, FAA officials said.

The Aurora center controls all high-altitude commercial jet movements in a 190,000-square-mile area roughly bounded by Green Bay, Wis., on the north; Springfield, Ill., on the south; Fort Wayne, Ind., on the east; and Des Moines, Ia., on the west. Plane movements within 35 miles of Chicago's airports are controlled by another FAA facility at O'Hare International Airport. The new system has not been installed there.

Aurora is the eighth of the FAA's 20 air-control centers to install the system, which was developed by FAA researchers two years ago and first tested at the Kansas City center.

The recent rash of near collisions in the Chicago area caused FAA officials to speed up by three weeks its installation here, Brubaker said.

Study sees major SST damage

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A federally sponsored inquiry into the effects of possible climate changes caused by heavy supersonic traffic in the stratosphere has concluded that even a slight cooling could cost the world from $200 billion to 500 times that much in damage done to agriculture, public health and other effects.

Throughout the 1,200-page analysis, however, the emphasis is on the many uncertainties involved. It is also suggested that limited supersonic flights may be useful in revealing more about what might result from heavy traffic.

The general chairman and editor of the report, Dr. Ralph C. d'Arge, professor of economics at the University of Wyoming, has commented that, despite the uncertainties, the dangers are evident enough to justify international control of engine exhaust emissions in the stratosphere as well as monitoring of any changes there.

WITH reference to the current controversy regarding whether or not to permit the British-French supersonic transport, the Concorde, to land at New York and Washington airports, he said:

"If landing rights are granted the Concorde without agreement on pollutant emissions, the U.S. will have foregone one major avenue for protecting itself against future adverse climate changes."

On Thursday the House of Representatives voted a six-month ban on landings in this country by the Concorde, and on Jan. 5 hearings on the issue by the Department of Transportation are to begin.

The newly released report is the sixth in a series of voluminous monographs prepared for the Climate Impact Assessment Program of the Transportation Department. The program was initiated after a 1970 request by Congress which, in 1971, terminated the American SST project.

FOCUS of the current debate on landing rights concerns the noisiness of the Concorde. In a recent editorial, the British scientific journal Nature said:

"It is indisputable that Concorde is, by today's standards, a noisy plane on takeoff and landing; no public relations exercise nor appeal to patriotism can allay the displeasure (at its mildest) that Concorde causes in the region of London Airport."

An "equally major cause for concern," it continued, is that information on its noise levels "could have been withheld until such a ridiculously late surge in Concorde's development."

The more lasting and universal possibility of climate change was proposed more than five years ago as a consequence of cumulative effects of SST exhaust. For example, it was suggested that the amount of solar energy reaching the earth might be reduced by sulfuric acid particles formed from sulfur dioxide emitted by the aircraft and suspended in the stratosphere.

Another climate-changing role — a possible warming effect — was proposed for water vapor from supersonic transport exhaust. More recently it was suggested that oxides of nitrogen from the engines would break down ozone molecules in the stratosphere that normally shield the earth from harmful solar ultraviolet rays. This, some scientists, believe, might help cool the climate.

The possibility of ozone depletion emerged as the primary concern and was treated in earlier monographs of the evaluation series. It was concluded that heavy traffic in the stratosphere could deplete the ozone sufficiently to increase the risk of skin cancer and have other effects unless limits were set on stratospheric pollution.

Such traffic would include not only SST's but the next generation of jumbo jets that, while not supersonic, will fly higher than the present jumbos, as well as the space shuttle now under development and projected hypersonic aircraft that would fly even higher and faster than the SST's — 20 miles aloft. Maximum ozone density is at about 14 miles.

The new study points out that, in view of the meager information available, it is unclear what climate changes, if any, can be expected from stratospheric pollution. One of the study's assessments deals, for example, with a global temperature decrease of one degree Celsius (almost two degrees Fahrenheit).

This would occur gradually over a 20-year period beginning in 1991. Another assessment assumes a change in the opposite direction — an increase of half a degree Celsius.

The former, according to the analysis, could reduce rice production catastrophically — representing an annual loss of almost a billion dollars. In d'Arge's view, such a climate change could bring about a rice famine in China and worldwide protein shortages due to reduced fishing yields.

Fuel costs for heating would rise but, in one of the few positive effects, electric consumption for air-conditioning would be reduced. Lumber and agricultural output through much of the world would be curtailed and costs of health care would rise.

The loss, so far as the United States was concerned, would be less than one-third of 1 per cent of the country's gross national product. Nevertheless, d'Arge said in his introduction, the cost to society appears "of extremely large magnitude" compared to the price that must be paid for the use of other global resources.

The cost, he added, therefore "appears to justify, at least from this preliminary perspective, a substantive investment for deriving efficient monitoring systems for the stratosphere and fully exploring the possibilities for well-conceived international regulation on its use."

The estimated costs for emission control of aircraft, subsonic and supersonic, flying in the stratosphere would be from $300 million to $400 million, according to the study. The estimate of a global cost of $200 billion or more from a worldwide cooling of one degree referred to the total, spread over the entire period of adjustment.

For example, it is estimated, that such a climate change would be the counterpart of moving everyone from 35 to 75 miles closer to the poles. In focusing attention on noise, sonic booms and skin cancer, "we may be penny-wise but dollar poor," d'Arge said, since even a slight climate change could cost "billions."

Survey sees world upturn in economy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Economists at the University of Pennsylvania Saturday said "world trade and world production have just come through a severe depression and are expected to show significant improvement in 1976 and even more in 1977."

They predicted an increase in real gross product of 5 per cent next year, compared with less than 1 per cent in 1975, and a jump of 6.2 per cent in 1977.

Crash kills sleeper

Lakewood sheriff's deputies begin cleanup operations at a Paramount home Saturday after a speeding car crashed through two walls at the house, killing Jimmy James Rhodes, 15, at about 2:45 a.m. The car, driven by Saul Duran Serrano, 30, crashed through the living room, knocking down a Christmas tree, and into the bedroom at 16862½ Downey Ave. A friend of the youth, Anthony Lightwalk, 15, was sleeping in a nearby bed but was uninjured, deputies said. They said Serrano, described as an illegal alien, allegedly ran a stop sign at the T-shaped intersection of Downey Avenue and 69th Street and drove straight into Rhodes' home. Serrano was treated for minor injuries and booked for suspicion of felony drunken driving and manslaughter, deputies said.

FBI arrests 11th person in luxury car-theft ring

Associated Press

FBI agents arrested an eleventh person Saturday charged with operating a luxury car-theft ring between Southern California and New Mexico.

Jesse Oliver Gray, 25, was arrested at his Los Angeles home by FBI agents who said they recovered a 1975 Lincoln Continental.

The FBI said 11 persons were now in custody and a twelfth person was being sought.

The arrests began in Arizona on Dec. 10 with the apprehension of Albert Littlejohn, 32, and James Winbush, 24, both of Los Angeles, said Robert E. Gebhardt, asistant director in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office. Two cars were recovered.

Agents arrested six more persons and recovered three more cars on Dec. 11 in eastern New Mexico. Two additional arrests were made in California.

One of those arrested was Ronald MacIntyre, an employe of the Torrance office of the California Department of Motor Vehicles, the FBI said.

A federal grand jury in New Mexico returned indictments on Dec. 15 against 11 persons charging conspiracy to violate federal laws pertaining to the interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicles. Gray was not named in the indictment.

Gebhardt said Leothas Hannah was still at large.

Cleaver's wife 'older and wiser'

SAN FRANCICSCO (AP) — Kathleen Cleaver says she has lost her romanticism about revolution in this country since she left in 1969 to join her husband in exile.

She visited the San Francisco Bay area this week to negotiate with attorneys for the defense of her jailed husband, Eldridge Cleaver, and to see about raising the $300,000 it is estimated his defense will cost.

Cleaver faces trial in Alameda County on charges stemming from a gun battle between Black Panthers and Oakland police in 1968. He was out of prison on bail at the time and fled to Algeria. Several years later the Cleavers moved to Paris. He returned voluntarily.

"I'M OLDER and wiser," said Mrs. Cleaver, 30. "I've lost my romanticism about revolution in America. I don't say it's inconceivable, but I know that none of us who believed ourselves to be revolutionaries in the sixties can conceive of the form a revolution would take in America."

Both the Cleavers were officers in the Black Panther Party when it was formed. While in exile Cleaver had an ideological dispute with the party and was expelled.

Convict ruled sane when he killed child

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Arthur Meeks, who has spent most of the five years since his arrest in a mental hospital, was sane when he molested and killed a 4-year-old boy, a jury says.

Meeks, 36, spent most of his time in court drawing in a coloring book, a nurse at his side, while he awaited this week's verdict.

The same jury that convicted him Tuesday of molesting, beating and stabbing Christopher Flannigan in August 1970 ruled Friday that he was sane at the time.

Gandhi tries to suppress all criticism

By PAUL GRIMES
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Using its emergency powers, the Indian government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is trying to make fundamental changes that could suppress the publication of political criticism, according to documents and the concrete information reaching here.

The government is trying to merge India's two nationwide news agencies into one that would be heavily dependent on government support.

It also is trying to alter the management of at least two newspaper groups to shift power from critics of Mrs. Gandhi to newcomers approved by the government. This may result in the ouster of some of India's best known editors.

The government also is attempting to influence the choice for at least one editorship that will soon become vacant because of retirement.

The informants recalled that, in a statement last August, Vidya Charan Shukla, the Minister of Information and Broadcasting, said that the government "is contemplating restructuring the entire Indian press industry so as to make it accountable and answerable to the people, the society and the country."

An Indian official, who declined to be identified by name, confirmed in an interview that the two news agencies — the Press Trust of India and United News of India — probably would be merged. He also spoke of plans for the pro-government head of one newspaper group to take control of another, although he denied that the government was involved.

Both news agencies are owned by the newspapers that subscribe to their services. However, while United News of India supports itself, the Press Trust of India relies heavily on income from the sale of news to the government's All-India Radio. United News is generally considered the more enterprising of the two.

A merged agency essentially would mean the death of United News and continuation of the Press Trust. It would not add income because virtually all the subscribers of United News already are subscribers of the Press Trust as well.

According to the best available information, the government wants to restructure the press for political, not ideological, reasons. Despite any pro-Soviet leanings of Prime Minister Gandhi, the people whom her government is attempting to install in journalistic power are in many cases staunch anti-Communists.

"The main point," one informant said, "is that Mrs. Gandhi cannot stand criticism -- any criticism. That's the whole thing."

Meanwhile, in New Delhi Saturday night Prime Minister Gandhi named a trusted political adviser to be her new defense minister, in her second cabinet reshuffle in three weeks.

Her government also fired 18 officers in the Information and Broadcasting Ministry, intensifying what was described as a drive "to root out corrupt and inefficient" officials.

Mrs. Gandhi gave the key defense portfolio to Bansi Lal, the former chief minister of northern Haryana State who was brought into the cabinet last month but not given an assignment initially.

The crackdown on civil servants began after Mrs. Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency June 26. Previously, government employes were rarely dismissed before reaching the age of 58, the normal retirement age.

Oil producers huddle over pricing rivalries

VIENNA (AP) — Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries reported making some progress toward ending price-cutting rivalry after a six-hour session Saturday.

The 13 OPEC ministers meet again today to try and simplify a complex pricing system that has permitted members to introduce disguised price changes by adjusting special premium charges on high quality oil.

"It is all of OPEC against Iraq," Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told newsmen after Saturday's session.

HIS STATEMENT indicated that Iraq, which had raised the issue by accusing neighboring Kuwait of unfair price-shaving last month, was in turn being charged with using the same tactics to win customers.

Iraq had claimed that Kuwait was trimming just under 1 per cent off its prices, thus failing to implement a 10 per cent increase officially decreed by OPEC Oct. 1.

Other delegates declined to single out specific countries as culprits.

At issue in the price-shaving dispute are "differentials," or premiums charged on certain oil grades, either because they have less specific gravity and are therefore purer, or have less pollutant sulfur content.

In a glutted world market, high-priced oil grades are no longer competitive and OPEC states have recently slashed these differentials.

DESPITE OPEC's official decision to hike its basic price from Oct. 1 to $11.51 per barrel of standard or benchmark oil, the differentials adjustments have in fact enabled some individual OPEC members to gain advantages by increasing their prices less than others have.

Iraq accused Kuwait last month of trying to "create disruption on the oil market and inspire competitive bidding among producers."

But Kuwait's 10-cent-per-barrel price cut was smaller than, for instance, Indonesia's — cut more than $1.

Some delegates privately said there is anger against the Iraqis for pointing the finger at Kuwait when Iraq has adjusted differentials downward to increase its exports.

OPEC's TWO-DAY regular ministerial conference opened against the background of hesitant moves to get a dialogue between industrial, oil producer and poorer nations under way.

Iran's chief delgate, Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar, told newsmen that this week's 27-nation Paris conference, which he and representatives of six other OPEC states attended, was "a great step in the right direction."

Amouzegar criticized as too low a proposal for a $7-per-barrel floor price for oil, made Friday by the International Energy Agency — IEA — the group of 18 major industrial consumer countries.

The IEA wants its members to adopt the floor price to insure research into expensive alternative energy sources against a possible future drop in oil prices.

Amouzegar said OPEC believes that to adequately protect energy research, the floor price would have to be somewhere between $12 and $16 per barrel as suggested by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

THE PRICE OF oil is one of the key issues in negotiations generated by the Paris meeting of oil states, less fortunate developing countries and the non-Communist industrial countries.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says the price is too high and is damaging the economy of the world.

The oil states contend their prices are simply a function of the West's economic mismanagement and that unless some order is achieved, prices may rise further. Non-oil countries are caught between their sympathies for the producers' abilities to extract advantages from the West and their own economic suffering from higher oil bills.

'Spain will have more freedom'

MADRID (AP) — A top official promised law-abiding Spaniards more political freedom and the country's Roman Catholic bishops pressed the new regime for further liberalization Saturday as Spain ended 30 days of official mourning for Gen. Francisco Franco.

While promising more freedom, new Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne said there will be stronger punishment for those who violate the law. He reiterated the statements of King Juan Carlos I that there will be privileges for nobody, but that nobody's cause will be forgotten.

The National Conference of Bishops urged more individual liberties, amnesty for political prisoners and the right of political exiles to return to Spain, asked independence for the Church and lamented rising unemployment and low salaries for most Spaniards.

King Juan Carlos and officials gathered at Franco's grave in the Valley of the Fallen for a funeral Mass marking the end of mourning for Spain's authoritarian ruler of the past 36 years.

Only tune in to strangers, rabbi warns

JERUSALEM (AP) May an Orthodox Jew listen to a woman singing on the radio?

Yes, but only if he doesn't know her personally, says Israel's chief rabbi.

According to some religious authorities, a woman's voice can turn one's thoughts away from the spiritual, Rabbi Ovadiah Yosef said in a radio broadcast Saturday. But if a man has never met the singer, there is little danger of his being seduced.

$10,330 for 'lost' sunshine

TOKYO (AP) — Ten residents of a Tokyo suburb have won a $10,330 settlement from the builder of a five-story apartment house they claim has deprived them of their right to sunshine.

The settlement, recommended by a district court, ended a controversy that had residents' giving protest handbills and an unfriendly welcome to tenants moving into the new building while the mayor of Musashino City, a Tokyo suburb, stopped water and sewage service to it.

Mayor Kihachiro Goto said the construction firm had violated a city guideline by failing to consult nearby residents on the building's effect on sunshine before breaking ground. The rule applies to buildings more than 33 feet high.

The "right to sunshine" issue surfaced in Tokyo a dozen years ago when the first high-rise apartment buildings began overshadowing areas of one- and two-story houses.

Some 300 municpal governments around Japan have "sunshine" guidelines similar to the one in Musashino City, but local courts have ruled both for and against the regulation.

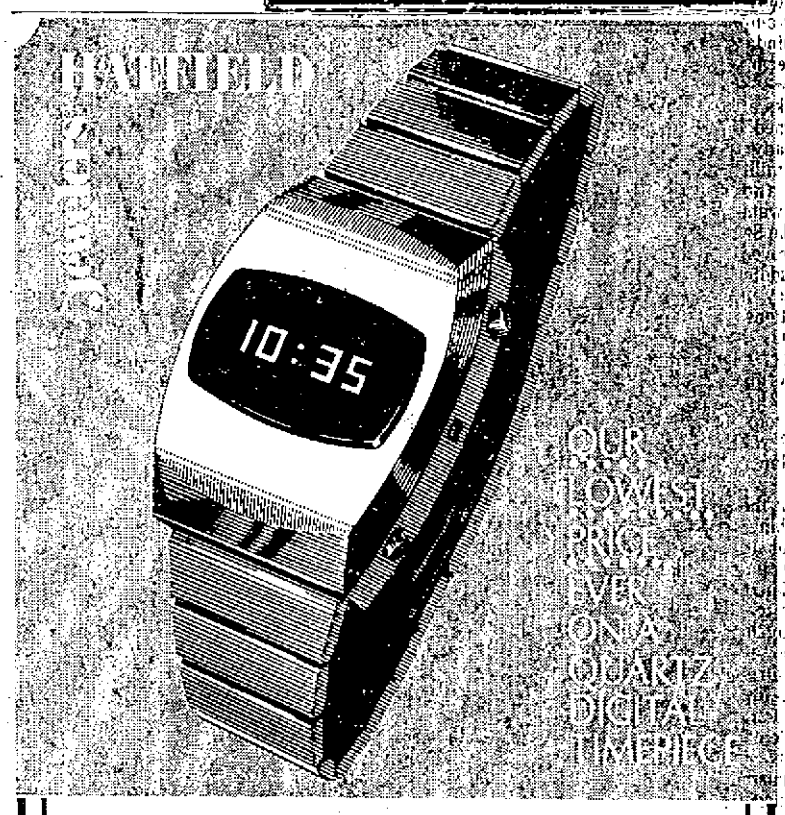

A bill to revise the national construction standards law to contain provision on the right to sunshine has been pending in parliament for nearly two years.

Tragedy of Vietnam haunts Senate in debate on Angola

By James McCartney
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — The ghost of the Vietnam war hung over Capitol Hill last week with a new name but many tragic memories.

The new name was Angola.

But in many ways the script was the same, the fears the same as they had been in the legislative battles over U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Senate doves, appalled by revelations of secret U.S. involvement in a bloody African civil war, wanted to cut off aid to anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

And, as in the final struggles over Vietnam, a Republican administration wanted to continue a U.S. effort aimed at "keeping the Soviets out" of a distant country.

This time, in Angola, the Senate won the first round — less than two weeks after most senators learned that the U.S. had already spent more than $25 million for arms and aid, and the administration wanted more.

The Senate resoundingly approved an amendment forbidding spending of any money in a defense appropriations bill "for any activities involving Angola other than intelligence gathering." The vote was 54 to 22.

It took Congress literally 19 years to come to a similar decision in Vietnam.

But the Senate vote was anything but a total victory for the doves. It was symbolic only, with no immediate force of law.

By the time the Senate managed to bring the matter to a vote, the House was already preparing to leave town for Christmas vacation and did not stay to vote on Angola.

This means that the administration can legally continue to spend money on Angola, if it wants to defy the expressed wishes of the Senate.

About $8 million is still estimated to be in the "pipeline," or in reserve administration funds for Angola.

But as nearly as congressional experts can compute, that's all the administration will be able to spend, openly, in the next several weeks.

That is because Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the appropriations committee, said he won't approve any more funds for the CIA in Angola without the consent of the full Senate.

The administration, however, may be able to find funds elsewhere, if it is determined to try.

"There are probably plenty of ratholes where they could dig up money," said one Senate expert. "They might be able to take military aid funds earmarked for other countries and transfer them, if they wish, and it wouldn't be a violation of any law I know about."

"Scars" of Vietnam

HUBERT HUMPHREY
Too Little Information

In both Angola and Vietnam, the fundamental issue has been who is going to control a country that has recently emerged from colonial domination.

Vietnam was a French colony, Angola Portuguese.

But while there have been similarities in the handling of the two situations, there are also many differences.

AS THE Pentagon Papers demonstrate, in the early days of U.S. involvement in Vietnam it was not Russia, but Communist China, that was feared.

And U.S. involvement in Angola has already taken a different course from Vietnam.

In Angola, the U.S. has so far only been supplying arms and other aid to local political factions. The first U.S. involvement in Vietnam also began with arms shipments — but not to indigenous forces.

BUT IT WAS the CIA, in Vietnam as in Angola, that started it all. The first major U.S. involvement in Vietnam was headed by a famous U.S. CIA agent, with a team of CIA helpers, who arrived in Saigon in 1954.

According to administration sources, the CIA has about five or six men in Angola now.

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Gulf Oil Corp. said Saturday through a spokesman that it was in a quandary over whether to continue paying sizable royalties on petroleum production to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which is receiving Soviet aid, or to bow to Ford administration suggestions that the payments be frozen.

Gulf is contractually obligated to pay $10 a barrel on its 150,000 barrel-a-day output from wells off Cabinda to the Angolan government in Luanda.

The Senate tried to make its anguish about Angola clear, but President Ford reacted in much the same way that his predecessor, Richard Nixon, often reacted when Congress tried to put reins on the Vietnam war.

Ford denounced the vote as a "deep tragedy" and an "abdication of responsibility."

In rhetoric hauntingly reminiscent of Vietnam, he asked:

"How can the United States, the greatest power in the world, take the position that the Soviet Union can operate with impunity many thousands of miles away . . . while we refuse any assistance to the majority of local people who ask only for military equipment to defend themselves?"

Said a well-posted Senate Republican in another Vietnam-like touch: "The President decided he could pin the blame on the Democrats for losing Angola, but I don't think it's going to wash. I'm not sure we've ever had Angola."

To many senators, Angola represented the threat of Vietnam all over again.

Said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., summing up the mood: "Vietnam left its scars on me, and on us, which will never, never go away but which must never, never be repeated again."

The Vietnam parallel was also mentioned by others with long memories — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., one of its major political casualties in his 1968 presidential campaign.

"We let this happen in Vietnam," said Humphrey. "I know. I was in this body (the Senate) when we had all too little information. Then I became vice president and I was surrounded by information.

"Thank God we now have the opportunity to debate this in the open . . ."

The administration's arguments for its Angola involvement struck many senators as frighteningly similar to words they had heard time and again from both Democratic and Republicanadministrations seeking to justify Vietnam.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that "the United States will try to prevent one party from achieving dominance . . ."

It was former President Lyndon Johnson's secretary of state, Dean Rusk, who time and again argued in the mid-1960s that the U.S. objective in Vietnam was to "prevent" a Communist takeover.

THE PENTAGON Papers, the semi-official history of the Vietnam war, summarized U.S. objectives in Southeast Asia by saying that "the American government, from the Truman administration onward, felt it necessary to take action to prevent Communist control of all of Vietnam."

These weren't the only parallels.

Ford's saying that the U.S. only wanted to help "local people" to defend themselves sounded a lot like earlier presidents' arguments for the so-called Vietnamization program.

Kissinger said the U.S. would support a "solution in which no outside power participates." He and Nixon often argued that they would accept any "solution" that the Vietnamese themselves could work out.

Results mixed between 94th Congress, Ford

By RICHARD MADDEN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The 94th Congress, which began last January amid clashes with President Ford over energy policy and a tax cut, ended its first session squabbling with the President over energy policy and a tax cut.

These two issues — energy and the economy — dominated much of the session, which began with pledges of bipartisan cooperation, but quickly settled into a series of confrontations between the White House and Congress that left a record of mixed results.

JOHN RHODES

CONGRESS convened after last November's elections with increased Democratic majorities in both the Senate and the House. The influx of 75 freshmen Democrats in the House led to the ousting of three veteran committee chairmen and to predictions that a Democratic Congress would assert more control over the shaping of policy, particularly to bring the economy out of its recession.

But Democratic leaders of both houses soon found they could not always muster their large majorities to override presidential vetoes, which takes a two-thirds vote.

FORD VETOED 15 bills during the session. Congress tried to override nine of those vetoes, but succeeded only three times on bills that normally are politically popular — health-care funds, education appropriations and funds for school lunches.

Ford's vetoes were sustained on other major Democratic measures, such as those preserving oil-price controls and sharply expanding public-service jobs and housing programs.

Going into a presidential election year, the end-of-session assessments that poured out of congressional leaders' offices in recent days differed sharply.

FOR EXAMPLE, Carl Albert, D-Okla., speaker of the House, said Congress had met the challenges of stimulating economic recovery, successfully implementing a new budget process to give Congress control over federal spending and devising an energy policy "despite the intransigent opposition of an unelected President and his followers in Congress."

Albert said Congress has "worked harder and met for more hours than any session since World War II."

BUT REP. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., minority leader, said Congress was "being run by undera-chievers" and added: "It is absolutely appalling to realize just how little has been accomplished in this session and just how wrong have been those things that have been done."

Following is a summary of some of the major developments during the session.

—The economy. As Congress convened last January, Ford asked for a $16-billion tax cut to spur the sagging economy but he reluctantly signed a $22.8-billion tax cut measure Congress sent him. The session ended with Ford vetoing a six-month extension of the tax cuts because Congress failed to set a $395-billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1. After the House failed to override that veto, Congress passed another six-month extension of the tax cuts with compromise language pledging a non-specific spending limit which Ford agreed to sign.

After Ford vetoed a $5.3-billion bill creating public-service jobs, Congress approved a scaled-down $2.9-billion version. After another veto, a compromise housing bill was enacted extending various mortgage-subsidy programs, plus mortgage-payment assistance to unemployed homeowners threatened with foreclosure.

Congress also approved, and Ford signed, a bill extending extra unemployment benefits in areas of high unemployment.

—Energy and the environment. After repeated clashes with the President over energy policy, Congress approved, just before adjournment, a major energy bill that would force an immediate reduction in the price of crude oil. After the fall of 1977, prices might be allowed to rise somewhat above their levels now. Also the bill would establish efficiency standards for automobiles, create a national petroleum reserve and take other steps to conserve fuel. Ford has not said whether he will sign the bill.

A separate measure to remove some of the price controls on natural gas was passed by the Senate, but put off by the House until next year.

The House failed to override Ford's veto of a bill establishing minimum federal standards for the regulation of the strip mining of coal. Another measure providing aid to states willing to set land-use standards was killed in a House committee.

Early next year both houses are expected to consider amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970, which could change some deadlines for meeting auto emission standards and other requirements.

—Social legislation. Ford recommended a five-year extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, but he signed legislation extending the law for seven years and broadening its coverage to language minorities.

Congress overrode a presidential veto and enacted a $7.9-billion appropriations bill for a variety of federal education programs. By wide margins both houses also overrode Ford's veto of a bill extending school-lunch and other child-nutrition programs. Both measures had been vetoed because of their cost.

In a continuing fight over the politically sensitive school busing issue, the Senate approved and the House accepted language barring the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from ordering the busing of pupils beyond the school nearest their homes. The provision, which was attached to a $36-billion appropriations bill, would not affect court-ordered busing. Ford vetoed the bill Friday and the House will try to override the veto Jan. 27.

—General legislation. After a lengthy battle that dominated the closing weeks of the session, the President proposed and Congress approved legislation permitting federal loans of up to $2.3 billion a year through mid-1978 to help New York City meet its seasonal cash needs and avert a default.

Over the objections of many Republicans, both houses in the closing days of the session approved a bill expanding the picketing rights of construction workers by permitting striking workers to picket an entire construction site, although their grievance was with only one subcontractor. Labor Secretary John Dunlop endorsed the measure, but other presidential economic and political advisers have recommended a veto.

Congress approved and Ford signed a bill repealing the so-called "fair trade" laws that for nearly 40 years had permitted price fixing on many consumer products.

A major bill long sought by consumer groups to create an agency to represent the consumer interest before federal departments and agencies was passed by both the Senate and House. However, differences still have to be reconciled by a Senate-House conference and the surprisingly slim margin by which the bill passed the House indicated that an expected veto by Ford could not be overriden.

Both houses passed bills providing federal grants and loans for the reorganization of bankrupt Northeast and Midwest railroads. That bill faces a possible veto.

Congress approved a bill encouraging the development of a nationwide system for buying and selling securities.

The House passed a measure modifying the Hatch Act to permit federal workers to take part in partisan election campaigns and run for office,

FEA to visit L.B. for crude-oil price survey

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Long Beach-West Orange County, announced Saturday that the Federal Energy Administration will conduct on-site investigations in the Long Beach area this week to determine whether the price differential for low-gravity California crude oil should be adjusted.

The FEA decided Nov. 17 not to raise the price. Hannaford, state and city officials met Dec. 4 with FEA Administrator Frank Zarb to appeal the decision.

California crude is now priced lower than comparable oil produced in other sections of the country. Hannaford said this price differential "is costing California taxpayers millions of dollars...It is also becoming economically unfeasible to continue production of this oil and a failure to rectify this inequity will result in the loss of 115,000 barrels of oil a day."

ZARB'S CHIEF DEPUTY, Mark Silverman, will have a day-long series of meetings with Hannaford Monday in the congressman's district office. At 9 a.m. Tuesday they will inspect Wilmington oil fields, Long Beach's astronaut islands and other oil fields which Hannaford said are slated to be shut down unless FEA oil pricing policies are reversed."

Hannaford said he is convinced "that Mr. Silverman will obtain the necessary facts and figures to allow the FEA to resolve this inequity in the very near future."

Hannaford also detailed his recent legislative activities and announced the third in a series of public town hall meetings "to hear citizens' problems, concerns, ideas and opinions."

The meetings are scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the Brakensiek Library Community Room, 9945 Flower St., Bellflower, and 7 p.m. Tuesday in Furgeson Elementary School, Building B, 22215 Elaine Ave., Hawaiian Gardens.

HANNAFORD'S legislation authorizing the federal government to invest surplus government cash funds in interest-bearing accounts passed the House last week by a unanimous roll call vote. It goes to the Senate for consideration after the Christmas recess.

The congressman said the bill would boost federal revenues about $200 million a year. Federal financial institutions holding these funds are not now required to pay interest to the federal government.

He said the average daily balance in these interest-free accounts has varied from $937 million to $11.2 billion in the past decade and "an average daily balance of $4 billion invested at the nominal interest rate of five per cent would result in earnings of $200 million a year for taxpayers."

CONGRESS, FORD

but the Senate version has not been completed.

The House upheld Ford's proposal to limit pay increases for federal employes to 5 per cent after both houses approved a bill making members of Congress and other top-level government officials eligible for the pay increase.

A bill raising price supports and income protection for farmers was approved by both houses but Ford's veto was sustained by the House. Both Houses approved bills extending federal highway programs and giving large metropolitan centers, such as New York, more flexibility in using federal highway funds to improve mass transit. The bills will now go to a Senate-House conference.

—Foreign relations. Congress approved nearly $99.5 billion for the Department of Defense, a $7.4 billion cut from administration requests.

With the collapse of the Saigon government in April, Congress voted $455 million to resettle Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

Congress also approved the stationing of civilian technicians in the Sinai to monitor the Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire, and, in a victory for the Ford administration, the House reversed itself and voted to partially lift the embargo on the shipment of U.S. arms to Turkey.

For the first time Congress separated foreign economic and military aid and approved a two-year, $3.1 billion foreign economic aid bill. Action is to be completed next year on the bill authorizing foreign military aid.

As the session ended, Congress began moving toward limiting U.S. involvement in Angola.

Schmitz labels Tunney 'traitor'

Associated Press

Former Congressman John Schmitz, who is seeking John Tunney's U.S. Senate seat, Saturday labeled Tunney "little better than (a) traitor" for leading the Senate fight against U.S. aid to Angola.

"A decision has apparently been made that the United States is simply not going to be allowed to offer effective resistance to Soviet aggression," Schmitz said in a statement issued in Anaheim.

"This is little different from outright treason."

Tunney, D-Calif., sponsored the resolution approved by the Senate Friday that would cut off U.S. funding of covert military activity in the Angolan civil war.

Schmitz, a member of the John Birch Society, said California's other Democratic Senator, Alan Cranston, "is behind this left-wing move, and Tunney is his stooge."

He said Tunney and Cranston are "little better than traitors."

U.S. aid in the Angola fighting is needed to prevent the Soviet Union from "building a ring around Africa" to cut off Mideast oil shipments, Schmitz said.

Schmitz served one term in Congress before losing in the 1972 Republican primary in his Orange County district. Later that year he was nominated for President by the American Independent Party.

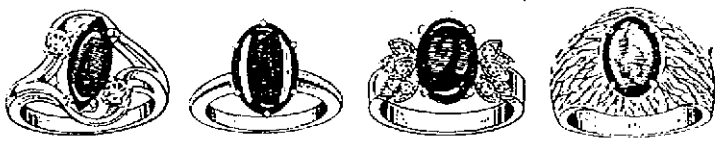

Now head of the political science department at Santa Ana College, Schmitz entered the race for the Republican Senate nomination last month.

Other announced Republican candidates are Congressman Alphonzo Bell and former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch.

Why no lease objections?

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Despite 10 years of covering the Long Beach-Los Angeles waterfront, this writer will never understand some things. The latest incident causing bewilderment is the lack of response from the maritime community and environmentalists to recent action by the federal government granting oil leases smack-dab in the center of ship approach lanes to the two-port complex.

Where are the ship owners? The Maritime and Harbor Affairs Committee of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce? The Propeller Club? The harbor commissions of Los Angeles and Long Beach? The Masters, Mates, and Pilots Union and the other maritime unions? And where is the Sierra Club?

The Coast Guard has asked the Corps of Engineers to prohibit as hazards to navigation the construction of permanent obstructions such as oil islands or drilling platforms in the ocean approaches to the busiest harbors on the Pacific Coast. The Coast Guard wants to establish "Safety Fairways" to be used by vessels approaching and departing the two ports, similar to approach patterns to busy airports. The proposed fairways would be a mile wide at the three-mile limit and widen to 1½ miles at a point near the east end of Catalina Island.

LAST WEEK the Interior Department sold leasing rights to several oil companies to explore and possibly drill for oil in a number of tracts off the Southern California coast. Standard in combination with Union, Scully Oil Co. and Getty Oil Co. entered a high bid of $105.1 million for a 9-square-mile tract in the offshore area near San Pedro.

Some Coast Guard officers regard this as making as much sense as granting authority to drill a well in lanes of the Long Beach Freeway.

The offshore oil lease parcels are in the center of the ship traffic patterns proposed by the Coast Guard, whose objection to erecting permanent structures such as islands, platforms, or even floating drill ships in those ship traffic lanes is obvious. Such structures could put the Southern California coastal community (also parts of Baja California) in double jeopardy.

FIRST there is the risk of a ship plowing into one of the structures with the resulting possibility of an environmentally disastrous oil spill. Second, an oil tanker could hit one of the structures. During the first 11 months of 1975, of the 4168 ships that called here, 1,206 or about 30 per cent were tankers.

Capt. T. C. Duncan, chief of the guard's marine safety division, noted there has been considerable opposition from the oil producers to the establishment of the safety fairways. The Corps of Engineers in Los Angeles has asked for the views of interested agencies, individuals and companies. Comments to the Corps should be made prior to Jan. 12, according to Lt. Col. Robert H. Reinen, deputy district engineer.

THE WATERFRONT

The board endorsed plans to deepen the main channel from 35 to 45 feet, deepen the outer harbor down to 82 feet and dredge waterways leading to the proposed Liquified Natural Gas (LNG) facility on Terminal Island down to 45 feet.

If the port is to remain competitive with other West Coast ports and continue in its vital role in the economic well-being of the entire Los Angeles area, the port must deepen its waterways," Robert R. Dockson, chamber president, has stated.

Dredging Support

Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors has voted approval of several dredging projects planned in the harbor.

The Air Pollution Control District predicts little or no smog today for the South Coast air basin.

No health advisories due to carbon monoxide or ozone buildups are expected, an APCD spokesman said.

Nuclear test shakes desert

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear device was tested at noon Saturday at the Energy Research and Development Administration site at Yucca Flat.

The test, set for last Tuesday but delayed by technical and weather problems, had a yield between 20 and 200 kilotons. One kiloton is the effect of 1,000 tons of TNT.

Slight tremors from the blast were felt at the top of high-rise buildings in Las Vegas, some 90 miles away.

Christmas in the Yemen desert

Priest in search of lost language

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON — Somewhere in the hot sandy wastes of Yemen this Christmas, a Roman Catholic priest will celebrate Mass alone. Dinner will be something cold from a can. Last time it was tuna fish.

And when his celebration is over, he will go back to work, ferreting out inscriptions of a language and people long dead, of a largely unknown civilization that flourished 15 centuries before Christ was born.

And perhaps he will ponder the will of God, and the sadness of all lost things.

Only a few weeks ago — before this, his seventh trip to the southern Arabian peninsula — Father Albert Jamme sat in a borrowed Catholic University office, his voice rising and falling in frustration, his torn T-shirt smudged with char, his fingers gray with ash, the air still tainted with smoke.

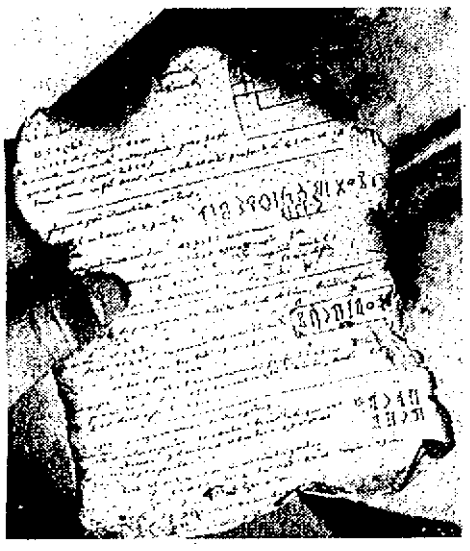

Around him was all that remained of 35 years of work, lifetime of seven-day weeks, charred and in disarray.

Fire struck his small, cluttered office on Oct. 26, and this 59-year-old servant of God wonders why, in the manner of Job. He said in his French-Belgian accent:

"I know there is a great lesson in this. But I don't know what it is. What He wanted me to learn, I do not know. For many years I work all day long here, every day. That He had a good reason, there is no doubt. It is not even up to me to ask why."

Pere Jamme, as they call him on campus, is a balding, excitable man. He speaks with his hands and many clicks of his tongue when words fail.

He is one of only four scholars in the world who have reached back centuries before Christ to recover Semitic languages and history, collected from desert ruins, of an ancient people who preceded the Phoenicians, Greeks, Romans, Hebrews and Arabs with a civilization of their own. His library, stored in his office, was to yield a still unwritten dictionary of those languages.

GLYPHS OF ANCIENT SEMITE TONGUE
Still Legible on Charred Scrap of Paper

THEY lived in a verdant realm that is now desert. They built a huge reservoir, holding millions and millions of gallons of water, irrigating the countryside and altering the climate. The dam itself, in ruins at Marib, fascinates Pere Jamme:

"That is a beauty of universe, to see that. Goodness sake. It's just fantastic."

Greeks and Romans called it "the happy Arabia where it was so delightful to live." Even the early Hebrews traded with this lost kingdom.

The people whom Pere Jamme records mastered language. But they could not master themselves.

"YOU SEE, all those countries of south Arabia, how do you say, were completely dried out by constant wars between themselves. You cannot keep on making battles for centuries without weakening your population so you cannot get up again. Men die, and there's less manpower to keep up the dam."

And so, their wealth and manhood spent, the tribes eventually moved north, probably whence they came, back to the cradle of the Semites, to be absorbed by time.

Until after World War II, little was known of these people and the four languages they fashioned. But for the efforts of a few like Pere Jamme, they would still be unknown.

He happened on this subject matter by chance during World War II as a student searching for a Ph.D. thesis in the library at the University of Louvain. There he stumbled across a book, written in German, of some beginning research into these then traceless people.

SINCE TO this day there are no courses taught about them, even by Pere Jamme, these collected researches of his were, until the fire, one of the few reservoirs of their history.

Which is why he is even more haunted by the fire, and why he returns now, his life's work in shambles, to try to replace what went up in smoke.

Oct. 26 was a chilly Sunday in Washington, and as was his habit every day, he said Mass at the home he shares with other Catholic brothers and was in his office by 7:15 a.m.

It was a simple office, some of the shelves made from old doors, scavenged from around campus, loaded with boxes of index cards, the key to his dictionary. There were larger boxes, too, containing latex impressions of stone inscriptions, albums of photographs of inscriptions and piles of squeezes of inscriptions.

THE LATTER were made by pounding soaked blotting paper into the words cut in stone to mold the letter forms.

Pere Jamme makes no salary. His only money comes from birthday, Christmas and Easter gifts, and that goes into his work, save for a few self-indulgences like cigarettes and coffee.

He brings the dinner leftovers from his church-supported house and usually eats them cold at lunchtime. But this pales, and on this chilly day he heated up some stew, then cleaned off the hot plate.

(The fire department later said the hot plate caused the fire. Pere Jamme insists it was unplugged and cold, else how could he have cleaned it.)

His task this day was to bind the notes of his last trip to Yemen in 1973-74 in hopes a grant would come through allowing him to make another trip this year.

ALONE IN the building, the elevators not running and other offices locked up, he left briefly to borrow the use of a machine to punch holes in the thick wad of notes.

When he walked back up to his office, he found the fourth floor full of smoke. He opened his office door and saw flames 3 feet high. The fluorescent ceiling lights lay twisted on the floor.

"I had exactly the same shock as during the war when I was arrested by the Germans and I was looking into the barrel of a revolver pointed at my head," he recalled. "I froze."

Forgetting two fire extinguishers in his panic, he tried carrying water from a rest room. He did turn in a fire alarm and the firemen were there in 15 minutes. It took an hour to put out the blaze, and then they began throwing his smoldering papers out the window.

STUDENTS and faculty flocked to the rescue, picking up the scattered index cards, the blotting paper squeezes like so much wet and rumpled laundry. They were packed in boxes and spread on the library basement floors to dry.

Pere Jamme was driven home, still in a daze, his eyeglasses still up on his burned-out desk.

The volunteer crew worked until four in the morning, picking up anything with writing on it.

The next day he returned to find the entire Semitic language department, students, faculty and friends hard at work salvaging what they could. For 10 days they set aside classes and their own work to work for Pere Jamme.

HE MARVELED at their kindness, these many people, most of whom he didn't even know.

When his real consciousness returned, so did his resolve. Pere Jamme was born in southern Belgium where the Walloon farmers are known for stubbornness. The totem of his hometown was the wild boar, and the farmers used to say the only way to stop a wild boar was to kill it. "And so," he says, "since I was not killed ... ."

"Besides, I have no right from a Christian point of view to give up anyhow."

More help came. A police sergeant built new plywood filing boxes for what was left of his thousands and thousands of index cards. One man offered to help with expenses. The university sought funds to help replace rare and out-of-print dictionaries with photographic copies from other institutions. The salvage crew saved 50 albums of pictures.

How would he replace records from places as far away as Istanbul, Bombay, London, East Germany, Saudi Arabia? He guesses it might cost up to $40,000 and eight to nine years of work just to reorganize what is left and replace some of it. Much is irreplaceable.

FATHER ALBERT JAMME AFTER DISASTROUS FIRE
Dazedly he walks among research papers strewn on ground

Can someone help him? How can anyone help? he asks, showing the glyphs carefully inscribed on his index cards. "No, I must do it myself." He holds his charred notebooks in his hand and says, "Oh my babies."

He ponders what the Lord wants him to do, and faces it with faith:

"When I was ordained," he says, "He gave me the most beautiful grace of the priesthood. And therefore I am his servant, and the servant is not above the master. And the Master ends up on a cross. What do you expect me to do? End up in a limousine?"

He wanders through the simple channels of faith: "It breaks your heart, my dear," and his eyes show it. "But if you are loving and sincere in your faith, you have to practice it to the end."

"If you don't," and his voice gets angry. "Then you are a liar — to yourself and your neighbor."

"It is not easy," his voice rises. "But the way to Calvary was not easy for the Good Lord either."

What will his work mean? He doesn't know. No one studies it. No one teaches it. But he won't have it stored away in some basement room, unavailable to anyone.

"It has been my philosophy that the Good Lord doesn't ask me for success. He only asks me to work. Work he is going to get. The rest is His business."

Four weeks after the fire, the Ford Foundation grant came through for the trip to Yemen. He was high-spirited again. He chuckled, the old Walloon farmer, certain of his place, his special place.

Someone will find him a simple room in Yemen because he will not spend money on hotels. That way he will be able to stay longer. Where will he be on Christmas?

"I'll be roving around — all the countryside, you know," he chuckles. "Climbing mountains, going where nobody wants to go — except a crazy old man looking for inscriptions."

Hope rekindled for war-dead return

BY DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press

BANGKOK, Thailand — Hopes for recovering the bodies of 1,300 Americans killed in Indochina and resolving the fate of another 850 listed as missing have risen in recent weeks. But there are strong indications the United States would have to pay a high price to North Vietnam.

After lying dormant for seven months after the Communist victories in Indochina, the issue of the "missing in action" (MIAs) has surfaced almost simultaneously in several corners of the globe.

In Peking, Chinese leaders told President Ford this month that they had the remains of two Americans, and could supply information on several others killed during or before the Vietnam war. In Paris, North Vietnamese diplomats met with a U.S. congressional delegation and offered to return the bodies of three American pilots killed in the Vietnam conflict.

A member of the same U.S. delegation visited Vientiane, Laos.

In Saigon, a lone American — Mike Mielke of an MIA group called "Viva!" — reportedly continues his efforts to get Communist officials to search for American MIAs.

Despite the gesture in Paris, most knowledgeable sources say they believe it is unlikely that North Vietnam will simply hand over information and remains without extracting some political or economic price.

Although denying it was bargaining, Hanoi in the past three years has linked MIA recovery to the fulfillment of a clause in the 1973 Paris peace accords on Vietnam that calls for American aid in rebuilding war-battered North Vietnam. The Vietnamese argument says that U.S. help in reconstruction — and more recently, in not blocking North Vietnam's entry into the United Nations — would lead to normalized relations that would then lead to the resolution of the MIA issue.

The United States in turn argues that Hanoi violated a clause of the accords under which the United States should be allowed to recover its dead and missing. But despite the apparent deadlock, Western experts here say better relations and the recent thaw in the MIA problem may be a sign of a move toward bargaining.

After his return from China and the Far East, Ford said, "Our policies towards the new regimes of the (Indochinese) peninsula will be determined by their conduct toward us. We are prepared to reciprocate goodwill — particularly the return of the remains of Americans killed or missing in action, or information about them."

Recovery linked by Reds to aid

At Camp Samae San in Thailand, the Joint Casualty Resolution Center (JCRC) — the U.S. military group charged with the MIA search — is prepared to move into Vietnam with search teams.

"The thrust of our effort is to be ready if the circumstances permit us to continue recovery," Col. John Vollmer, the commanding officer of the JCRC said in a recent interview.

Informed sources say enough data is now available to find more than 10 per cent of the remains of American dead in Indochina if American search parties are allowed into the Vietnams, Cambodia and Laos. In the Paris meeting, however, the North Vietnamese ambassador, Vo Van Sung, told members of the U.S. House Committee on Missing Persons that his government had no knowledge of the whereabouts of the 850 MIAs, almost two-thirds of whom are reported missing in North or South Vietnam.

Vollmer, a West Pointer and combat veteran of Korea and Vietnam, said that, besides the political considerations involved, the MIA search was also a battle against the forces of nature. It has been 14 years since the first American was declared missing in action in Vietnam, and the tropical heat, the rains and other elements daily reduce the chances of recovering and identifying the dead.

For the JCRC, the task is, according to Vollmer, mostly "drudgery-type running down of information," interspersed with occasional exercises simulating recovery operations on land and sea at or near Samae San, about 80 miles southeast of Bangkok. An eight-man negotiations section is being formed in case the Americans and Vietnamese progress to a conference on the MIA issue.

U.S. civilians among missing

In the almost three years of its existence, the JCRC has amassed hundreds of thousands of documents, with some files on individual MIAs as much as 6 inches thick. Analysts and computers try to piece together what may have happened on a particular day years ago when an American pilot radioed a distress call.

The JCRC has had a spotty record, chiefly due to circumstances beyond its control. Established after the signing of the Paris peace accords, it was from the start prevented from going into Communist-controlled zones of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. Last December, one of its search teams was ambushed by the Viet Cong near Saigon and a U.S. Army officer was killed. From then on, it confined most of its efforts to analyzing data and urging Vietnamese villagers to provide clues on MIAs.

A plaque at the JCRC headquarters says that the bodies of 44 U.S. servicemen have been "returned to their homeland through recovery and identification efforts" by its teams and the 20-man Central Identification Laboratory. The lab, also situated at Samae San, has the mission of identifying the remains. Currently, Vollmer says, the laboratory is working on about 20 remains, trying to make identifications through dental and health records and other data.

In round figures, U.S. military sources currently list 250 MIAs and 300 BNRs in Laos; 280 and 550 in South Vietnam; 250 and 330 in North Vietnam; 250 and 40 in Cambodia and 25 and 165 at sea off Indochina. A number of American civilians are also missing in Indochina, including four newsmen.

Wayne Newton plays on

LAS VEGAS — Wayne Newton has a dressing suite — not just a dressing room — here at Howard Hughes' Hotel Frontier. On a recent midnight, some of his boosters, sitting at a small bar in the suite, said that Elvis Presley is a big draw here, but that if Wayne Newton had Elvis' seating capacity, Wayne would outdraw the man that's supposed to be the biggest draw of all.

Newton, a boy millionaire, an enormous star at 32, smiled his chubby open-faced smile and half-nodded. He has a couple of ranches, an important collection of Arabian horses — and a love for work.

HOWARD HUGHES' Summa Corp. authorized a festival week for Wayne marking his 600th week playing in Nevada — 12,500 performances before six million people. Hughes' aides signed Newton to five more years, carrying him through the Frontier and the Hotel Sands up to 1981.

"Newton drives the casino managers up the wall playing so long, he won't work less than 1 hour and 45 minutes," one executive said. "He's too valuable to argue with."

Newton thrusts out his chin. "The audiences don't hate the hotel if you don't give them enough show, they hate you," he says.

HE ENJOYS his show and himself and the 30 to 40 musicians. He laughs as one of the female singers seems to be laying an egg, as a couple of musicians put on a make-believe quarrel, as the trumpeter puts on a King Kong mask. He winced once as he sat at the piano. "First time I sat down in this new belt buckle," he says. He asks for a drink. "Firewater for the Indian," he says.

"I'm really a half-breed Indian, part Cherokee and part Powhatan, from Norfolk and Fredericksburg, Va.," he told me. He wears Indian feathers and his troupe kids him about it.

His professional boosters proclaim him America's No. 1 entertainer. Gone (but not forgotten) is his clever brother, Jerry, who used to be his straight man, always groaning, "Oh, God, yes," in reply to his baby brother's wide-eyed remarks. They separated. Jerry retired to Tennessee.

"JERRY NEVER really liked show business," Wayne says. "He didn't have ambition."

Wayne decided to be No. 1, got rid of his baby fat, went on a one-meal-a-day regime, determined he'd never be a lounge act again and took changes on making good through "word of mouth" acceptance. Those 1-hour-45-minute shows and standing ovations put him over.

He has a playful feud with Robert Goulet, whom he calls "Robert Gullet."

Newton once brought on to Goulet's stage "the most pregnant-looking girl he could find" and coached her to scream at Goulet, "Why don't you ever return my phone calls?"

GOULET returned the favor by secretly asking a Newton audience not to applaud his third number. Newton was appalled at the silence — until he got the message.

Newton's wife, Elaine, is around; they've been married 7½ years. "I've still only had one wife," he says.

WAYNE NEWTON
600 Weeks in Nevada

Newton's been entertaining since he was 5. He started on the Las Vegas circuit when he was 16 and has seen just about everything, including his employer Howard Hughes.

"In 1969, at the Los Angeles airport, I was introduced to a man said to be Howard Hughes, and I believe it was."

The billing in front of the Frontier now lists Howard Hughes' name before Wayne Newton's.

"I concede that to him," said Newton. "I can tell you that my last contract here was personally OKd by Howard Hughes. The figures had to be approved by him, nobody else would OK figures that high. I hope he lives forever!"

Magicians break Geller's spell

By BOYCE RENSBERGER
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Magicians, long irked by Uri Geller's reputed ability to bend spoons, repair watches and read minds through paranormal powers, have taken off their white gloves and branded the Israeli "psychic" an outright fraud who uses conventional magician's tricks to mislead the public.

Several professional magicians, in a recent spate of books and public remarks, say they have duplicated virtually all of Geller's feats by using ordinary conjuring methods. They have also discovered major flaws in the procedures used by various scientists to test Geller.

Only a year ago, the science journal, Nature, published a favorable report of tests on Geller conducted by the Stanford Research Institute in California. That article, widely reported by the press, lent strong support to the belief that the performer truly possessed psychic powers.

BUT NOW that suspicions of trickery have been raised by the magicians, as well as by two researchers from New Zealand, several of the scientists who once professed belief in Geller's authenticity have changed their minds.

The magicians believe that Geller is demeaning their craft by saying that his abilities are beamed to him from a space ship sent by a superior civilization in outer space.

"Geller is a clever charlatan," said Milbourne Christopher, chairman of the Occult Investigations Committee of the Society of American Magicians. "A careful study of his career and observations of his act by magicians have turned up numerous instances of cheating."

Christopher in his new book, "Mediums, Mystics & the Occult," says:

"GELLER is at his ingenious best in laboratories where he is being observed by scientists who believe he has extraordinary ESP ability and think — without justification — that they have ruled out every possibility of fraud. Unless an expert in deception is present... these experiments are as valid as a four-dollar bill."

A more detailed examination of the purported psychic's career is in another new book, "The Magic of Uri Geller," by James Randi, the magician who has probably campaigned hardest against Geller.

The book describes numerous instances in which magicians watched Geller perform at close range and spotted the moment when they thought he diverted attention while, for example, bending a spoon by muscle power. Observers have also spotted occasions on which an accomplice planted in the audience helped Geller by signaling words written on a blackboard out of his view, according to Randi's book.

Among the "tests" of Geller that have impressed scientists are his making a Geiger counter click wildly, as it would if a radioactive object were near, and deflecting a compass needle.

Randi did the same, using nothing more than a magnet taped to his leg and a similarly concealed radiation source.

Two New Zealand psychologists who studied Geller's "watch-repairing" feats found that jewelers were not much impressed. They said that many supposedly broken watches had merely been stopped by gummy oil, and that simply holding them in the hand would warm the oil enough to soften it and allow the watches to resume ticking.

The researchers, Dr. David Marks and Dr. David Kammann of the University of Otago, tested the method and found that anyone holding a "broken" watch in his hand for a few minutes and then shaking it could start it about half the time. This is a slightly better rate than Geller achieves.

EARL'S PEARLS

TODAY'S WORST PUN: Dick Ratazzi noticed the jail in a small town had a big sign, "Amoeba." "We call it that," the jailer explained, "because it has only one cell."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Peter Donald suspects a friend of his has a shady background: "Before he gives you his business card he shuffles them."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The secret of writing is to learn the big words and then learn not to use them." — H.G. Hutcheson.

EARL'S PEARLS: Everybody says elephants never forget. Big deal — how many elephants sent you birthday cards this year?

Comic Jackie Clark says he's a great believer in reincarnation: "In fact, in my life insurance policy I name myself the beneficiary." That's earl, brother.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Creative enterprises thrive and expand into new sidelines, with a special career opportunity. Shopping lists are a useful curb on impulse buying.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A solution to family and team problems is promised. Small outlays yield exceptionally effective improvements. Present your achievements quietly but clearly.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Renew contact with well-disposed, influential friends and ask further introductions. Revisions of schedules and budgets are in order within reasonably defined limits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A search for material assistance, additional resources takes you into unusual places and scenes. Seek formal acknowledgement this evening.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Personal plans move forward rapidly; don't get careless or take anyone for granted. Collect information from every side and work up an approach that requires the top opinions of all concerned.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you know what you want, you're a step ahead of the game. If you can accept an adjustment between, you're even more fortunate. Avoid being overcritical.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can sell ideas now as well as tangible objects and merchandise. Take technical advice into account. Communication arrives from all sides; be willing to listen!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pursue business as usual. Long-term agreements can be reached if the bargaining isn't dragged out. Make sure important items aren't forgotten.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Arrange your work for a convincing display. Take some time out this busy day to seek professional counseling. Deal with those who have credentials.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have lots to accomplish, including last-minute details. Call people with whom you've lost touch. Invite others or join in their festivities tonight.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Schedule your job so you get the essentials done first. Expect a flurry of social invitations ranging from brief contacts to serious offers of enduring relations.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your efficiency is greater today. You've got plenty of work and play, plus a chance to discuss plans with people who are in a position to help make significant changes.

Bob Hope matches up golfing presidents

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all the golfing presidents, none could match Gerald Ford's distance off the tee, but John F. Kennedy hit the ball the best and Dwight D. Eisenhower was the fiercest competitor, says Bob Hope.

"Richard Nixon is like Ike in his enthusiasm for the game," said the comedian. "He never had the natural athletic instincts of, say, Kennedy or Ford, but he got his game down to a 14 handicap through sheer work and determination. He is very keen.

"I played with Lyndon Johnson only once. That was in Acupulco. I remember Darrell Royal, the Texas football coach, also played with us. LBJ didn't have much of a love or feel for the game."

Hope, whose annual Bob Hope Classic in Palm Springs is one of the most popular stops on the PGA tour, carries the unofficial title of America's roving ambassador.

In his travels, he has played golf with presidents and kings, potentates and maharajahs, but none was closer to him than the late Eisenhower, for whom golf was a tonic.

"I THINK golf saved Ike's life for years," Hope said on a weekend visit to New York during which he reminisced about some of his golfing experiences with world leaders.

"I fear Ike would have gone much earlier — knowing his heart condition — if it hadn't been for his interest in the game."

Eisenhower was a golfer after every weekend hacker's heart, Hope recalled. He played with a fighter's gusto. He fumed when he missed shots. He became exuberant when he nailed a good one. And, like any average player, he hated to lose.

"I remember once I was playing with the President against Stuart Symington and Gen. Omar Bradley at Burning Tree outside Washington. I played pretty lousy. We lost our shirts.

"The next day I teamed with Arthur Vandenburg, the Republican senator, against Bradley and the President. I shot about a 75 and we won. I will never forget how sour Ike was when he reached in his pocket and pulled out $3 to pay off.

"HE looked at me and said, 'Why didn't you play like that yesterday?'"

After the match, the President told Hope to let his chauffeur go and to ride back to the White House with him.

"I remember we talked about the Nixon-Kennedy debates," Hope said. "Ike was against them. He said the 'ins' never give the 'outs' a chance. When we got to the White House, he said, 'Look, the light is on in Mamie's room. Come on in.' I did. We sat around and told stories for two hours."

Hope said Kennedy had a natural athletic bent and could have been an excellent golfer if he had chosen to devote more time to the sport.

"He was very strong, but he suffered from a bad back," the comedian said. "He didn't play too often. When he did, he seemed restless and detached, as if he wanted to get back to the office. Often he never played the full 18 holes."

HOPE recalled a time when JFK played at Seminole in Florida with Chris Dunphy, an old New England friend who was the club's chairman.

"Early in the match, Kennedy hit a shot to within about 3 feet of the hole and looked over at Dunphy for a concession," Hope related. "Dunphy turned his head the other way."

"'This is a gimme, you don't expect me to putt this, do you?'" Kennedy asked a bit irritatedly.

"'Putt it,'" said Dunphy. "'I want to see your stroke. Also it's a putt like this that builds character.'"

"'OK,'" said the President. "'But I am amazed you don't give it to me. Anyhow, I had better hurry. I have a date with Mortimer Caplan, the director of Internal Revenue.'

"'The putt's good,'" Dunphy said hastily.

Hope has played often with Ford as he has with Ford's predecessor, Nixon, and admits he is impressed with Ford's power off the tee.

"HE really busts the ball," Bob said. "He hits it 250 and 260 yards regularly and is quite accurate. Recently when I played with him he had birdie putts on three straight holes.

"I said, 'Hey, Mr. President, you're going to win the National Open.' He grinned. But I could tell there was something else he wanted to win."

Strikes silence symphonies

NEW YORK (NYTS) — The strike threatened by the Metropolitan Opera Company's orchestra for Jan. 1 is only the latest in a series of labor disputes that have silenced orchestras across the nation.

In the 1974-75 and 1975-76 seasons, increasingly militant classical musicians have stopped work in Dallas, Denver, Detroit, New Jersey, Omaha, Pittsburgh and Kansas City. All the stoppages have been settled except the one in Kansas City.

Since 1970, there have been strikes by musicians of 16 major American symphony orchestras, many of them the first in the long histories of the organizations. Musicians are demanding more money and a greater say in music-related policy matters.

At the Metropolitan Opera the main issue is money. The musicians, whose contract expired Aug. 24, want a one-year contract guaranteeing 52 paid weeks and a 12 per cent cost-of-living increase.

The Metropolitan Opera Association, which runs the opera company, has asked the musicians to sign a two-year contract that reduces guaranteed paid weeks from 51 to 44 with no pay increase the first year, and in the second year provides 46 paid weeks and a 5 per cent increase.

Currently, the opera orchestra's 100 musicians earn a minimum of $19,635 a year, or $385 a week for a 51-week year.

Anthony A. Bliss, the Metopolitan Opera's executive director, said, "We have a very warm sympathy for our employes. I completely agree that people in the arts are entitled to look for their full-year support from their own profession."

But Bliss said there were "hard realities." All of the contract settlements between symphony orchestras and their management over the country "may be maneuvering the classical music industry into a situation we may not be able to cope with," he warned

Stores alert for 'annual shoplifting explosion'

By AL MURRELL
Staff Writer

Security officers, store employes and police in Long Beach and across the country are preparing for "the annual shoplifting explosion."

Officials responsible for shoplifting prevention and detection in Long Beach agree that while the time between Thanksgiving and the first week of January is bad, the last two weeks of December are a nightmare.

Despite mammoth increases in security, officials at some major department stores expect shoplifting losses and arrests to double the annual average in the next two weeks.

The stores are so crowded that security officers have a difficult time "even keeping the honest customers honest." A shoplifter who was caught recently at the downtown Buffum's department store said he got tired of waiting for a sales person to take his money and walked out with the merchandise.

Long Beach Police Det. Bruce Klemme said 96 persons have been arrested on suspicion of shoplifting in the first three weeks of December.

Klemme, who has been investigating all shoplifting cases reported to police since September, said the December arrest total already has surpassed this year's monthly average of 89, and "it gets worse the closer we get to Christmas."

Klemme said the merchandise stolen during the time he has handled shoplifting has been as different as the thieves who have taken it.

One man spent a weekend in jail recently, Klemme said, because he had eaten 16 cents worth of candy while standing around in a Long Beach store.

Klemme said he still is investigating the biggest shoplifting case in recent years.

Police are looking for a woman suspected of stealing five diamond rings valued at $4,180 from Craft's Jewelers & Loan, Inc., at 325 Pine Ave.

A store employe told police the woman asked him to show her a piece of jewelry and, when he turned his back, she picked up the rings and ran out.

Klemme said most of the things taken by shoplifters are those that are easily hidden or not too heavy to carry off. Television sets are about the biggest items stolen—"thieves just grab them and run."

Police arrested one woman who was running her own meat delivery service, using steaks she had stolen from area markets, Klemme said. The woman just stuffed the steaks into her purse and walked out of the store, then called her regular customers to make the sales.

Shoplifting is a big problem at markets, Klemme said, because "it's easier for poor people to steal food than to take something they have to hock or fence to buy food."

The detective said the huge increase in shoplifting during the holidays is especially discouraging because the stores are doing everything they can to prevent it.

"Every store has bolstered its security force. Some have doubled, and even tripled, their crews for the holidays."

A spokesman for the J.C. Penney Co. store at 500 Pine Ave., who asked not to be identified, said the worst period of the year began Saturday with the schools' Christmas holidays. He said security officers may catch as many as six or seven youths shoplifting in one day.

One reason for the expected increase in apprehensions is that the store has more than doubled its security staff, but the primary cause is the huge increase in customers.

"Juveniles are our biggest problem," he said, "because for them, it's a game.

"Part of the problem is that a lot of stores don't send juveniles down to the police department. We don't let anyone go."

He said another big reason for juvenile shoplifting is that, in most cases, there are no penalties. The children are scolded by juvenile officers and sent home with their parents.

He said the biggest attempted theft at the Long Beach Penney's this year occurred about three weeks ago, when a woman took two of the store's suitcases.

Not satisfied with only the luggage, the woman then walked around the store, filling the suitcases up until security officers stopped her.

The woman had several items in her purse, including a sign which read "This Store Is Protected Against Shoplifting," that she had taken earlier in the day from other downtown stores.

Richard Jeans, chief of security for all 12 Buffums' stores, blames California's "lack of prosecution" and "failing morality" for the increase in shoplifting.

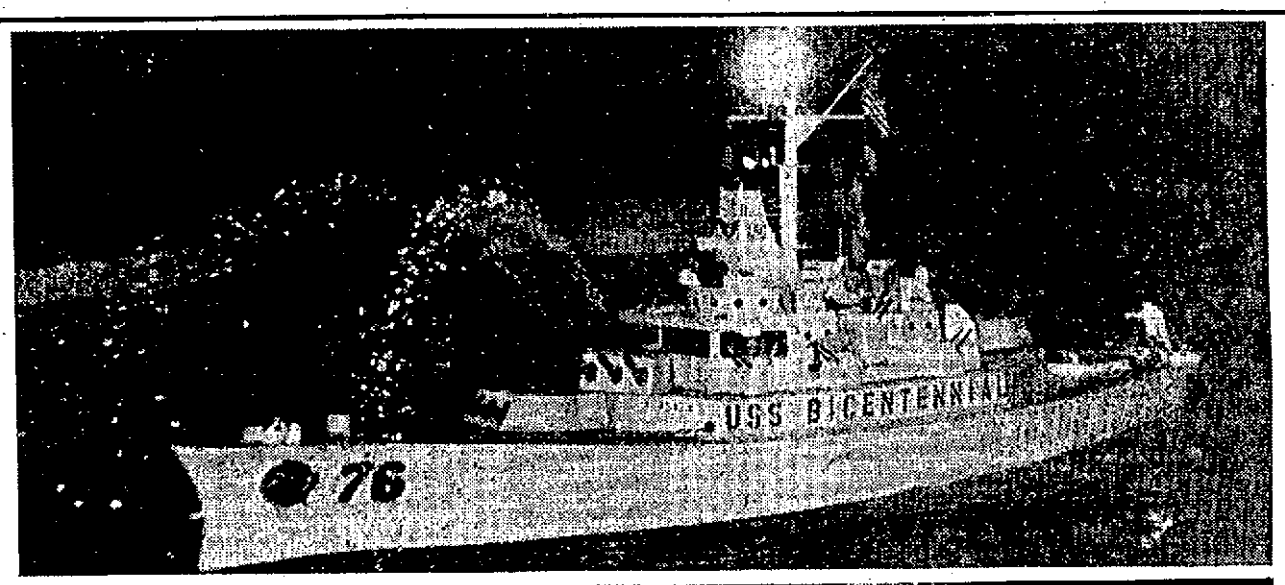

Shoplifting has a lower prosecution priority in California than in any other state, Jeans said.

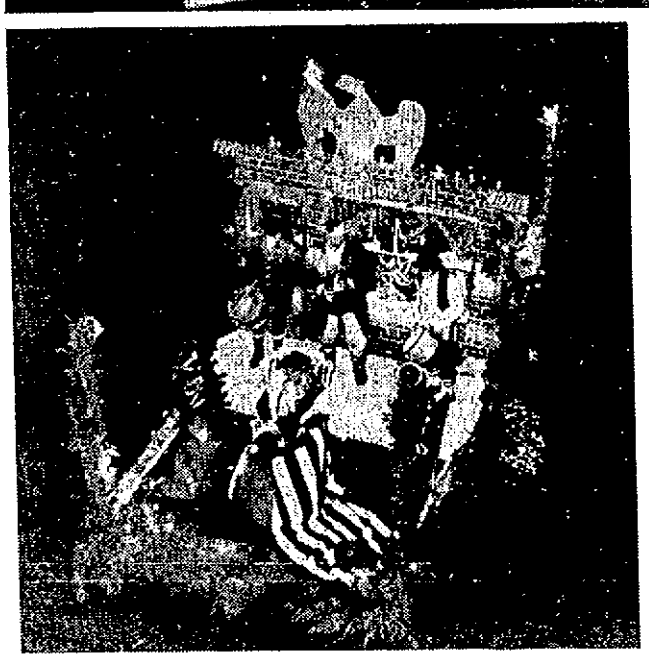

"It's not a crime here," he complained. "It's like a traffic ticket. Nine of 10 shoplifters are cited and released."

He added that "the failing morality in California is worse than ever before. It (shoplifting) doesn't bother them because they know they won't have to go to jail."

Stealing is the only thing shoplifters have in common, Jeans said. "There is no typical shoplifter." His staff recently caught a 9-year-old girl shoplifting at one of the stores and an 86-year-old woman at another.

Senior-citizen unit faulted by auditors

A city audit of the Long Beach Department of Senior Citizens Affairs has disclosed $15,201 of "questionable expenditures" in a $67,000 contract, according to City Auditor Murray Courson.

However, the problems that lead to the negative audit findings have already been corrected, according to Arthur Chapman, executive assistant to the city manager and director of human resources.

"The determination as to whether such costs will be allowable or unallowable will be made by the county, state or the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare," said Courson.

The audit was performed on the department's contract with the county to provide certain local services for senior citizens.

Although "the recorded expenditures appear reasonable," Courson said, the department failed to keep proper pay records for part-time help. He questioned $5,682 in payroll expenses that were not properly documented.

Chapman said the department has begun keeping correct records. Department director Herbert Nalibow deferred all comment to Chapman.

Another large expense that was mentioned was $4,354 for printing that has not yet been received, according to Courson.

The period covered included the year ending in November 1975. The remaining questioned expenditures included smaller amounts for insurance coverage, office space rental, supplies and communications and utilities.

Telephone bills and copying charges came under fire, and Courson said "it is recommended that the department establish appropriate controls to ensure that all reimbursable costs are billed and that necessary accounting entries are made..."

Sick-leave time has been entered improperly or not at all on nine occasions, the report said.

Happy Yule uncertain for family

No one can say that Mrs. W. hasn't tried to provide a good home for herself and her five children.

What is less certain is whether Mrs. W. can give the youngsters a happy Christmas this year.

Social workers say the family lives on a meager welfare allowance, which means there is little money during the year for clothing and toys. Yet the children (whose father deserted them) are looking forward to something special this Christmas.

Whether their hopes come true or not, though, will depend on the generosity of those who give to Operation Christmas.

Officials of the drive urge contributors to mail their checks to I.P-T Operation Christmas, Box 700, Long Beach, California 90801. Canned food or new toys may be taken to the Christmas clearinghouse at 455 E. Spring St.

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

EASY ROBERTS is a whining rabbit of a man who lives with his crumpled, beaten-down-by-life mother in a small one-family house in the most heavily industrialized section of Wilmington. His mother knits while Easy (not his real name) weaves tales of self-pity for his parole agent, 28-year-old Brian Parry.

"Yeah, Mr. Parry, I was drinking, but I'm not now. I know it isn't good for my diabetes. I feel bad, and I can't work. But one of these days I'm going to open a little sandwich shop. Then everything will be better."

The words Easy speaks slink out from the side of his mouth, pushing through fumes of alcohol. His mother looks up from her yarn, shakes her head and sniffs distastefully. Brian Parry, summoned to the house by a letter from Easy's mother, is unconvinced; he knows Easy is a loser, a failed salvage job, a sad piece of flotsam soon to be floating back to San Quentin, Folsom, Soledad on the current of a failed parole.

Life on the outside is no rose garden for a man who has done heavy time for child molesting. And it's no better in prison, where child molesters are held in contempt by other inmates. But maybe prison is the only place where Easy Roberts can hold at bay the demons that torment him and ride nightmare through the cobwebs of his mind.

Brian Parry is concerned about Easy's alcoholism, the thirst that could cause a replay of the sex crime that sent Easy to prison in 1962. Brian is resolved to keep a careful eye on Easy, to check up on him as often as his 63-case load permits.

WHAT level of risk can society take with a parolee? This is the question Brian and agents assigned to the Long Beach office of the Division of Parole and Community Services, State Department of Corrections, are faced with every working day. The agents' reports, investigations and observations tip the scale either to continued freedom or a return to lockup.

It's a hard job, a gruelling job. Days can stretch into 12 to 15 hours, riding around, ringing doorbells, checking, interviewing, putting your judgment on the line and sifting through con promises to find the truth.

The parole agent is a mix of police officer and social worker. An agent has to be tough, fair and realistic. Compassion and understanding and patience are part of the job, but sentiment can't color judgments. Trust and skepticism coexist in a parole agent's work.

Easy probably will go back inside. So will Clay Jordan (fictitious name), a 31-year-old armed robber, burglar, thief and assaulter. Clay has failed parole four times in other jurisdictions, racking up on his apparently cureless weakness for booze, pills and trouble-making women. Clay is the juvenile delinquent who never grew up, who seemingly can't handle the free world on an adult level and has a subconscious desire to return to the womb of prison life, to tuck a sentence and ordered existence around him like a security blanket.

RIP CHILDERS (fictitious name) is making it. Brian Parry is banking on him. Rip's enrolled in an auto mechanics course and soon to graduate. His head's on straight, his family is straight arrow and supportive. Soledad won't see him again; it won't reclaim the black man whose spirit and resolve run through the pages of beautiful, sensitive poetry he wrote as an inmate. His big dream is a job, a typewriter, a chance to prove himself to society.

Johnny Martin (fictitious name) is 22, fresh out of Soledad and curtailed sentence for attempted jail break in Los Angeles County. He's groping, this kid who was salvaged by prison authorities before the homosexual wolves could descend on him and shatter his mind and body. He's got a chance, a chance buttressed by Brian Parry's efforts in behalf of employment and social agency help.

Brian Parry is a good man to have on your side—if you deal from the top of the deck. The criminal judging of his parolees has been done by courts; Brian is the key part of the reclamation project, the steady monitor of men and women who still owe time to the State of California. He works hard in the criminal justice system, with accent on justice—for the parolee and for society.

Brian came to the Long Beach office Oct. 15 from the jungle of East Los Angeles. He's a four-year professional out of the University of Dayton, battle wise, con wise. An outsider may think of his work in caseloads, but he sees each case as a human being. In the world of the parole agent, that counts more than we know.

U.S. privacy law could hamper crime fight

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Inquiry into the background of convicted New Jersey labor racketeer Salvatore Briguglio is certain to bring questioners face to face with some disturbing aspects of the new Right of Privacy Act which could frustrate efforts against organized crime.

Briguglio, often-convicted pal of New Jersey Teamster boss Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, is a prime suspect in the abduction of James R. Hoffa and has taken the Fifth Amendment before a federal grand jury on questions relating to Hoffa.

Although Detroit strike force boss Robert Ozer could say in open court that two witnesses had identified Briguglio and two associates as having taken part in the abduction of Hoffa, the Justice Department reported that the Right of Privacy Act forbids it from stating whether Briguglio or his associates have criminal records.

The federal Right of Privacy Act forbids officials from disclosing the criminal record of anyone, unless a question deals with a specific charge and court at a specific time.

Justice Department press officials feel that the law "is absurd," but violations carry a $5,000 fine.

"If there are going to be any errors, those errors will be on the side of not divulging information from criminal justice records," one usually cooperative press official said.

The Justice Department is barred from

Clark Mollenhoff

any comment or confirmation of Briguglio's conviction on grand larceny and conspiracy in New York in 1963 or his incarceration in the state penitentiary in Attica, N.Y., in July 1966 for a two- to four-year sentence.

"If it is a state charge, we can't tell you anything about it," a Justice Department spokesman said. "You will have to go to the state court for any records of convictions."

Even on federal charges, the Justice Department is barred from making available what is public record in federal courts, "unless it is a pending case."

Thus, the Justice Department is barred from revealing that Briguglio, while working for Teamster Local 560, was arrested on a charge of conspiracy to buy and sell counterfeit money, counterfeit food stamps and counterfeit postage stamps.

While federal court records show that Briguglio served a 14-month federal prison term at Lewisburg and paid a $10,000 fine, the Justice Department cannot confirm it until provided with a specific crime, court jurisdiction and date.

Private citizen crime commissions, which keep track of organized crime and their hit men, burglars and muscle men, are frantically protesting the complicated procedures for obtaining or verifying records of arrests, convictions or other dispositions of cases.

One crime commission director explained that the major problem in keeping on top of organized crime's activities has been tracing those in underworld fraternities who move quickly, change their names often and are often identifiable only through fingerprints and other processes of government identification laboratories.

Mary Lawton, deputy assistant attorney general, Office of Legal Counsel, says the Privacy Act presents "enormous difficulties" in all government agencies, where there is "a sense of panic" created by the $5,000 fine and "the extreme difficulty" of being certain that release of information does not violate the law.

Lawton speaks of the act's "onerous requirements" and "the shoddy and confusing draftsmanship" which make it difficult to achieve the basic objectives of the act.

There are few quarrels with the basic purpose of the act, which is to assure that the government maintains no secret information systems on American citizens; that any systems that are maintained should contain only information that is relevant and necessary to the functioning of that agency; and that such information be complete, timely and accurate.

While Lawton speaks of those objectives as "laudable" and stresses the need to achieve them, she concedes that the confusions and conflicts make it difficult to get interpretations that are in a spirit of good faith and common sense.

Some Justice Department officials agree that the literal interpretations of some aspects of the law "are absurd" and "do not make sense," and a few will not insist upon a specific federal charge or a specific date (some will give an answer if the questioner has the date correct to within a month).

For an administration that was trying to cover up its ties with crime, the Right of Privacy Act could be used to threaten or punish public officials who confirmed the criminal background of administration allies. A number of local crime commission directors comment that state and local political figures could use provisions of the privacy act to keep a lid on a crime-government alliance.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is currently involved in hearings to see how it can accommodate the complaints of the press, local crime commissions and various security agencies under the Right of Privacy Act.

Many feel that unless the act is amended to remove some of the most glaring prohibitions, it will be the biggest boon to organized crime since the Mafia alliance with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The customhouse move

When the U.S. Customs Service first planned to transfer employes from the customhouse on Terminal Island to the federal building in downtown Los Angeles, the move was estimated to cost $650,000.

That estimate, prepared by Regional Commissioner Albert G. Bergesen, was admittedly maximal, since it included $261,000 to pay for "relocation costs, including real estate" for 55 employes, not all of whom in all likelihood would wish to move.

WHEN CONGRESSMEN and newspaper reporters began making inquiries, customs officials in Washington began paring cost estimates.

Rep. Glenn Anderson was told in a letter from H. R. Dickerson, deputy commissioner of customs, that "there is absolutely no possibility that the costs involved . . . will even approach $500,000."

Estimates continued to decline. And decline. They dropped as low as $160,000.

But now the head of the logistics management division of the Customs Service has been advised by the division's chief for the southwest region that changes in rents charged by the federal General Services Administration will result in "a budgetary crisis" and place the region "in a devastating situation" unless more funds are provided.

"Considering the amount of money which has already been spent on this project on alterations and relocations," regional chief D. John Luers wrote, "I feel that Customs would be placed in a terribly embarrassing situation. Additionally, if that information was ever publicly known, I envision congressional inquiries and detrimental publicity in the press, the like of which we have never seen."

WE HOPE members of Congress insist on getting the information.

Even without it, and even without detrimental publicity, the like of which the Customs Service has never seen, we should think Customs would wish to reconsider the move.

The move, now scheduled to cover 36 employes — was planned to enable the regional commissioner to have more of his subordinates in the same building with him.

The question is whether the employes should be handy to the boss or whether they should be handy to the people they serve.

THE MINUTES of an April meeting of the Customs "regional management team" reported on a discussion of that question. Those minutes said:

"Both the regional director (investigations) and regional director (internal affairs) were dubious about the practicality of the regional commissioner's proposal to move the entire sector communications office from the customhouse in San Pedro to the federal building downtown since all of the users of the network are located at the customhouse in San Pedro, e.g., the Los Angeles District Patrol office, the Office of Internal Affairs, and the Office of Investigations. . . . There appeared to be no justification for the move except that the regional commissioner felt that it was a good management practice to have all of the operational entities under his control physically located at the federal building in downtown Los Angeles.

"Both regional directors pointed out that there would not be any users of the sector communications located in the downtown area, and they both felt that nothing would be accomplished by the move except further expending of the taxpayers' money."

That says it all.

AND THE CURRENT financial difficulties compounding the problems of the move underline the message.

There is no shame in backing away from a bad project. A manager who doesn't make a bad decision occasionally is a manager who doesn't make decisions at all. The real embarrassment for the Customs Service would not be in reversing a bad decision but in insisting on carrying it out.

What the Customs Service should worry most about in this case is not congressional inquiries or adverse publicity. What it should worry most about is facts.

The facts argue strongly for leaving the full customs operation at Terminal Island.

The goals of the proxy war

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Strategists of many nations are now engaged in analyzing today's power struggle in Southern Africa, focusing on Angola.

The interest of African lands is obvious, especially among Angola's neighbors. Zaire (which backs the FLNA-Unita coalition) is almost landlocked, except for a narrow strip to the Atlantic, and fears being caught between pro-Soviet Brazzaville and a hostile, Angolan government. Zambia is wholly isolated from the sea; and, if Angola gets a pro-Communist regime, will be in a sandwich between that country, Mozambique and an increasingly leftwing Tanzania. It would be hard put to export its copper without prior political concessions.

C. L. Sulzberger

The states with white-dominated regimes are passionately obsessed: Rhodesia, South West Africa and South Africa, whose 4.5 million whites exceed the total on the rest of the continent (excluding northern Arabs). All have watched with fascination as Moscow installed (temporarily) a pro-Soviet regime in Lisbon which then acted as broker between Russia and the MPLA organization in Angola. MPLA cadres trained in the U.S.S.R., Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria have been equipped, advised and even staffed by Moscow.

No black government would openly oppose moves directed against the white regimes of southern Africa. This presents so huge an embarrassment to the anti-MPLA cause that it could in the end prove a mortal Achilles heel. Moscow constantly stresses this point. A pro-Soviet Angola would be developed into a case for armed subversions against white-governed areas.

But this is not the entire story, as Chinese policy has implied. Peking has been cultivating black Africa for years and invested much in economic projects. It has aided guerrilla movements from Mozambique across to Angola. Apart from rivalry for influence, there has been Sino-Soviet ideological competition.

All the great powers acknowledge that, whatever their prejudices on South Africa and Rhodesia (which are somewhat similar), Southern Africa has a vast importance in the world power balance. Angola alone, a very rich land, half of whose petroleum goes to the United States, is a keystone in any strategic pattern.

For a considerable time the Russians, aided by their Cuban allies, have been operating throughout Africa, with emphasis on west Africa. Advisers, technicians and military missions from Moscow and Havana have been prominent. Soviet diplomacy has regained much if not all of the influence weaned away at one time by Chinese cleverness.

And Soviet authority increases with victories by its guerrilla clients — as in Mozambique and soon, perhaps, in Angola. Moreover, any decisive triumph in the latter country will strongly heighten Russian prestige in uncertain lands like Zambia and Zaire. There is an even greater problem involved: strategic geography. The ever-growing Soviet fleet is steadily gaining naval ascendency in the Indian Ocean and the eastern approaches to the vital Cape shipping route via the Mozambique Channel.

Now if Moscow gains control of Angola, the western seaway will be subject to blockade. Air and naval installations available to Russia could affect the South Atlantic balance as far down as Antarctica.

This is a matter of geopolitical interest that no nation can permit to be obscured because of emotional prejudice against South Africa's unjust racial policies. Even China has managed to remember its own national interests when regarding southern Africa and has done its limited best to offset a Soviet advance.

In Angola's proxy war, it is embarrassing for the United States that South Africa is involved. But South Africa is in no remote sense a threat to the West. Russia is.

New challenge

EDITOR:

Two seconds remained as Poly High School's hopes for an undefeated football season and CIF championship were ticking away.

Poly and North Torrance were tied, but Torrance would win, as they were ahead in first downs. Time had been called, and Poly lined up for a last play. Chick Hastings snapped the ball to Buddy Holliwell, and as the line with Todd Jagerson and Mike Giers held out the defensive surge, razzle dazzle took place in the backfied. Willie Brown emerged with the ball on a sweep around end. Suddenly he stopped and lofted a 55-yard pass to the end zone. There, waiting for the ball with outstretched arms, was little Bobby Banks. Touchdown, and on to the 1959 CIF championship. 1960 was a repeat performance. Undefeated. The play had been masterminded by Bill Mulligan and Davy Levy.

Two seconds in the lives of two fine athletes and gentlemen, Dave Levy and Willie Brown, might have changed defeat into despair; and who knows what the 1960 team might have done without that spark into victory?

We who have known and admired them know that they will also be successful in their new ventures: Willie Brown as an assistant at Tampa Bay, and Dave Levy as assistant athletic director at S.C. We hope the politics at Southern Cal won't turn its football program sour.

Weary of taxes

EDITOR:

I work in a business where I have the opportunity to meet and talk to many fine people every day. The overwhelming majority are fed up with the way our tax dollars are being spent with whatever whim the Lakewood City Council so desires.

They feel redevelopment and larger issues should be put to a vote by the people. What does it matter to the council members what the citizens want? Jo Bennitt is the only member who has stood up and fought for what the taxpayers want. She should be commended. The remaining council members should take heed in what she has to say and the way she votes, as she is for the average Mr. and Mrs. America and the average Mr. and Mrs. America are getting tired of over-taxation.

Fine idea

EDITOR:

Hooray for C. T. Gilbreath's proposal (letter, Nov. 7) to restrict voting. At last, an intelligent approach to our great nation's problems!

As an under-30 citizen, I'm sure C. T. wouldn't expect me to pay income, sales or property taxes (no taxation without representation).

With voter turnouts already at an all-time high, I'm sure his proposed $25 poll tax would not only bail out financially insolvent cities but would soon make short work of the national debt.

I agree with Citizen Gilbreath that our Founding Fathers would smile in their graves at his proposal. In fact, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if they were laughing.

Rising taxes

EDITOR:

It was nice reading that a Long Beach City Council committee is very concerned about the city's property upkeep and upgrading — to the point of empowering the city to move in and do the work at the owner's expense if he fails to do so.

I wish the comittee had also discussed if there was some way the city could cover the problem of assessors who cause the rise of tax on improved properties.

Cross words

EDITOR:

Perhaps you will say this is of little consequence, but I am amazed at the number of definitive mistakes in your daily crossword puzzles.

In the Dec. 17 I, P-T, a synonym asked for is in answer to the question, "The summer months in Peru." Literally, the Spanish words would be "los verano meses," or "los meses de verano." The specific months would be Junio, Julio and Agosto. The puzzle came out Enero, which means January, and pluralized becomes Eneros.

Afterthought. Forgive me for my ignorance. We here in the United States are in the northern hemisphere. Peru is in the southern hemisphere, and their weather cycle would be different from ours. So I stand corrected.

But I am not amiss in the original premise.

The gladdest of tithings

NEW YORK — It was that merry season when frost reddens the nose, shop windows twinkle with holly berry and tinsel, and the spicy odors of flaming pudding and balsam gum sweeten the dusk whose early arrival betokens the imminence of year's end. On such an evening, huddled bone-chilled in an inadequate gray topcoat, his feet shod in scuffed loafers, his cheek pallid and his mouth eager for the warm fantasy of gin and vermouth, Santa Claus shambled through the streets of the metropolis.

He passed without so much as a single joyous glance at the gigantic human file cabinets towering over Sixth Avenue, from every window of which sparkled brilliant shards of light telling of triumphs of commerce and real-estate speculation within. Not for him the happy cry of delight which issues from the brimming heart when coin tinkles and freshly added paper rustles in the cash register.

WHAT A miserable lot is mine, he reflected, in a shameful surrender to self-pity, and suiting word to the thought, he uttered aloud the words, "What a rotten thing it is to be Santa Claus."

No sooner had this cry escaped his lips than he succumbed to an overwhelming flood of shame, for he knew too well that many a breast would harbor hopes crushed in disappointment were he to fail in his appointed rounds. The mere thought of so many broken hopes and dreams sufficed to draw from his tired eye a solitary tear, which fell across his wan cheek and made sweet haste to fall to the street, there to join the jetsam of trampled grapefruit husks and canine evacuations so integral to the rich profusion of the great cosmopolis.

Instantly, by way of atonement, he produced a coin and flipped it into a kettle presided over by a miserable wretch costumed in knickers of brilliant red and an ill-fitting white beard. As he did so, a group of large urchins appeared, emerging from a parked limousine, in which it was their custom to wait, with the interior heating device running, until Santa Claus approached.

SANTA CLAUS was no more capable of resisting the joyful flutter of hope which brightens a large urchin's eye at Yuletide than an octogenarian of resisting four highwaymen armed with carving knives.

"Ho, ho, ho!" laughed Santa, and called each of the urchins by name. "Ho, Abe!" he cried, "Ho, ho, Hugh!" he cried, "Ho, ho, ho, Jerry!" he cried. To which each of the urchins replied, "Heh, heh, heh."

"What can old Santa do for you fellows!" he inquired.

Well did he know that the question was idle, for, being politicians as well as urchins, Mayor Abe, Governor Hugh and President Jerry, as he was wont to call them while rolling about under the Yule tree with all three merrily flogging him penniless, were loath to give utterance to their true desires in intelligible phrases.

AND SO, hastily seating himself on a pile of garbage, Santa took little Abe upon his lap. "You, Abe — I know what you would like." Abe gurgled with delight. "You would like me to go to a massage parlor so that you may tax my sex life with your brand-new massage tax." Abe nodded with joy, which was severely mitigated when Santa said, "But Santa cannot do that, for, you see, dear Abe, Santa is much too ticklish to submit to the touch of mercantile fingers."

In what profusion did Abe's tears then flow. Surely he would have dissolved in anguish had Santa not quickly stanched their coursing by promising to get a haircut at once so that Abe could tax his excess hair. And when Santa promised to work much harder and earn much more money so that Abe's new income tax could severely curtail his manner of living, the little fellow clapped his hands in delight and leaped about in the garbage with a joy to warm the cockles of the coldest heart.

Then Santa picked up Hugh and kissed his rosy cheek, declaring that Hugh, would also be remembered, not only in Santa's increase of labor, from which Hugh's own income tax would reap its merry share, but also from Santa's purchases of gasoline, gin and vermouth on which Hugh's revenue would wax and fatten in the days to come.

JERRY, HOWEVER, did not assent to take his place on Santa's lap — oh, good reader, not because Jerry was shy! Not at all! Jerry, to tell the truth of it, did not like Santa Claus and, in fact, planned to get elected by running against Santa Claus. He did not wish to risk having his photograph taken while seated on Santa Claus's lap.

"Jerry, Jerry," said Santa. "Do you suppose that Santa would forget you? Do you know that federal income tax you take out of my salary each week?" Jerry nodded in delight. "Well," said Santa, "after you have taken my money down to Washington, I am going to let you lend it back to me and charge me interest for it. Santa will be paying you interest for using his own money. Thus you will be able to tax me twice instead of just once, and what's more you will be able to tell everybody you are a splendid fellow who plays Santa Claus to Santa Claus."

JERRY WAS SO happy that he kicked his heels in the air and bumped his head on his toe. All three urchins raced back to the limousine and sped away crying, "Merry Christmas, Santa! God bless taxes, everyone!"

With warmed heart, Santa trudged into a department store to make a government happy with an 8 per cent sales-tax payment.

America's narcotics war

WASHINGTON — In the grubby rooms and grimy alleys of our big cities, the United States is still fighting the Vietnam War. It's a losing war against narcotics, a war escalated frightfully during Vietnam.

Tens of thousands of GIs brought their drug habits home with them from Vietnam. Hundreds of thousands, who never went to Vietnam but became alienated over the war, began taking drugs.

THEIR PRIVATE war is still going on. Some are fighting to kick the habit; far more are fighting for the costly fix that will keep them going for a few more hours.

It's a largely invisible war, which is seldom seen on our television screens. But from confidential files, here are a few of the stark episodes:

• An estimated 90 per cent of the heroin sold on our streets comes out of Mexico. Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda-Paullada, therefore, has ordered a massive crackdown. He has assigned 5,000 soldiers and 350 federal police to eradicate the poppy fields. They are supported by a fleet of 39 planes and helicopters, which have been spraying the poppy fields with herbicides. Nevertheless, the opium eradication effort, despite a lot of ballyhoo, has been a bust.

• U.S. narcotics agents have smashed at least one multimillion-dollar dope ring that has been smuggling heroin into this country from the Far East. Yet Asian heroin continues to trickle into our ports.

• Heroin has been smuggled into the United States, appropriately, in the clothing and coffins of corpses. Sometimes the heroin was hidden in secret panels of the coffins, sometimes in the clothing of the corpses. Cooperating undertakers in the United States removed the deadly powder, buried the corpses and passed on the heroin to traffickers.

• Heroin has also been stashed in marked parcels which have been shipped out of the Far East on Air Force cargo planes. In the United States, corrupt Air Force workers would unload the packages with the hidden heroin and substitute innocent parcels in their place.

• A favorite hiding place for heroin has been the household effects of servicemen returning to the United States. U.S. authorities and Thai police recently discovered 50 pounds of heroin secreted in six pieces of furniture waiting shipment to the United States.

THE MOST discouraging news from the drug front has been the failure of the Mexican crackdown on poppy growing. According to official estimates, 15,000 fields are "likely to be cultivated during the period November 1975-March 1976" in Mexico.

The fleet of crop-dusting planes and helicopters attacked the fields

from the air. Stick-wielding soldiers advanced on the fields on the ground. Yet confidential State Department figures indicated that during the first two weeks of the offensive, only 60 fields have been wiped out. This is less than one-fourth of one per cent of the poppy crop.

The Mexicans have had trouble with their crop-dusting equipment. And the soldiers, who depend on the opium farmers for food and shelter, are reluctant to retaliate by destroying their hosts' crops. For that matter, the Mexican government has almost no control over some of the mountainous poppy-growing regions.

THE NEWS from the Far East has been somewhat better. In confidential reports from Thailand, the Drug Enforcement Agency describes the break-up of a dope ring that had shipped "over 1,000 pounds of heroin from Thailand to the United States since 1967.

"The organization has been seriously disrupted," the classified documents report, and the ringleaders have been caught. They were "responsible for supplying several East Coast locations in the United States, including North Carolina, Washington, D.C., Pittsburgh and . . . New York City."

An official, three-page summary describes how an underworld alliance of U.S. servicemen, ex-servicemen and Asian nationals "used the APO mail system, military aircraft, official military post, home baggage and couriers" to smuggle heroin into the United States.

The first break came with the arrest of a former serviceman named William Henry Jackson who ran the Five Star Bar in Bangkok. His protector, according to the confidential reports, was a high Thai legislative figure.

But the ring continued to operate after Jackson was shut up in the slammer. Earlier this year, ex-DEA chief John Bartels set up a special task force in Thailand. One of its agents managed to infiltrate the smuggling ring.

"An initial purchase of 1,000 grams (about two pounds) of heroin by the agent last March in Bangkok established his bonafides," states the memo. This led to a "Sino-Thai resident of Bangkok named Luchai Ruviwat."

THE UNDERCOVER agent, at the risk of his life, cultivated Luchai by purchasing heroin from him. Government funds were used to buy more than six pounds of almost pure heroin.

Once in Luchai's confidence, the agent learned that the dope dealer was planning a delivery of more than 100 pounds of heroin to the United States. This amount, after it was cut for street sales, would be worth a staggering $30 million.

The agent, holding out the bait of an extra $75,000 profit for Luchai, persuaded him "to visit the U.S. and suggested he bring some more heroin with him."

End of incident: "On Sept. 2, Luchai and a Thai courier associate were arrested in San Francisco with (a pound) of heroin and charged with importation with intent to sell narcotics."

A preeminent American scholar of Marxism, Professor Hook's essays deftly deal with the varieties of doctrines which claim to be direct heirs of Karl Marx; with the hatred of some Marxist groups toward others, that exceeds their hatred for capitalism; with the relationships between Marx and Lenin; with Stalinism, and many other matters. — H.

Callaway's stubborn boss

WASHINGTON — High-ranking officials in the Ford administration, filled up by campaign chairman Howard H. "Bo" Callaway's attacks on Ronald Reagan, calmed down quickly enough when they learned their source: Gerald R. Ford.

In lashing out at Reagan, Callaway seemed to be disregarding the counsel of practically everybody else in the Ford political operation. But Callaway, a West Point graduate, was operating under orders from the Commander-in-Chief. That suggests President Ford is more stubborn in overruling advisers and more abrasive in his political style than is generally realized.

WHEN CALLAWAY outlined his plans for sniping at Reagan's record as governor of California at a recent Cabinet meeting, protests were heard from Treasury Secretary William Simon and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. "They thought they had Bo turned off and were amazed at what happened at Houston," says one administration insider.

Some high officials complained to the President about Callaway's anti-Reagan barrage at the Southern Republican Conference in Houston Dec. 12-13. Mr. Ford replied that Callaway was acting under presidential orders. Whatever anybody else thought, he went on, he felt Reagan's record ought to be explored and criticized.

The fact that Bo Callaway, not Jerry Ford, was in Houston also attests to a stubborn position taken by the President against overwhelming advice. When one particularly astute adviser urged Mr. Ford to attend, the President insisted he had to cut down on political travels. Could he begin cutting down on Dec. 14? No exceptions, replied Mr. Ford.

LIKEWISE, Mr. Ford's decision to take his annual Christmas skiing vacation in Vail, Colo., reflects not only his family's wishes but his reaction to the mass of advice against going.

That advice came to him not as carefully thought out collective opinion from his Cabinet and staff together, but from individuals, each acting on his own without any coordination. It got under the presidential skin so deeply that he even changed an earlier plan to spend only four days on the slopes and will now stay one week.

"I never realized how stubborn this man can be," one adviser confided.

REFUSAL OF the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to ease its hard line on Israel will trigger a series of anti-Arab vetoes by the United States during next month's Mideast peace talks in the United Nations Security Council.

This veto policy will damage the U.S. case in the Arab world, and perhaps in Western Europe, too. But top policy makers here think the rest of the world will be understanding during the 1976 presidential campaign year. Nobody expects U.S. diplomacy in the Mideast requiring public pressure on Israel until after the election.

Although President Ford forbade a veto of the U.N. resolution inviting the PLO to attend the Security Council talks, the United States insists on an end to basic Palestinian refusal to recognize Israel as an independent soverign state. The PLO rules out any such policy change between now and the U.N. talks in mid-January.

U.S. officials are privately pressuring Israel in many ways, including slow arms deliveries, to sit down with the PLO. But Secretary of State Henry Kissinger agrees with ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan, that the United States must publicly side with Israel.

Share the Spirit of Christmas

What do you tell a child on Christmas Day when there is nothing under the tree . . . nothing in the stocking . . . nothing on the table? It's hard enough for an adult to face a bleak holiday season, but it's almost impossible to make a child understand "why". Despite the efforts of many agencies, there are many needy families in Long Beach who don't qualify for much aid.

Operation Christmas' goal for 1975 is $15,000 to help 2000 families. Help take the hard cold facts out of an otherwise warm, happy season of the year.

A VIP PAYS A VISIT Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravely Jr., the first black to reach that rank in the United States Navy, paid a visit to the Southern California Military Academy in Long Beach Friday and reviewed a dress parade of the Corps of Cadets. His wife, the former Alma Bernice Clark, was also a guest for the day. George V. Hurte, academy superintendent, was the host. As I-PT Staff Photographer Bob Ginn's pictures show, the ceremony met with a variety of reactions from the school's youngsters.

Stores tighten security to combat shoplifting

Unlike stores such as Penney's, Sears Roebuck and Co. and Sav-On Drugs, where most of the shoplifting is done by youngsters, 70 per cent of the shoplifters caught at Buffums' are adults and nearly all of them are women.

In addition, Jeans said, all of the shoplifters his staff has caught in the downtown store during the past two months have had either money or credit cards they could have used to pay for the merchandise.

A spokesman for the Sears store in the Westminster Mall said 90 per cent of the adult shoplifters caught at his store have Sears credit cards. At least 50 per cent of all shoplifters caught at the store have enough cash with them to have paid for what they took.

Another problem security officers face is gangs of youthful shoplifters who "do it just for kicks."

Jeans said two gangs of teen-aged girls who had stolen thousands of dollars worth of merchandise from Long Beach-area stores have been broken up recently.

The girls in one of the gangs had to steal at least $1,000 worth of merchandise as part of their initiation and there were seven or eight in the gang, Jeans said.

Both gangs were broken up after members who had been caught shoplifting told officials about the others.

Keith Brown, manager of Sav-On Drugs, 400 Pine Ave., blamed the high prices caused by inflation for most of the increase in shoplifting at his store.

Brown said, "They steal because they can't afford to buy. They go after things they can sell, like small appliances, cosmetics and jewelry."

Although the shoplifters, themselves, are as different as the merchandise they steal and the reasons they give when caught, the one thing officials agree on is that shoplifting is a crime of opportunity.

Many shoplifters don't think about stealing something before they enter a store, one security officer said. "They just take it because it's there and they don't think they'll get caught."

Sam Rue, manager of Buffums' downtown store, said, "Shoplifting is everybody's responsibility. When something is stolen, everybody pays."

More than $3 billion worth of merchandise was shoplifted throughout the U.S. in 1974 and officials expect the total to rise by as much as 30 per cent this year.

And it's ultimately the consumers, not the stores, who will pay the bill.

Holidays alter traffic court night session

Long Beach Muncipal Court's night sessions for traffic cases, regularly held on Wednesdays, will be held on Tuesday evenings for the next two weeks because of the holidays.

Presiding Judge Eugene Long stressed that the special sessions will be held on Dec. 23 and Dec. 30 only.

From 5 to 9 on those evenings, he said, Traffic Division offices will accept payments of fines.

Persons seeking a hearing on their traffic citations should report to the courthouse, 415 W. Ocean Blvd., no later than 6:30 p.m., he added.

Slain girl discovered

The partially nude body of an unidentified girl in her mid-to-late teens was found sprawled on the patio behind a Carson industrial firm early Saturday.

Sheriff's deputies said employes reporting for work at the Intercraft Corp., 771 E. Watson Center Road, discovered the body in the industrial area just south of the San Diego Freeway at about 7:20 a.m.

They said an autopsy would be performed this morning to pinpoint the cause of death and asked for public assistance in determining the victim's identity.

Investigators described the victim as white, 16 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 90 to 100 pounds, with shoulder-length, reddish-brown hair and blue eyes.

They said the victim, nude from the waist up, was clad in denim Levis, light-colored, floral-print bikini underwear and blue deck shoes. She was wearing a copper, Indian-design bracelet on her right wrist.

Blaze guts Whittier home

A spectacular fire, punctuated by exploding automobile gasoline tanks, caused an estimated $65,000 damage to a Whittier home and garage early Saturday.

A county fire department spokesman said the blaze erupted in the house at 8205 Lindante Drive, at about 2:30 a.m. He said fire fighters from seven engine companies responded to the alarm and knocked down the blaze in about 20 minutes.

All occupants of the house were safely evacuated and no injuries were reported in the fire, which spread to the structure's roof and garage.

The spokesman said two cars and the garage were destroyed when the flames apparently touched off explosions in the vehicles' gasoline tanks.

Cause of the fire was under investigation.

Couple foils robbery try

A Lomita man and his wife foiled a robbery attempt by a female bandit Saturday afternoon at their stationery store, but not before the man got a minor gunshot wound during a struggle.

Lomita Sheriffs said the incident occurred at Woodman's Stationers, 2107 Pacific Coast Highway and left owner Harry Karlson with a slightly injured right hand.

Karlson's wife, Dorothy, told deputies she was alone in the store when a small, brown-haired woman entered, pointed a gun at her and demanded money. When she refused, the intruder threatened to get two friends she said were waiting for her in a car, according to reports.

However, Mrs. Karlson screamed for her husband who was in the upstairs office, and he rushed to her aid. During an ensuing struggle the gun discharged, grazing Karlson's hand, and the woman escaped.

Students 'taught to learn'

Learning is sometimes a problem for college and university students because they don't know how to learn, Denis J. Fenton, director of the Learning Assistance Resource Center at California State Universtity at Fullerton, said recently.

The center was set up two years ago and helps more than 3,000 students every month.

Much of the learning center's work is directed at freshmen and students from other cultures, Fenton said. But the attendance is increasing among veterans, women and older persons who have been away from the educational routine.

Many of them experience difficulty in adjusting to university life, Fenton said, and often find it difficult to follow the teaching style of some professors.

"Studies prove that many students, who might otherwise succeed, fail at the university because they lack basic 'learning how to learn' skills," Fenton said.

Tutorial assistance is provided for most of those appealing for help in their studies. Sometimes it is provided on a one-to-one basis.

But many students seem unable to cope with the university and its many agencies. They get help in this field of orientation, too, it was explained.

Dead man in oil field

The unidentified body of a middle-aged white male — who appeared to have been beaten — was found in the Terminal Island Oil Field about 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Long Beach police reported.

The discovery was made by an oil field worker.

There was no identification in the dead man's clothing, police said, adding that an autopsy is scheduled to determine the cause of death.

Tapes ruling awaited in trial of suspect in women's deaths

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The trial of Gerald Shill Jr. of San Pedro, charged with two murders for which prosecutors are seeking the death penalty, has opened in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Technically, it began more than a week ago when prosecutor Peter Bregman made his opening statement to Judge Jack Goertzen.

Defense attorneys, however, immediately challenged the validity of the prosecution's first evidence—a series of tape-recorded statements the 28-year-old Shill gave to investigators in October 1974.

THUS, the trial has been suspended while the judge conducts a special hearing to decide if the tapes will be considered as evidence.

During the evidence hearing, witnesses—including police officers and, on Friday, the defendant himself—have testified. And the court has listened to the tapes.

Prosecutors Bregman and John Bax contend they're legally binding confessions to some of the crimes Shill is charged with committing.

BESIDES the two murder counts, Shill faces charges that include two sex crimes, attempted murder and assault. They stem from a series of attacks on Southland women in the summer and fall of 1974.

Defense attorneys Edward George and Anthony Murray contend the tapes hold illegally acquired statements, the involuntary remarks of an unwitting prisoner to investigators.

Shill originally was arrested in connection with a hatchet assault on a young woman in Signal Hill. But the case mushroomed when interviews with Shill and a continuing investigation linked him with other crimes, police said.

In his testimony Friday —strictly limited to the question of whether he talked with police voluntarily—Shill gave his account of his arrest the night of Oct. 11, 1974, and his first days as a prisoner in the Signal Hill jail.

SHILL testified simply and conversationally that Signal Hill investigators Jon Ohman and Frank McCoy advised him of his rights at the time of his arrest, but that they insisted on interviewing him before he was allowed to see an attorney.

Those officers have testified that Shill acknowledged he understood his rights—including the right to see an attorney before talking—and waived them, allowing them to go ahead with the interviews.

On the first tape played in court, Shill acknowledges the hatchet assault on a Long Beach college coed—the climax to a night of heavy drinking, a desultory, fruitless search for a prostitute and a minor traffic accident with the coed's car.

Striking the young woman with the hatchet's blade was an accident, he tells investigators—he struck the blow in a moment of apparent panic, but only intended to stun her with the hatchet's blunt butt.

"IT HAS been eating me alive ever since it happened," he states on the tape.

The young woman survived that incident.

On a subsequent tape of an interview with investigators from Irvine, Shill is asked about a Long Beach woman, identified as a prostitute, named Bonnie Faye Davis.

In September 1974 her body was found in Irvine.

On the tape, Shill initially denies knowing about the woman's death.

DET. STEPHEN Nash at that point showed the defendant a photo of the woman, he has testified. And at that moment on the tape, he asks a point-blank question: "Is that the woman you shot in the head?"

Shill answers: "I don't know."

Nash seizes on that: "OK, did you shoot a woman in the head? A prostitute?"

"I believe I did," Shill responds.

Like the other prosecution tapes, the validity of the one recording that exchange remains to be decided by Goertzen.

Attorneys in the case said Friday his rulings on the issue could come this week before court recesses for the Christmas holiday.

Dog owners warned on mailmen attacks

Owners of dogs who pose threats to mailmen may find themselves—and their entire street—without mail delivery service, Norwalk Postmaster Harry H. McGannon warns.

He issued the warning as Homer Norris, Norwalk letter carrier, was convalescing at his home from serious arm and head wounds suffered when he was attacked by a large Doberman-type dog Nov. 24.

The 6-foot, 185-pound mailman spent seven days in the hospital after doctors found the dog had gnawed Norris' left arm nearly to the bone and caused other injuries to his head and right arm. Norris said Saturday he had no idea when he would be able to return to work.

However, he said, "I'm glad it was me the dog mauled instead of a small child, because a child would have been killed by the attack." He added, "I first saw the animal springing through the air and I can't remember how I fought the dog off. Finally, a neighbor came to my aid."

McGannon said the Postal Service has strict regulations concerning interference by animals.

He pointed out that both city and state laws explicitly hold owners liable for personal injury and or property damages.

Drawing contest to mark Freedom Train's L.B. visit

A drawing and painting contest for Long Beach youngsters to welcome the Bicentennial Freedom Train to Long Beach on Jan. 7 has been announced by the Recreation Department.

To celebrate the arrival of the touring 25-car historical train, children from 6 through 12 are being asked to paint or draw a picture on the theme "What freedom means to me."

The paintings should be at least 8½ by 11 inches or larger and must be submitted to the department office at 155 Queens Way Landing by Dec. 31, according to contest rules.

The judge will be Dolores Barrows, an assistant for education at the Long Beach Museum of Art.

The seven winners will breakfast with Mayor Thomas J. Clark and be taken on a special tour of the train.

The train began its cross-country tour in April and will visit 80 cities. It will stop on Pier J while in Long Beach.

All entries will be displayed in the department's office.

Secret Witness

Selected cases, rewards

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 57 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $38,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the selected and varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 59-year-old David E. Smith of Downey, shot to death during a holdup at Lucy's Restaurant, 5096 Long Beach Blvd., shortly before 2 a.m. on Nov. 24, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the torch slayer of Alice Olay, 52, of Downey, whose charred body was found in a blazing auto in a lot at

SECRET WITNESS

Pioneer Boulevard and Rosecrans Avenue in Norwalk early on the morning of Sept. 19, 1975.

—A $1,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and manslaughter conviction of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Myrtle Taylor, 88, of Gardena, as she was crossing Vermont Avenue at 149th Street in Gardena at 7:15 p.m. on Oct. 24, 1975. The driver was described by witnesses as a tall, thin black man about 30 years old, driving a 1969 Chevrolet Impala or Caprice, blue with a matching vinyl top.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Robert L. Boone, 28, of Long Beach, who was found shot to death in a Signal Hill field at 23rd Street and Junipero Avenue on the morning of Aug. 18, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the holdup slayer of Benjamin Wallace, 48-year-old San Pedro taxi driver who was found shot to death and slumped over the wheel of his cab parked at Seaside Avenue and Terminal Way on Terminal Island at 3 a.m. on Sunday, Aug. 3, 1975.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and arson conviction of the person who started a fire and turned on gas jets in an attempt to blow up or burn Le Premiere restaurant, 430 E. Ocean Blvd., in the early-morning hours of Aug. 25, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of James Hamilton Maegenn, 50-year-old employe of King's Imperial Restaurant in Lynwood at 1004 Atlantic Ave., stabbed to death in the restaurant parking lot as he was leaving work at 3:30 a.m. on June 1, 1975.

—Rewards totaling $3,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $1,500 pledged by store owner Christopher Saunders — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Duane Fettig, 29-year-old clerk shot to death during a holdup at the Melody Liquor Store, 20716 S. Normandie Ave. in the Torrance area, on the morning of Feb. 5, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Wayne W. Chiodo, 45-year-old liquor store owner shot to death during a holdup at the Willowma Liquors, 425 W. Willow St., by two armed robbers on Dec. 29, 1974.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of Douglas Lee Thompson, 23-year-old fugitive from a murder warrant in connection with the holdup slaying of David W. Arouette in his television repair shop at 6465 Long Beach Blvd. on Dec. 30, 1973, with an additional reward of $1,500 to be paid when and if Thompson is convicted of the murder.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

And the camera you've since replaced with a more sophisticated model could be the start of some other family's treasured photo album. There are dozens of such items . . . many of which you may now be storing in your home . . . that other families would love to own. Make it happen! Advertise those items for sale with a low-cost Classified Ad. Owner insurance plan worked out

By BOB HEISLER
Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA — If you can afford it, there's a way to pay once for homeowners insurance that lasts as long as you own your home. Or your children own it. Or their children.

It's called perpetual insurance. The people who offer the policy — The Green Tree — are careful to say buying the insurance is an investment and should not send you into debt.

Green Tree — also known as Philadelphia's Mutual Assurance Co. for insuring houses from loss by fire — will start selling the policies next month, but they've had some practice in perpetual insurance.

ALL THEIR fire insurance business is on a perpetual basis. Green Tree has been doing it for 191 years. Some policies are more than 100 years old.

Green Tree President David Wilmerding Jr., says regular liability and contents coverage is included in the new homeowner's plan.

It's works:

Say you own a $20,000 home. You can insure it the old way by paying annual premiums on a "term policy." This premium can be raised when the insurance is renewed. If you cancel, you have invested only those yearly payments of, let's say $100 a year.

Perpetual insurance, on the other hand, is based on paying the equivalent of about 20 years of the annual premiums all at once. If you would pay $100 a year for insurance, you would need about $2,000 for a perpetual policy.

BUT FOR this investment, you would have insurance on your home for as long as you own it. If you ever sell the property, all the $2,000 is returned.

If your home is destroyed, you collect on the policy and get back your $2,000.

Meanwhile, the company invests your larger chunk of money and hopes to earn enough to pay for all the claims against it.

Wilmerding said his fire insurance division had made so much money from investing those deposits that the policy is paid back to a holder in 15 years in dividends. Further dividends, then, are pure profit.

Homeowner's insurance will not pay dividends — yet.

It will take a few years of lucky investments to create the same record for the new plan, he said.

Bolsa Chica showing five remaining units

While just five units remain visitors are advised to view the Landmark home community as soon as possible according to sales manager Bill Walker.

According to Walker, the Landmark Homes, Bolsa Chica homesite is the areas most complete new home package, and 1975 prices are still in effect on the units.

FEATURES included in the purchase price are shag carpeting in the living room, master bedroom suite, hall and stairway; forced air gas heating units; rear and side yard fencing with gate; concrete driveways; shake roofs; and deluxe-equipped kitchens with continuous cleaning double ovens.

Also included is a new porcelain lined deluxe dishwasher, and luminous kitchen ceilings. All plans feature roomy pantries.

All fireplaces are natural wood burning with gas outlets. The bathrooms are equipped with showers over all tubs, while some have separate shower stalls with full height ceramic tile walls.

They also feature marbelene pullmans, custom hardware and tubs of long lasting pressed steel.

THE HOMES are located in Huntington Beach on the southwest corner of Talbert and Edwards Street, between Warner Avenue and Garfield Street.

They are priced at $64,900 with conventional financing. The choice of exteriors gives the project a near custom home appearance and avoids the monotony which afflicts some new home developments.

House-of-the-Week specials are available.

"The overall attraction of the community is greatly enhanced by its choice location, less than 1 mile from the beach," Walker said.

"Off shore breezes make Huntington Beach one of the few comparatively smog free locations left in this area," he pointed out.

"And the city is now one of the fastest growing communities in the entire country."

Lake Summit extols price

According to Walker & Lee, prices at Lake Summit represent the lowest prices for single family, individual patio homes available anywhere in Anaheim Hills. The prices, according to the sales counselors, range from $50,900.

Terry O'Neill, Walker & Lee sales manager explained that Lake Summit are individual, single family patio homes on their own lots, with NO COMMON WALLS shared by a neighboring unit. They are NOT condominiums, townhomes townhouses or apartment homes.

Offered are three and four bedroom to 2½ bath single-family, spectacular view patio homes in a master planned community. Lake Summit is the newest collection of single family homes to open in such a hill-top, view oriented location. A choice of four one and two story floor plan arrangements with 12 exterior stylings are available.

LAKE SUMMIT homes introduce the exciting "zero side yard" concept to this exclusive, energy-saving location.

Walker & Lee also advised visitors to compare for themselves the quality evident in each Lake Summit home with any other fine area home. Lake Summit is the latest housing development of S.I.R. Developers Inc., developers who have built and sold homes of quality to Southern California families since 1955.

Features included in all homes are continuous cleaning gas range and ovens, trash compactors, dishwashers and disposals, luminous ceilings, custom oak cabinets with "rarely found" custom rollers and door guides, pass-thru patio windows, roomy built-in pantries, carpeting through-out, wood burning fireplaces, automatic garage door openers, wood shake roofs, concrete drives and walks and complete fencing.

Community facilities include swimming pool and cabana, swirlpool jacuzzi bath, regulation tennis court, and full professional landscaping and maintenance.

At Serrano turn left to Lake Summit Drive and Lake Summit homes. Models are open daily from 10 a.m. For advance information phone (714) 998-7450.

Tax credit, 1974 prices at Landmark

The 5 per cent ($2,000) tax credit, plus the low 1974 prices are still in effect at Huntington Landmark reports sales director, Bill Markas.

According to Markas, a very noticeable increase in sales activity is being attributed to the (5 per cent) $2,000 tax credit program offered at the beach-close condominium homesite.

MARKAS reminded those interested in the tax credit savings that it is in effect only until Dec. 31. Eleven homes still remain in this second phase, and still at low, original prices, he continued.

Recreational amenities at Huntington Landmark include a swimming pool, hot water swirlpool bath, gymnasium, putting green, two tennis courts, and a paddle tennis court.

The condominium concept of carefree living is provided for residents with exterior maintenance, landscaping and care of the landscaped greenbelts and recreational facilities provided by a professional firm retained by the homeowner's association for a monthly fee. The completely walled community has a 24-hour security guarded entrance.

The all-adult nature of the community is preserved by the requirement that all residents be at least 40 years of age, except that one spouse of a married couple may be under 40 if the other is over 40.

PRICES within the community range from $32,890 to $37,990. Conventional financing is offered.

Prices include wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallway, and efficient forced air heating. Other features are walk-in closets in most models, deluxe-equipped all-electric kitchens, and utility rooms within each unit that include a washer-dryer.

"One of the reasons for the popularity enjoyed by this active adult group is the fabulous million dollar recreational center," Markas added.

A variety of recreational amenities are available in and around the complex he continued, whether the individual is seeking group or private activities.

Facilities for numerous activities are provided in a large clubhouse that features dining and card rooms, a billiard room, art studio, photo lab, pottery, wood shops and all purpose rooms.

Models are located at 8641 Atlanta Ave. The sales center is open daily from 10 a.m. and information may be obtained by calling (714) 536-8847.

Huntington Landmark is a project of Signal Landmark Properties Inc., one of the Signal Companies.

THE COMPLEX may be reached from the San Diego Freeway by taking either Magnolia Street or Beach Boulevard, south to Atlanta. From the Pacific Coast Highway, take Beach Boulevard, north to Atlanta.

What's Your Problem?

Selling home on contract is no riskier than renting

What's involved in that curious business known as a "sale"? Well, it can be as simple as walking into the drug store and slapping down a dollar for a girlie magazine — or as complex as wading through a 150-page legal document in the presence of a dozen lawyers to buy control of a huge apartment complex.

It boils down to the same thing: The transfer of ownership of and title to property from one party to another, for a price.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I've owned, and rented out, a nice three-bedroom house for the past few years. The present tenants are a nice young couple who would like very much to buy it. He's the son of an old friend, and I'd like to oblige them — since the house hasn't been all that good as an investment, anyway — but the trouble is that, like most young couples today, they don't have a cent toward a downpayment.

The boy's father has suggested that I sell the house to them on contract. As I understand this, the title would remain in my name until the equivalent of a good downpayment has been made in monthly installments, like rent, and that I could evict this couple if they don't make good on it.

I was about to agree to this when another friend told me that getting a contract buyer out of the property if he defaults can be a long, time-consuming business and that he can "squat" there without making any payments for many, many months.

I trust this young couple, but I really don't know much about them. Is my friend's warning justified? Mr. W. F. P., Long Beach.

ANSWER: Your friend's warning has an element of validity in it since the person buying the home on contract has a bit more of a stake in the property than a mere renter does. But, how much of a stake will depend largely on how much equity he has in it.

Normally, that is, if he has 20 per cent (or less) equity in the home, he can be evicted for defaulting on his obligations in about 30 days — which, in most places, is just about as long as it takes to get a delinquent renter out, too.

At the 20 per cent mark, his sincerity in owning the property is pretty well established and, rightfully I think, he has a much greater stake in it.

Between 20 and 39 per cent equity it will take about 60 days to get him out and, with an equity in the 39 to 49 per cent range, the eviction for default normally takes 120 days. If he has 50 per cent or more equity in the property, then it can take up to nine months.

As you can see, the risk isn't really too great. Until your young friend and his wife have pretty well proved their ability to handle this kind of responsibility, it wouldn't be any harder to get them out of your house than it would be right now while they're still renting. They sound like a pretty fair bet to me.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We bought a house on a corner lot this past spring, and I never knew before how near-impossible it is to maintain a nice lawn on a corner lot — every kid in the neighborhood and a lot of adults, too, take a shortcut right across my poor lawn.

We are thinking of putting up a picket fence but, since our lawn extends all the way out to the street (no sidewalk), how close to the street can we put it? Is there some sort of precise distance that we have to pay attention to? Mrs. V. B. A., San Diego.

ANSWER: An alligator-filled moat doesn't sound like a bad idea, either.

Actually, how far back from the street a fence must be set will vary widely from city to city, and there's no way of knowing what your own local regulation is without calling your street department.

An implied easement — three feet is common — is practically universal and there are normally other considerations, too, such as those having to do with access to fire hydrants, storm sewers and so on.

In the average city, there usually isn't much quibbling over this sort of thing unless the homeowner tries to include the street-guttering in his little domain.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My broker recently sold a piece of real estate for me and, as is usual, the buyer gave me "earnest" money, $1,000, in the form of a personal check. Shortly after this I had to turn down two additional offers on the property — one of them for more than my original agreement. Finally, my buyer backed out of the deal.

I took it for granted, and so did my broker, that the $1,000 was mine and that the buyer forfeited it by dropping out of the deal. When I tried to deposit the check, though, I found out that my "buyer" had stopped payment on it.

My broker says that he doesn't think there's anything I can do about it, but it's made me pretty mad since I did turn down two later offers for it. Mr. G. G. K., Levittown, Pa.

ANSWER: And mad you should be. Call your lawyer and have him contact your would-be buyer about a few facts of real estate life.

Citadel has bonus package

Buyers of Citadel Condominiums will be offered a "Bonus Decorator Package" for a limited time at no additional cost, Steve Albers, project coordinator for Founders Mortgage Co., developer, said.

The package gives homebuyers the opportunity to select from a variety of bonus options.

It includes: Upgraded wall-to-wall carpeting; luxurious wallcoverings; or handy small appliances. An additional option is consultation services of professional interior decorator Ms. Patricia McCarthy, A.I.D.

Citadel Condominiums, located at 515 Monterey are less than 200 yards from the San Clemente pier, are priced from $47,900 to $65,900.

One and two story homes from 1,260 to 1,500 square feet of living area are offered.

Citadel features a Spanish motif with tiled roofs, romantic courtyards and balconies rimmed by hand-crafted wrought iron railings.

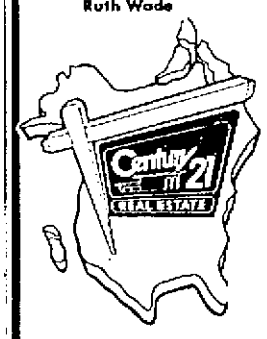

The development's appearance is kept unspoiled via an underground security parking facility.

Viewing is from 10 a.m. to dusk daily. Exit the San Diego Freeway at Palizada, turning left on El Camino Real, right on Del Mar and left on Monterey.

Ailing Rams make Steelers feel sick

TERRY TAKES TO AIR - Steeler QB Bradshaw is upended by Rams' Cody Jones and friend

Jaworski plays Polish joke on Pitt, 10-3

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

A "meaningless" game?
Don't tell it to the Rams.

"I'm really proud of my teammates," said Fred Dreyer, keynoting the grit displayed in Saturday night's 10-3 win over the Pittsburgh Steelers. "We knew we were hurting but shucks..."

So nobody will have a better record than the Rams' 12-2 when the National Football League playoffs open next weekend, and if some of those wins were achieved against paper opponents, they had to do it the hard way in the last one.

THEY BEAT the Super Bowl champions without eight players who were starters when the season opened, and if anybody in the national TV audience or in the crowd of 69,389 at the Coliseum thought the Steelers weren't trying...

"Bull!" Dryer retorted, dismissing the suggestion. "They're a professional team just like we are."

Two of the Rams' strongest offensive weapons—quarterback James Harris and fullback Lawrence McCutcheon—were in uniform but coach Chuck Knox had no intention of risking their minor injuries before Saturday's match against St. Louis.

So he went with an infighting offense for three quarters. Then when he found his club in position to win it with the score tied 3-3 in the final quarter he turned Ron Jaworski loose on a 60-yard touchdown drive capped by the backup QB's own five-yard burst into the end zone.

Until then, the clubs had lived up to their billings as the two stingiest defenses in the NFL. Roy Gerela kicked a 20-yard field goal for the Steelers in the first quarter and Tom Dempsey connected from 26 yards for the Rams in the second quarter.

The only offensive performer of note thought the first three periods was Pittsburgh's Franco Harris, who rushed and rumbled for 126 yards—most ever against a Knox-coached team.

"One thing about those yards," Ram linebacker Isiah Robertson said, "he knows how he got 'em."

"Franco's a great back," said Dryer, the defensive right end. "He's legit."

"He makes you hustle," said middle linebacker Jack Reynolds. "I've never seen a back with so much sense of knowing where to go. O.J.'s quick and fast but this guy's big. He's got so much speed for a big man it's unbelievable."

But the Rams got a lasso around Harris when they had to, and they shut down Terry Bradshaw's passing even when the Steelers' quarterback returned for two unscheduled appearances in the second half after Joe Gilliam was jolted senseless by the fierce Ram pass rush.

THE STEELERS completed only 5 of 21 passes and the Rams' defense missed the NFL 14-game defvensive record by only two points at 135. Minnsota yielded 133 in 1969.

Monte Jackson, Eddie McMillan and linebacker Ken Geddes intercepted passes while Dryer and tackle Cody Jones each sacked Bradshaw once, and Fred spoke of a special dediction by the defense.

"Who knows what the offense was doing all week?" Fred said. "We (the defense) just got together and said we wanted to play well."

Harold Jackson spoke for the offense, which had been hit by the loss of three running backs within the previous six days.

"We put our heads together," said the elusive wide receiver, "and said, 'Look, the defense has been doing it. We've got to get out there and do our part now.'"

Their opportunity came on the first play of the final quarter when Harris drove off tackle, fumbled and Reynolds pounced on the football at the Rams' 40-yard line.

"Our game plan was to go in and slug it out," Jaworski said, "but then I think he (Knox) decided to let me open it up a little."

At that point, the Steelers were playing without all-pro tackle Joe Greene, who had played the first three quarters; cornerback Mel Blount, who leads the 49ers bow to Miss. State, 70-57

Bulldogs take bite out of LBSU

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

DAYTON, Ohio — In what promises to be a roller coaster season, Long Beach State experienced one of those stomach-wrenching turns for the worst Saturday night.

Less than 30 hours after enjoying the euphoric heights of a 80-74 upset of previously unbeaten Washington State, the 49ers were brought crashing back to earth, 70-57, by Mississippi State in the finals of the University of Dayton Invitational Tournament.

The defeat, witnessed by what remained of a Dayton Arena crowd of 10,513 that had seen the host Flyers topple Washington St., 91-81, squared Long Beach's record at 3-3.

The 49ers fly out of this forzen Ohio city today, bound for San Francisco and a Tuesday night encounter at Santa Clara.

For once, experience was not a liability for the young 49ers Saturday night. Mississippi State started two sophomores and two freshmen along with senior center Taylor Williams.

"We lost because we played lousy basketball," said 49er coach Dwight Jones.

Mississippi State had something to do with that, particularly 6-5 freshman forward Gary Hooker, who is yet to be nicknamed "Happy" even though he spent most of his weekend in Dayton smiling.

It was Hooker's 17-foot jump shot at the buzzer Friday night that qualified Mississippi State for the title game and he took up aginst the 49ers where he had left off against the Flyers.

Hooker, who bears a striking resemblance to J.J. Walker on the television show Good Times, hit 12 of 24 shots and all four of his free throws for 28 points. He was an easy choice as the tournament's most valuable player.

He was at his best in the second half getting 10 of his points in the final 8:03. This was after the 49ers, who had trailed since midway through the first half, managed to get within five, 48-43, on a jump shot by sophomore Clarence Ruffen. Ruffen led the 49ers in scoring with a career-high 17 points.

"The key was our defense," an easy-going Hooker said after his team's fifth victory in six games. "We knew we couldn't let Long Beach get the shots they had against Washington State."

For a few moments, Long Beach did get the same kind of opportunities it received in shooting 63 per cent against the Cougars.

"We were in our standard defense, which is kind of a cockeyed 2-1-2 zone," Mississippi State coach Kermit Davis said.

It was even more cockeyed after the 49ers went to work on it with quality perimeter shooting from Ruffin, James Dawson and Larry Hudson enabling them twice to build early six-point leads.

"They shot the heck out of that," Davis declared.

"So we went to our Bulldog defense," Hooker said.

And in so doing, the Bulldogs took a bite out of the back of the 49ers' trunks.

The Bulldog defense is an extended 1-3-1 designed to double-team the opponents' point guard, in this instance Dale Dillon, as soon as he crosses midcourt.

It's a breeze for Bruins

By GARY RAUSCH

So much for UCLA's laugher this seasn.

Before an announced crowd of 10,591 that was more interested in how many points the Bruins could acemulate than how they arrived at that total, UCLA thoroughly decimated Seattle, 106-72, Saturday evening in Pauley Pavilion.

Marques Johnson, Ralph Drollinger and Richard Washington led an onslaught that will help fill the stomachs of a good many Bruin rooters. Every time the Westwood team surpasses 100 points, a local fast-food outlet dispenses hamburgers to lucky ticket holders. Each time they top 105, french fries are added and for 110 a coke is thrown into the bargain.

With Johnson tossing in 23 points, Drollinger and Washington 17 apiece, the Bruins posted their 86th consecutive victory in Pauley. It was a win they could have counted before the opening tipoff.

The Chieftains were in trouble from the onset with a starting front line that measured 6-6, 6-8 and 6-9. Their only threat ws Clint Richardson, a multi-talented freshman who appeared in Long Beach with the United States All-Stars against the best California had to offer last Marach.

Richardson poured in 20 points, but was his team's own worst enemy by not shooting more often. Seattle converted only 41 per cent from the field and would have been 8-for-30 the first half without the 6-3 guard's 5-of-7 effort.

With Johnson scoring 11 points, the Bruins were able to hold their own through the initial ten minutes. They appeared to catch fire with eight minutes elapsed when coach Gene Bartow inserted guard Ray Townsend int the lineup.

From a 20-20 standoff, UCLA exploded as it has few times this season. The Bruins outscored the Chieftains, 36-10 the final 9:54 before the intermission for a 56-30 advantage.

Washington rang up 12 of those points and Drollinger 8. Lanky Ralph showed 14 rebounds at the break and 16 for the evening. UCLA held a commanding 32-18 edge on

One of those off nights for Kings

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

It was just one of those nights for the Kings who made life frustrating for their fans.

Turning in their sloppiest performance at home this season, the Kings suffered a 5-1 shellacking at the hands of the Pittsburgh Penguins Saturday night before 9,404 Forum faithful who lost their faith in the second period.

Rogie Vachon, who had shut out the Pens in three of his last four starts at the Forum, was victimized for four goals during the second period when Pittsburgh outshot the Kings, 21-7.

The victory enabled the Pens to pull within six points of the second-place Kings. Meanwhile, Montreal picked up another point with its 2-2 tie in Vancouver and now leads the Kings by a whopping 16 points.

Coach Bob Pulford couldn't believe his

Poly tips Lynwood; Bruins, Lancers win

Poly High held Lynwood scoreless from the field for more than five minutes of the fourth quarter and went on to defeat the visiting Knights, 65-52, Saturday night in a prep basketball game matching two of the Southland's top teams.

The Jackrabbits, now 9-0, never trailed in a game that saw Lynwood defense Poly in a man-to-man alignment for one quarter, then go to a 2-3 zone thereafter.

The Hares, in no hurry to shoot with a comfortable lead in the fourth quarter, scored their first points at 6:36 on a drive by Clyde Johnson, then made it 55-46 at 4:40 on two free throws by Mike Cochran.

Lynwood, which had five shots in that span without scoring, didn't score until the final 2:38 when 6-8 Darrell Allums made it 57-48.

In a game marred by 42 fouls, the Hares were led by C. Johnson, 15 points, Michael Wiley (13) and Cochran who had a season-high 12.

Lynwood's Tom Freeman, out for two weeks, showed no effects of a leg injury and responded with 21 points on 9 of 17 field goals. He scored five of Lynwood's first seven points when the Knights trailed only 8-7.

It was the second loss in nine games for Lynwood.

IN other games involving Moore League schools, Wilson jumped off to a 22-8 lead and went on to defeat Los Alamitos, 60-53; while Lakewood stopped Lowell, 77-64, to win third place honors in the LaHabra Tournament.

Los Alamitos hit only 3 of its first 16 shots against Wilson as the Bruins forced numerous turnovers. Gary Mulder scored 21 points for Wilson while Kevin Mead had 19 for the Griffins.

Lakewood, which suffered its first loss Friday night, rebounded Saturday as Fred Powers' jumper with 3:20 to play in the second quarter put the Lancers ahead for good. Powers (18), Scott Ziemer (22) and Craig Hill (15) were all in double figures for Lakewood.

HOST Valley Christian rallied to nip Excelisor, 59-56 in the finals of its own tournament while LaMirada stopped Warren, 66-60, in an all-San Gabriel Valley League finals of the Laguna Beach Tournament.

Doug Widfelt scored 22 points and pulled down 16 rebounds as LaMirada staged a remarkable rally to defeat Warren. The Matadors were trailing by 12 points, 38-26, at halftime. Widtfeld was selected the tournament MVP.

A steal by Pete Vander Kooi put Valley ahead 53-52, then he made the most of four free throw opportunities in the last 30 seconds.

Cerritos champs

MODESTO (Special) — Sparked by Willie Howard's 25 points, Cerritos College overcame a 40-33 halftime deficit to win the Modesto Tournament title with an 82-74 victory over Contra Costa Saturday night.

Howard, who scored 100 points and grabbed 48 rebounds during the four-day affair, was selected the tournament's most valuable player. All-tournament honors also went to teammates Mike Wysong, Darrell Lane, Contra Costa's William Stewart and Jim Allen, and Hancock's Paul Landsberger.

Stewart, whose two dramatic free throws with no time remaining Wednesday night beat Compton in the opening round, led the losers with 24 points. Cerritos had five men, including four starters, in double figures.

After a sloppy first half in which Contra Costa dominated in rebounding, the Falcons bounced back and led by as many as 10 points midway through the final half. At one time Contra Costa led by 18 points in the first half.

But with Howard in the middle of the front line and back-up center Mike Van Holland moved to forward, Cerritos controlled the boards in the second half and finished with 35 rebounds.

Contra Costa tried a late rally and trailed by only three points with three minutes to go, 75-72, Cerritos turned to its dealy game and a bucket by Howard iced the win.

CONTRA COSTA (74)— Stewart 24, Griffin 10, Allen 16, Cook 6, Foreman 4, James 6, Ruffen 6.

CERRITOS— Damm 15, Lane 12, Howard 25, Wysong 6, Scott 10, Van Holland 14.

KINGS THUMPED, 5-1—

skaters dropped their third successive game at home.

"I don't think it was a letdown after our tough 2-1 loss to Montreal. We just played a very bad hockey game," Pulford said. "We were confused. Our passes were going all over the place.

"I don't know why we'd play a game like that, especially a game as important as this one was to us.

"We had a lot of chances in the first period, but then we just died. We got behind and everything fell apart for us."

Life was cheerier in the rivals' dressing quarters. Naturally, the biggest smile of the night was flashed by Pen coach Marc Boileau.

"Can you believe that? Heck, we're sitting at the airport for a couple of hours today and have to fly five hours in a prop plane and then play like this.

"I told the guys I didn't expect too much from them. Then they go out and dominate the game like we did Wednesday night when we beat California, 9-2."

Asked how big a win it was," Boileau laughed, "That's our biggest of the year. We're only six points back and they (the Kings) have to go on the road now. We got them at our place on Dec. 31st and maybe we can have a real New Year's eve party for them. Like take over second place."

Jean Pronovost, the league's top goal scorer, started the deluge with only 16 seconds gone in the middle period with his 23rd bullseye.

Defenseman Dave Burrows surprised the Kings by connecting with a short-handed goal at 5:45. Then Rick Kehoe (No. 9) and Pierre Larouche (7) scored only 18 seconds apart.

Kehoe scored his second goal of the night to give the Pens a 5-0 advantage with 18:06 remaining.

Bu Don Kozak spoiled Michel Passe's shutout bid by tapping in his fourth goal of the year with 14:52 to go.

Boileau had some reservations over the victory, considering one of his goalics had quit the team Friday night.

"I had planned to start Gary Inness tonight, but after last night I had to go with Plasse.

"Gary hadn't been playing much lately so when he gave up a couple of goals in Vancouver, I decided I'd better replace him. But then he went directly to the locker room in the middle of the game and it put us in a bind since we didn't have a backup goalie. I don't know what I'll do. We'll sit down Monday and discuss the situation," Boileau said.

Even thought Inness was in uniform, it wouldn't have mattered if the Pens didn't have anyone in goal. The Kings' home ice record slipped to 12-5-1.

With 15 of their next 17 games on the road, even gloomier days are ahead.

KINGS NOTES: The Penquins were in an ugly mood due to their late Southland arrival. The Pens were fogged in Vancouver after Friday's game and weren't able to get a clearance to fly out until 4 p.m. Saturday. They didn't get to the Forum until one hour and 15 minutes before game time. It's been a frustrating trip for the Pens. They had been stranded in Oakland Thursday because Vancouver was locked in by fog. "We didn't get to practice Thursday," Mark Boileau fumed. "Then we had the bad game with Vancouver, (a 5-1 loss) and now all this. No wonder we're having trouble," the former L.A. Blade player said in reference to his team's 2-6-2 record in its last 10 starts.

Boileau also had coaching problems with goalie Gary Inness who reportedly quit after being yanked in the Vancouver game. Inness had told teammate Barry Wilkins "I quit" after being replaced by Michel Plasse. Inness skated directly to the gate and went to the locker room. But Inness was in uniform for the Kings' match.

The Pens had been shut out by the Kings in three of the last four meetings. Since 1967, the Kings enjoyed a 20-7-1 advantage at the Forum.

Over-all they are 28-25-4. Vachon has a 21-10-3 career win mark against Pitt, recording shutouts in three of the last four outings. The Penguins' No. 1 problem has been defense. Only Washington has allowed more goals. The Pens rank second in the league in powerplay conversion (28.9 per cent) but are 17th in penalty killing (6.4).

49ERS TAKE A FALL—

much pressure as possible on Dillon. He is a great penetrator, passer, and shooter," Davis said, "and we wanted to get the ball away from him as much as we could."

The Bulldogs did that. After scoring a career-high 27 points Friday night, Dillon got only two shot attempts Saturday night and finished with five points and nine turnovers.

Dillon did, however, have eight assists and aided by his Friday night heroics, was voted to the all-tournament team along with Hooker, his Mississippi State teammate, Ray White, Dayton's Johnny Davis and Washington State's giant Steve Puidokas.

After making its defensive adjustment, Mississippi State went ahead for good, 18-16, on Wiley Peck's tipin with 8:44 to play in the first half. This was after Hooker's short jumper at 9:36 had tied matters at 16.

Long Beach never did show much consistency on offense, but moved to within five at 48-43 behind the play of Ruffen, Tony McGee, who scored 11 points, and Ron Austin who had a career-high nine in a reserve role.

But Mississippi State, with Hooker and White hitting from the outside, and Williams getting a key tip, pulled away.

Long Beach's most glaring deficiency was on the boards, where one Bulldog, 6-7 Williams, outrebounded four of the 49ers' five starters by himself.

Williams had 10 boards while Dillon, Hudson, McGee and Dawson had a collective total of seven in a combined total of 147 minutes of game time.

UCLA BREEZES—

the boards enroute to a 64-40 margin for the night.

The second half was purley academic. The Bruins led by 34 inside the first four minutes and were up by 40 when Bartow called Johnson, Washington and Drollinger to the sidelines.

Seattle coach Bill O'Connor was ready to voice an opinion on the Pacific-8 Conference basketball race after suffering his fourth defeat in seven games— all the losses coming against Pac-8 teams.

"We've played Washington, Washington State, Oregon State and now UCLA. I put UCLA first, Washington second, followed by Oregon State and Washington State.

"Washington is the toughest of the three Northwest because of its talent. Oregon State showed us the best shooting. On a given night, however, any one of the three could beat UCLA, especially away from Pauley Pavilion."

O'Connor believed he was in contention the first half, particularly when the scored was tied at 20. "Then UCLA applied its press and we were totally flustered.

"I thought we were prepared for it, we practiced on it all week, but Pauley Pavilion's crowd had an effect. We didn't function the rest of the first half and the game was over.

Bartow had no complaints.

"Our players are complementing each other much better," he said. "Raymond is playing extemely well off the bench and Richard and Marques are outstanding, of course. Andre (McCarter) is providing excellent floor leadership and tonight he shut Richardson down well."

Despite the goals some fans are seeking, Bartow's players are hardly a bunch of hamburgers.

Or, they said it — and wished they hadn't

'Tis not necessarily the season to be jolly

Deck us with our words of folly;
Fa-la-la-la-la, la-la-la-la.
Did we say all that, by golly?
There oughta be a law, law-law-law-law.

Let's see, turkeys, nuts, fruitcakes . . .

"What are you doing—a review of the pro football season?"

No, just the shopping list for Christmas dinner . . hey, if it isn't Ebenezer Scrooge. You're invited, too.

"Who else is coming?"

Oh, lots of fun people. John McKay, for one.

"Good, I want to ask him about something he said about the Tampa job after he beat Notre Dame: 'If I've said it once I've said it 25 times — I'm not going to make a decision until our season at USC has ended.' The next day he announced he was leaving."

WELL, THEIR season was over. They haven't won a game since.

"Do you mean they aren't going to the Rose Bowl this year?"

Right, but they get to play in the Liberty Bowl. The folks down in Tennessee still haven't heard that the Trojans finished fifth in the Pac-8. Shhh!

"I can believe that. Memphis still thinks there's a World Football League. Must be the only team in history to pay its players for not playing games. Too bad about that league. Thought it might make it with the Hemmeter Plan and all."

Yes, the president, Chris Hemmeter, said, "This is the league of the future. Our plan will allow the WFL to endure as a financial entity, and with increased financial stability exploit itself on the field where it belongs."

"But I trust the NFL is still doing well."

OH, YES. The Rams sold out for the Steelers this week, so the TV blackout was lifted.

"That must have made my friend, the radio guy, happy."

Uh-huh. He and Carroll Rosenbloom wil be sitting together. C.R. announced that "the Rams will abide by federal law, etc., etc."

"Well, they can talk about what happens to people who don't abide by federal law. By the way, how's my other old friend, George Allen? Will he be coming?"

No. He missed the playoffs this year.

"You're kidding. What happened?"

Well, there was this play in St. Louis when two officials said the Cardinal guy caught the ball in the end zone and one said he didn't, so they voted and Allen lost.

"Cute. What did the instant replay show?"

It showed 10 million viewers that the officials finally found a way to keep Allen out of the playoffs.

RICH ROBERTS

"I see Joe Namath is on your list. Did he have a good year?"

Sure, he earned $425,000 for throwing 3 million interceptions and leading the Jets to a magnificent 3-10 season. He missed one curfew and most of his receivers.

"But didn't the coach, Charley Winner, say that if Namath didn't sign 'we have complete confidence in Al Woodall; he can get the job done'? What happened to Al Woodall?"

What happened to Charley?

"I SEE WHAT you mean. Maybe Chuck Knox is the smartest coach around. He doesn't say anything. This guy Barry Switzer from Oklahoma is more my kind of guy. First he rips Texas' Darrell Royal because he'd 'rather sit home and listen to guitar pickers.' Then he got on Bear Bryant's case when Alabama took easier pickin's against Penn State in the Sugar Bowl."

Yeah, and the Bear told him, "When I was a young coach, I popped off, too. Let them go where they want to and to hell with 'em."

"What did Royal have to say?"

Don't know. He isn't coming, either. Guess he just went home to sit and listen to guitar pickers. It all got pretty nasty. Even McKay called the president of Long Beach State a Communist.

"You mean McKay knows there's a Long Beach State? But I'm tired of talking about football. What happened with some of my other favorite people this year—that tall, quaint, redheaded basketball player? Is he bringing the nuts and berries?"

I DON'T THINK so. He made it perfectly clear that just because he signed a contract with the Portland Trail Blazers, that didn't mean he had to play basketball for them.

"My contract is not based on my basketball ability," he said, "but on my name being on the dotted line. The contract also has a clause that prohibits the club from interfering with my political or religious beliefs, so long as they are not expressed on the basketball court."

Trouble is, he's never on the basketball court. They wouldn't even mind him playing in his jeans and lumberjack shirt and giving Maoist speeches at halftime if they could only get him to play.

They might even sell him the team. He thinks the players should own all the teams, anyway.

"Why not? They have all the owners' money. But tell me, did the Dodgers and Angels play in the World Series?"

NO, AND THAT'S strange, because the Dodgers had a dynasty going for about a season there, and Dick Williams, the Angels' manager, said, "Every team I've had from spring training on has won more games than it's lost."

"How'd they do? Will they be coming?"

Well, they finished last and, like Billy Martin said, I guess they'll be busy taking batting practice in the lobby of the Grand Hotel.

"Who won the Series?"

The Cincinnati Reds.

"Oh, yes, they're the team with the newlywed catcher who 'looks so cute with his cap on backwards.' That must have been the funniest line of the year."

It was, until Pele told his Brazilian fans that he wasn't really coming out of retirement "because I don't consider my commitment to play for the (New York) Cosmos as a return to soccer."

"I guess that covers everyone except Bowie Kuhn. Has anyone noticed if he's still around?"

Yes, his contract came up for renewal this year but the owners decided to keep him as commissioner until 1983.

"They decided they didn't need one, huh?"

Getting it together with the horsey set

LAS VEGAS — Women's lib supporters would have pinned a merit badge on owner L.H. Brody, here for the annual Sport of Kings award dinner at Caesars Palace, when the Pasadena resident flatly declared that in a 2-year-old race a filly always would beat a colt.

Such a statement is tantamount to heresy in thoroughbred horse racing circles as it is considered gospel that girl horses always are inferior to their stronger male counterparts. Not always, claims Brody.

"Through the middle of their 2-year-old campaigns, the filly will beat the colt because, like human girls, they develop faster and comprehend quicker. But when the colts develop, then the fillies lose their edge and it's no race anymore."

After he had struck his blow for the lib cause, Brody was just as emphatic in denouncing match races pairing fillies vs. colts, especially something like the 3-year-old "classic" with Ruffian and Foolish Pleasure that turned into a great American tragedy when the former broke her leg and had to be destroyed.

"It was a shame and a sin to put those two great horses against one another," said Brody. "By the time a colt is 3-years-old, he is vastly stronger than a filly the same age and it must have broken Ruffian's heart when she saw that she couldn't shake Foolish Pleasure, like she did to the fillies in all her other races.

"Foolish Pleasure would have routed her if the race hadn't ended so tragically. It was simply too much to ask a filly, even one as great as Ruffian, to beat a great colt. There should never be another 3-year-old match race between a filly and colt again."

BRODY AND A THOUSAND OTHERS were at Caesars Palace to honor the top horse race people of 1975.

Sandy Hawley was selected "Outstanding Jockey of the Year" and the award was presented by Sammy Davis Jr., who was rounding out an astounding 47 years in show business, 30 in Las Vegas alone.

Other awards went to Bill Shoemaker, Telly Savalas ("most popular owner"), Merlin Volzke ("comeback jockey") and Charlie Whittingham, most popular trainer for the third time in the five years that the awards have been presented.

The awards' presentations were spiced with unscheduled humor.

Shoemaker's "most popular jockey" award was presented by Pancho Gonzales, who related at length that Shoe was his very dear friend, then pronounced his name as "Schumacher".

When Billy Eckstine presented Merlin Volzke's award, he had a heckuva time reading the name off the trophy and it came out, "Marilyn Volaski".

Ageless Volzke made a gracious acceptance speech: "The only way I won this is because I got horses that could win." That figures.

THE AWARD TO HAWLEY brought a succinct comment from comedian Don Adams, a former horse owner himself.

"I remember Bill Hartack used to say HE was the best of all, and then he would say that Sandy Hawley was second," said Adams. "For Hartack to give praise to another rider is INDEED praise.

"Well, you must include Shoemaker when you're talking about top jockeys, but I'll tell you Hawley is up there, too.

"Sandy rates his horses extremely well. He has a second sense. One thing is that Hawley never seems to get trapped or boxed in, and I've seen a lot of jockeys.

It seems incredible that no Hawley horse gets trapped, but I shall remember that "tip" the next time I have a few extra shillings and Hawley has a mount.

Hawley is just 25, but he led all jockeys in number of races won in both 1970, with an incredible 452, and in 1972, with 367. He isn't known yet by the public like a Shoemaker, Longden or Arcaro, but the railbirds and backstretch folks sure know his name and regard him as the next "super jockey".

Adams laughs a lot at life, except when it comes to horse racing. The comedian recalled that he has owned two thoroughbreds.

"Both were disappointments," sighed Adams. "One fine specimen I paid $66,000 for as a proven runner, and darned if the critter didn't break down in the very first event I had him entered. He never ran again and, to make it worse, he was a gelding."

MOST TOUCHING MOMENT of the awards evening was when Donna Pineda accepted a special plaque in behalf of her husband, Alvaro, who was killed in a racetrack accident earlier this year.

"When he ended his bout with the bottle three years ago, my husband realized how many dear friends he had in racing," said Mrs. Pineda, hesitatingly and on the verge of tears. "When he received an award here last year, he came back and said to me, 'They really believe in me again.'

"Alvaro loved you all and he loved racing. He left us too soon. Thank you for our son, Matthew, and our daughter, Charlene, for returning that love."

OWNER BRODY made a couple interesting contentions that should shake up the $2 bettors, if not his fellow horse operators also.

"ALL horses in claiming races have something wrong with them, or else they wouldn't be in claiming races," claimed Brody. "Then, 90 per cent or more of all horses raced in California are on bute (pain-killing drug)."

When butazolidin became lawful a few years ago in California, the idea was to ease the pain of aching horses, much in the manner that cortisone helps people afflicted with arthiritis. It is used further, according to Brody.

"Trainers not only use bute to ease their horses' pains, but also for the pounding their horses take during a race. Don't kid yourself, every horse takes a beating of some sort in a race and bute serves as a balm and a preventative."

Brody cites one of his horses, Nearbrook, as a good case for continuing to make bute lawful.

"After every race Nearbrook's ankles are swollen, then we pack his ankles in ice. It's not cruel to run him because with bute he's not hurting. Besides, he loves to run in a race."

Horse racing indeed is a sport of intrigue. I had figured only a handful of hurtin' horses were on bute and now it comes out that nine of 10 are addicts.

Quarry wants to rock and roll

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Retired heavyweight boxer Jerry Quarry couldn't outsmoke Joe Frazier in the ring, but he thinks he can better the former champ's performance on the stage.

Reminded that Frazier and some other notable athletes had failed successfully to make the transition from belting opponents to belting songs, Quarry seemed unimpressed.

"Joe Frazier can fight," Quarry said. "I can sing.

"I'm not just Jerry Quarry, the ex-fighter. I want to be Jerry Quarry the entertainer, and I'm confident I can be. I want to reach the top 10 in singing just like I did in boxing."

Quarry, now 30, said his days as a boxer are over.

HE WAS in Reno for a singing engagement with a group called "The Kimberlys", a country-western group soon to be known as "Jerry Quarry and the Kimberlys".

"This is a whole new thing for me, but I'm going to enjoy it," said the slugger who reached the top only to be whipped by Frazier and current champion Muhammad Ali.

"It's a lot easier to express yourself singing than it is with your fists."

Quarry sang in some service clubs in Hawaii and hooked up with the Kimberlys two weeks ago when he saw their act in Cheyenne, Wyo., where he was boxing an exhibition.

"I made a name for myself and I'm using that name," he said. "But I can sing. There's no way I'm gonna prostitute myself by doing something I'm not capable of doing because I have a name."

Quarry said he wants to branch out from singing to other things like acting and television work. He recently filmed an episode in a television drama and did color commentary for a network sports show.

Jerry, who fought Jimmy Ellis for the World Boxing Association title in 1968 and lost a 15-round decision, says he is glad to have boxing behind him.

"Do I miss it? About as much as I miss a Joe Frazier left hook," he said with a smile.

Alamitos story: Always on Sunday

The ladies and gentlemen who were around Orange County at the time remember the Sunday quarter horse racing at Los Alamitos.

There wasn't much there then...rolling prairie and blue skies and sunshine and air you couldn't see. You could miss the race track if you weren't careful because it was very small sitting there by the side of the railroad tracks with its dirt oval and a few picnic tables under the trees.

It grew much larger on Sundays. The farmers and the cowboy guys and the country squires would come and bring their families and picnic baskets and fiddles and guitars.

Mainly, they brought their quarter horses. Racing was informal and the entry fee was the opinion of one horseman that his animal could run faster than the others.

Betting was man-to-man which is a form of cerebral combat still in use today although not generally in connection with horse racing. The convenience of the pari mutuels has moved man-to-man wagering off the tracks and into the stadiums.

Anyway, man-to-man betting was sincere and furious at Los Alamitos on Sundays and everyone was kept honest by Frank Vessels Sr., who owned the grounds and ran the game. "The Old Man," as he is still called around the track, took note that the men put up the same ante and the horses started with their dimpled noses behind the same line.

THE MEN, indeed some of the boys, ran the horses. The ladies looked after the children and spread the checkered cloths on the picnic tables under the sturdy oaks.

Now, the cloths are spread over the tables on the dining terrace and the waiters wear tuxedos and some of the items on the menu have fancy French names. "The Old Man" was an individual of considerable vision but it is unlikely he ever figured it would come to this.

They still race on Sundays, though. For the time being, the programs are under the auspicies of the Horsemen's Quarter Horse Racing Association which is comprised of men not unlike the character of the first Sunday racers. They put together this meeting so their horses would not be idle at this time of year and the financial scheme of the association is to break even, an ambitious undertaking at any level of horse racing.

At any rate, the HQHRA is conducting afternoon racing until Dec. 25 at which time the action will go under the lights until Feb. 12. Changing from day to night during the course of a meeting is probably unique to all of racing but it was tried a year ago and the confusion of man and beast was endured very nicely.

But then, horse players are a sturdy collection of athletes able to adapt to most all conditions providing the windows are open and the action unhampered. Therefore, no moments of panic were reported last year.

Actually, Los Alamitos history records only one incident of total panic. One evening a few years ago, the armored car bringing the small bills failed to arrive in time for first post. The scene of thousands of horse players running hither and yon pleading for change of a twenty was, to say the least, memorable.

NO SUCH TROUBLE ever visited in the days of "The Old Man" because of "match" wagering. Simply, you matched what the other guy had in his hand.

This is not to say the old timers around Los Alamitos do not tell some fine tales about the days of "The Old Man." One of them cleans up very nicely.

A well-known jockey was imported from Chicago to ride in a grudge match which had built between two wealthy quarter horse owners. On race morning, large sums had been placed where mouths were and the tension was considerable.

The big man who had hired the rider came up before the race and brushed back his coat displaying a pistol roughly the size of a courthouse cannon. Whereupon he informed the jock he would take quite unkindly to losing the race.

Immediately thereafter, the rival owner approached the jockey and showed a glimpse of an even larger howitzer. He too idly mentioned that for him, losing the match would create an atmosphere of unpleasantness.

Telling the story on his return to Chicago, the rider was asked how he escaped with his life.

"I saved myself," the jockey replied, "by riding a deadheat."

Cup team facing defeat — again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Raul Ramirez and Marcelo Lara defeated Erik van Dillen and Dick Stockton in doubles Saturday, giving Mexico a 2-1 lead in the 1976 North American Davis Cup tennis final.

Ramirez, the star of the Mexican team, put on a spectacular display of running and leaping as Mexico beat the Americans 6-4, 8-6, 3-6 and 6-3.

Ramirez beat Brian Gottfried and Jimmy Connors defeated Lara on Friday in the opening singles matches in the best-of-five series. Ramirez plays Connors and Gottfried goes against Lara today.

Mexico needs to win only one of the two remaining singles matches Sunday to eliminate the United States from the Davis Cup for the second year in a row.

The Mexicans broke Van Dillen's serve three times and Stockton's once in the 2½-hour match at the Osuna Stadium clay courts. Stockton appeared to have trouble with his serve, making four double-faults.

The Americans had a chance to even the match 1-1 in the second set when they broke Lara's serve and led three games to one.

But Ramirez and Lara broke van Dillen's service in the ninth game and again in the 13th to win it.

Lara, the surprise of the Davis cup finals by giving Connors such a tough fight in losing 3-2 on Friday, said after the doubles match: "We proved we can play well together. Tomorrow it will be three to one instead of two to one."

Ramirez and Lara opened with soft game, placing their shots well and throwing the hard-hitting American team off balance.

Speaking of Mexico's advantage in the this event, Mexican team captain Yves Lamaitre said: "I don't think the final singles match between Connors and Ramirez will be that important. We'll win the first match Sunday. Lara should beat Gottfried easily and that will make it 3-1.

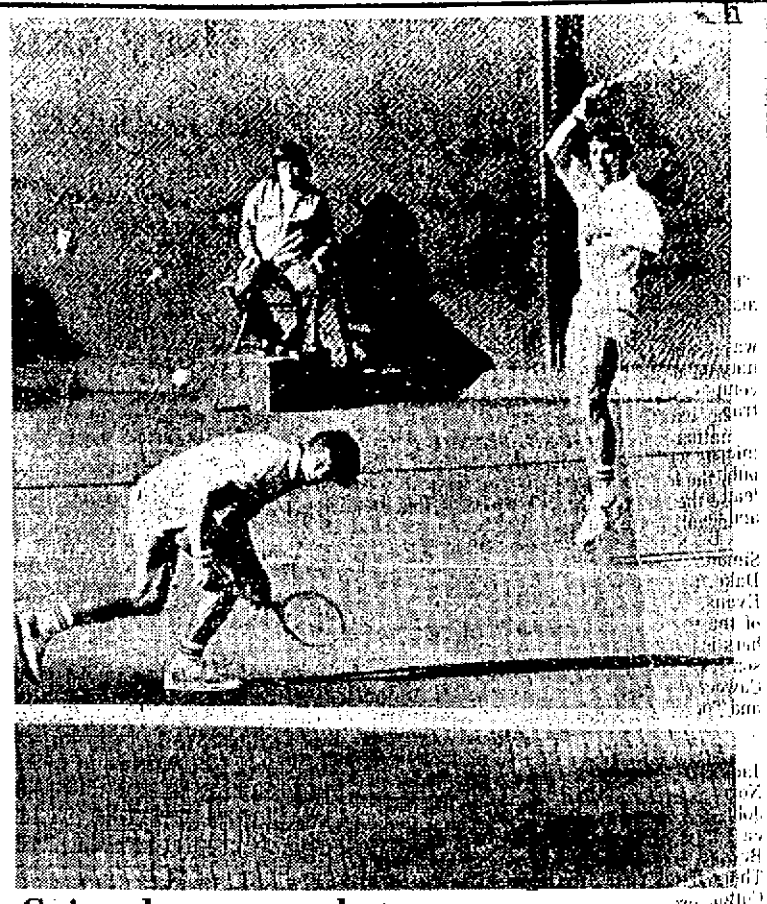

"We have the advantage now," he said. "The Americans are the ones who will be pressing. We can win either one of the matches tomorrow and win the series. They would have to win both."

NON-PLAYING captain Tony Trabert of the U.S. team refused to give up hope. "Remember, this is not over yet. It's going to be hard but it's not over yet," he told newsmen.

"All four players played very well. They played good tennis," he added.

Gottfried plays Lara in the first of the last two singles matches today, and Trabert expressed confidence the American would win.

"Lara is no Ramirez. He's not as good as Ramirez and it will permit Gottfried to do some things. In all sports you look as good as your opponent lets you," he said.

Swedes lead Czechs, 2-1

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg and Ove Bentson scored a key doubles victory over Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes and Vladimir Zednik on a fast indoor court Saturday and gave Sweden a 2-1 lead in the 1975 Davis Cup final.

Supported by a noisy, patriotic crowd of 4,000 fans in the Royal Tennis Hall, the Swedish pair led throughout the one-hour, 40-minute match, winning 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

"But we haven't won the trophy yet. There are two matches left and the Czechs can still squeeze past us," said Sweden's non-playing captain, Lennart Bergelin, after his reliable doubles team had turned in one of their best matches ever.

"But I'm counting on Bjorn," added the Swedish skipper. "He is in such incredible form right now and I think he will clinch the victory tomorrow."

Borg, 19, seeking his first major success in his home town, could seal the victory if he beats Kodes today. If that happens, it would be the finest sports achievement for Sweden since Ingemar Johansson won boxing's world heavyweight championship by knocking out Floyd Patterson in 1959.

"It will be the most important match of my life" said Borg, who now lives in Monte Carlo between tournaments.

The dynamic Swede now has won 18 consecutive Davis Cup singles matches including a record of 11 victories this year.

Troy gropes to win in a non-classic

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Bob Boyd understated the gruesome facts.

"Both teams were struggling out there," said the USC coach of the Trojans' 94-72 basketball victory over Colorado Saturday afternoon at the L.A. Sports Arena.

It would be more accurate to state that seldom have so many clumsy people been assembled on a collegiate court.

All five Colorado starters fouled out and the Buffs also were guilty of 28 turnovers, 17 in the first half.

Probably responding to the meager turnout of 2,199 fans, some of whom stopped by on their way to the Rams-Pittsburgh football game at the Coliseum, the Trojans staggered for 15 minutes before freshman guards Neil Arnold and Mark Wulfemeyer and sophomore forward Cleve Porter came on to restore order.

PORTER, steadily pressing for a starting job, scored 17 points and his spark helped the Trojans pull away to a 40-29 halftime lead.

Wulfemeyer tallied 10 points and Arnold six, but the cool, precise manner in which they attacked and penetrated Colorado's defense was more important.

"It was a good opportunity for Arnold and Wulfemeyer to get some experience," said Boyd, whose team posted its seventh victory in eight games.

Arnold and Wulfemeyer were needed. Marv Safford, who had been sensational until this weekend, couldn't get untracked and the other starting guard, Earl Evans, was on crutches as a result of an ankle sprain sustained in a victory over Howard University on Friday night.

Bob Trowbridge continued to offer leadership and steadiness, scoring a game-high 19 points and pulling down 11 rebounds.

"I thought Trowbridge was the best player on the floor," said Boyd, probably realizing that under the circumstances that this was faint praise.

The Trojans had 26 turnovers of their own, five by Safford during the brief time he was on the court.

"Safford was just totally ineffective," said Boyd, "so we thought we would let others play. Marv couldn't seem to get into the game emotionally.

"IT'S NOT good to let someone play when they're like that. It could be habit-forming."

Although the Trojans are 7-1, Boyd warned that the future might be more difficult.

"We're heading into some tough competition," he said. The Trojans begin action Dec. 26 in an eight-team Honolulu tournament.

Led by 6-8 sophomore forward Tom Wente and a 6-8½ reservem Larry Vaculik, Colorado stayed within two points of the Trojans until USC outscored the Buffs, 11-2, in the last three minutes of the first half.

Porter scored eight points in the first four minutes of the second half to give USC an 18-point advantage, 53-35, and the rest of the contest resembled a soccer match.

Colorado, which now is 2-5, was whistled for 31 fouls and USC scored 34 of its points at the free throw line.

Vaculik paced Colorado in scoring with 18 and in rebounds with eight.

"Our record would be great if Oral Roberts hadn't outprayed us," observed Boyd. "Oops. I meant to say outplayed us."

Either way, coach.

Necktie for Christmas

AILING RAMS WIN—

NFL in interceptions with 11, and linebakcers Andy Russell and Jack Lambert.

But the Rams were playing without Harris, McCutcheon, tailback Jim Bertelsen and left tackle Charlie Cowan, so it was still a valid test of strength.

To that point, Jaworski had done little to inspire ethnic celebrations around Lackawanna, N.Y. The Polish Rifle, restricted by Knox's conservative play calling, had been the Polish Echo, and had completed only one of the six passes Knox ordered.

"I was too pumped up," he said, still excited an hour after the game.

BUT WHEN the time came he was all poise, completing shots to Ron Jessie for 14 yards, Willie McGee for 17 and Jackson for 17 until a clutch third-and-goal situation arose at the five-yard line.

Jaworski took the snap, stepped back, then suddenly darted through a massive opening at left guard on a quarterback draw as the Steelers rushed to the outside. The only defender between Jaworski and the goal line was reserve linebacker Mark Kellum, who was too startled to make a tackle until Jaworski had crossed the goal.

"We put in that play Thursday," Jaworski bubbled. "I saw that green grass all the way to the end zone."

One nice part of the win was that only two Rams were injured, neither seriously.

Monte Jackson intercepted Bradshaw in the second quarter and went to the pits in the third quarter.

But his backup, Rod Perry, followed the script of other Ram reserves by coming through minutes later to save a touchdown when he batted away Gilliam's short toss to John Fuqua at the flag.

Rod Phillips, who found out only a day earlier that he would start in McCutcheon's place, twisted an ankle in the second quarter but continued to take his regular turn, netting 51 yards on 11 carries.

"I was nervous right up to game time," the rookie admitted. "I shook somebody's hand and they said mine was wet."

He ws not especialy awed by the Steelers.

"I was thinking, that's just another team we've got to beat."

Guard Tom Mack offered a veteran's view.

"They're obviously an excellent team. We weren't running up and down the field."

SIDEKICK Joe Scibelli added, "That's why they're world champs. We know we weren't in great shape, but you've got to play the game, and once it starts you want to win. I think the crowd helped, too."

A total of 21,649 of the 91,038 who bought out the arena stayed away, apparently not anticipating a Super Bowl preview.

Will the Rams and Steelers meet in Miami on Jan. 18?

"I hope we see somebody from that (the American) Conference," Mack said brightly. "We aren't picky."

Queen's Park suffers upset

LONDON (AP) — Liverpool beat the Queen's Park Rangers 2-0 Saturday in a vital match in the race for the English soccer championship.

The loss toppled the Rangers from the top but Derby and Manchester United were victorious and stayed even with Liverpool in a three-way tie for first place.

Derby struggled to a 3-2 win over last-place Sheffield United. Manchester United got a late goal to edge Wolverhampton 1-0.

Franco apologizes despite record year

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

It was strange standing in the Pittsburgh Steeler dressing room Saturday night and hearing Franco Harris apologize for fumbling the football one time.

After all, he had just broken his team's single-season rushing record, had joined the legendary Jimmy Brown as the only player in NFL history to rush for 4,000 yards in four and, perhaps most notably, had just totaled more yards rushing (126) in one game than any other running back had accomplished against a Chuck Knox-coached Ram team.

But there he was apologizing.

"Yeah," he said, "I had a pretty good night, but don't forget it was my fumble that led to their touchdown."

SURE enough, Harris lost the ball the first play of the final quarter, the Rams marched 60 yards for a touchdown—the only one of the game—and Pittsburgh's 11-game winning streak was a thing of the past as the Rams won, 10-3.

"They took advantage of opportunities," analyzed Harris. "We didn't."

But the super star of the Super Bowl champions was hardly the picture of dismay despite ending the regular season with a second loss against a dozen victories, the same record as the Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

"I don't think we lost any momentum with this defeat," he said. "We're the type of club that can pick it up again."

They'll have to, of course, since the Super Bowl tournament begins next week. The Steelers will meet either Baltimore or Miami.

"It doesn't matter to me who we play," Harris said. "We'll be ready no matter who it is. We just have to forget tonight and concentrate on the playoffs. We're all going to play better once we get into the playoffs."

THE GAME, standing-wise, meant nothing. The Rams had locked up the NFC West long ago and the Steelers repeated in the AFC Central.

"Just because the game meant nothing in the standings didn't make it a meaningess game," he argued. "Man, I don't like losing and I don't think any of our guys like it. But I think it'll make us an even better club," said the man who broke John Henry Johnson's single-season rushing record with 1,246 yards.

Chuck Noll, the Steelers' coach, said he learned two things from the game:

"I found out the Rams are a helluva team and I also found out I don't like losing."

Noll was lavish in praise of the Rams' defense and with reason. The Steelers had not been held without a touchdown since the third game of the 1974 season, a run of 24 consecutive games.

"The Rams' defense, especially their pass rush, was the best we've seen. They played awfully well. I just wonder how well they would have played if the game meant more than it did."

Asked if the defeat, the Steelers' first since a 30-21 loss to Buffalo the second week of the season, would have any effect on preparations for the playoffs, Noll said he didn't know.

"We haven't lost for so long I don't know what will happen," he said. "I thought we were ready to play tonight. We did some things well, some things not so well...like protect our passers."

Terry Bradshaw and Joe Gilliam, the Pittsburgh quarterbacks, combined for just five completions in 21 tries.

MEAN Joe Greene, who has been hampered with a pinched nerve, played roughly half the game at defensive tackle. "Came away with no further damage and Noll was pleased with what he saw.

"Greene still is trying to get the feel of the game," Noll said. "He's not 100 per cent just yet and this is the first time in awhile he's had a chance to play. From what I saw, he looked pretty good."

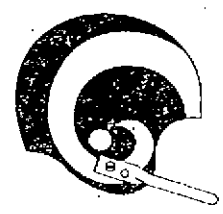

Dwight White, Greene's teammate along the defensive line, said, "Don't worry about Joe. He'll be there when it counts.

"It's gonna be cold next week in Pittsburgh. I just hope it's REAL cold for Baltimore."

While the Steelers are playing either Baltimore or Miami, the Rams will host St. Louis next Saturday at the Coliseum in the opening round of the playoffs. It's entirely possible the Rams and Steelers could meet again. If they do, it will be Jan. 18 in the Super Bowl.

Asked if he had any changes in mind should that happen, Noll smiled and replied:

"Yeah, I'd do a couple of things differently. Like move the ball and score some points."

NEWHOUSE RHODES SCHOLAR

Former Wilson High defensive back George Newhouse, 21, of 620 Ultimo Ave., was one of 32 college seniors from the southwest United States awarded a Rhodes Scholarship, it was announced Saturday.

Newhouse, a senior at Harvard, graduated from Wilson High in 1972 among the top ten per cent of his class, and gained all-Moore League and All-City honors in football. He started for Harvard's football team as a sophomore and this year gained All-Ivy League second team honors.

A psychology major studying to be a physician, Newhouse was one of only 170 students chosen for the annual $5,000 dollar scholarships awarded each year. The United States is allotted 32 scholarships each year.

Bowl season is full of mousetraps

The college football bowl season, also known as "The National Order of the Golden Mousetrap," is here again.

For those who thought the pressure in the bowls was all on the players and coaches, think again. The national championship trophy is but a mere bauble compared to the famous —infamous?— Golden Mousetrap.

The exclusive lodge, started by Nebraska sports information director Don Bryant, is limited to college publicists whose teams (1) play in a postseason bowl, (2) lead in the fourth quarter and (3) then get mousetrapped and lose the game.

Bryant, Harold Keith, ex-Oklahoma, and Jay Simon, ex-Kansas, are charter members. Ted Mann, ex-Duke, is chairman of the board emeritus while Wilbur Evans, ex-Texas and currently executivevice president of the Cotton Bowl, is president emeritus. Other members include Notre Dame's Roger Valdiserri; Bud Johnson, ex-Louisiana State; Will Perry of Michigan; Dave Cawood, ex-Arkansas; Ralph Carpenter of Texas Tech and Tony Bord, ex-Chico State.

LAST SEASON'S bowls produced six "honorees" — Jack Zane, Maryland; Jack Williams, North Carolina; Norm Carlson, Florida; Marvin Homan, Ohio State; John Carpenter, Slippery Rock, and Jim Erickson, Ithaca. The king of the hill, as you might expect from Bear Bryant's recent bowl mishaps, is Alabama's Charley Thornton, who has been mousetrapped in the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls.

The order's motto: "It is better to have been mousetrapped in a bowl game than never to have gone at all."

From this year's bowl lineup, which began Saturday night with the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., you can see that a number of folks are in line for another mousetrap.

The rest of the major bowl schedule looks like this:

Dec. 22, Liberty Bowl—Second-ranked Texas A&M vs. Southern California.

Dec. 26, Sun Bowl—No. 19 Kansas vs. No. 20th Pitt.

Dec. 26, Fiesta Bowl—Sixthranked Nebraska vs. seventhranked Arizona State.

Dec. 27, Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl—Ninth-ranked Texas vs. No. 10th Colorado.

Dec. 29, Gator Bowl—No. 13 Florida vs. No. 17 Maryland.

Dec. 31, Peach Bowl—North Carolina State vs. West Virginia.

Dec. 31, Sugar Bowl—Fourthranked Alabama vs. eighthranked Penn State.

Jan. 1, Cotton Bowl—No. 12 Georgia vs. No. 18 Arkansas.

Jan. 1, Rose Bowl—No. 1 Ohio State vs. No. 11 UCLA.

Jan. 1, Orange Bowl—Thirdranked Oklahoma vs. fifthranked Michigan.

This week's four bowls have some intriguing matchups.

In the Liberty Bowl, Southern Cal's John McKay, bound for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League, bids farewell to college coaching against Texas A&M, who probably bade farewell to a real shot at the national championship when, like true Aggies, they fouled up a perfect season against Arkansas.

It should be interesting to see whether the Aggies' defense, rated tops nationally over-all and against the run, can halt Southern Cal's Ricky Bell, the country's leading rusher with an average of 170.5 yards a game.

PITT'S JOHNNY MAJORS, who spent five years in the Big Eight at Iowa State, runs into the Big Eight's surprise team. Some predicted Kansas wouldn't win a game, but the Jayhawks went 7-4 in their first year under Bud Moore, who consequently became a candidate for Coach of the Year honors.

Record-wise, the five-year-old Fiesta Bowl has the best match-up of all in 11-0 Arizona State and 10-1 Nebraska. Finally, Texas and Colorado hope to turn the Bluebonnet Bowl into a recruiting boon since both schools comb the Houston area rather heavily.

The Sun Devils of Arizona State, champions of the Western Athletic Conference, have a chance to prove the WAC can compete with anyone and Coach Frank Kush will have them sky-high with their eyes like bee-bees for Nebraska.

For the Cornhuskers, their national championship dreams shattered by Oklahoma, it's a fun trip—if a trek to Arizona State's backyard can be fun— but a loss would be mighty embarrassing since they turned down the Fiesta Bowl's original invitation. Besides, Nebraska has won six successive bowl games and seven in a row would be a national record.

Coach Tom Osborne can only hope his players will be as impressed with the Sun Devils as he is.

"I'M REAL IMPRESSED with their over-all team speed," says Osborne. "Arizona State has always had a lot of quickness in their running attack and this club doesn't seem to be any different. I do know this—we'll have our work cut out for us playing Arizona State, especially in their own stadium."

Miami shows its character

MIAMI (AP) — "I think the last play points out this team's character. We pulled down deep," Earl Morrall said after the Miami Dolphins staged a dramatic comeback in the game's closing minutes to beat Denver, 14-13, Saturday and keep their playoff hopes alive.

Morrall, a 41-year-old veteran quarterback hampered by a bad knee, led the Dolphins 80 yards on a six-minute drive which ended when Norm Bulaich plunged two yards for the winning touchdown with 1:14 remaining. Garo Yepremian kicked the extra point.

Penalties-yards	4-35	1-4

Rookie Barry Hill then preserved the victory on the game's last play by blocking a 35-yard field goal attempt by Denver kicker Jim Turner.

"I told Bulaich I wished we hadn't scored...wished we had another 30 seconds for the drive," said Morrall. "I knew the clock was ticking down but I didn't watch it.

"You take seven points when you can get it."

Morrall, who played the whole second half, began by engineering a 76-yard scoring drive early in the third period before leading the Dolphins on the game winning drive.

In the closing minute, Denver quarterback Steve Ramsey almost pulled the game out for the Broncos with a 55-yard drive which ended at Miami's 18-yard line. But Hill rushed in untouched to block Turner's field goal attempt.

Hill said his wide, outside route to Turner was ignored by Denver's blockers. "The ball hit me in the chest. I didn't miss any of it," he said.

Morrall moved Miami 80 yards in 11 plays on the winning drive, which consumed six minutes. The 41-year-old,coming off a knee injury which sidelined him three weeks ago, converted four third-down plays to keep the drive alive.

The big play came on a 20-yard pass from Morrall to wide receiver Nat Moore which gave the Dolphins a first down on the Denver 15.

The Dolphins boosted their record to 10-4 to keep alive their chance to win the American Football Conference East Division title if Baltimore (9-4) loses to New England today. If the Colts win to clinch the division title, Miami could qualify as a wild card entry if the Cincinnati Bengals (10-3) lose to San Diego.

The Broncos, finishing their season with a 6-8 record, saw a third-period drive fizzle when guard Paul Howard was called for holding on a five-yard run by Fran Lynch who had taken the ball to Miami's nine-yard line for a first down.

VIKES SURVIVE SNOW JOB

BUFFALO (AP)—At times, snowballs thrown from the stands gave Minnesota more trouble Saturday than the Buffalo Bills.

The Vikings, who beat the Bills 35-13 in a regular season windup, thought Chuck Foreman would have scored more than four touchdowns if it weren't for the barrage of snowballs. Foreman said his vision was blurred after being hit in the right eye during the second half.

Fran Tarkenton, who threw two touchdown passes to give him an NFL record 291 for his career, was particularly upset by the fans.

"I was watching fathers make snowballs for their sons to throw," said Tarkenton. He said he was hit several times during the game, and one snowball caused him to throw an incomplete pass.

"I thought I was being struck on the helmet by a defensive end's hand," he said, "It was the worst exhibition I've seen in 19 years of football."

Foreman's four touchdowns gave him 22 for the year, tying Gale Sayers record, which didn't last long since O.J. Simpson scored both Bills touchdowns to give him 23 for the season.

Simpson set the record on pass from quarterback Gary Marangi in the third period. Marangi said Simpson suggested the play.

"He was telling the coaches he was open on that particular play the whole game," Marangi said. "When I went out there, I looked for it."

Tarkenton's two scoring passes eclipsed John Unitas' record of 290.

Foreman, playing before a nationwide television audience, became the first Viking ever to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a single season. He carried for two first-half touchdowns, one from four yards out and the other on a one-yard plunge. He caught the TD passes from Tarkenton in the third period for one and six yards.

Foreman came close to scoring on another a run in the first quarter but fumbled near the goal line and the ball rolled into the end zone where Jim Lash fell on it for a Viking score.

Simpson bolted 24 yards for Buffalo's first touchdown in the second quarter. Marangi, the Bills' backup quarterback behind Joe Ferguson, connected with Simpson on a 64-yard scoring play in the third period. Simpson, all alone on the left sideline caught the pass on the Minnesota 35, eluded one defender and ran in for the score.

Foreman carried 19 times for a total of 85 yards, giving him 1,070 yards rushing for the season.

'Looney Tunes' hoping to hit high note today

Associated Press

The Baltimore Colts will try to step into the National Football League's glass slipper today and if it doesn't fit, maybe the front four they have labeled the Looney Tunes can squeeze 'em into it.

The pumpkin turned into a carriage for the Colts midway through this Cinderella season, and the transformation can be traced to the development of Baltimore's defensive line — ends Fred Cook and John Dutton and tackles Joe Ehrmann and Mike Barnes.

The quartet has accounted for 47 of the Colts' 56 quarterback sacks — a defensive performance that is the best in the American Football Conference.

After dropping four of their first five games, the Colts turned the season around with eight consecutive victories. That streak had them tied for first place in the AFC East with perennial champion Miami but the Dolphins won Saturday and it forces the Colts into a must-win situation today. If Baltimore wins to perpetuate the tie, the Colts will be the division champion by virtue of their two victories over the Dolphins.

In other games today, St. Louis plays at Detroit, Kansas City is at Oakland, Dallas plays the Jets at New York, San Diego plays at Cincinnati, Cleveland visits Houston, Philadelphia is at Washington, Atlanta is at Green Bay, the New York Giants play at San Francisco, and Chicago meets New Orleans.

While that Looney Tunes line has sparked Baltimore defensively, the attack has been keyed by Lydell Mitchell, whose 1,095 yards make him the first 1,000-yard man in Colt history. He also is the conference's leading pass receiver with 59 catches.

St. Louis' Terry Metcalf needs 110 yards on total offense to break the record of 2,444 set by Mack Herron last year. His backfield partner, Jim Otis, is the NFC's leading rusher with 1,007 yards.

Oakland seeks to regain the winning touch against undermanned Kansas City. The Raiders had their seven-game winning streak ended by Houston last week but have already clinched the AFC West title and the home field edge for the opening playoff game.

Dallas warms up for its ninth playoff appearance in 10 seasons against the Jets. The Cowboys came back from a 10-0 deficit to wipe out Washington last week and clinch the NFC wild card spot.

The only bright spot in the Jets' dismal season has been the running of John Riggins, who needs 57 yards to become the first 1,000-yard rusher in club history.

Improving rookie Steve Bartkowski enjoyed his best game at quarterback for Atlanta last week and he will try to continue the production against Green Bay.

Follow that ball

You've heard of players who hit six-irons 200 yards from the rough. And they're so far over the green that they have to catch a taxi back. They've hit a "flier."

A flier is caused by a ball that nestles down into the grass where you can't hit it clean. Grass is crushed into liquid between ball and club, and the ball slides off the clubface with no spin and no wind resistance. Adios, darlin'.

FROM THAT KIND of lie, take one less club — a seven iron instead of a six — and hit it hard.

Fliers don't always happen. Sometimes a freaky connection of clubface and ball results in a normal shot from the rough. This is why I recommend a hard hit with a more lofted club. Hit it easy and the ball may pop straight up like a wine cork.

To get the ball into the air fast, hit down sharply on it. You have to give it a high arc so it will stop on the green. There will be times you'll want to play short of the green — Scottish style — and let the ball roll on the surface. This depends on the way the hole is laid out.

Rockets yield to Ram workout

Today's scheduled game between the Long Beach Rockets and the San Francisco Giant Minors has been cancelled due to a conflicting Ram workout at Blair Field.

The Rams have a contract which reserves the right to use the field at their discretion.

Impromptu 'bout' follows

Duran retains world title

SAN JUAN (AP) — Roberto Duran, the world lightweight champion from Panama, retained his title Saturday by knocking out Leoncio Ortiz of Mexico in the closing seconds of the 15th round.

The end came with 21 seconds remaining in the fight when Duran caught the challenger with a right cross to the chin.

Referee Waldemar Schmidt of Puerto Rico counted out Ortiz while the jubilant Duran jumped around the ring.

Duran commanded the fight but Oritz' durability furnished the champion with a workout.

Duran had the Mexican on the ropes several times, hitting him at will with a two-fisted attack, but Ortiz simply would not go down.

Duran scaled the class limit of 135 pounds and Ortiz 133½.

The knockout was the only time that either of the fighters went to the canvas at the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum before a crowd of about 3,000.

Ortiz, a bearded left-hander, had never lost a fight on a knockout in his 66-bout ring career. He was stopped once because of a cut.

"I would have knocked him out earlier," said Duran, "if Ortiz had put up a better fight."

Duran's manager, wealthy Panamanian industrialist Carlos Eleta, said that Duran was instructed to take it easy in the 13th round, which was the slowest of the fight, and try to knock out Ortiz in the last two.

"I had to win by a knockout because in two previous fights in Puerto Rico I won on decisions," Duran said. I had to prove to the fans that I am a hard puncher."

While the champion was walking toward his dressing room, he had an exchange of words and punches with Puerto Rican Edwin Viruet, whom Duran had outpointed in a non-title bout in New York.

Viruet stepped in front of Duran and asked him for a chance at the title. After a short exchange of words, both fighters landed several barehanded punches and police had to intervene to separate the boxers.

"I certainly would like to give him a chance," Duran said; "so I can knock him flat on his back."

In a preliminary, unbeaten heavyweight Larry Holmes of Easton, Pa., knocked out Bill Joyner of New Jersey in the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Lakers visit Cavs

Carting a dismal 4-11 road record and on a three-game losing streak, the Lakers will try to regroup today at Cleveland in an afternoon game against the Cavaliers. Game time is 1:40 p.m. (PST) and can be heard on station KABC.

The Cavs, coming off a 128-124 double overtime win over Phoenix, handed the Lakers their first defeat of the season at the Forum last Tuesday, 123-103, snapping the Lakers' 14-game home court winning streak. Cleveland is an even .500 this season (14-14) and only a game-and-a-half out of first place in the NBA's Central Division behind Atlanta.

The Lakers return home Tuesday night to meet the Kansas City Kings at the Forum.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Looking for a gift that's different?

Looking for something different for your outdoorsperson? Such as a marlin fishing lure for $24.98? Electric gloves for $100? Electric boot warmers for $75? A graphite fly reel (all graphite except the connecting bolts and nuts) for $85? A fishing tackle box for $49.95, or a wooden custom-built box for $75?

Don't let those prices scare you because I'm quoting just the highest ones. You can find those in the tackle and sporting goods stores, but you also can find good products for just a fraction of those prices.

I made a round of some tackle stores last week, spending a couple of hours in three — one near the office, another near my home and the other — Fisherman's Hardware — a hangout for fishermen for many years and a store operated by some of my oldest friends. I did the roundup at the suggestion of some readers, not the merchants. This happens every year. The women readers want some ideas for their outdoorsmen.

There is a spirit of optimism this year among the merchants. At Al and Kenny's in the downtown area, Kenny Crawford said that business had been brisk. That store, like many others, has gone to specialty items and Kenny constantly makes the rounds of schools to fit the merchandise with the needs of the athletes, who range from the small fry to high schoolers.

Although Al and Kenny's has gone that route, Kenny still has a sufficient supply of fishing tackle and camping and hunting accessories.

THERE'S SOMETHING REALLY FISHY at Fisherman's Hardware and I know the reason. It is because so many fishermen hang out there and spin some rather tall tales. Speed Hutton, one of my oldtime friends and spokesman for that firm, clued me on something that has been taking place this year.

Some, in fact, many anglers have been buying 12- and 15-foot surf-casting rods, along with big spinning reels and trying for perch, corbina, spotfin croaker or even sharks in the surf. Why? Because they are tired of going on those long-range live-bait boat trips for yellowtail and albacore.

A decent surf-fishing outfit costs at least $50 or $60. A person can pay more and some do, in addition to buying a lot of terminal tackle, sinkers and various accessories.

Another interesting thing that is taking place in Fisherman's Hardware and other sporting goods stores involves knives. There are knives of all prices and sets of knives and they are being bought by decent citizens who want to make knife collections. That makes more sense than the current rage of "pet rocks" at $4 a copy. Why didn't I think of that one?

Other items in the $10-to-$20 price range are some medium-sized tackle boxes, fish-cleaning boards (plastic or wood), clam forks (clamming is at a peak this month and next) and lures from 59 cents to $24.98. That expensive one is the Konahead, made expressly for marlin.

ONE OF THE HOTTEST ITEMS on the sales list is Herschell Whitmer's book, "Lake Recreation in Southern California for Weekenders," listing at $5.95, plus tax, and privately printed by the author. It lists all the lakes and recreation areas from Monterey County to the Mexican border.

Whitmer, a stock broker, was one of those fishermen who frequently called at Fisherman's Hardware. He always was trying to find a book of that nature. Finally he gave up and decided to write one. It has been a best seller in this area since the first printing.

Another hot-selling item is "Chart Guides for the Salt-Water Angler and Boater," which lists excellent charts for the Southland and some parts of Mexico. It sells at $12.95, plus tax.

When we called on Ken Richmond, owner of Lonnie's Sports and Ski Shop, it was like visiting a ski lodge with a vast room filled with skis, clothing, boots, fishing tackle, hunting accessories, camping equipment and so many other items that it would be foolish to try and list all in this space.

Ken, enmeshed in a mountain of paperwork in his upstairs office and occasionally watching a closed-circuit television screen of his store downstairs, was enthusiastic about the Christmas trade.

KEN POINTED OUT THAT skiers had been fretting for two years. In one winter season, there was not enough snow and then the fuel crisis kept many at home. But this year is different. There already are good skiing slopes in the Sierra Nevadas and elsewhere, nobody is paying much attention to the fuel problem and skiers are setting their sights on a great season in the mountains.

Ken is one of the greatest skiing enthusiasts in Southern California. Often, when the ski season is going full-blast, it's hard to find Ken in his office because he has sneaked off with a group to Mammoth or some other cold spot in the mountains.

Those electric boot warmers and electric gloves are new items at his store. Ken is quick to point out that a beginning skier can outfit himself with skis with bindings, poles and boots for as little as $100. The more advanced skier usually goes double that amount or more, but in buying a "package" — the whole thing — he can save 25 per cent.

Lonnie's is such a skiing shop that there is one sign which reads "We hate summer." Ski rentals are available for either a weekend or an entire week.

You may note that I haven't mentioned guns, only hunting accessories, and that goes for most of the sporting goods stores. It is not because of the current wave of anti-gun crying, but the merchants have got tired of losing guns and ammunition to burglars.

They're off Friday at S'Anita

The $250,000 Santa Anita Handicap will highlight the 77-day thoroughbred meeting that begins at Santa Anita Friday.

The value of the March 7 race has more than doubled since it was inaugurated as the nation's first $100,000 event in 1935. The $150,000 winner's share is expected to lure older horses from around the country, a track spokesman said.

Track officials said leading contenders for the Santa Anita Handicap riches are expected to be racing's leading active money-winner, Dahlia; Argentine-bred Dulcia, heroine of the $350,000 National Thoroughbred Championship; Belmont Stakes winner Avatar, and a host of foreign-breds making their American debut.

The Santa Anita program also features five other races worth $100,000 or more, including the Charles H. Strub Stakes.

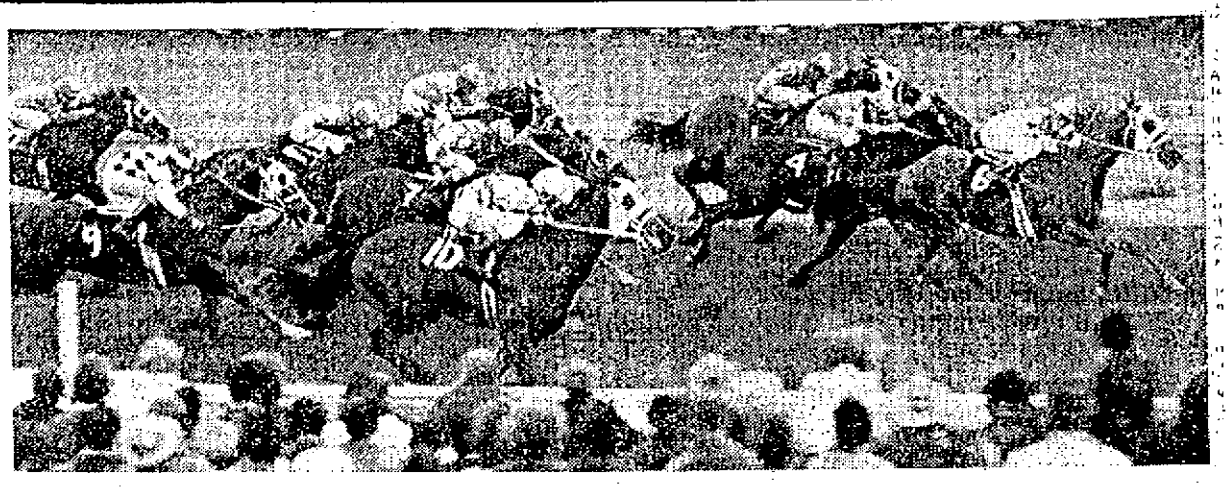

Forty-nine stakes worth nearly $2.5 million comprise the biggest part of the estimated $9.7 million in total purses to be distributed to horsemen during the 1975-76 meeting.

The Strub Stakes for 4-year-olds, scheduled for Feb. 8, is annually the first $100,000 race on the nation's stakes roster and climaxes the Strub series.

The series consists of three events, graduating in distance from seven furlongs to the 1¼-mile Strub route. The other races are the $50,000-added Malibu Stakes and the $75,000-San Fernando Stakes.

Other $100,000 races will be the Santa Margarita Invitational Handicap, filly and mare championship on Feb. 29; San Luis Rey Stakes, on the turf March 21; Santa Anita Derby for 3-year-olds March 28, and the San Juan Capistrano Handicap, 1¼-mile grass championships, April 4.

Racing during the meet will be held Wednesday through Sunday, with special holiday racing Monday, Feb. 16.

Easy Date makes move

Easy Date (10) prepares to make move on leaders during Saturday's running of Champion of Champions at Los Alamitos. Easy Date overhauled Five Chics (4) and took first prize of $27,500. Easy Date, world's richest quarter horse, now boasts career earnings of $848,805.

Head win in Champion of Champions

Easy pickins' for Easy Date

Easy Date, the world's richest quarter horse, capped a year that could unanimously earn her world championship status with an impressive victory in the prestigious $50,000 Champion of Champions Saturday afternoon at Los Alamitos.

The head victory over 50-1 longshot Five Chics was Easy Date's 22nd triumph in 27 starts and left the brilliant daughter of Easy Jet with a $848,805 bankroll. The $27,500 check she received from the Champions victory pushed her 1975 earnings to $379,745, a record for a 3-year-old quarter horse.

Her Champion Of Champions win was another in a string of outstanding victories for the Walter Merrick-owned filly. She's won the $110,700 Kindergarten Stakes, $1 million All-American Futurity, $210,000 Golden State Derby, $300,000 Rainbow Derby and $70,000 World Classic during her illustrious career but Saturday's win may have been her best.

Ridden by jockey Donald Knight, Easy Date broke smoothly on the outside of the 10-horse field and never trailed although outsider Five Chics moved within a head of the 4-5 favorite.

"I took her to the outside and here she came," an elated Knight said following the 440-yard trip that took 21.70 seconds. "She ran the kind of race she is capable of. The only thing that worried me was that she was out there by herself and I was afraid she might let up. She did a little but I looked over and saw Five Chics, who can really close fast, and we got rolling again."

EASY DATE also broke a Los Alamitos "jinx" that had caused her to lose three of her last four races on the Orange County track. The James McArthur-trained filly had lost the $134,000 El Primero Del Ano Derby, $89,100 Los Alamitos Derby and $12,000 Cypress Handicap while winning only a derby trial in the last 12 months.

Easy Date returned $3.60, $3 and $2.60 victory.

Five Chics, trying to give D. Wayne Lukas a three-for-three record against Easy Date, missed by just a head of catching the probable World champion. He had won last spring's Peninsula Handicap at Bay Meadows to qualify for the race but since had done little to impress local racing fans. But Lukas had him in perfect condition for the Champion of Champions and he returned $22 and $8.60.

Third in the 440-yard dash was Vim And Vigor and she rewarded show backers $3.80.

Rounding out the field in order of finish were I Can Go, Elan Again, Wanta Go, Thymus Jet, Mongo Jet, Pass Over and Maskeo Lad, the latter suffering from an early bumping incident.

A crowd of nearly 10,000 established a handle record for a Horsemen's Quarter Horse Racing Assn. meeting.

The fans wagered a total of $1,152,075 on the nine-race program to break the old mark set on Dec. 14, 1974, by nearly $20,000.

SIX outstanding 3-year-olds clash in the featured seventh race this afternoon in the final Sunday program of the 59-date meeting.

Day racing, with first post at 12:45 p.m., will continue Tuesday and Wednesday before the lights come on for the first time on Christmas Night.

The compact six-horse field will feature several outstanding sophomores with an $8,000 purse on the line in the 400-yard event. The swift lineup includes Easy Six, Fickle Frenzy, Alachic, Born To Rule, Deck 'Em and Bar Dearie.

KEYSTONE — Foolish Polly led all the way in winning by four lengths the inagural Doylestown Handicap. Ridden by Jimmy Edwards in the 6½-furlong test, she sped the distance in 1:15⅘, just a fifth of a second off the track record set by Foxy J.G. last year. Foolish Polly returned $5.40, $3.20 and $3.60.

NARRAGANSETT — Bar Bart outduelled Shining Sword in the stretch for a head victory in the $7,500 Winter Handicap before 4,215 fans. Bar Bart covered the one mile and 70 yards in 1:43⅘ and returned $5.60, $3.40 and $1.80.

SUFFOLK — Paul Capalbo rode Hot Singe to victory in the featured race at Suffolk Downs Saturday, covering the mile and 70 yards in 1:40⅘ before 6,648 fans. Hot Singe paid $10.20, $3.60 and $3.

GILLIES ALL-STATE

Long Beach City College wide receiver Ed Gillies was the only Viking selected to the California Community and Junior College all-California team picked by the CCJCA Coaches' Association.

Gillies, a sophomore from Lakewood High, was an earlier honorable mention all-America by J.C. Grid Wire. He was also voted the Vikings' most valuable player and best offensive player.

In his second year at LBCC Gillies led Viking receivers in total yardage (481, three TD's), receptions (27) and scoring (44 points). The multi-talented wide receiver gained the respect of every conference coach with his selection to the all-Metropolitan Conference first team as a wide receiver.

GILLIES' other contributions included: punting (37-yard average), punt returns (10-172 yards, one TD), kick-off returns (14-424, one TD), kick-offs (one), short-stints at quarterback (1-of-3, six yards passing), PAT (four by kicks, two by receptions) and running back (20-210, one TD).

Viking defensive tackle Bob Meredith, after selection to the J.C. Grid Wire all-America first team, was an honorable mention all-state choice.

McKAY'S MIND ON AGGIES, NOT WEATHER

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Coach John McKay says he doesn't expect chilly temperatures to affect his Southern California Trojans Monday night when they meet Texas A&M in the Liberty Bowl.

But the overcoated McKay admitted that he brought 68 players, anyway.

"Can you imagine that wind whipping around us with only 40 players huddled on the sidelines?" the Trojan mentor asked through a turned-up coat collar.

Temperatures hovering just over the freezing mark greeted the Aggies and the Trojans Friday as they went through light workouts, marred by dropped passes and fumbled center snaps.

SATURDAY morning, however, the sun had warmed the practice field and the National Weather Service was saying McKay and Aggie coach Emory Bellard could quit worrying about the weather element.

An updated forecast indicated that temperatures would be in the lower 40s by kickoff time and no wind is expected. No rain or snow is in the forecast.

Now all McKay had to worry about was injuries and a potent Aggie defense. Key injuries have been blamed for a four-game losing streak for the once high-rking Trojans, who bring a 7-4 record to the Liberty Bowl.

Ricky Bell, the Trojans' junior tailback sensation, admitted that the Aggies' record as the nation's top defensive team was worrying him.

"They're the number one defense in the country, they only give up an average of 80 yards a game, while I average 170 yards myself," the nation's leading college rusher said. "You know that's keeping me up at night."

BELL, despite a sprained ankle suffered in practice two weeks ago, also is causing A&M some lost sleep, the head Aggie said.

"Someone like Ricky Bell is going to get his yards," Bellard said. "The thing we have to do is keep his gains to a minimum and prevent him from making the big play."

Monday night's Liberty Bowl will be the Trojans' 21st bowl appearance, but their first outside the Rose Bowl. Southern Cal has a 14-6 Rose Bowl record.

Ex-Tampa U. coach hired by McKay

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Former University of Tampa coach Dennis Fryzel was hired Saturday by John McKay as specialty team coach for the National Football League's new Tampa Bay Buccaneers, a team spokesman announced.

Fryzel, left without a team when Tampa dropped football last February, has been filling out the last year of his contract at the school by performing other duties. The Bucs' spokesman said Fryzel will begin his new duties next month.

The hiring took place in Memphis, Tenn., where McKay is preparing his Southern California Trojans for the Liberty Bowl game Monday night against Texas A&M.

"One of those who recommended it highly was Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins," said McKay.

Fryzel said, "I wanted this more than anything else in the world."

Miami, O. wins Tangerine

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tailback Rob Carpenter plunged for two touchdowns Saturday to boost 16th-ranked Miami of Ohio to a 20-7 victory over South Carolina in the Tangerine Bowl.

Carpenter scored on a five-yard run in the first quarter and a one-yard dive in the second period to give methodical Miami, the Mid-American conference champion, its third consecutive Tangerine Bowl win.

Miami kicker Fred Johnson added a 47-yard field goal in the third quarter, a Tangerine Bowl record, and a 38-yarder in the fourth period.

South Carolina and its all-America quarterback Jeff Grantz were shut out by the Redskin defense until the third period when Grantz capped a 73-yard, pass-dominated drive with a three-yard scoring pitchout to fullback Tom Amrein.

Although Carpenter's two touchdowns came on the ground in typical Miami fashion, both were set up by senior quarterback Sherman Smith.

Smith threw to split end Steve Joecken for 20 yards to the South Carolina seven, setting the stage for Carpenter's first score.

Smith also passed 37 yards to Joecken and 18 yards to fullback Randy Walker to set up the second touchdown.

South Carolina drove 67 yards to the Miami nine on the first series of the game, but kicker Bobby Marino missed a field goal try.

South Carolina blew another scoring opportunity late in the fourth quarter when Smith's pass was intercepted in the end zone after he ran 48 yards to the Gamecocks' 10-yard line.

Double Belted "Polyglas" Radials now make it easy to join the switch to radials. Both fiberglass cord belts help reduce tread squirm for long tread life and reliable traction. Resilient polyester cord body absorbs road shock for smooth ride and bruise resistance. On wet pavement, built-in tread grooves help channel water out from under the tire — for good road contact, sure-footed handling. Whitewall sizes are on sale only through Wednesday — so act now.

L.B. area gymnasts in spotlight

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

USC freshman Gale Wyckoff of Long Beach captured all-around honors with a score of 35.05 at the recent SCWAIC Pre-season Invitational Gymnastic Meet hosted by Long Beach State University.

Team honors went to Cal State University, Fullerton, with 99.35 points; USC, 96.45, and Long Beach State, 95. Long Beach State's score was just three points away from the mark needed to qualify for nationals.

Gale won three out of the four individual events, scoring 9.05 on the beam, 8.70 on bars and 8.80 in vaulting. Denise Garber, LBSU junior, took fourth all-around.

Denise, who hopes to make the finals at regionals, which will be held in March at LBSU, and the nationals, is only one of two returning Class I gymnasts on the team. Coach Marion Duncan said that she expects Denise to move into the elite class by summer if she continues to improve as quickly as she has in the past year.

TWO SOPHOMORES and some "very talented freshmen" complete the Long Beach State team which Coach Duncan describes as "steady with terrific team spirit."

Mrs. Duncan pointed out that competition at the Class I level is getting stronger each year. Last year only two conference teams had Class I gymnasts. This year seven of the schools attending the tournament entered this section.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

Another Long Beach area gymnast, Lynn Govin of Downey, a USC sophomore, has taken her first and second steps toward obtaining a berth on the U.S. Olympic Team by qualifying at two regional elite meets.

With scores of 70.90 and 70.30, Lynn achieved the national qualifying standard of 70.0 which allows her to compete in the Elite Nationals for Gymnastics in March. Final selection comes in May when Olympic Trails are held at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

"I feel that my chances are good for the alternate position on the team because when I achieve peak condition, I can accumulate a score of 72.0 or greater," said Lynn.

THE GYMNASTS compete in eight different events with each event worth 10 points and a score of 10 meaning a perfect performance. All points are tallied in determining an overall score with anything above 70.0 being excellent and any score above 73.0 being the Olympic standard.

"Nobody is really that superior this year," said Lynn, "which increases my chances. But it is so hard for me to devote time to school and gymnastics."

Last year Lynn just barely missed obtaining a spot on the U.S. World Games Team while achieving a ranking among the top 12 in the nation.

Lynn, because of the elite meets, did not compete in the LBSU pre-season meet.

Incidentally, any gymnasts from beginners through Class I may attend a clinic over Christmas vacation at Long Beach State. LBSU's class I team will be coaching at the event. Daily fee is $8 and weekly, $35. Further information may be obtained from the women's physical education department.

LBCC'S COED sailing team will host a Christmas Regatta Saturday and Sunday at Alamitos Bay. Schools entered in the varsity event include Long Beach State, USC, Orange Coast College, UC Irvine and UC Santa Barbara.

Bruce Golison and Jeff Jones will be skippers of the Flying Juniors and Kathy Black and Mike Holleran will be Laser skippers for LBCC.

TWO LOSSES to Harbor College, 63-69, and Golden West College, 61-66 ended tournament play for the Long Beach City College basketball team at SCCCIAC championships last week at Fullerton College.

Toni Bell accounted for more than half of LBCC's points in the Harbor game. "We started out slow and just ran out of time before we could overtake them," Coach Donna Prindle said. Behind 10 points at the half, LBCC sank 10 points in the last few minutes but still came up seven short of victory.

In the game with Golden West, Long Beach City lead until the final two minutes and held a 15 point lead at one time in the contest.

Scoring was balanced during the game. Coach Prindle singled out the playing of Wanda Henderson on defense, Carol Delaville, Vicki Lewellyn and Brenda Pinesett at the post position, and Karen Gurkey "who came off the bench in the last 10 minutes and scored seven points."

ANY LONG BEACH City College women athletes wishing to compete in a spring sport should contact coaches as soon as possible after Christmas vacation.

Athletic participation will be offered in swimming, Marte Gunning; tennis, Sally Monsoor; volleyball, Merri Machado; softball, Donna Prindle; gymnastics, Peggy Stoll; coed badminton, Gillis Brown; coed bowling, Paul Chafe, and coed sailing, Jerry Miller.

COED volleyball teams at Long Beach City College wrapped up their season at the recent SCCCIAC championships at L. A. Valley. The single As won their division in the three-day tournament. The double As placed fourth. Both teams had won league titles under Coach Marilynn Tom.

SANTA'S GIFT LIST

Something special for TV stars? It's in the bag

By BOB MARTIN

HENRY WINKLER

DEAR SANTA: Be a pal and deliver the following gifts to celebrities I've had the pleasure of chatting with in 1975 . . .

Don Adams — Barbara Feldon. And his very own screen test.

Denise Alexander — some prime time for a soap opera star in her prime.

Barbara Bain — a network landing for her spaceship.

Richard Castellano — a villain role offer he can't refuse. And a godfather for his two TV sons, now that they're leaving the tube.

William Christopher — a role as a bad guy, or least as a Protestant.

Jimmy Connors — singing and acting lessons.

Gretchen Corbett — more to do on "The Rockford Files."

Clifton Davis — a home away from Mama.

KEVIN DOBSON — a Crocker bank. Or a hot tip on Telly's racehorse.

Susan Dey — a partridge in a pear tree.

Cliff DeYoung — sunshine. And a hit with his TV role as Charles Lindbergh.

Bruce Fairbairn — a special package from Michael Ontkean.

Mike Farrell — a special package from Wayne Rogers and McLean Stevenson.

Melinda Fee — fi, fo, fum. And a man with some substance to him.

Pat Finley — a Hartley family reunion on Bob Newhart's show.

Rosemary Forsyth — a role as David Janssen's girlfriend on "Harry O."

BOB FULLER — a brush salesman's job, so he'll face fewer emergencies.

Julie Harris — a TV series worthy of her talent.

Ray Heatherton — daughter Joey to sing to at Christmas. And his old job at the bank.

Florence Henderson — a holiday reunion with the Brady bunch.

Sandy Hill — Ken and Barbie dolls with pins stuck in them, to send to her detractors.

Mitzi Hoag — a series to help her get by, now that "We'll Get By" didn't get by.

Oscar Homolka — eyebrow clippers.

BOB HOPE — a toy Texaco truck, fewer commercials and more specials for a very special guy.

Susan Howard — a feast of goodies from Texas, including barbecued ribs, fried okra, black-eyed peas, pecan pie and fruit cake.

Barnard Hughes — lower malpractice insurance rates.

Jim Hutton — a guest role on Peter Falk's show in which he, as Ellery Queen, solves a whodunit that stumps Columbo.

Dennis James — an autographed picture of Monty Hall.

Perry King — a TV drama with Henry Winkler, his contemporary at Yale, in which both portray sophisticated and gentlemanly college graduates.

MARTIN LANDAU — a trip to the moon. . .with Barbara, of course.

Manhattan Transfer (Alan Paul, Laurel Masse, Janis Siegel, Tim Hauser) — a summer TV special with Gladys Knight & the Pips, Ben Vereen, Jim Stafford, Dick Cavett and Joey & Dad.

Joe Morton — some better "Grady" scripts. Or a return to Broadway.

Helen O'Connell — a "Tangerine."

LaWanda Page — a new purse, to swing at Sanford.

Mackenzie Phillips — a TV singing appearance with her dad, John Phillips, formerly of the Mamas and the Papas.

WAYNE ROGERS — a month's vacation in Korea, with McLean Stevenson.

George Demosthenes Savalas — his brother's weekly paycheck.

John Schuck — a date with McMillan's wife.

Joan Tetzel — a framed copy of the Life magazine cover on which her picture once appeared.

Liz Torres — a double date with Phyllis.

Marcia Wallace — a coffee maker.

Dennis Weaver and Sandy Duncan — another Opryland U.S.A. special (if I can go along).

Mark Wilson — autographed photos of Uri Geller and Doug Henning that won't bend or disappear.

Henry Winkler — a motorcycle, a leather jacket, a dozen bottles of greasy kid stuff . . . and Fonzie's luck with the dames.

Carmen Zapata — word that her "Viva Valdez" comedy series will reach the air.

Henning bringing magic to the tube

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Doug Henning, the star magician-actor in a Broadway hit called "The Magic Show," has a trick we've seen him do from less than 10 feet away and still can't figure out.

He and an aide gently put a lady horizontally on the tips of five or so tall, sharp swords. They remove all the swords, save one at the base of her neck. But she doesn't fall down or even cry "Ouch!"

So we asked Henning how he'd react if someone seriously offered him $1 million in cash to explain how he accomplishes the sword trick.

"I WOULDN'T do it," said Henning, who will do an NBC special called "The World of Magic" Friday night from Los Angeles. He proceeded to explain why he wouldn't reveal the secret of the sword and other tricks.

"For one thing, money isn't that important to me," said Henning, a short, lean, long-haired lad of 28 who appears to be one of the last cheerful survivors of the Age of Aquarius.

"If I have enough money to perform and to live and be happy, that's all that counts. For another thing, the secrets are really important. Some of my friends think I'm a bit of a fanatic about it.

MAGICIAN DOUG HENNING, star of Broadway's "The Magic Show," brings his skills to television Friday night, from 8 to 9 on Ch. 4, on the "World of Magic" special. Sharing the stage with him will be Orson Welles (in the cape), Bill Cosby (part of him in the box), Julie Newmar, Lori Lieberman, Japanese magician Shimada and assorted animals. Henning will attempt to duplicate Harry Houdini's famous water-torture escape feat.

"But it's not because I want to keep it from them, or that it's an 'I-know-something-they-don't' thing. It's because when you (meaning nonmagicians) know the secret the wonder is gone.

"And my purpose as a magician is to create wonder. You can't get that from anything else, really."

HENNING, born in Winnipeg, Canada, and raised in Toronto, has been creating wonder since he was 9, the first feat being a penny magically transferred from a handkerchief to a small box.

He has starred in "The Magic Show" on Broadway since it opened in May 1974 with the help of friends, financial backers and the reputation of his first theater show. That show had a similar theme — acting, magic and music — and played in Toronto under the title "Spellbound."

Henning may be the first magician to hold a degree in physiological psychology. He said he earned it while working his way through McMaster University in Toronto.

THAT particular course of study, he added, concerns human perception — sight, sound and the like — "which is all related to magic." Which is why he studied it.

Henning, who was 6 when he saw his first magic act — a levitated girl trick on the old "Ed Sullivan Show" on TV — said he feels that TV doesn't present magic properly. But he hopes to correct that.

"I've created five illusions specifically for television," he said. They'll be seen in his NBC show, in which a hand-held camera will be used extensively to give viewers a close look at his hocus-pocus.

"IT'LL BE better than watching it on a stage," he said.

Alas, none of the illusions in "The Magic Show" will be used in the NBC special, not even the lady-on-a-sword trick he won't explain to anyone even if they offer him a cool million in cash.

"What about explaining it for free?" we asked.

Doug Henning, master magician, just sat there and grinned.

The BIBLE Says

J.T. Smith

IS CHRISTMAS CHRIST'S BIRTHDAY?

"Christmas time" is almost here. A great deal of advertising is being done about "Christmas," mostly by those who have merchandise for sale; but nevertheless the "signs" are everywhere. There are two questions I want us to consider regarding "Christmas." (1) Where did Christmas originate? and (2) Who authorized it?

The Bible does not give the date of Christ's birth. In fact, it is the unanimous consensus of historians that December 25th is not the birthdate of Jesus. Albert Barnes, a noted Presbyterian commentator says in his comments on this subject basically what every historian says. With reference to shepherds keeping their sheep in the field: "The climate was mild, and to keep their flocks from straying, they spent the night with them. It is also a fact that the Jews sent out their flocks into the mountainous and desert regions during the summer months, and took them up in the latter part of October or the first part of November, when the cold weather commenced. It is probable from this that our Saviour was born before the 25th of December, or before what we call Christmas. At that time it was cold, and especially in the high and mountainous regions about Bethlehem. But the exact time of His birth is unknown; there is no way to ascertain it."

Where did this practice of "Christmas" begin? Liberius, Bishop of Rome in 354 A.D. ordered that December 25th be adopted. The name is derived from the medieval Christes Masse, the Mass of Christ. The Catholics had a special "mass" (their corruption of the Lord's Supper) for Christ and so they called it "Christ-Mass." Later it was shortened to "Christmas." Thus the reason for true Christians not celebrating "Christmas" as a religious holy day. The Bible didn't authorize it — the Roman Catholic Church did.

Ustinov in talk at LBCC

PETER USTINOV . . . as he addressed theater group at Long Beach City College.

"The best acting training is the voyage of discovering yourself. Training is learning about yourself and your potential," said stage-screen-TV actor Peter Ustinov to a Long Beach City College audience.

Ustinov's recent appearance was sponsored by the LBCC theater arts and film programs which, according to film program director Shashin Desai, attempt to bridge the gap between professionals and students by sharing experiences.

In his 90-minute talk to students, instructors and members of the community, Ustinov related anecdotes about his own training and acting background, which resulted in two Academy Awards for the 54-year-old British actor, director, playwright and novelist.

Ustinov began his career in England during the late 1930s. "I started when the war was on," he said, "I was 18 and preparing to be an actor. I wrote plays and produced them while I was in the British Army. My reputation was as a writer, not a private, since I was unsuited for the role.

"DURING THE war I met Carol Reed, Eric Ambler, and David Niven. I was Col. Niven's orderly, and, when a general was around, I'd pretend to be polishing Niven's belt.

"I was sent to Scotland to film a movie on commando techniques. The techniques changed so fast that the film was always out of date and it took the army a year to notice."

Ustinov's military career included testing underwear after the army deemed him unfit to write films. "Thank goodness it was the army and not the filmmakers who were of that opinion," Ustinov said.

He described his first acting role at school as "a nymph trying to lure Ulysses onto the rocks. I didn't even succeed."

His first professional role was as an elderly man in an early version of "Uncle Vanya." Said the actor: "I had one line out of every 40. Can't say I really enjoyed it. I was terribly nervous waiting for my part, sort of like the man playing the triangle in the symphony orchestra."

In response to a question about where theater arts students should train, Ustinov said, "Drama schools are useful because they fill a period in one's life. In point of fact, when you eventually feel sure of yourself, acting is rather simple, but it's difficult to practice.

"You can't sit in a room and practice acting. You are better off sitting in the street and watching people. It's possible to train your intelligence to respond to instinct."

LIFE SAVER

PYR-A-LARM

SMOKE AND FIRE DETECTOR

It's the GUARDION from Pyr-A-Larm, the electronic fire detector that can sound the alarm at the first sign of a fire in your home. And it can save your life. Using an advanced ion-detection principle, the GUARDION can sound the alert even before there is visible smoke or flame. When products of combustion enter its ion chamber, they trigger an alarm that can be heard through closed doors. Here is reliable, low-cost fire protection for your family. And it's so easy to install that it can be protecting your loved ones before they go to bed tonight. Come in and see it today.

LERA BROUWERS, customer service representative for Ralphs, demonstrates how computerized equipment works.

Wait, see attitude on computers

It was a chance to meet the press, to give them a peek at the future and to send them home well-fed, better-informed (about computers, anyway) and full of good will for IBM.

The setting was San Diego's Kona Kai Club on picturesque Shelter Island.

The topic was computers — how they were developed, why they work and what they'll be doing in the future.

Included in the day-long program was a demonstration on the use of IBM's computerized checkout system which is now being introduced in supermarkets throughout the nation.

For many of those present, the mock-up of the computerized checkout stand was their first experience with what supermarket spokesmen term "the wave of the future."

"What happens if there's a slash through the code?" asked an inquiring reporter. (The reporter was then encouraged to cut through the paper label.) "Does it disturb the system?"

"What if you mark through it with a pen?" asked another.

"What if you rip it off?"

The questions were in reference to the Univesal Product Code (UPC) which is affixed to nearly 60 per cent of items now stocked on supermarket shelves. The code, 28 verticle black bars above a series of 10 numbers, was developed several years ago at the request of the grocery and grocery product manufacturing industries and is the cornerstone of the computerized checkout system.

"THE COMPUTER WON'T make a mistake because the code has been damaged or because it isn't there," said Alicia Maxwell, a systems engineer with IBM. "The worst thing that can happen is that the computer won't do anything at all and the checker will have to look up the missing code and manually keyboard it into the computer."

When the code is present — which is most of the time, Mrs. Maxwell patiently assured her skeptical audience — the system works simply and is practically error free.

"What the code tells the the computer is what the item is and who manufactures it. It doesn't give the price."

(The price is programmed in by the store or chain itself. Usually new prices or price changes are made at the main office, though changes also can be made by a store manager.)

"The scanner here," said Mrs. Maxwell, pointing to the window in the checkstand, "reads the code as the item passes over it and then transmits it to a computer which matches the information with the store price.

"Seconds later the price comes back to the checkstand where it is flashed through a light panel and printed on the shopper's receipt.

"The computer also does the computation for taxable items and notes items that can be purchased with food stamps," Mrs. Maxwell added.

"It computes specials — two for one sales, for example — and, as you can see, provides the shopper with a detailed receipt which lists both the item purchased and its price."

The computer also makes possible compilation and storage of other information which may be useful to store managers, Mrs. Maxwell said.

"Among other things, the computer can tell the manager how many customers were in the store at a given time and what the sales volume was so he can better schedule employes.

"It can also tell the manager how well special promotions are working and can keep track of inventory."

Besides the detailed receipt, which most shoppers would agree is an improvement over the tape produced by standard supermarket cash registers, the computerized checkout system benefits shoppers by being faster — up to 25 per cent faster for the average customer who unloads on to the checkstand himself, Mrs. Maxwell said.

THE SUBJECT OF INCREASED employe efficiency raised the question of manpower requirements. Would fewer checkers be required with the new system? Would inventory clerks be eliminated?

The supermarket industry is labor intensive (according to one report, labor represents 66 per cent of operating costs). What kind of labor savings could a supermarket expect by installing the computerized equipment?

"It depends," Mrs. Maxwell said. "We can tell market managers that the time required per item or the time required for tax computation can be reduced by such and such and we can point out where the areas of potential savings are.

"But the supermarket itself has to put the figures together. The system is a highly personalized one for each chain."

John Rankine, director of standards for IBM, said potential labor savings were certainly a factor in a customer's decision to purchase the computerized equipment.

"We find that customers do not buy computers for the fun of it. Usually there must be a clear payoff in terms of the application of the machine.

"But the economics vary from customer to customer and must be worked out with each customer individually."

As it turned out, the IBM representatives weren't being purposefully vague. Right now it seems that no one is sure what kind of labor savings markets can expect — and some are wondering if there will ever be any at all.

"We have more employes now than we did when we installed the equipment in September of 1974," said Ron Cottrell, systems manager for Ralphs, one of two chains in California which is experimenting with the computerized equipment.

In a newspaper story last summer, Reggie Hill, manager of the Ralphs store which is equipped with the system, said that he doubted that reduced personnel would be possible. Nothing he said recently indicated that he had changed his assessment. He noted that additional employes had been required initially to put the system into operation and while some of those were no longer with the store (none were laid off, however; the reduction was accomplished by attrition), there had been no net decrease in the number of employes.

THE SUGGESTION THAT computerization in the grocery industry may not necessarily lead to a reduction in personnel brings up another question: how do supermarkets plan to pay for the system?

That's the question Ron Cottrell of Ralphs is grappling with right now. After 15 months of testing the system at Ralphs Lakewood, the 93-store chain still doesn't have an answer — and Cottrell wasn't sure when it would.

"The system has to pay for itself," Cottrell said. "We're not going to raise the price of groceries to install the equipment.

"We believe our experience has proven that scanning is a viable means of handling our front end operation. The final question is can we cost-justify the purchase."

A report prepared by the California Grocers Association points out that electronic front ends — as the computerized equipment is known in the industry — are not intended to reduce manpower requirements. Rather, the report says, they are intended to make more efficient use of labor and reduce other operating costs, including cash register under-rings and other human errors which cost the market money.

Childhood joys of Christmas seem far away

dr. walt menninger

The holiday season is usually thought of as a happy time. Yet for many people it can be depressing too. It is not all joyousness and pleasantries. And recently a colleague, Dr. Tony Kowalski, and I got to thinking about why.

For children, it is a joyous time. Excused from school, free from responsibility, fascinated by festive lights and decorations, with visions of sugar plums in their heads and anticipation of Christmas gifts — it is a magical season. There are so many good things to eat and delicious smells and sights and sounds associated with the holidays.

As children, little did we appreciate just how much of the magic of the holidays was the result of hard work by our parents and others. Most parents foster the pretense that all this happens without much effort; the work is all done by Santa and Mrs. Claus and their many elves.

Even after we realize that there is no Santa Claus, we may not really appreciate all the effort that goes into maintaining the traditions of the holiday season. We recall the happy holiday experiences of childhood, and it's distressing to find these things don't continue to "just happen."

THE DEGREE to which it takes work slowly dawns on us as we form our own family. But the effort is countered by the satisfaction in seeing the wide eyes of a young child upon first encountering the brightly lighted Christmas tree, the filled stockings, the colorfully wrapped presents. And little can match the pleasure of observing the enthralled reaction of a youngster when he gets that most-wanted present.

However, in the midst of the hustle and bustle of holiday preparations, there are times when you may wonder if all the effort is worth it — struggling to get all the gifts made, wrapped and sent when necessary; getting the Christmas cards selected, addressed and mailed; getting out the decorations, sorting them and putting them up; selecting the Christmas tree and fixing it up; making the cookies and cakes and candied nuts and other goodies; planning the Christmas dinner; arranging and working out parties and other social plans, all with children underfoot.

Traditions may be great, but they can have a way of trapping you into a host of tasks that seem overwhelming. Some people react by hiring someone else to do much of the work for them. All too often, the load falls on mother to do much of the preparation for the holidays. And, as one mother told me, there is so much to do, sometimes she just doesn't think she wants to do it!

Even when the tasks are shared, they can be quite a burden on top of all the other everyday tasks. I can well recall getting behind and staying up until five in the morning on Christmas before we finished wrapping all the presents. My wife and I swore at that time that it would never happen again. Such an experience definitely dashes any residual childhood fantasies of Santa's stopping by while everyone is asleep.

ACTOR George C. Scott — in role as Luftwaffe security officer on last flight of Zeppelin Hindenburg from film "The Hindenburg." The ill-fated airship, right, falls to earth in flames. One survivor has profession to thank for his escape.

SILENT SCREEN stars Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin — no love lost between the trio.

Q: Who receives the most mail in the United States? — K. W. and K. H., Norfolk, Va.

A: The Postmaster General's office advises us that it is not possible to give an answer based on an absolute count, since its impossible to maintain records of deliveries to more than 200 million individuals. However, it is safe to conclude the President of the United States receives the most mail on a year-in, year-out basis.

TV game show host Monty Hall — women perpetuate male emcees.

LLOYD Bridges as Joe Forrester in his TV series — trading professions?

RECLUSE Howard Hughes — simple answers to simple questions.

Q: I hear that comedian Rodney Dangerfield never believed in Santa Claus. If so, how come? — Jan Holden, Miami.

A: "It was this way," Rod explains. "When I was a little lad we lived in such a tough neighborhood, when a kid sat on Santa's lap in a department store, he picked the kid's pocket, then kissed him! Some Santa Claus."

Q: Lloyd Bridges makes a believable cop in "Joe Forrester." Wasn't he a singer before "Sea Hunt"? — Sal Cucinnotta, Oklahoma City.

COMEDIAN Rodney Dangerfield — Santa Claus not trustworthy.

A: That's no fish story, but after, not before. Lloyd, in the mid-stream of his career, played the lead in a summer theater company of "Man of La Mancha" — singing up a storm and declaring, "That's what I'd like to do next!"

Q: I see where George ("Patton") Scott plays a German colonel in that new movie thriller, "The Hindenburg." I remember seeing pictures of that awesome zeppelin engulfed in flames when it tried landing at Lakehurst back in 1937. Are any survivors still alive? — Mrs. Anna McCormick, Jersey City.

A: Yes. At least one — an acrobat named Ben Dova, now living in Queens. When the giant hydrogen-filled airship became a torch an estimated 200 feet off the ground, Dova took a dive, somersaulted to earth and landed on his feet. "If I'd been a waiter or carpenter or singer," he told us years later in an interview, "I wouldn't be alive to tell the story."

Q: I understand that Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin didn't get along, and I've always wondered why. Can you tell me? — Cheryl Stringman, Birmingham, Ala.

A: It dates back to the early years of silent pictures when she, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., and D.W. Griffith formed and financed United Artists. Chaplin reportedly sold his share without giving his other partners first refusal.

According to a biography penned by Robert Windeler, when she was told that Chaplin had mellowed, America's Sweetheart bellowed: "To me he is still a son of a bitch!"

Q: A quick two-part question: (1) Is zillionaire Howard Hughes an American citizen? (2) Does he have any children? — P.M., Philadelphia.

A: (1) Yes. And (2) No.

Q: Why are the male chauvinists in the TV industry preventing women from hosting a TV game show? — Arlene B., Minneapolis.

A: Apparently it's not the men who are responsible. "Women themselves have rejected women as the emcee of game or money shows," claims Monty Hall of "Let's Make a Deal." "The networks feel a male does the best job," is the reason Mark Goodson (of Goodson-Todman, long-time big-time game show producers) gave to a TV fan magazine. and Elaine Stewart of "Gambit" (wife of Merrill Heatter, co-producer of "Hollywood Squares") says it's startling, but women want a male rather than a female emcee. Susan Stafford, of the "Wheel of Fortune" staff, agrees: "Women just don't like watching other women!"

Glenda Jackson longs for a modern role

LONDON — Glenda Jackson is a savage when she's working. If her star dressing room at the Pinewood Studios near London looks like an army barracks latrine, she doesn't notice.

She's too busy pacing the cold floor in her bare feet, chain-smoking from boxes of foul-smelling English cigarettes and scratching the black roots of her dyed red hair, which looks badly in need of a shampoo. Her scalp itches with perspiration from wearing too many wigs, her face has erupted with zits from the nervous strain of filmmaking and the private trauma of a rather nasty front-page divorce in her personal life, and her hands flutter desperately in the air like dying birds. It is not a good day for an interview.

She is currently completing the gargantuan job of playing the legendary Sarah Bernhardt, a role once planned for Greta Garbo, in a multimillion-dollar epic called "Sarah." The film begins in 1923, when the French actress is dying at the age of 79, flashes back to age 18 and ends when she's 35, before she became an international success. It's a role worth playing.

Bernhardt collected lovers and animals, nursed the soldiers onstage at the Comedie Francaise, which was converted into a field hospital during the Siege of Paris, slept in a coffin, attended public executions by hanging and guillotine, performed "Camille" 3,000 times to sold-out audiences from Russia to the San Quentin prison without ever learning to speak English and invented the unisex look by being the first woman to wear trousers.

"You need a great actress to play a great actress," says director Richard Fleischer, "and in my opinion Glenda is the greatest actress of our day."

She is also one of the most exhausted. "I've been in every scene and on call from 7 a.m. until long after nightfall every day for 15 weeks," she sighs. "I'm certainly not tired of Sarah Bernhardt, but I am physically exhausted from the work and ready for a vacation."

IN THE FILM she's worked with chimpanzees, French poodles, a pair of lizards, a vicious puma and a fleece of white rats. She has 40 costume changes, takes six hours to be made up and plays 13 scenes onstage in various Bernhardt roles from Joan of Arc to Phaedra.

"It seemed too good a chance to miss. It's an immense challenge, but not because she was an actress. I mean, we're not making a documentary about her. I'm not attempting to reproduce the way she acted, because I don't know how she acted. Greatness in acting is a very subjective thing.

"What I think Sarah had was a charismatic appeal for an audience, and that's a very magical, mysterious thing. I mean, Christ, even Oscar Wilde was in love with her. It's an important woman's role.

"I don't know much about her, really. She was probably the apocryphal actress. Ask anybody on any street corner in the world, and they've heard of Sarah Bernhardt even if they've never been to the theater. But the books about her are conflicting, and I don't think facts, in the sense of dates, times and places, are particularly of use when you're acting."

rex reed

THE DAY AFTER Glenda won her second Oscar for "A Touch of Class," she was invited to lunch at Claridge's by Helen Strauss, a respected literary agent for 35 years and the newly appointed head of production for Reader's Digest's film division, the group responsible for such family-oriented movies as "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn" and "Mr. Quilp." Ms. Strauss asked her if she would be interested in playing Sarah Bernhardt on the screen. Without a blink, Glenda said yes.

Seven scripts and several million dollars later, they were ready to go. Glenda wanted John Schlesinger, George Cukor or Billy Wilder to direct. They were busy. So they ended up with Richard ("Dr. Doolittle") Fleischer and a film so vast in its magnitude it required 134 speaking parts and 500 extras per day.

"I won't say it's the hardest thing I've ever done because everything you do is the hardest thing you've ever done while you're doing it," she said, stabbing the air with her cigarette butt. "Acting isn't easy. But this is certainly the most lavish film I've ever done. The sets and costumes are immensely impressive. The theater sets especially. They don't feel like sets; they feel like theaters.

"One of my first scenes was an audition, and the set was so real I got as nervous as I did when I really did my first audition in a live theater. I hasten to add, I never got the job."

DESPITE HER protests that Bernhardt was "quite different emotionally," there are interesting comparisons between Glenda and the woman she's playing. Both have been called eccentric, both had an extraordinary energy that drove them like demons and both had unhappy marriages. Sarah married a Greek actor with no talent who resented her success.

Glenda married Roy Hodges, whom she met when he was a director in Bristol in her struggling days. She blazed to stardom early in the Royal Shakespeare Company's "Marat/Sade" when she was making only $50 a week. Now she has two Oscars and her first accumulated million, which her husband is suing her for.

During her recent American tour in "Hedda Gabler," she fell in love with Andy Phillips, an electrician who did the lights for the show. Bernhardt had a child by a man she refused to marry. Glenda now faces the responsibility of raising her 7-year-old son, Danny, and remaining a working mother at the same time. When she talks of Sarah's marriage, it's almost as though she's talking about her own.

"I don't think marriage is a redundant institution, but I don't think it should be a sentence to solitary confinement in which you must stay forever and ever, either. And that's what most marriages turn into.

"There is some weakness in some people that requires them to constantly fail. In that kind of relationship, I don't think you can blame one person more than the other. People are what they are. I think Sarah Bernhardt's husband would have been a failure no matter who he married. What increased his tragedy was that he married such a flamboyant person, a publicly marked success, which must have made his own failure seem even greater."

Here the resemblance ends. Glenda has never been flamboyant. The day after she won her first Oscar for "Women in Love," she was photographed in the backyard hanging out the wash. "Nobody would ever hire me for my beauty," she says, and there are no arguments. She has bad teeth that require removable caps in front of the camera, spotty skin and eyes that disapper "like tiny raisins in unbaked dough."

YET A LOVE affair with the camera occurs when she's on the screen that nobody can explain. Despite her militant refusal to be labeled a movie star, she is one.

She's come a long way from the homely country girl who daydreamed about being Esther Williams (she once almost drowned doing an impression of the MGM bathing beauty smiling underwater), but she still does not give a damn about money or glamour.

"I can truthfully say money has never been a primary objective in my work. That probably sounds patently absurd since I am obviously paid a great deal of money, but I've never done anything because the money was right and the part was wrong. All the money in the world can't make me do something I'm not interested in."

She has never made a film in Hollywood.

Her next film, "The Abbess of Crewe," a black comedy by Muriel Spark, about a group of nuns battling for the position of mother superior, will co-star Ingrid Bergman and will be filmed in Philadelphia. If she ever accepts the movie-star label, she hopes to be compared more to Bette Davis than Raquel Welch.

MOST PEOPLE think of Glenda Jackson as a contemporary Bernhardt, cementing forever distinguished performances in costume dramas about queens and tragediennes, but she would give anything to play a modern girl for a change and get out of those corsets and wigs. "I've been working steadily in films for the past six years, and the depressing thing is the scripts they send me don't get better.

"Nine out of 10 scripts I get are rubbish, and you're lucky if one out of 10 is even readable."

Instant it happened

silken memory

This picture of Rita Hayworth was taken in 1941 and is used here, out of sequence, on the grounds that it is needed more now, 30 years later, than then.

It was carried around the globe by the citizen soldiers, sailors and airmen of World War II but any attempt now to recapture the thoughts of the men who looked at her from their bunks and hammocks would still be an intolerable invasion of privacy.

Suffice it to say that for millions of balder, heavier, middle-aged warriors she remains a symbol of a simpler time, when men were not ashamed of their war, when the world seemed to make more sense and the times were less contentious and a man could look forward to a wife who would love him, a home that would shelter him, neighbors who would not confound him, a paycheck that would be all his, and children who would honor him.

By Robert Landry, Life magazine.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Pension reform puzzling

DEAR MR. SMITH: We are faced with a problem when filing our 1975 IRS 1040 report. In 1963 at age 59 and a self-employed person, we established an IRS approved Keogh plan and invested $200 in U.S. Retirement Plan Bonds. We added $675 the next year and more in subsequent years. This year we made our first drawing on this invested money consisting of the first two years purchases of bonds totalling $875 and received about $1,280.

Based on the 1974 Pension Reform Act, how do we report this to IRS on Form 1040? Some time ago we recall that contributions and re-invested dividends made prior to 1974 would be treated as capital gains under the 1974 act. Should the entire $1,280 be reported as a long-term capital gain?

Should a special IRS form be used to file this report? Has IRS issued a publication or other instructions that are updated to include the provisions of the 1974 officially titled "Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974" pretaining to the above matter? — F.H.

If you receive the entire balance in the fund in one taxable year (1975 in your case), you would report the amount received as long-term capital gain.

If you do not receive a complete distribution by Dec. 31, 1975, report all taxable amounts as ordinary income. Obtain free IRS pamphlet number 560.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I receive rental income from my former home in Maryland. In 1975, my wife and I went back there to supervise repairs and replacements to both the inside and outside of the residence.

How do we handle these 1975 expenses? Also, how about dead trees that were removed? We invested in a stock that is now traded at 75 cents a share. Do we have a deductible loss? — W.P.

Deduct the actual costs of the trip for both only if you can show that both of you spent most of your time inspecting, supervising or working on the property. You can deduct in full all repair and maintenance items. But expenditures that add to the over-all value of the property are capital improvements to be depreciated. Dead trees would be deductible only to the extent that they are capitalized and not fully depreciated. The expense of removal is deductible.

Since your stock is still being traded, you would have to sell your shares to establish the loss.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I have three $1,000 debenture bonds which pay twice a year, one at 9.5 per cent, one at 11.75 per cent and one as 12.55 per cent. Do I have to report this amount of interest? Also, can I claim what I play on the Michigan lottery ticket if I lose or win? — J.R.

Assuming that the bonds are not municipal or other tax-exempt bonds, report as interest income, on Federal Form 1040, the interest you receive for the year.

Gambling losses for the year are reported as an itemized deduction, but the amount of the deduction cannot be more than your winnings reported for the same year.

DEAR MR. SMITH: My only income is the alimony I receive from my former husband, and I would like to set up an Individual Retirement Account (IRA.) I have written three times to Internal Revenue, Washington, D.C., but I've had no answer. May I set up an IRA? — A.E.O.

Only an employe, or a self-employed person who meets the other requirements, may set up an IRA plan. Since you are neither an employe, nor self-employed, you are not eligible.

Need child's flu vaccine

THE EVENTUAL elimination of influenza epidemics is hindered, in great measure, by the lack of a successful flu vaccine for children, researchers say.

Successful immunity, induced safely in school-age children, could be an important factor in breaking the flu-transmission chain.

But the current flu vaccine is not recommended for children because it frequently induces negative reactions, some more serious than the flu itself.

Two researchers are currently investigating the possibility of making an influenza "subunit" vaccine suitable for protecting children.

Studies have shown that some components or subunits of the influenza virus, when properly isolated, retain the whole virus' ability to induce immunity without the side effects.

SIXTEEN medical centers across the country are currently conducting a year-long trial of a new form of outpatient treatment for psoriasis, a scaly skin disease.

The treatment involves the use of a drug called 8-methoxsalen and ultraviolet light.

Researchers hope it will provide an alternative to the lengthy hospitalization now required for many psoriasis patients.

The drug is given in pill form, followed two hours later by a two- to 15-minute exposure to 55 ultraviolet lamps, each six feet long.

Researchers say that the treatment is no cure but may provide an easier, safer method to deal with the disorder.

Psoriasis is one of the most frequently encountered skin diseases. It is as common as sugar diabetes, according to a report in Dermatology Digest.

The first manifestations of psoriasis can arise at any age, but usually develop between 20 and 40.

PSYLLIUM, a substance used in the manufacture of certain laxatives, may cause adverse reactions in persons who work around it, researchers report.

Three employes of a Minneapolis, Minn., pharmaceutical firm experienced wheezing whenever bulk laxative containing psyllium was being produced.

All three showed a reaction to a skin test employing psyllium extract, according to Drs. William W. Busse and William F. Schoenwetter of Minneapolis.

Psyllium is used in many laxative preparations because it has the property of fluid retention.

The doctors, in a report in Annals of Internal Medicine, say it's conceivable that others may experience respiratory symptoms when exposed to psyllium powder.

FOR WHAT IS believed the first time, a gallstone has been found in the lung of a human.

The stone showed up there in a 67-year-old woman after Swiss radiologists monitored a mysterious triangular shadow for two years on chest X-ray studies.

Swiss doctors, reporting in the journal Radiology, say the woman's gallbladder was removed in 1966 because of frequent attacks of severe pain. The gallbladder was found to have ruptured and no gallstones were found.

Six years later, doctors operated and found that the mysterious triangular shadow was the missing gallstone from the operation performed earlier.

Radiologists theorize that long before the gallbladder operation, the stone perforated the gastrointestinal wall, then penetrated the diaphragm and eventually worked its way into the lower part of the right lung.

THE DRUG diazepam is safer and more reliable than paraldehyde for the management of severe delirium tremens.

Diazepam, a tranquilizer also known as Valium, calms patients in less than one-half the time paraldehyde does.

Bad reactions occur considerably more often with paraldehyde than with diazepam, say researchers at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

A report on use of diazepam in the treatment of DTs appears in Annals of Internal Medicine.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Parties are most jolly at yuletide

'TIS THE SEASON to be jolly and among the jolliest things are parties.

Such as the one at the Alamitos Heights home of David and Mary Lu Hauser. More than threescore dropper-inners visited the two bars and cocktail buffet.

Holiday partygoers came from far and near such as Bob and Carol Bothner from Palos Verdes and Brad and Kathleen Crow from San Marino.

Nearer were Bill and Nancy Terpstra, Nick and Vanessa Nikcevich, Don and Wini Smith, Fred and Nina Strassman, Hal and Leone Marcum, Vic and Patty McCarty and Roby and May Bessent.

Also U.S. District Judge Mal Lucas and Joan, State Sen. George Deukmejian and Gloria, Decatur and Bettye Mitchell, Hal and Lila Bayer, Ted and Shirley Bradshaw, TJ and Joan Horan, Jim and Bev Milner, Jim and Judy Edson and Sterling and Carolee Clayton.

BOB AND EVELYN Orrill hosted a yule gathering around their famous player piano. (The one they personally hauled across country in a moving van.)

Evening was full of surprises. The Orrills' daughter Patricia Kaupp and husband Charles announced the forthcoming addition of a new Kaupp next July.

Not to be outdone, Bob Teague and Marline Cameron announced their engagement.

On hand for the surprises were Ross and May Sherwood, Dr. Frank Orto, Chuck and Paula Ayers, Glenn Morgan and May Norr, Hoover and Judy Villa and JR and Susan Cruz.

Also Bill and Pat Harrison, Keith and Mary Jane Clark, Dr. Susan Smight, Ray and Judy O'Connor, Jake and Molly Bowman and Rick and Shirley Drieski.

A NOTE FROM Whitey Littlefield telling me of a party was so enjoyable I'll borrow part of it. He is referring to his lady employees at Somerset Distributors and a party they had at Kelly's Restaurant.

"The occasion is not only their annual Christmas Party, Gossip Session and Tear The Boss Apart Night, but they also purchase a Christmas gift for me. The gift to me is a donation made to a needy family in my name so that someone else may have a little nicer Christmas. I can tell you very honestly it is the nicest gift I could receive."

Nicest Gifters were Connie Casillas, Linda Greenig, Jennifer Treinen, Susan Robinson, Lauren Adams, Pam Russell, Pamela Costello, Sandra Graham, Gladys Berg, Jacqueline Freese and Olga LeBlanc.

Perhaps some of you looking for a last minute gift might borrow the idea from the girls at Somerset.

EVERYTHING but the guests did a disappearing act at the party hosted by Drew Satariano and Bob Smith at their home-on-the-beach in Seal Beach.

Bill Smith of Magic Castle fame astounded and astonished some 30 Christmas revelers.

Among them were Kathy Scotella and Kathy Cully who assisted the hosts, Roger and Carol Hull, Wayne McMinimment, Mike Gaskey, Donna Smith, Jill Satariano, Denny Lund and Bill and Sharon Delaney.

THE QUEENSWAY Hilton was chosen by members of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary for their annual holiday party.

Highlight of the luncheon was a program of Christmas music by the Silver Lutes of Lakewood High School.

Lucille Lueking was in charge of arrangements with an assist from Emma Charrlin, Ruth Dilworth, Norma Dunn and Alice Parker. Kay Roggeveen is auxiliary president.

ONLY THING MISSING from the gala grand opening party at Harbor Bank on Ocean Boulevard were free samples of the product. But for a small building it was a large and lavish affair.

Ice Carvings bearing the bank's distinctive logo were accented by a bubbling champagne fountain. Monster bowls of shrimp and oysters on the half shell were just two of the myriad hors d'oeuvre put together by Augie Speth, master of Pacific Terrace Concessions but better known as the wizard who put together the VIP Grand Prix parties.

Hosts for the party, which drew more than 400 localites including Mayor Dr. Tom Clark and Lois, were members of the bank's board of directors.

Jody Thomason, there with wife, Mona, is president and a member of the board. Jim Gray, with Joann, is chairman and Dorothy Matteson is vice-chairman. Dorothy says she is a vice-chairman not a vice person.

Other board member hosts were Jim Willingham, Dick Wilson and Peggy, Dr. Mac Todd with Ruth, Dr. Hamilton Moody, George and Joyce Murchison, Kermit and Rachel Jones and Jack and Rena Jacobs.

THE FORMULA

Hustle dance floor into shape

Have you made your plans for New Year's Eve? A party at home, including dancing on a well-waxed floor, would be an inexpensive and delightful way to welcome in the New Year. The needs are simple: friends, music and a good dance floor.

If you have a smooth-surfaced floor in your recreation room, basement or on your patio, it is not necessary to spend a month's entertainment money to dance at a club or hotel. Here's the formula to help you prepare your floor.

Ingredients required are one cup of STEARIC ACID, which may be purchased from a candle supply or hobby shop, and one-half pound of TALC, available from a ceramic supply house or drug store. Dry mix the two thoroughly and sprinkle the mixture on the floor. Store in closed container of plastic, glass or metal.

The cost of making your own dance floor wax is approximately six cents per ounce. To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then compare the per ounce cost. You'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little effort. Happy New Year!

Note: Material costs are based on prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic location. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any product you make at home, you should store this one safely; label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of the reach of children.

This formula will appear in a future edition of THE FORMULA BOOK.

(There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as THE FORMULA BOOK. Hundreds of easy recipes put savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. More than 200 pages of recipes, diagrams and instructions on ingredients and equipment, in a large paperback format, for only $5.95. Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

In duplicate is there any penalty for behavior which disrupts the normal course of the game?

Need Supervision
Elm Grove, Wis.

Answer: Yes. The director is empowered to assess penalties for behavior which adversely affects the course of the game. Typical violations are slow play, comparing scores, ungentlemanly behavior, etc.

Jerry Machlin of Silver Springs, Md., reports this true story in the Wash., D.C. Bridge Bulletin:

"Bad behavior at the table can result in all kinds of unexpected penalties. Example: A father and daughter combination were playing against the mother and the father was soundly berating the daughter for her bidding and play.

The mother tried to protect her beleagured child; "You really didn't have to take that from him. Actually, he isn't even your father."

Dear Mr. Corn:

I have been told that a new set of laws became effective recently. Is our social rubber bridge foursome out of date?

Catching Up
Arlington, Tex.

Answer: No, rubber bridge players are up with the times. A revision to the laws has been published, however, the new code pertains only to duplicate bridge and corrects some of the peculiarities caused by a similar set of laws for both games.

Dear Mr. Corn:

One of our players, when declarer, always plays his card and dummy's at the same time. I find this confusing and distracting. Is he allowed to do this?

Whose Play?
San Mateo, Calif.

Answer: If this habit distracts you, you may require declarer to play in turn in accordance with the laws. However, when a declarer does this, he may be giving the defenders an advantage.

Since dummy's card is a played card, either defender may play to the trick first and guide their play accordingly.

Dear Mr. Corn:

The trump combination was:

North
Q 10 9 8

South
A 5 4 3

How should I have played the suit if the lead was in dummy (North)?

Wrong Way
Scottsdale, Ariz.

Answer: It depends upon how many tricks you could afford to lose and whether another entry to dummy was available.

If all four tricks are needed, lead the queen hoping to pin West's singleton jack; or lead small to the ace hoping to drop a singleton king from East.

If only three tricks are needed and an entry to dummy is available, plan on two finesses against East.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Tex. 75225 with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Women are asking...

'Please give me some interesting party games and decorating ideas that don't cost an arm and a leg!'

By REBA & BONNIE CHURCHILL

Party-time is in full swing. Statistics reveal there are more get-togethers and open houses over New Year's than any other time of the year. If you're planning to spin the party ball, why not introduce friends to some fun innovations.

Balloons are an inexpensive prop. Insert a piece of paper — announcing a prediction — inside each balloon, inflate it and give to guests. When they pop them, they'll learn their fortune.

Also, present balloons and grease pencils to friends and have each draw a picture of the person at his right. The results range from Rembrandt to ridiculous. The best balloon faces receive a prize. The worst ones get a pin and become "pop" art.

If your get-together is more formal, you may want to incorporate a Bicentennial look to the party table. Designer Arthur McKee suggests using a child's toy drum as the "vase." Insert a conventional container inside the drum and fill it with red, white and blue flowers. Incidentally, if you want the centerpiece to outlast the party, he advises cutting flowers on a slant, then vertically snipping the ends (approximately ½-inch into the stem) so they will drink up the water. Patriotic streamers can be placed through the arrangement to carry out the 1776 theme.

Want to look your prettiest at party time? Check the 12-page booklet for tips on eye make-up. Included are sketches and pointers from professionals. Send 45 cents (coins only) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Reba & Bonnie Churchill, "Eyes," Independent Press-Telegram, P.O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Pros, cons weighed

The report also pointed out that a regional chain on the East Coast which is equipped with an electronic system foresees a potential savings in operating costs of between $7,000 and $10,000 per month per store. But the report noted that the word "potential" should be underscored. The savings are not yet a demonstrated fact, it said.

"There are savings in terms of reduced shrinkage and more efficient use of labor," Cottrell said. "But we're not moving ahead right now because we're still waiting to see if we can justify the cost."

SPOKESMEN FOR OTHER supermarket chains expessed similar reservations. Scanning is certainly the "coming thing," they agreed, but a price tag of $150,000 per store is nothing to sneeze at.

"There are several obvious advantages to the system...the fact that it's quicker and the shopper gets a detailed receipt are a couple of them," said Paul Campbell, director of public relations for Safeway. "The concensus is that all large markets will have scanner equipment sometime in the future.

"But we're going into it very slowly. We feel we must figure seriously the high cost of installation (the $150,000 does not include store remodeling or purchase of new checkstands, both of which are often necessary) and legislative roadblocks that might be thrown up. I read just yesterday that the requirement for item pricing has slowed down Lucky Market's plans for installing the equipment in its other stores." (Gemco in San Leandro, which is owned by Lucky's, is the other supermarket in California with computerized equipment.)

The "legislative roadblocks" right now consist of a law which will go into effect in April which requires supermarkets to price each item individually. The bill, authored by Sen. David Roberti (D-Los Angeles), was strongly supported by consumer and labor groups which feared that the introduction of scanners would lead to the elimination of item pricing in supermarkets.

"Consumer groups are being misled by the argument that item pricing is necessary," said Merle Goddard, a spokesman for the California Grocers Association. "The idea that you need item pricing is hogwash.

"We support the right of shoppers to have pre-purchase price information. But the shopper can do that with shelf tags...and the shelf tags are improving."

CONSUMER AND LABOR groups don't agree. Bob McGrath, a spokesman for Local 324 of the Retail Clerks, expressed minimal alarm over the affect computerization would have on union members — "it's going to be with us," he said — but hailed the Roberti bill as an essential protection to both consumers and supermarket employes.

Consumer groups also view item pricing as an essential protection. Among other things, they say, eliminating item pricing would make it impossible for shoppers to find the best values without going through tortuous search procedures.

Ken Greene, a spokesman for IBM in Los Angeles, questioned how much affect the Roberti bill has had on a supermarket's decision to purchase or not purchase the equipment. The bill was passed for only one year, he pointed out, and in any event, "You can't assess the impact of something that hasn't gone into effect."

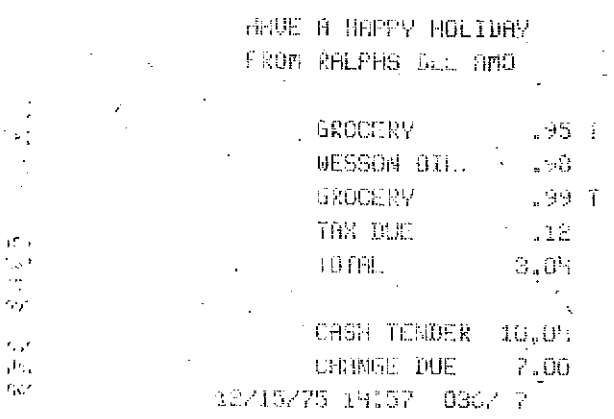

As Greene sees it, the main reason supermarkets aren't rushing out to purchase the computerized equipment is because the system is so new.

"We just announced the system's availability two years ago. It's not something that's been around that long."

Nationwide, about 40 supermarkets are testing computerized equipment, though not all of it, of course, is IBM-manufactured. The number has more than doubled in the last six months and according to Greene, several chains have two or more of their stores on the system.

AT WIT'S END

Grandma's game but children are not

My mother is funny about Christmas. She gets annoyed when she has to buy gifts that (a) she can't spell; (b) she doesn't have the foggiest notion what they're used for; (c) leak grease.

"Why can't I just buy my grandson a drum and a rubber toy for his bath?"

"Because he's 20 years old."

"It's no fun doing your Christmas shopping in an auto supply store. Tell me again what I bought him last year."

"A mag wheel."

"And the year before that?"

"An RF-80 FM stereo wireless radio chamber."

"I'll bet it's never been hemmed."

"They were headphones, Mother."

"If you ask me, kids grow up too fast. I liked it better when we could buy them toys and games. Remember that game where you sunk each other's battleships? I hate to brag but I downed 11 destroyers and 6 cruisers before they even got the hang of it."

"I remember."

"AND THE POPCORN machine. I loved the popcorn machine. That little thing made a pretty good batch of caramel corn."

"I remember."

"But the electric hockey was my favorite. I tried to tell 'em, it's coordination. Skunked every one of them. And Monopoly. I had 'em so they couldn't land anywhere on that board unless they printed their own money. So what does he want this year?"

"Take your pick. He's into photography. You want to get him the 273 auto. thyristor bounce flash 9-90 with head tilt?"

"No."

How about a little stocking stuffer like a couple rolls of EX 135-30 Ektachrome AS 64-19?"

"Write it down," she said tiredly.

As I watched her go off with a note in her hand, I couldn't help but reflect sadly that somewhere in our quest to reach down to children and their quest to reach up to maturity, we pass one another in the night.

Depression not uncommon

Christmas from childhood contribute to holiday depression in another way. For as we recall the tinsel and glitter of past Christmases, we must face the reality that those times are past. And we are reminded of losses. Holiday times are traditionally spent with the family, and we are reminded of absent members of the family.

If we can't join our family, we struggle with loneliness. If they have passed on, we again grieve our loss.

For some people, the holiday gift giving is upsetting. Some do not find it easy or enjoyable to give, and they resent the tradition that forces them to do so. Some may be envious of gifts received by others, feeling anything others get that they don't is something they've lost.

Another subtle, but significant, depressing aspect of the season is the short days and long nights. The winter solstice is at hand; and though the days will soon get longer, the darkness is depressing.

Thus, whatever be the happiness and joy of the season, it is not uniformly joyous for all. It can have its moments of sadness and loneliness and depression and resentment. We can recall how magical a time it was in childhood and wish we were children again. Of course, that's literally impossible; but we can perhaps allow the child within us to re-experience the magical sights and sounds and tastes and smells and feelings of the season.

SEASONS GREETINGS TO ALL OF OUR VALUED CUSTOMERS

CHEF OF THE WEEK

He's schooled in gardening, too

Let's hope he doesn't raise his head in too big a hurry! The dean, who appears to be giving his all to his cooking, is today's chef of the week, Carl R. Sederholm, dean, Northrop University School of Law in Inglewood.

Starting out in Utah, Sederholm attended Brigham Young University, where he earned his B.S. degree. At the University of Utah he earned a juris doctor degree and at USC his master's degree in law.

Between college and law school however, Sederholm did a bit of snowballing. In Snowville, Utah, he served as principal of a two-room school with grades from one to eight.

He then came to Long Beach and joined the Northrup University Law School which was established in September of 1972, and will graduate its first class in May, 1976. It began as a night school, but is particularly proud of a morning section composed of all women law students. Northrop is a fully accredited private university in Inglewood with academic emphasis in engineering, law, business, and technology. The school was founded in 1942, by John K. Northrop who also founded Northrop Aircraft.

Several Long Beach attorneys also are associated with Northrop University as members of the board of trustees, or as members of the board of advisors.

SEDERHOLM is a member of the American and the California State Bar Associations; of the committee on law education of the State Bar of California, and also serves on the advisory committee on continuing education of the bar.

After graduating from the University of Utah Law School, Sederholm moved to Long Beach. In the following year he married Janice Hinckley whom he had met at the University of Utah. Janice taught school at Washington Junior High and Hughes Junior High, and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold A. Hinckley. Dr. Hinckley has practiced medicine in Long Beach since 1938.

The Sederholms are the parents of seven children. Julie, 16, is a junior at Lakewood High School;

mildred flanary

Dwight, 14, an Eagle Scout, is a ninth grader at Hoover Junior High; Val, 12, a Star Scout, working on his Eagle award, is in the seventh grade at Hoover Junior High. The two youngest girls, Sheri, 10, and Suanne, 8, attend Madison Elementary School.

The delight of the family is 4-year-old Chipper (Carl Jr.) — a chip off the 'old block', no doubt! There's also Benson, age 3.

SEDERHOLM enjoys gardening in his spare time, and is proud of his zucchini squash, lima beans, corn, and giant seed pumpkins.

Last summer he planted an exotic vegetable that no one could figure out. He had ordered it from one of his many seed catalogs that he collects from around the world. The family and friends tried it cold like a cucumber, and hot like a squash, and it grew like a bean.

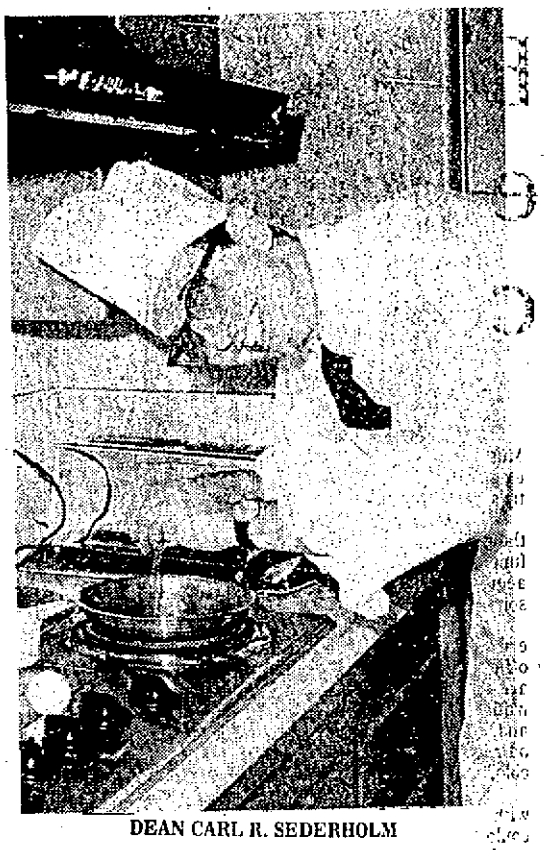

CREPES FINES SUCREES
Makes 10 to 12 6-inch crepes or 18 4- to 5-inch crepes

- ¾ cup milk
- ¾ cup cold water
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 3 tablespoons orange juice or water
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 5 tablespoons melted butter

Place ingredients in blender jar in order listed. Cover, blend at top speed 1 minute, use rubber scraper, scrape down sides, blend 3 seconds or so more, cover and refrigerate two hours or overnight.

If you wish "Crepes Souffles", add 3 egg whites, pinch of salt, stiffly beaten. Fold this into batter just before making crepes.

To bake: Heat pan over medium-low heat until a drop of water sizzles. Wipe pan lightly with vegetable oil. Pour two tablespoons batter into pan, tilting quickly so batter covers bottom completely. Bake until top of crepe is dry and bottom lightly browned, turn quickly by lifting edges with a spatula then sweeping the crepe over with fingers. Bake about one minute more. Place crepes in a tea towel as they are baked.

Here's a way to steal a little space along one side of a room and hide a whole railroad line in it...or a slot car race track. The fold-down table shown here is eight feet long and four feet wide. Of course, it may be made longer in the event you have more wall space available. The handy part is — once you're through playing — the shelf may be folded up against the wall where it's out of the way. It protrudes only a few inches when folded and the 18-inch pegboard face may be decorated so that it adds to the appearance of your room.

Many folks place these tables in their garage or basement. It makes a complete family entertainment center. For example, it's also handy for mother when she lays out her sewing. Then too, there are many hobbies that call for a large work table. And — daughter will like it for her doll house and furniture.

It's still another project that any amateur can undertake with success when using the easy-to-follow pattern. Complete directions, illustrations and a list of needed materials are always included.

To obtain the easy-to-follow TrainSlot Table Pattern No. 362, send $1.50 (includes first class postage and handling). Send check, cash or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, Ca.

FLEA MARKET FINDS

'His master's voice' talks

By DAN D'IMPERIO

Q: "Would anyone be interested in our old talking machine. It's been in the attic for years." — Mr. and Mrs. R.F., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: Thomas Edison's invention was the talk of the 1880s. His primitive machine evolved into a sophisticated instrument within a few short years. One hundred fifty thousand machines had been sold by 1900, along with close to 3 million records. Locating the early phonographs and records is more than enough to keep a collector spinning. Value guide: Edison, home model, with 50-cylinder records, $390; Victor E, Morning Glory Horn, table model, $320.

Q: "Can you furnish us with any information about Lenox china marks?" — Jane, St. Louis, Mo.

A: Lenox, Incorporated, was founded by Walter Scott Lenox in 1906. This still existing firm garnered an excellent reputation for their fine quality wares. Between 1906 and 1924, the firm's backstamp consisted of a circle and artist's palette enclosing an L, with the word Belleek beneath. A small wreath containing the letter L, and Lenox beneath appeared in 1924. A slightly larger wreath incorporating the Letter L with Lenox, Made in U.S.A., below was utilized from 1930 onward. American Lenox china is cherished.

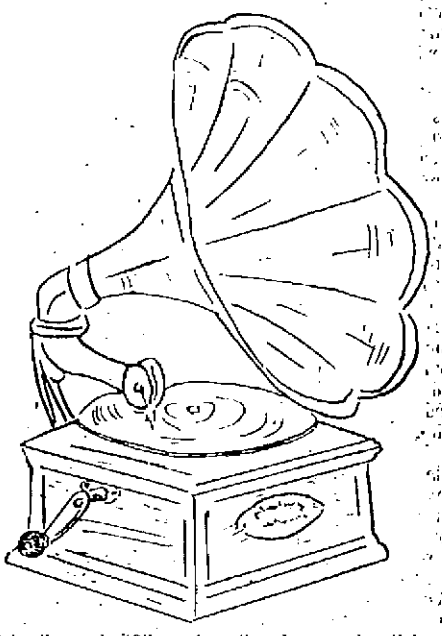

Q: "Has Amberina glass continued atracting collector interest?" — Mr. and Mrs. C.H., Spokane, Wash.

A: Ever since the New England Glass Works of Massachusetts developed this lovely two-colored glassware about 1883, it has captured the fancy of the public. Shading as it does from red to amber makes it quite unmistakable. The manner in which glass connoisseurs are hoarding tableware and ornamental articles, it's apparent that with them it will be "Forever Amberina."

Amberina value guide: Butter pat, Daisy and Button pattern, $110; cruet, Inverted Thumbprint pattern, $265; pitcher, swirled, strap handle, 8-inches tall, $275; tumbler, diamond quilted, $95.

Q: "Antique copper collectibles are tops with me. How early was it made in America?" — George, Burlington, N.C.

A: According to reports, several coppersmiths were practicing their craft in the late 17th century, but by the early 18th century they began advertising their services. Dovetailed joints, hand-riveting, tool marks and handcrafted handles are all indications of an early piece. Generally, antique specimens show signs of wear and the familiar "verdigris" greenish discoloration around the seams. A display of old copper is always a traffic stopper at any flea market. Copper value guide: Apple butter kettle, dovetailed, iron bail handle, $160.

Dan D'Imperio welcomes your questions on antiques and collectibles and will answer as many as possible in this column. However, volume of mail precludes personal reply. Write to him care of the Independent Press-Telegram.

DEAR ABBY

Nude neighbor needs professional help

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, a middle-aged woman moved into our apartment building on my floor. She lives alone with her dog. She's always dressed as though she's going to the opera — furs, capes, feathers and a different wig for every day of the week.

She talks to herself and carries a suitcase wherever she goes. I'm sure she's not all there. She's not very friendly. When I say hello to her, she answers curtly and keeps going.

Yesterday she walked down the hall stark naked to empty her trash basket! I couldn't believe my eyes. I phoned the manager immediately, and he said the woman pays her rent on time and doesn't bother anybody so he couldn't do anything about it. He said the police would have to catch her in the act, at which time they could take her down and book her.

Abby, I don't want to cause trouble for this poor woman, but she must have family somewhere who should be notified.

What should I do? My husband says it's none of my business. — CONCERNED NEIGHBOR

DEAR CONCERNED: Your husband is wrong. It IS your business. The woman is obviously distrubed and in need of treatment. Call your local Mental Health Association and report the incident to them. In the meantime, try to make friends with her. Nearly everyone responds to kindness.

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: How do we shape up our children's table manners (ages 8, 10 and 12) without causing complete disruption at mealtimes? — DAD

DEAR DAD: Consistent and gentle reminders plus adult examples should do it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter who is not yet 15 wants to date a 20-year-old divorced man. I have tried to talk her out of it, but she doesn't want to listen.

She is a good student and has never been in any kind of trouble, but I think she is too young for a man his age. Especially a divorced one.

What do you think? Also, when he calls, is it my place to ask him to please not call my daughter anymore? — WORRIED MOM

DEAR MOM: When he calls, let your daughter tell him not to call anymore. I agree he's too old for her, divorced or not.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that he is not an alcoholic because he doesn't drink any alcohol — only beer. But he drinks a six-pack every evening and on weekends he can put away a couple of cases. He gets very drunk. At least he acts drunk to me. Yet he tells me that as long as he drinks only beer, he is not an alcoholic. Is that right? — HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No! There IS alcohol in beer, and anyone who drinks as much beer as you say your husband drinks qualifies as an alcoholic in my book!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No, 69700, Los Angeles, Ca. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Elegant gift enhances collection

BY ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

It's gift-giving time, and Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has received an elegant one from Leon Lidow, father of museum trustee Eric Lidow.

An addition to the museum's Chinese collection, the gift consists of two important T'ang (618-906 A.D.) funerary sculptures. They may be seen in the new acquisitions gallery on the Plaza level of the Ahmanson Gallery.

George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern Art, says that the two almost life-size T'ang officials, which are among the largest in the country, are unique for their fine modeling, strong characterization and monumental size. Attired in long robes and mitered hats, the ascetic, dignified appearing pair are richly covered with green, brown and straw-colored glazes over white pottery bodies.

From antiquity, the Chinese buried their dead with lavish tomb furnishings so that the deceased could enjoy all the pleasures of this world in afterlife. Replicas of horses, favorite dogs, companions and servants were frequent objects. The funerary art of the ceramic sculptor reached its height during the late seventh and the first half of the eighth centuries with work of dazzling polychrome glazes. After the rebellion of An Lu-shan in 756 A.D. and the effect of sumptuary laws to regulate spending, there was less creative vitality. By the mid-eighth century, the glazed tomb figurines were scarce except in remote provinces.

TWO NEW TOURS also are being offered at the Los Angeles County Museum. They are for the blind and partially sighted, and for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Both are conducted free of charge by the museum's Docent Council.

Talks for small groups of children or adults are included for the blind and partially sighted. Approximately 20 sculptures from Africa, China, Egypt, Latin America and Europe in such materials as wood, marble, bronze and baked clay are provided for four participants to handle. In this way, they can learn about form and texture. The tours, which last about an hour, are in the museum workshop. Although special exhibitions for the blind have been held in the past, this new tour is designed to give the blind and partially sighted continuing opportunity to visit the museum.

Tours for the deaf are accompanied by typed scripts of recorded gallery talks for special exhibitions. This allows the deaf to follow the same tour as that given on the tape recording. A refundable deposit of $1 is requested for the script. No reservations are required. Docent tours in sign language, featuring highlights of the Ahmanson Gallery, also may be scheduled on request. To arrange one of these special tours, contact the museum's docent office.

ANOTHER NEW program of tours is scheduled the second Sunday of each month at 2 p.m. at Bowers Museum, 2002 N. Main St., Santa Ana. Members of the Docent Guild conduct tours entirely in Spanish. Mrs. Leonor Alaniz, a teacher of bilingual studies in the Costa Mesa school district, heads the program.

On permanent display is the museum's collection of African, Oceania and pre-Columbian artifacts, plus two rooms devoted to Orange County History and the Indian ancestory of the Southwest United States. Reservations for these special tours are requested but not necessary; admission is free.

FIRST PLACE winners in the recent membership show at Traditional Artists Guild of Paramount are: Pauline Baerg, beginner; Edith Reneau, watercolor; Lenore Caldwell, intermediate; Pat Allen, portrait and animals; Flo Gipple, landscape and desert; and Julia Bleck, seascape and marine.

In professional categories: Nona Taylor, seascape and marine; Charles P. Cross, portrait and animals; Ryo Terasaki, still life and florals; and Edith Reneau, landscape and desert.

THIS PAIR of officials dates from the Chinese T'ang Dynasty (618-906 A.D.). The three-color glazed pottery figures are gift to Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Auditions may point to careers

Young singers in Southern California may apply now for the 1976 San Francisco Opera Auditions. Deadline for entries is Feb. 10.

Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon, chairman of the Los Angeles Region, said that preliminary judging will take place March 8 and 9, and finals April 29, in Royce Hall, UCLA.

The Los Angeles Region includes the counties of Santa Barbara, Ventura, Inyo, Mono, Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial and Southern Nevada. Applications are available by mail from the Opera Guild of Southern California, 2125 Mayview Drive, Los Angeles 90027.

On the regional level, the singers will compete for $2,000 in awards. In addition, winners will be eligible for the grand finals later in San Francisco where $3,750 in prizes will be given.

Finalists also will be eligible to participate in the Merola Opera Program, an intensive 10-week summer session combining study with performance in residence.

Singers in all voice ranges may compete. Sopranos must be between the ages of 20 and 30; mezzos, 20 and 32; tenors and baritones, 22 and 32; and basses, 22 and 34. Contestants may submit applications in three different audition years.

NAMED AFTER Gaetano Merola, founding general director of the San Francisco Opera, the Merola Opera Program is regarded as one of the finest opera training courses in the United States. Given under the direction of the opera's present general director Kurt Herbert Adler, members of the opera staff and other specialists conduct classes in languages and diction, stage deportment, body awareness and fencing, as well as providing coaching of operatic roles, recitative and dialogue. Participants also may audit San Francisco Opera stage, chorus and ensemble rehearsals.

Some singers receiving awards at the grand finals will be presented in concert at Stern Grove, the Paul Masson Mountain Winery in Saratoga and other special programs during the summer.

Those enrolled in the Merola program also are considered in casting for the fall international season of San Francisco Opera as well as for the Spring Opera Theater, Western Opera Theater (the touring and educational subsidary), and the Brown Bag Opera, new noontime performing troupe.

Among audition winners from the Los Angeles Region have been sopranos Karen Armstrong, Delcina Stevenson and Shigemi Matsumoto; contralto Katherine Hilgenberg; tenor Ken Remo; and bass-baritone Harold Enns.

English actress to star at Forum

That famous Jacobean tragedy of love and revenge, John Webster's "The Duchess of Malfi," will star Eileen Atkins from Jan. 22 through March 7 at the Mark Taper Forum of the Music Center. This will be the play's first major professional stage production in the United States for many years. Director is Howard Sackler, Pulitzer Prize winning author of "The Great White Hope."

Ms. Atkins, considered one of England's finest actresses, will make her Los Angeles stage debut in the title role. Co-creator of the popular television series "Upstairs, Downstairs," she recently appeared on Broadway as Elizabeth I in "Vivat! Vivat! Regina!" — a role she originated on the London stage. In New York, she appeared in Arbuzov's "The Promise" and in Frank Marcus' "The Killing of Sister George," which she also played in London where she received the Evening Standard Award for Best Actress for her performance as Childie.

Born in London, Ms. Atkins established her professional reputation in England appearing in seasons of repertory, including two years at Stratford-on-Avon. In the contemporary theater, she has been seen in "Semi Detached" with Lord Laurence Olivier, "Exit the King" with Sir Alec Guinness, and other major productions. She again teamed with Sir Alec in "The Cocktail Party" at Chichester and later in London's West End.

The actress has played The Duchess of Malfi and many other roles for English television. Webster is considered one of the greatest playwrights of 17th century tragedy, second only to Shakespeare.

EILEEN ATKINS as Duchess of Malfi stars as tragic heroine in John Webster's 17th century play. Drama will open Jan. 22 at Mark Taper Forum.

'Nutcracker' ballet at Shrine

"The Nutcracker," Tchaikovsky's classic Christmas ballet of the Sugar Plum Fairy, toy soldiers, life-size mice, snow flakes, Clara and her gallant cavalier, will be performed Dec. 26, 27 and 28 at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Lynda Yourth will dance the Sugar Plum Fairy in this San Diego Ballet production. Former soloist with the New York City Ballet and recent partner of Rudolf Nureyev, she rose from corps de ballet to soloist with NYCB before leaving after four years to attend college. She holds a degree in biology from Columbia University.

The San Diego Ballet "Nutcracker" is directed by Sonia Arova and Thor Sutowski. Accompanied by symphony orchestra, the company of 75 will dance the full two-act ballet at 2 and 7:30 p.m. Dec. 26 and 27, and at 2 p.m. Dec. 28.

TICKETS are $7, $6, $5 and $4. Children 12 or under will be admitted at half-price. Special rates are available for senior citizen groups and other organizations. Tickets may now be ordered by mail. Checks payable to Mutual Ticket Agency, 637 S. Hill St., Los Angeles, should be sent with a self-addressed stamped envelope. They also are available at the box office.

Words, Music'

Four-time Academy Award winning song writer Sammy Cahn will open his "Words and Music" revue for a two-and-a-half week engagement at the Huntington Hartford Theater, 1615 Vine St., Hollywood, Saturday. In the company will be Martha Danielle, Sydnee Devitt, Paul Eichel and musical director Richard Leonard. "Words and Music" opened last spring in New York.

Christmas customs differ around world

Christmas began nearly two thousand years ago when Christ was born in a stable. It was a happening so inconspicuous that hardly anyone knew it had taken place.

Today, the Star of Bethlehem is a worldwide symbol of Christmas. On perhaps no other day is the family of man so close, one to another. In every corner of the earth where Christmas is celebrated, it has come to be the most universal and joyous of all Christian observances.

Many of the cherished traditions of Christmas, religious and otherwise, are buried in the pagan past. When Christmas was first officially established, in fact, the date coincided with the ancient celebration of the sun's rebirth at the winter solstice.

The church saw no reason to destroy time-honored customs, so they were adapted to fit the celebration of the birth of Christ, and each country has added its own lore to the melting pot of Christmas tradition.

Travelers around the world can now see many different symbols and customs used to celebrate

travel

Christmas. The travel experts of Trans World Airlines which serves 57 major U.S. and international centers, have collected information on the many ways people in places on their routes mark this period of joy and peace.

CHRISTMAS IN FRANCE, as here in the United States, is essentially a family holiday. Gifts are given primarily to children. Custom calls for the youngsters to leave their shoes by the fireside for Pere Noel to fill. The French custom is to exchange gifts on New Year's Day.

French families traditionally have a festive supper on that day called the "Reveillon." The meal varies according to the section of France. In Paris, for example, oysters, foie gras and champagne are a special feature, but everywhere in France it is traditional to serve a cake called Buche de Noel.

That means yule log and derives from the custom of leaving a log burning on the hearth while the family attended midnight Mass. In some of the provinces this custom still exists, but in Paris and other large cities a delicious log-shaped cake is served to symbolize it.

CHRISTMAS TIME in England still has a Charles Dickens flavor. The celebration starts with carols and services on Christmas Eve and continues right through Boxing Day, Dec. 26.

The tradition of serving goose during the holidays is still observed. A traveler may well be stopped by children with the cry, "Christmas is coming, the goose is getting fat, please put a penny in the old man's hat."

On Boxing Day, the day on which the well-to-do once gave out boxes of gifts to the poor, many people work off the Christmas meal with a brisk walk at a customary Boxing Day hunt. While the riders chase after the hounds, everyone else strides long, taking short cuts and catching up with the riders all across the fields.

THE CELEBRATION in Italy, too, is primarily a religious one and centers around the crib with all its figures. In Rome pipers stroll the streets, adding a colorful and tuneful note to the festivities.

In Italy, La Befana makes her rounds on Jan. 6, feast of the Epiphany. According to legend, she is an old woman who refused to help the Wise Men find their way to Bethlehem. She quickly repented and set out after them. Failing to find them, she still wanders, bringing gifts to good children, ashes to bad ones.

Christmas is primarly a religious observance in Ireland as well. Here, too, the celebration centers around the family. And throughout that lovely land during the holiday season the sound of music is heard — from the soft strains of the harp to the lively skirls of bagpipes.

Traditional Christmas dinner in Ireland is turkey and baked ham, with a plum pudding filled with fruits, whiskey and stout for dessert.

As in England, the day after Christmas is a holiday in Ireland. That is St. Stephen's Day and children dress up in costumes, much like Halloween in America, and go from house to house, singing and dancing to the music of fiddles and concertinas.

IN MADRID where pageantry and piety combine for a unique celebration of the season, the feast of the Three Kings is observed on the night of Jan. 5. Camels, horses, bands, floats — an impressive array of lights, color and music — comprise the cavalcade which promenades through the city.

The Three Kings, not Santa Claus, symbolize Christmas in Spain. Children clean their shoes, and put them by the door so the kings can fill them with candy and little toys, in exchange for straw for their horses.

Christmas is a six-week celebration in Israel where every religious denomination has its own observance. Just outside Jerusalem, Christians gather in Shepherd's Field on Christmas Eve. There are processions also in Bethlehem's Manger Square, as well as in Jerusalem and Nazareth.

CHRISTMAS SEASON usually coincides with the Jewish celebration of Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights which lasts for eight days.

Carols, cakes and "kallikantzari" — which means goblins associated with Christmas — constitute some of the Christmas customs in Greece. Caroling is widespread, with children banging on small drums and tinkling triangles.

Homemakers bake small cakes called "coliandа," and larger ones, known as "coliandina," which are given to carolers, along with figs and nuts, when they stop at houses. The "kallikantzari" comes from an old Greek superstition that on Christmas Eve the goblins come up on earth and stay to do mischief until the twelfth night. They come down chimneys, put out fires, turn milk sour, mix up dishes and braid the tails of horses together.

The night before Epiphany — Jan. 6 — when the goblins are supposed to leave — it is traditional to make pancakes and throw them on the roof of the house for the goblins to eat.

"Walton's in Chelsea is the most 'in' restaurant in London. Decorated in yellow and gray which sounds awful but actually is very attractive. Lunch for two, $50. French food."

I DID get into print with old and fashionable Scott's restaurant — "$100 for dinner for two." Scott's was bombed same week we published it. (Maybe I should sell protection to London restaurants NOT to report on them.)

Before World War II I did an interview with Sean Russell, chief of staff of the Irish Republican Army. A dedicated revolutionary. Cold and calculating. He died aboard a German submarine taking him to Ireland to work up trouble for Britain. (I don't think that's a big secret, but Irishmen changed the subject when I asked about it.)

"If we ship our bikes to Europe, what will it cost?"

It cost $100 each way two years ago says our Bike Reporter. "That's by air freight. Get a box from a bike shop. The kind bikes come in from the factory. You'll have to remove one wheel, the saddle and loosen the handlebars. Easy to put it together again."

(The International Bicycle Touring Society says you can ship up to 44 pounds free as accompanied baggage.)

"The bike should be worth it. You can buy an awfully good bike in Europe for $200."

Our Bike Reporter has wheeled across Europe for four summers. I've printed his how-to-do-it rundown. It's yours free. A self-addressed, stamped, business size envelope will put you among the blessed ones we answer first.

Wrong. Mexico no longer gives the overnight split. The border town operators have moved to Haiti and Santo Domingo.

NEW WORLD'S FIRST YULE CELEBRATED IN HAITI

Christmas in new world not merry

The first Christmas in the Western Hemisphere was celebrated in Haiti almost 482 years ago, but it was less than a merry one.

As it happened, Christopher Columbus and his fellow explorers spent Dec. 25, 1492 in a desperate struggle to salvage what they could of the sinking Santa Maria.

Until then, all had gone well with the expedition. On his flagship — the Santa Maria — accompanied by the Nina (the two ships were to rendezvous later with the Pinta), Columbus was anxious to see how these strange men worshipped their gods.

BELIEVING he was nearing the riches of the Orient and that Cuacanagari was the Emperor of Japan, Columbus was quick to accept the invitation. He sailed again Dec. 24 and, as darkness fell on Christmas Eve, the ships were offshore from a rocky headland which Columbus named Punta Santa. It is now called Cap Haitien.

By 11 p.m. the wind suddenly died and the two ships barely were making headway. Without sleep for the past 48 hours, Columbus went below and the sailors on watch took advantage of his absence for a nap.

The weary steersman also relinquished his post to a young cabin boy, who was ordered to follow the lights of the Nina ahead. But the youth barely was able to see over the Santa Maria's high prow and at just about midnight, the ship slid onto a reef in Caracol Bay so gently no one awakened.

The pounding surf drove the Santa Maria higher on the rocks where the grinding timbers soon awoke the crew and brought Columbus on deck. Throughout the night the men labored to free the ship. By dawn, Columbus realized it was hopeless and gave orders to abandon ship.

So, on the first Christmas Day in the New World, the expedition had time for only a simple mass as the crew worked to salvage what they could from the Santa Maria before it broke apart.

Realizing that the Nina could not accommodate both crews, Columbus decided to leave part of his company behind. He directed that a "tower and fortress" be built from the Santa Maria's lumber and "Fort Nativity" became the first European settlement in the Western Hemisphere. The site now is the small fishing village of Limonade Bord-de-Mer.

Today, all that remains of this historical landing are two of the Santa Maria's seven anchors which are on display in Haitian museums.

Feast of the Nativity and Columbus first sighted Haiti Dec. 5.

Sailing eastward along Haiti's north coast, Columbus noted in his log the "grandeur and beauty of the island and its resemblance to Spain." In honor of his patrons, he named it La Isla Espanola, or Hispaniola. Dominican Republic occupies the eastern two thirds of Hispaniola today.

By Dec. 23, Columbus arrived at what now is called Acul Bay where he received an invitation to visit the village headquarters of Cuacanagari, chief of all the Arawak Indians in northwest Haiti. The chief had heard of the

A place for lovers and artists

Lying in the northeast corner of lush verdant Jamaica is romantic Portland Parish, a spectacular collection of hills, rivers, and sea-carved shorelines that have made it an artist's haven and a lover's delight. There is not a high rise hotel within miles and condominium communes are unknown.

There are many hotels, however, ranging from the fantistically expensive in the San San area with more modest hostelries being found in the hills above Port Antonio, port city for the Parish.

The area has long been fascinating to artists, writers, actors and actresses. The late Errol Flynn, while cruising the Caribbean in his yacht, sought sanctuary from a hurricane in the Port Antonio harbor.

He fell in love with the Parish. He purchased the old Titchfield Hotel, remodeled it, renamed it the Jamaica Reef, and, until it burned down some years after his death, it was one of the most popular spots in Port Antonio.

The famed deMontevin Lodge which lures the young, the budgeted, and gourmets of Jamaican food, also should be visited by architectural buffs. This remarkable gingerbread house is one of the most graceful examples of West Indian architecture.

The easiest way to get there is to fly from Los Angeles via National jet to Miami for quick connecting flights to Montego Bay. It would be best to overnight in Montego Bay, then rent a car and drive the 150 curling miles up the northern rim of the island to Port Antonio.

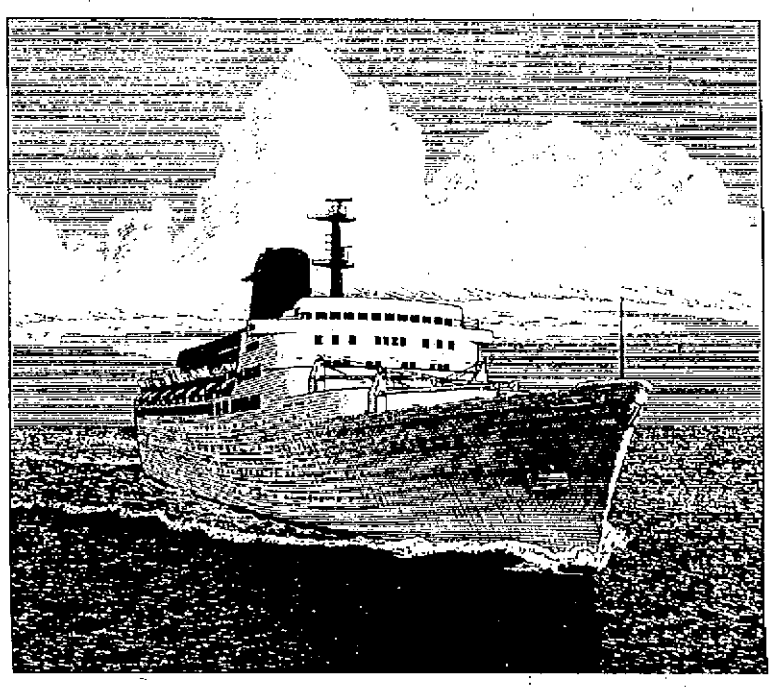

SITMAR GIVES YOU THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY TO MEXICO.

Sitmar's 10 and 11-day cruises give you the most entertainment, the most time in the best ports, and the largest, most spacious ship sailing the Mexican Riviera.

Sitmar's elegant T.S.S. Fairsea, of Liberian registry, is the largest cruise ship sailing the Mexican Riviera. Twenty-five thousand tons!

That means we can give you more crew to serve you, roomier cabins, more spacious decks, more fun facilities: Like a 330-seat movie theater, five pubs, two lounges, two nightclubs, two dining rooms and much, much more! There's even room for three swimming pools, one especially for children.

The entertainment is the finest on any cruise. There are even three cruises devoted to the Big Band sound of the '40s.

SITMAR 10 AND 11-DAY CRUISES. MORE CRUISE FOR YOUR MONEY.

Compare our 10 and 11-day cruise fares with any other. You'll find they're the biggest cruise bargains going. Another advantage of 10 and 11-day cruises—they're long enough to visit the best ports on the Mexican Riviera, short enough to fit within a two-week vacation and still give you a few extra days to get back to reality after all that unbelievable Sitmar luxury.

SITMAR. THE MOST WANTED PORTS, MOST TIME ASHORE.

And 10 and 11-day cruises allow you more time ashore to explore Mexico's most exotic and exciting ports. On the 10-day you visit Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlán and cruise Cabo San Lucas Bay. On the 11-day you visit delightfully old-world Manzanillo, too!

SITMAR. MORE ATTENTIVE SERVICE, MORE LAVISH CUISINE.

Sitmar's 500-man Italian crew is famous for its enthusiastic, attentive, European-style service. And our continental cuisine. Lavish! Extravagant! Incomparable! Our 54 chefs are European-born, European-trained, European-proud.

MORE TRAVEL AGENTS RATE SITMAR NO. 1.

But don't choose a cruise from an ad. See your professional travel agent, who knows which cruise line offers the best value. But don't be surprised if he recommends Sitmar. Recent independent surveys show that more travel agents rate Sitmar a better value than any other cruise line. They rate us best in:

- cuisine
- public rooms
- service
- entertainment
- luxury
- on-board activities
- spaciousness
- ports of call

And experienced cruise passengers know it. That's why travel agents say Sitmar is the most frequently asked-for cruise line on the West Coast.

Ask your travel agent to tell you about a Sitmar 10 or 11-day Mexican Riviera cruise. Sitmar. More cruise, more memories for your money!

Gourmet guide

tedd thomey

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia was so delighted with Gus Riker's culinary artistry that he awarded him a gold coin.

So it's easy to understand why the guests at Carr Brothers restaurant, Long Beach Boulevard near Wardlow Road, are equally delighted with their luncheon and dinner specialities. Gus is Carr Brothers' executive chef, an imaginative fellow who loves his work and is forever turning out the most scrumptious entrees, such as veal Oscar with crab for dinner or a gourmet mushroom omelette for luncheon.

Gus was born in the German village of Crailsheim and received his training in the culinary arts at a speciality restaurant in Stuttgart. From 1960 to 1971, he was executive chef aboard the Argo, a luxurious, 250-foot motor yacht owned by a U.S. construction corporation. The Argo traveled from New York to the Caribbean, Panama, Acapulco and other romantic ports, carrying many distinguished guests who were royally wined and dined. Among them on different occasions were Emperor Selassie, a prime minister of Ireland and other statesmen. The Emperor was so pleased with one of Gus' elaborate cold buffets that he gave him a gold coin for a keepsake.

Owned by Paul Carr, Carr Brothers serves dinner every night and luncheon Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Sunday nights the menu is limited to three superb entrees. Each is $3.95 and definitely a top dining value. They are a top sirloin steak, tender scallops sauteed in garlic butter or the combination of the steak and scallops. They come with baked potato and fresh coleslaw. On Sundays starting at 7 p.m. there's special entertainment by guest artists including Paul, who is a talented professional musician as well as a knowledgeable restaurateur. The cocktail lounge — with nightly entertainment — is one of the most popular in town, attracting guests who enjoy its casual fun atmosphere.

Those special luncheons at Carr Brothers are enjoyed by many people who have discovered they are almost as generous as dinners. Sensibly priced at $2.75, the specials change daily, ranging from pot roast or baked ham to corned beef with cabbage, sauteed sirloin tips or knockwurst with sauerkraut. Gus makes the freshest gourmet sauerkraut and buys custom-made, old-fashioned knockwurst from a German butcher in Los Angeles. The guests rate that knockwurst as "terrific." Each luncheon includes soup or salad, potatoes or rice and a fresh vegetable.

The dinners range from the most wonderful scampi to filet of sole with almonds, glorious prime rib au jus, broiled halibut, beautiful steaks, stuffed trout, roast duckling a l'orange with wine sauce and even Swiss steak in a tempting sauce. They are $4.50 to $8, with most less than $6. (Carr Brothers will be closed Christmas Day.)

ANDY GASSAWAY JR.
His mother is remembered, too

IN MY COLUMNS ABOUT Andy's Restaurant, Pacific Avenue at Anaheim Street, I often mention its founder, the late Andy Gassaway Sr. He taught his son, Andy Jr., the present owner, a great deal about the fine points of running a successful cafeteria.

Andy Sr. was a big, robust man, much beloved because of his personality and his many great works for local charities. He was such a dominant figure that my columns in recent years have tended to overlook another person who played an important part in developing Andy's restaurant business. She was, of course, the late Gertrude Gassaway, Andy's wife and the mother of Andy Jr.

One of my recent columns about Andy Sr. and his son triggered the following response from Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brothers, 354 Obispo Ave., former neighbors of the Gassaways: "Did you know that behind every man's success is a woman's? Gertrude Gassaway was a really great inspiration to Andy's — and one of the finest kindergarten teachers our Long Beach school system ever had!"

I appreciate the reminder. Gertrude sacrificed some of her most precious personal possessions, selling valuable furniture in the 1940s to help Andy finance his first cafeteria, Andy's Hotcake House on Pine Avenue in downtown Long Beach. She kept pretty much in the background as far as the restaurants were concerned, counseling Andy at times and giving him strong moral support whenever his spirits were low. Gertrude taught in schools throughout Long Beach for 30 years and received top commendations for her teaching skills. For many years she taught kindergarten at Horace Mann School.

Closed Saturdays and Sundays, Andy's Restaurant is open the rest of the time from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., serving breakfast, luncheon and dinner. Andy Jr. and his wife Camilla, who does the baking, have an outstanding staff, turning out the best cafeteria-style foods, using the great recipes orginated by Andy Sr. The daily breakfast special, served until 10:45 a.m., is $1.30, including two wonderful buttermilk hotcakes, two slices of bacon, an egg and coffee. The luncheon specials start at less than $1.25, with different specials daily.

Some customers drive many miles to Andy's for luncheon, because it features entrees which are almost as generous as the dinners, but cost less. Among the big luncheons are superlative round of roast beef and corned beef, both $2.50, and roast pork or roast turkey, $2.70. They come with salad, a fresh hot vegetable, hot cloverleaf roll or a muffin with butter. Those rolls, baked by Camilla, are gigantic and delectable. The nightly dinners — richly satisfying — feature roast beef, $2.95; baked ham, $2.90; Swiss steak, $2.75; Salisbury steak, $2.65, and several others. (Andy's will be closed Christmas.)

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan—are both of these politicians millionaires?—Sue Roberts, Alexandria, Va.

A. Reagan is a millionaire. Ford is not.

Q. Isn't playwright Tennessee Williams capitalizing on his homosexuality now that it's become so fashionable to be gay?—Elaine Rich, New Orleans.

A. Tennessee Williams, whose "Memoirs" was recently published, explains, "I never considered my homosexuality as anything to be disguised. Neither did I consider it a matter to be overemphasized. I consider it an accident of nature."

Q. Now that some of the smoke has cleared, what is the real reason President Ford fired James Schlesinger, his ex-Secretary of Defense?—Steven Deutsch, Los Angeles.

A. One truth is that Ford never liked Schlesinger. Schlesinger gets along beautifully with birds, but as regards humans, he declines frequently to descend from his high perch. Reportedly Ford found Schlesinger professorial, arrogant, pompous, argumentative, pedantic, and pejorative. Schlesinger is by background an intellectual, Ford a politican. In firing Schlesinger, Ford fired one of the two best minds in his Cabinet and Kissinger's leading Cabinet antagonist. Ford finds Kissinger's personality agreeable. Ford is attracted to agreeable personalities, which is why he named George Bush to replace William Colby as Director of Intelligence.

Q. The story that Princess Caroline of Monaco, Grace Kelly's 18-year-old, has been admitted to Princeton's freshman class next year—is that one true?—Ken Fisher, Oak Park, Ill.

A. Not true.

PRINCESS CAROLINE OF MONACO

HUMPHREY

Q. How good are the chances of a Hubert Humphrey-Jimmy Carter Democratic ticket for 1976?—F. Sande, Eugene, Oreg.

A. At this writing, Humphrey and Carter seem to be the front-runners, but it is still far too early to tell.

CARTER

Q. How old is former heavyweight champ Jack Dempsey, surely 85? Isn't he cancer-stricken?—Helen Koenig, Newark, N.J.

A. Jack Dempsey is 80. Recently he underwent a series of diagnostic tests at New York University Hospital. His family asked that the diagnosis not be made public. In the U.S. every fourth person dies of cancer.

Q. Justice William Douglas, who retired from the U.S. Supreme Court—didn't he for years engage in a violent feud with the late Justice Felix Frankfurter? Some background, please.—David Wetherley, Syracuse, N.Y.

A. Douglas and Frankfurter feuded, but there was nothing violent about it. They simply stopped talking to each other. Frankfurter believed deeply in the supremacy of the state, Douglas in the supremacy of the individual. To Douglas nothing ideologically has been more important than the American heritage of individual freedom. "The First Amendment," he wrote in one of his opinions, "is couched in absolute terms—freedom of speech shall not be abridged."

Q. For years, officials and lobbyists of the Gulf Oil Corp. made illegal campaign gifts or delivered money to such federal politicians as Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Hugh Scott, Hubert Humphrey, William Brock, Howard Cannon and others. My question: Is the Justice Department going to try to send such officials to jail?—H. T., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. On the basis of past performance, the answer is probably not.

Q. Who is the man who originated Dracula?—Clarence Hunt, Roxbury, Mass.

A. English author Bram Stoker, who died in 1912, penned "Dracula" in 1897. Stoker was a theater manager in London at the turn of the century. He wrote 18 books but is most remembered for "Dracula." He was a friend of Theodore Roosevelt, Alfred Lord Tennyson, Ellen Terry, and many of the celebrities of his day. His nephew, Daniel Farson, who has written a book about Stoker, "The Man Who Wrote Dracula," believes his uncle was a schizophrenic.

EDMONDE CHARLES-ROUX AND HUSBAND GASTON DEFFERRE

Q. When I was in Paris recently I was told that the great French love affair of the hour was between Charles Roux and Gaston Defferre. I know Defferre is the mayor of Marseilles, but I never heard of the other fellow. Can you help?—D. L., Stonington, Conn.

A. "The other fellow" is an attractive, elegant, sophisticated woman of 55 whose full name is Edmonde Charles-Roux, and she has been Defferre's wife since 1973. She is a former editor of the French edition of "Vogue" and winner of France's leading literary award, the "Prix Goncourt," for her novel, "To Forget Palermo." She also wrote the biography of Coco Chanel, the dress designer. Gaston Defferre, 65, a Resistance hero in World War II, is head of the Socialist bloc in the French National Assembly. He fell in love with Edmonde Charles-Roux in 1966 when he held a reception in her honor. She, too, is from Marseilles. Defferre was married at the time. It took him six years to arrange a divorce from his wife, a Dutch woman, Paly Swaters, he had married in 1946. The divorce did not affect his political career. He is still the Protestant mayor of Marseilles. Edmonde Charles-Roux is Catholic.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

ROCK AND ROLL POLITICS

The "rock concert" is becoming a major source of campaign revenue for 1976 political races.

Ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, a Democratic Presidential contender, has landed Phil Walden of Capricorn Records and Bill Graham, the San Francisco rock promoter, in his camp. The Carter campaign to date has been the beneficiary of concerts by the Allman Brothers and the Marshall Tucker Band.

Under the new Federal Election Commission requirements, the name and address of every rock concert ticketholder must be recorded, but politicians don't mind so long as the concerts produce money.

One of the first politicians to employ the rock concert gimmick this year is Tom Hayden, husband of actress Jane Fonda. Hayden seeks to replace John Tunney as U.S. Senator from California. In September a benefit concert for Hayden in San Jose by Linda Ronstadt and Jackson Browne grossed almost $35,000.

CANDIDATE TOM HAYDEN AND WIFE JANE FONDA

NEW LOW

Last year there were only seven reported cases of infantile paralysis in the U.S., the lowest figure on record.

This year, if no new cases are reported by the end of December, the number of poliomyelitis cases will be five.

There has not been a serious polio outbreak since 1970. By 1969, thanks to the Sabin oral vaccine, the number of paralytic cases of polio in this country dropped to 19. In 1970 the figure jumped to 32. Since then the figure has declined to the present level.

Should immunization programs be ignored, however, the disease could again strike.

It was Jonas Salk who developed the first vaccine in 1955 after John Enders, Frederick Robbins and Thomas Weller isolated the polio virus and reproduced it in tissue cultures.

LUGGAGE SECRETS

Airlines now insist that passengers identify their luggage with tags or labels bearing name and address. The new regulation presents a problem. It makes it relatively simple for thieves to obtain names and addresses at the local airport.

Possible solution: use an office address on your luggage tag.

EMERGENCY CARE

Emergency medicine is the newest addition to the medical profession's smorgasbord of specialties. During the past five years, 35 residency programs have sprung up in hospitals across the country to train physicians for full-time work in the emergency room. Nearly 100 doctors have been graduated from these three-year postgraduate programs and 240 currently are enrolled in them.

Traditionally, physicians have performed emergency room duty on a rotational basis. In recent years, however, there has been a trend toward physicians working exclusively in the emergency arena.

Most of the 15,000 doctors who man the nation's emergency rooms have been trained as specialists in fields ranging from cardiology to surgery. But the new breed of emergency physician is receiving a multidiscipline education which emphasizes the emergency aspects of such fields as surgery, psychiatry, pediatrics, gynecology and internal medicine.

"These men and women need to know how to handle acute care problems until the specialist comes," says Dr. John H. Stone, director of the new emergency medicine residency program at Emory University School of Medicine and Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta.

Changes in emergency care have spurred the move to specialization. The need for speedy treatment has gone beyond the walls of the hospital. "Over half the patients who have heart attacks die before they make it to the hospital," says Stone. "And 50,000 people die of trauma [injuries] every year." As he sees it, the emergency physician must help organize community-wide emergency systems, where teams of roving paramedics can provide on-the-spot care for accident and heart attack victims.

The emergency room physician has become the family doctor for many poor and middle-class families who turn to the hospital for help because they have nowhere else to go. The doctor in the emergency room is often a patient's first contact with the medical system.

PREDICTING EARTHQUAKES

Is it possible to predict earthquakes? The Chinese think so.

Earlier this year they predicted a major earthquake in Liaoning Province, saved thousands of lives.

On Feb. 4th, at 2 p.m., to be exact, Chinese officials ordered the evacuation of two cities, Yingkow and Haicheng. Less than six hours later an earthquake struck both cities.

The Chinese based their forecast on a combination of seismological scientific observations and the reports of farmers who told about "strange animal behavior" and changes in the water level of wells.

BUSING FACT According to estimates of the National Institute of Education, 50.2% of America's 41.4 million public school children were bused to school last year. Of those 21 million bused children, only 7% were transported for desegregation purposes. Repeated studies show that school busing is more than three times safer than walking to school and is the nation's safest mode of transportation.

NASAL CONTRACEPTIVE A contraceptive nasal spray has been developed by scientists at the Medical Research Institute in New Delhi, India.

According to researchers, the hormones contained in the spray go directly to the area of the brain which regulates ovulation. The researchers have found that five inhalations per month prevent rhesus monkeys from becoming pregnant. No experiments have yet been conducted on human beings.

VEEP POSSIBILITIES According to veteran political observers, one of the five following men will be chosen by Gerald Ford as his running mate: Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense; Elliot Richardson, Secretary of Commerce; George Bush, Ford's nominee as Director of Intelligence; Sens. Howard Baker and William Brock of Tennessee. Unless, of course, Ronald Reagan changes his mind and is willing to play ball at second base.

INSOMNIA CURE Sex and tenderness are the best sleep-inducing aids, declares Dr. Raphael Lenne of Munich, Germany. In an interview published in "Medicine Today," Dr. Lenne denies that sex can replace sleeping pills.

"But," he explains, "the simple experience of being together can remove anxiety and have the calming effect of a narcotic."

Lenne says that instead of watching TV night after night, couples should agree to watch TV only three nights a week and spend the other nights "sharing body warmth, skin contact and caresses."

ORIENTAL BUNNIES Playboy Enterprises, in a bad way financially, is trying to make a dollar wherever it can. Hugh Hefner, in partnership with a Japanese company, plans to open a series of Playboy Clubs in Japan and possibly other Far Eastern countries. First Asian Playboy Club is scheduled to open in Tokyo next fall. There are thousands of bar girls in Japan, and competition won't be easy.

SADAT One of the most fascinating and lucky figures in the Middle East is Anwar El-Sadat, leader of Egypt, a slim, darkly handsome man of medium height who learned English and German in prison and lived for years in the shadow of the late Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Sadat was born in a village in the Nile Delta on Christmas Day, 1918. His father was a lowly civilian clerk in a military hospital. His mother was Sudanese, which is why Sadat is of coffee complexion.

The family was poor and devoutly Moslem. Sadat attended school in Cairo, and in 1936, when the Abbassis Military Academy was opened to the lower classes, he enrolled. One of his classmates was Gamal Abdel Nasser, 11 months his senior.

In 1938, following their graduation from the military academy, Sadat, Nasser and 10 other officers formed what Sadat describes in his autobiography, "Revolt on the Nile," as "a secret revolutionary society dedicated to the task of liberation."

During World War II, Sadat collaborated with Nazi spies in Cairo. He was arrested; court-martialed, dismissed from the Egyptian army and imprisoned for two years. In that period Sadat's family was supported by a $200-per-month contribution from Nasser and Sadat's fellow conspirators.

ANWAR SADAT AND WIFE GEHAN

Sadat escaped from detention camp in 1944, went into hiding, got a job in Cairo as a cab driver. On one occasion he planned to blow up the British Embassy, but Nasser dissuaded him. In 1946, however, when the war was over, Sadat engineered a series of terrorist attacks against pro-British officials. He was caught and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Freed in 1949, he went to work as a reporter for "Al Mussawar," Egypt's version of "Life" magazine.

He had friends in high places and subsequently got himself reinstated in the Egyptian army. There he conspired with Nasser and other officers to overthrow King Farouk.

On July 22, 1952, when Nasser staged a coup d'état, Sadat got the signals crossed and took his children to a Cairo cinema instead. Furious that he had missed this great, bloodless event, he raced to military headquarters where Nasser assigned him the job of announcing over the radio that the Free Officers Committee had taken control of Egypt. Sadat was also assigned the task of overseeing the departure of Farouk from Alexandria.

In 1969, when Nasser knew that he was dying, he named Sadat to the Vice Presidency, mainly because Sadat was the only army officer he felt he could trust. Nine months later Nasser suffered a fatal heart attack, and Sadat took over as President of the United Arab Republic.

He has remained in office since, because he is clever, because he engineered the Yom Kippur War of Oct. 6, 1973, restoring some self-respect to the impoverished Egyptians.

Sadat has been married twice. By his first wife, of whom no one speaks, he has three married daughters and a flock of grandchildren. By his current and second wife, Gehan, who is half English and heftily attractive, he has another three daughters and a son named Gamal.

In addition to his autobiography, Sadat is the author of a novel, "The Prince of the Island." It remains unpublished. By nature Sadat is a gambler. He is gambling that his friendship with the U.S. will keep him in office indefinitely. If the U.S. lets him down, he is out.

The First Family and Christmas Memories

by Charles Peterson

COVER BY PETER SOUTHWICK

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The four children of Gerald and Betty Ford have always looked forward to Christmas as the one time in the year when they could be sure of seeing their peripatetic politician of a father.

During the quarter of a century Ford served as a Congressman from Michigan's 5th District he became so addicted to the chicken-and-mashed-potato circuit that he spent more than half his nights out of town. Thus, when he managed to make it home for Christmas, his sons used to joke following the Christmas dessert: "It's been nice seeing you, Dad. Hope you'll drop by again next year."

For countless years Gerald Ford's role of Father Christmas was played by his mother, Dorothy.

Christmas was her favorite holiday. She delighted in having her four sons, their wives, and her 14 grandchildren visit her in Grand Rapids, Mich. She was an expert knitter, and her Christmas gifts to the family invariably consisted of sweaters or doll clothes for the young girl grandchildren.

"My grandmother," recalls the President's son Jack, "also knitted Christmas stockings for everyone in the family. They were ornately decorated with sequins and bells and our names stitched on. One year she even knitted a stocking for my sister Susan's Tiny Tears doll.

"For my Dad she made an incredibly beautiful cloth which circles the base of our tree. It's decorated with old Ford and Ike buttons and other mementos which trace my Dad's political career."

Of her mother-in-law, who died in 1967, Betty Ford says, "She was so fond of Christmas that on the first of January she began planning for the next Christmas. If she had one present for us, she had 10—all individually wrapped and marked and ready by Thanksgiving."

Although the Fords bought a condominium in Vail, Colo., in 1968 where they have since spent their Christmases, the Ford family has continued many of the traditions begun by Dorothy Ford.

Before he was moved into the White House, Gerald Ford was responsible for selecting the family Christmas tree.

Touch the ceiling

"The Boss," which is what the three Ford boys call their father, always made certain that the tree was "tall enough to touch the ceiling." Ford and his sons were responsible for stringing the Christmas lights on the tree branches and around their house in Alexandria, Va. Betty Ford and daughter Susan unpacked the boxes of ornaments, including the star that sits atop the tree. "I bought that during World War II," Mrs. Ford recalls, "when ornaments were scarce."

In the old pre-Presidential days, Susan used to bake cookies and give them as gifts to the Ford neighbors in Alexandria. The boys used to decorate the windows of their house with spray snow and hang homemade paper wreaths, no matter how poorly done, on the front door. And as children they would always leave a glass of milk and cookies in front of the fireplace for Santa Claus. "When we'd get up in the morning," Jack Ford remembers, "the milk and cookies would have been eaten by our dog."

Some other Christmas memories of the Fords: "One year I got a doll," Susan recalls, "that had real blond hair. My brother Steve talked me into cutting it all off. The doll was bald. I was terribly upset. I tried to glue the hair back on. It wouldn't take. The boys howled."

Jack recalls a Christmas mishap of his own "I was given this terrific Roman gladiator's outfit. I liked it so much that I took it out to Grand Rapids to show it off to my relatives. When time came to return to Washington we were having so much fun at Grandma's house that we were late in leaving for the airport.

"We had to catch that plane because it was the last of only two flights a day out of nearby Traverse City for Washington.

"My father was racing to catch the plane and didn't have time to stop the car for my brother Mike, who'd gotten carsick. To keep Mike from throwing up all over the car, my mother made me give him my gladiator's helmet. He filled it up, and I could never wear that helmet again."

$1 gift limit

When the Ford children were growing up, Jerry Ford insisted that they buy Christmas gifts for one dollar or less. The young Fords observed the rule by making gifts for their parents. They didn't feel, however, that their parents should reciprocate in kind.

"As I look back," says Jack, "I don't think any of us was ever disappointed in Christmas. We used to look through toy catalogs and select 50 different possible gifts. That way, if we received just a few, we considered ourselves way ahead. Of course, Mom used to put school supplies in our stockings and this used to drive us crazy."

This year, like last, the Fords have to prepare two homes for Christmas — their borrowed Vail condominium and the White House. Last year the Ford Christmas tree in Colorado was chosen and decorated by a civic group called the Vail Association. The Fords had no time to do the job themselves. The tree was installed in the home of Dallas oilman Dick Bass, because the Ford's $60,000 condominium on the third floor was too small for the family and the Secret Service both.

Ski after breakfast

Despite their ages, the Ford children —Mike, 25; Jack, 23; Steve, 19; and Susan, 18—are still enthusiastic about Christmas, especially in Colorado, because they all enjoy skiing so much.

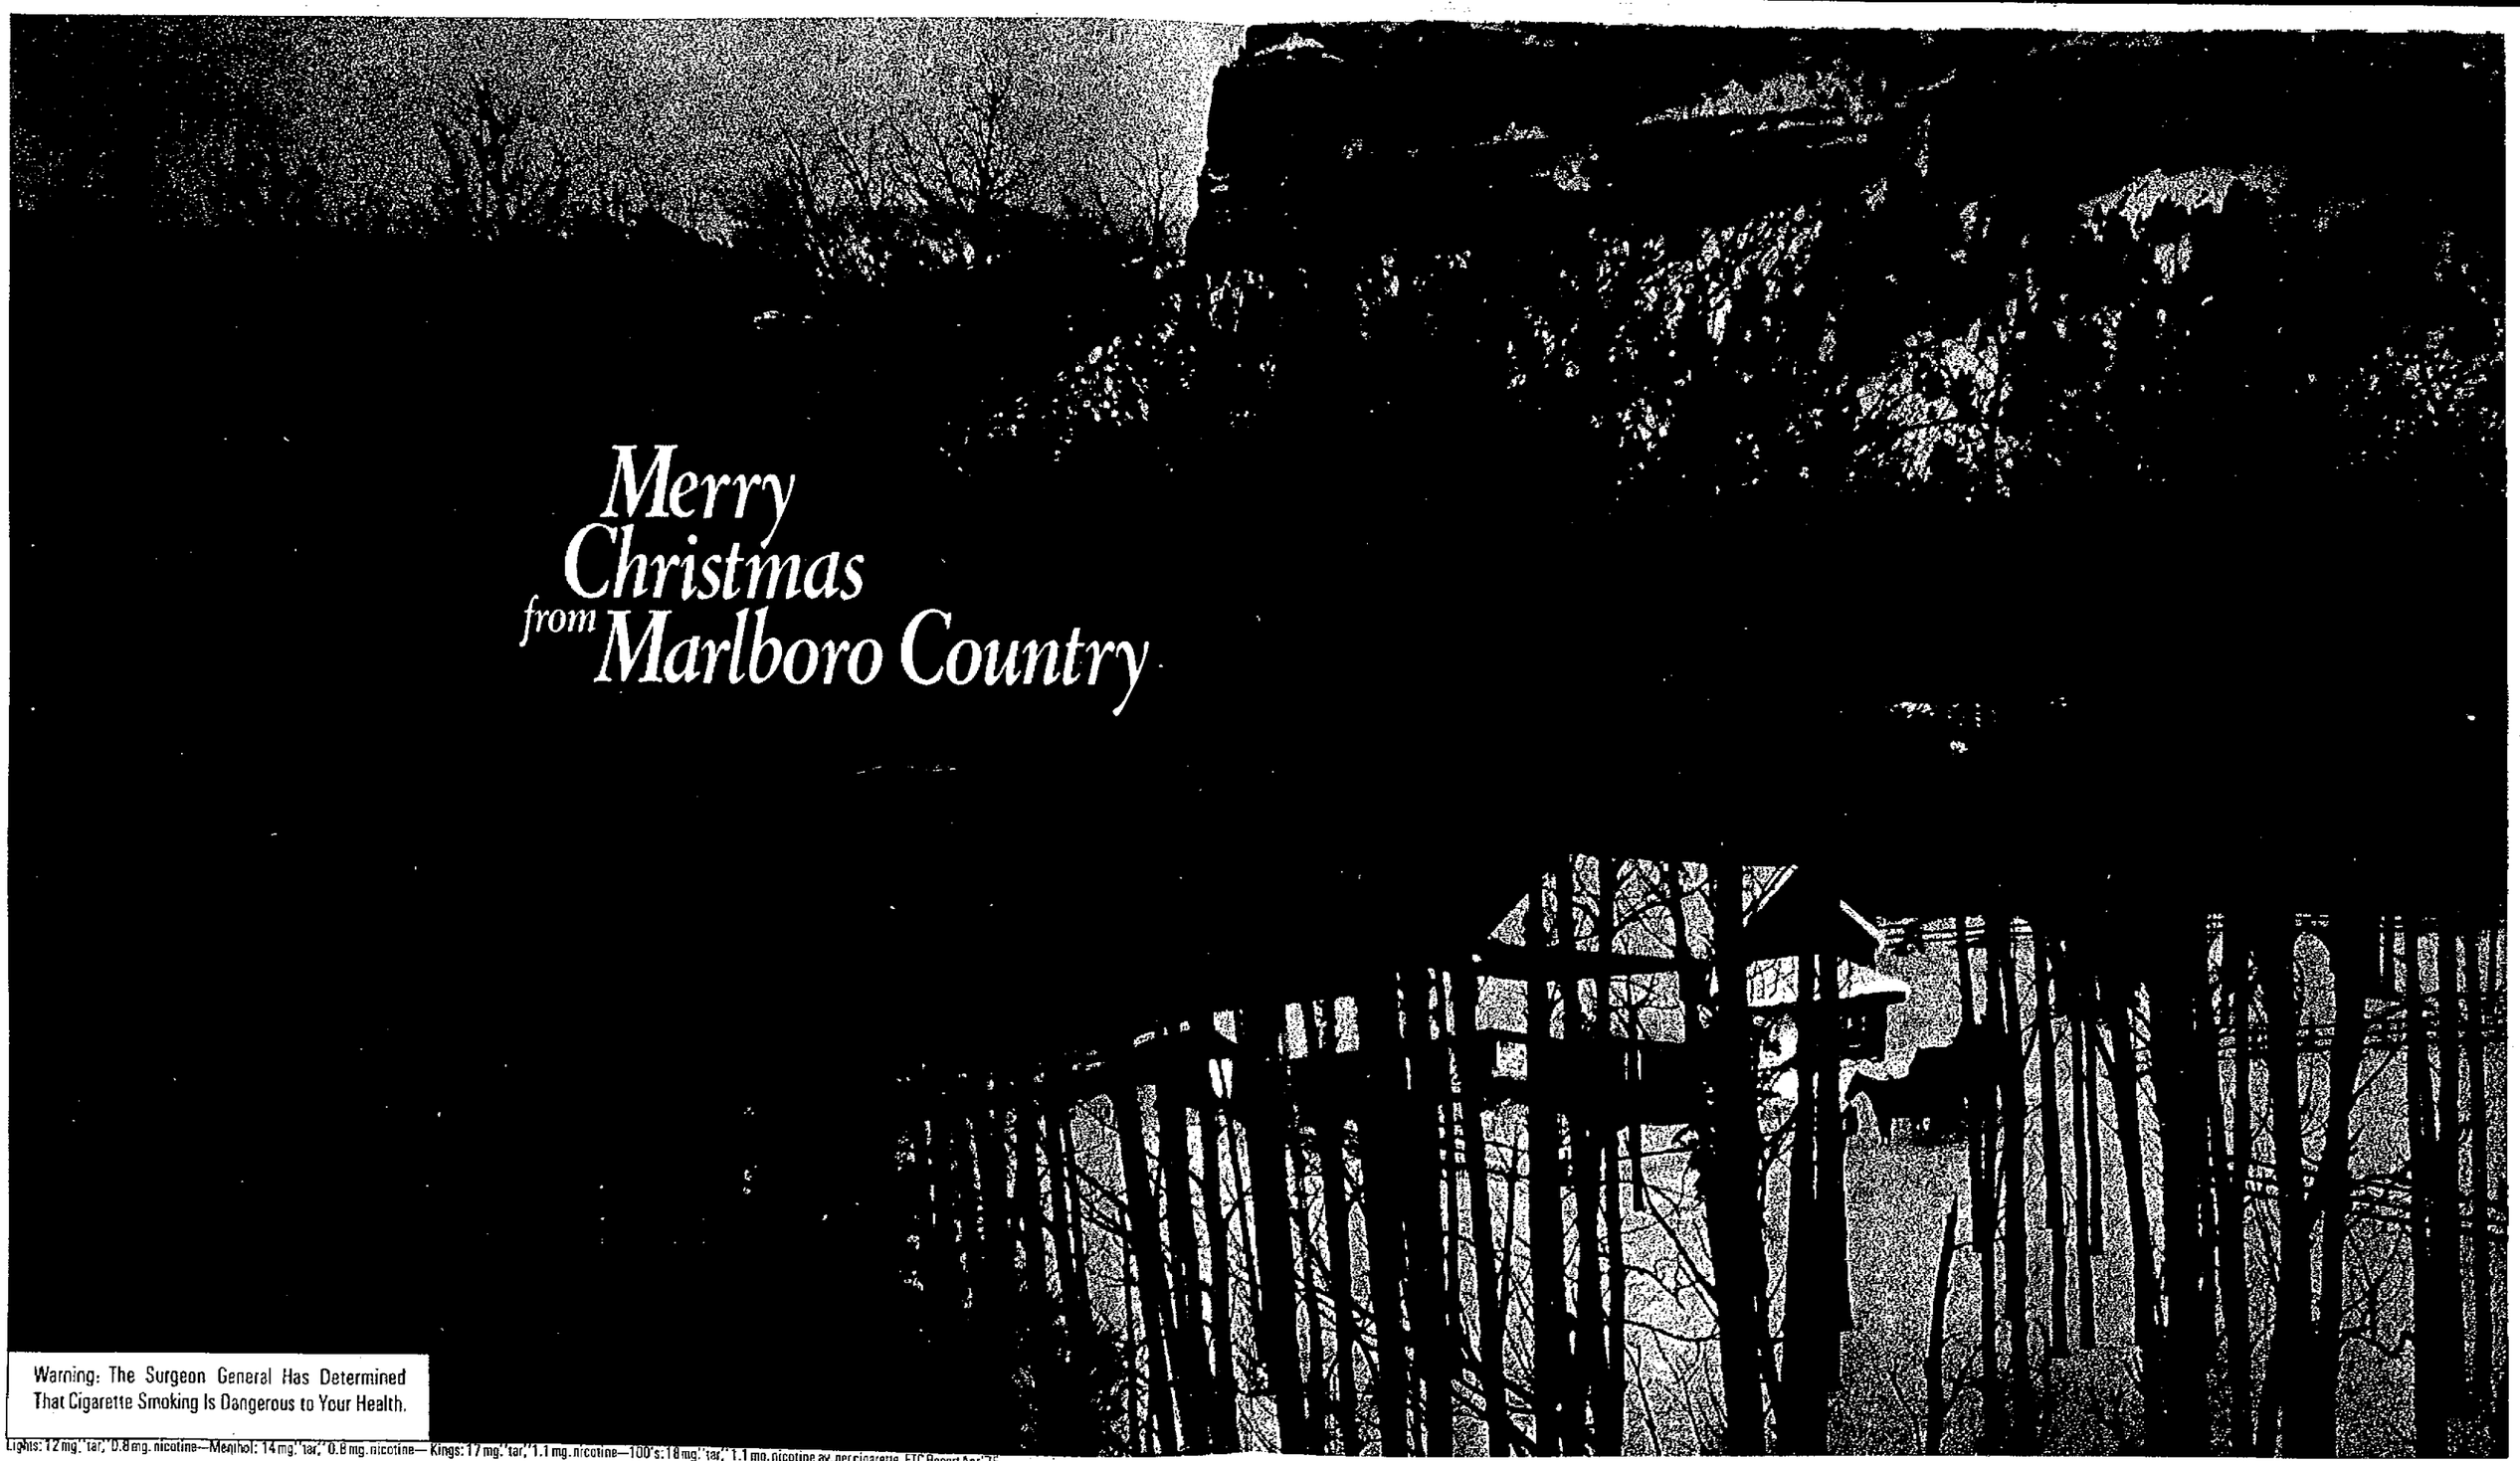

"After opening their gifts on Christmas morning," Mrs. Ford explains, "and gulping down their breakfast, the kids are off to the slopes, the President being the oldest boy of all, leading the way."

The Fords basically observe a simple, folksy Christmas and always have. Their taste is reflected in the handmade, homemade Christmas ornaments which Betty Ford has chosen to decorate this year's White House tree.

All the trimmings were handcrafted and made of available inexpensive products such as acorns, peanuts, dried fruits, straw, pinecones, ribbons, and gaily colored scraps of fabric.

A view of Bethlehem from the top of the Church of the Nativity, which is all prepared to celebrate Christmas Mass. The Church is said to be built over Christ's Manger.

The sage Hana Burbara in the backyard of his house where townsfolk come to have him settle their disputes. He looks forward to his 77th Christmas in Bethlehem.

The Wise Old Man of Bethlehem

by George Michaelson

BETHLEHEM.

Hana Burbara is a "wise man" from Bethlehem, and this year he will celebrate his 77th Christmas here.

"From the time of the Turks right up until the present, I have spent every Christmas in this holy city," said the lively, devout septuagenarian as we sat beneath a pomegranate tree just outside the 400-year-old stone house. "There have been a lot of changes in our Christmas celebration over the years; some good, some bad. And if you want, I'll tell you a little about them. But one thing has stayed pretty much the same—me. Though I hobble a bit now, I still go to Christmas Mass as usual, and it's still a very special time for me."

Thus, this Wednesday, as midnight approaches, "wise man" Hana will again prepare to celebrate Christmas. (He got his reputation as a wise man—or "a modern-day Solomon," as one local official put it—because neighbors and people in surrounding villages come to him whenever there is a dispute to settle, and Hana, Solomon-like, settles it.)

As usual, Hana will don his long, flowing robe, take his olive-wood cane, and walk the half-mile up the winding lane from his home to the Church of the Nativity, which is said to be built over Christ's Manger. There, along with some 4000 others—pilgrims from abroad, local Christians, even blue-bereted U.N. troops stationed in the area—he will come to the Christmas Midnight Mass.

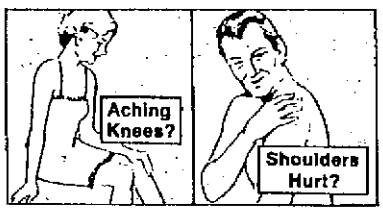

If he is lucky, he will get a seat inside the 1000-capacity Church itself. If not, he will watch the ceremony on the large television screen put up on the wall of the police station in the adjacent Manger Square; which, he says, "I really don't mind, because outside you've got a lot of other nice things—the vendors selling Christmas candles to the kids, the huge cyprus tree which we use as our Christmas tree, and a lot of lively singing.

Misses the old days

"But," he added quickly, "sometimes I do get to where I miss how we celebrated in the old days, so simple and plain—like in the time of the Bible. . . ." Hana paused briefly and, with his cane, pointed to the hills that lie just outside his house and lead down to the Dead Sea. "Back in those days, around 1910 or 1920, practically the only folks who would come to celebrate lived in the villages in these hills; and a few who would travel two or three days by horse from Nazareth and other Christian towns up in the Galilee—some 75 miles away. We hardly ever had any pilgrims from abroad, though when they did come, we treated them as honored guests.

"Christmas was something you looked forward to for weeks," recalled Hana. "The women would go to the market and get special holiday goods: flour and nuts to make the sweet pastries, and a small lamb which we would slaughter for the Christmas Day feast. If you happened to have a good year, you would contribute something to those who had nothing—maybe a few silver or gold coins, not paper money, because in those days there simply wasn't such a thing. But in any case, you tried to make sure that everyone had at least a little bit of a feast for Christmas.

The way it was

"The Christmas Mass was celebrated, of course, up in the same Church of the Nativity—the place where God chose to have His Son born. The main clergy who conducted the mass, however, came from the holy city of Jerusalem, eight miles away, and it would take them half a day to get here by horse-drawn carriage. Those of us men who happened to own a horse or donkey would go out to meet them, wearing our best robes and sandals; we had no shoes back then in the time of the Turks. We'd have our swords strapped on one side, our pistols on the other, and when we saw the holy carriage approaching, we'd start firing shots into the air as a kind of salute. Then we'd escort the carriage to the Church."

Hana stood up briefly, plucked a couple of pomegranates from the tree, and cut them into sections for his guest. Then, with a smile that made the sunshine-lines at the corners of his eyes light up, he continued: "Once in a while, we were even lucky enough to get some snow. It was like a godsend—you see, it only snows in Bethlehem maybe once or twice a year—and then we'd shovel a path from the Jerusalem road up to the Church, so that the holy carriage could pass. All the young boys would be running around throwing snowballs at each other, jumping in and out of the snow; it was a wonderful thing to see.

'Something of a party'

"As for the religious mass itself, it was pretty much the same back then, though we didn't have the TV screen, or the piped-in music, or all the choirs from abroad. And, oh yes, we didn't have women going about in—how should I put it?—well, the latest 'revealing' fashions. Still, it was a merry occasion, and after the religious ceremony there was something of a party."

Immersed in sweet recollection, he continued. "First, everyone would have a snack outside the Church. There was a huge pot, big enough for four people to stand in, and it was filled with tea; we would have a large glass or two just to warm up. Then the women would go home with the children, and the men would get together with the clergy and all the monks, and we'd go and 'toast' the Christmas. . . ." Hana patted his stomach. "Yes, we'd 'toast' for several hours, telling stories about this Turkish governor, or that British general, enjoying ourselves on through the night.

A busy marketplace in Bethlehem, now selling special items for the holidays.

'The nicest part'

"Eventually, we'd make our way home, sleep a little, and then feast with our families—which, in many ways, was the nicest part of all. My wife, son, and I would join the rest of our relatives. We didn't give a lot of presents back then, nor did we have Christmas trees in the house either; those are more modern customs. But we did give a few small things, like candies and cakes, to the children. And at the end of the feast, everyone would turn to me, because I'm something of a storyteller, and I would tell the story of Christ's birth, and everyone would listen."

Hana stopped and closed his eyes for several minutes, rubbing them with his long, knotted fingers. "Yes, those were wonderful times," he went on, "but I tell you, if a man has Christmas in his heart, these are still wonderful times. I'll tell you a wonderful thing that is going to happen for me this Christmas. Just the other day I got a letter from my only son, who lives in Abu Dhabi, on the Persian Gulf. And what do you know? For the first time in many years he is coming to Bethlehem to spend Christmas with old Hana. That's right, this Wednesday night, my son and I will go up to the Church and the Midnight Mass, just like we used to, and then we'll come back to the house and feast. . . ."

Then, chuckling softly, as if he had just told himself a small joke, Hana added: "Yes, my friend, this year I feel very lucky. Can you imagine, like God Himself I have had only one son, and this year he is coming to Bethlehem for Christmas!"

Lib Courses

What effect do women's studies courses have upon the women who take them?

A significant effect, especially among girls who started out with the most traditional attitudes, according to Diane Ruble and colleagues at UCLA.

Ms. Ruble and associates recently reported in the "Journal of Applied Social Psychology" that girls taking women's studies courses were much more likely to believe women were discriminated against and to develop more hostile attitudes towards women's traditional roles in society.

STRENGTH-TESTING AT THE EAST GERMAN SPORTS UNIVERSITY

School for Sports

How can a small country like East Germany with only 17 million people rank third in the world in competitive sports?

The answer is the German College for Physical Culture located in Leipzig. That college not only makes the winning of competitions a prime priority for both students and teachers, it is also the first sports university to develop athletic trainers.

The young college men and women have such facilities as a sports library with 75,000 volumes, 11 gymnasiums, a champion-size swimming pool, and a stadium which holds 100,000 spectators.

A vital part of the university is the research institute where scientists develop new training methods for athletes and new criteria for discovering athletes of potential.

There are 400 instructors and 2300 students each of whom is paid a monthly stipend of $50. These athletes are graduated from the university not only with expertise in sports but with a thorough knowledge of Communist doctrine.

Washington Internships

Students, college graduates, professionals and citizens interested in Washington internships might want to purchase two worthwhile publications.

"Directory of Public Service Internships" lists opportunities available for graduates, postgraduates and mid-career professionals.

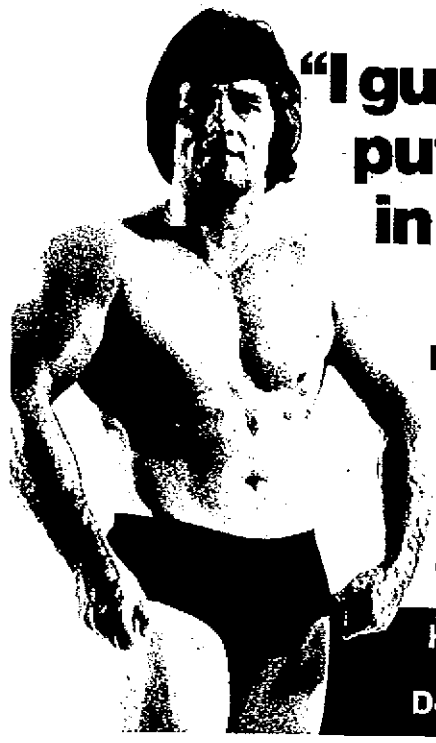

"Directory of Washington Internships" has a similar format, listing a broad spectrum of public service activities in the Metro-Washington area.

The cost of each directory is $6. Write the National Center for Public Service Internship Programs, 1735 Eye Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Kids' Rent

How much room and board should a parent charge a working child who has graduated from school and is living at home?

According to the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, "about 20% of the youngster's net monthly income." The arrangement should be flexible, the bank suggests, but in the long run it's best for all workers to contribute something.

"I guarantee to put you back in top shape -stronger more dynamic and vigorous than ever... or you will not owe me a cent."

Yes, there is a proven effective way to build power-packed muscles in just 5 minutes a day. A FREE BOOKLET with action photos in full color shows the fast, easy and super-effective Bullworker method. Whether you are 15 or 65, underweight or have inches to lose...even if you have not exercised for years, you owe it to yourself to read this booklet. Mail coupon today—It's free and there is no obligation to buy anything.

Our statistics show that 4 out of every 5 men who try the Bullworker are so delighted with the results they get in the first couple of weeks that they go on with the training to achieve really impressive gains in strength and fitness. That's because Bullworker training is FAST: each exercise takes only 7 seconds and the complete program can be done in about 5 minutes. It's EASY: most men between 15 and 65 in good general health can run through the full program without getting tired. And YOU SEE YOUR IMPROVEMENT, right from the very first day, on the built-in Powermeter. After about two or three weeks of regular training, most men can measure an extra inch or two of muscle on the shoulders, the chest, the biceps—and an inch or two less flab around the waistline. And that's just the beginning: there are specialized exercises for building-up or trimming down any part of your body you want to: arms, back, shoulders, chest, waist and legs. What's more, since Bullworker training is progressive, you perform better each time. Yet the training always seems easy since with every workout your strength increases by about 1%—that's an increase of up to 50% in just three months, and I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength. In my opinion, Bullworker is the most advanced home trainer on the market today.

I'm so convinced that Bullworker training will give you the same kind of fantastic results it already has for more than two million enthusiastic users the world around that I make this man-to-man offer: if after just two weeks of Bullworker training you aren't already in better shape than you've been in years, if you can't actually see your improvement in a mirror and measure your results with a tape measure, you won't owe me a cent. Something for menthol smokers to think about.

There are menthol cigarettes and there are menthol cigarettes. And if you're a menthol smoker you certainly know by now which one you really enjoy smoking.

So what makes us think we'll ever get a crack at switching you?

Well, we're going to try.

Because if you're like a lot of cigarette smokers these days, you're probably concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine stories you've been hearing.

Frankly, if a cigarette is going to bring you flavor, it's also going to bring you smoke. And where there's smoke, there has to be 'tar.' In fact, in most cigarettes, the more flavor, the more 'tar.' Except for Vantage.

You must know that Vantage cigarettes have a special filter which reduces 'tar' and nicotine without destroying flavor.

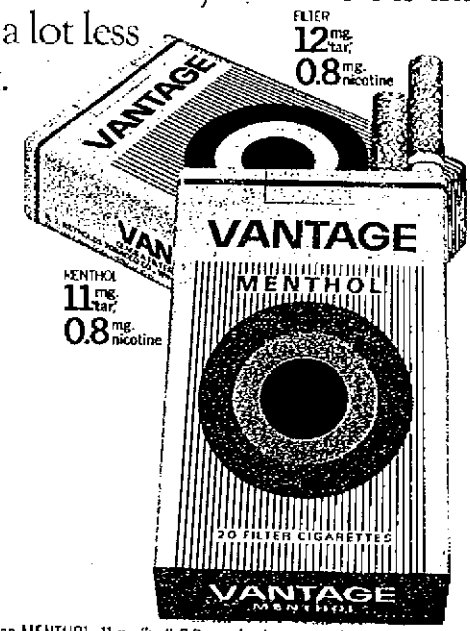

What you may not know is that Vantage is also available in menthol.

Not surprisingly, what separates Vantage Menthol from ordinary menthols is that Vantage Menthol gives you all the flavor you want, with a lot less of the 'tar' and the nicotine that you probably don't want.

Now Vantage Menthol is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol you'll find. It may well be the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

Since you're the best judge of what you like about menthol cigarettes, don't just take our word for it.

Try a pack of Vantage Menthol and then you'll know for sure.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER: 12 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report MAR. '75.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Senior Fun Shows for the Young at Heart," says his card—and, indeed, Charles Lindner loves to tell jokes and stories that are of special interest to senior citizens. He performs in hospitals, senior citizen residences and for church and synagogue Golden Age clubs. Often members of his audience will engage him in a spry response to his own humor. "After one of my shows at a home for the aged," he recounts, "an 89-year-old woman said to me: 'Bob Hope, may I have your autograph?' I said: 'I'm not Bob Hope.' She replied: 'What's the difference, it's for my 2-year-old great-grandchild; he can't read anyway.'"

Here are some of Charles Lindner's favorite jokes:

Show me a man with two feet on the ground, and I'll show you a man who can't get his pants off.

Most of us have two chances to get rich: slim and fat.

Sign in a nudist camp: "Always open. We never clothe."

Not all senior citizens have financial problems. One lady walked into a bank with a shopping bag full of money and asked to see the president. She told him she wished to open a savings account with the $5000 in the bag. She emptied the contents on the president's desk, and it added up to $6000. She said: "May I use your phone?" She called her husband and said: "Max, you dope, you gave me the wrong shopping bag!"

A father asks his 6-year-old son what he is drawing. "I'm drawing a picture of God."

The father says, "But nobody knows what God looks like."

"Now they will."

First joke ever told: Eve says to Adam, "Do you still love me?" Adam replies, "Who else?"

•

Best and cheapest diet in the world: Only eat when there is good news.

Money doesn't always bring happiness. A man with $10 million is no happier than a man with $9 million.

She: "Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

He: "Now that you mention it, you do look familiar."

•

When I was a kid I bought my father a BB gun for Father's Day, so he bought me a T-shirt with a bull's-eye on it.

I have 50,000 shares of Xerox. I really only have one share —I Xeroxed the rest.

Returning to his stadium seat, a rather obese football fan leaned over and asked a woman seated on the aisle: "Did I step on your foot when I went out?"

"Well," smiled the woman, ready to accept his apology, "as a matter of fact you did."

"Good," he said, squeezing past her, "then it's the right row."

Dear Sir,
I am wondering if I could possibly have one of the decendants of Washington's Tree. I am very much interested in Horticulture. I am 13 years old and could plant it like George Washington did at a young age. I could watch it and care for it, until I die. We have quite a few acres of land. I would care for it every day and love it to make it happy. There is not much more I can write except that I hope and pray I might be able to have one of these wonderful, historic trees.

Your good friend,
John A. Cornelius

This letter asking for seeds from a tree George Washington planted at his Mount Vernon, Va., home is among the many touching letters received from Americans of all ages in response to PARADE's depiction of the tree as a natural Bicentennial symbol.

NOW AVAILABLE

Seeds From George Washington's Tree

by Fred Blumenthal

MOUNT VERNON, VA.

A tree planted by George Washington has become the living symbol of the Bicentennial to thousands of Americans. They have written to PARADE in unprecedented numbers in approval of its suggestion that the spirit of the Revolution is best symbolized not by souvenir T-shirts and ashtrays, but by the 200-year-old native tulip poplar which Washington transplanted as a young sapling to the west side of his home in Mount Vernon, where it still casts its friendly shade.

Many readers have written requesting seeds from the tree—which now are available—to plant in their own gardens.

The tree, probably germinated or "born" in 1776, was identified by Mount Vernon's chief horticulturist, Robert B. Fisher, from Washington's diaries as one of a group of "very fine poplars," nine or 10 years old, which he transplanted from nearby woodlands during 1785. The tree today overlooks the carriage drive to Mount Vernon and has become a tourist attraction since PARADE's article about it appeared last July 6.

Letters have poured in from every state but Alaska requesting seeds from the "Independence Tree."

Mrs. Veronica Morris of Somerville, Mass., writing on behalf of a blind woman for whom she works, says: "I would like her to 'feel' the new seedling growing. She is a beautiful American lady, and I'm sure she would write herself if she could see to do so."

Paula A. Greene, president of the American Women's Club in Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, wants a seed for the new American Embassy there so that "we could share a little of home." And Col. W. E. Y. Paxton, commander of the Headquarters 15th Air Base Wing in Hawaii, asks for three seedlings to be planted as part of the Bicentennial observance at Hickam Air Force Base, Wheeler Air Force Base and Bellows Air Force Station.

All who want seeds from the Independence Tree may eventually receive them, for in the golden sunshine of Virginia's October the old poplar put out its annual clusters of winged seeds. These have been gathered by volunteers from the Davey Tree Co., dried, and are now ready.

Certificate included

Seeds, five or six to a package, will now be sent on request (enclose 50 cents to cover packaging and mailing). Horticulturist Fisher predicts that one or two seeds will germinate successfully. Planting instructions will be mailed with the seeds together with a certificate of authenticity.

For those whose letters arrive when the present supply of seeds is exhausted, seedlings grown in Mount Vernon's nursery to a height of five or six inches will be available next year—their price yet to be determined. There also will be another crop of seeds next year.

Requests should be addressed, with the 50-cent handling charge enclosed, to the Mount Vernon Ladies Association, Mount Vernon, Va. 22121.
